The Company represents that no other utility currently provides water or sewer service to the New Areas. Further, the Company states that the same rates for water and sewer services as contained in the tariffs on file with the Commission will apply to the New Areas and no change in those rates are being sought in connection with the application. The same availability fee for single family residential lots applied in the Company's current service area will also be applied in the New Areas.¹

Great Eastern Development Corporation ("Great Eastern"), one of the owners of the new property, has agreed to install and fund the costs of the necessary water and wastewater facilities at no cost to Massanutten.

On December 17, 2002, the Commission issued a procedural order docketing the case, directing the Company to give notice of its application, inviting interested persons to comment and/or request a hearing on the application, and directing the Staff to review the application and file a report. In that Order, we stated that we would also treat the application as a request for a certificate pursuant to § 56-265.2 of the Code of Virginia. Further, because Great Eastern will own the facilities until they are conveyed to the Company, we deemed the application as a request for approval of the acquisition of utility assets pursuant to § 56-89 of the Code of Virginia.

On December 19, 2002, Massanutten filed two amendments to the application. The first amendment revised the amount that the Company has agreed to reimburse Great Eastern from $2.3 million to a maximum of $2.7 million, based on the number of connections in the New Areas. The second amendment revised the total number of potential new connections to approximately 2,250.

The Commission entered an order on December 31, 2002, permitting the Company to amend its application, directing Massanutten to publish a revised notice, and extending the dates for interested persons to comment and/or request a hearing on the application.

On January 2, 2003, the Company filed proof of service on the Rockingham County Board of Supervisors, and filed proof of newspaper publication on January 29, 2003.

On January 28, 2003, the Board of Supervisors of Rockingham County filed a letter stating that it voted to support Massanutten's application. In the letter, the Board of Supervisors stated that the water and sewer services that the Company proposes to provide are critical for the approved development, and requested that the Commission approve the application.

On February 28, 2003, the Staff filed its report. In the report, the Staff recommends the following: (1) that the Commission approve the transfer of water and wastewater utility assets from Great Eastern to Massanutten pursuant to § 56-89 of the Code of Virginia; (2) that Massanutten file quarterly status reports with the Commission providing notice of transfers which have taken place, identifying the facilities transferred and the dates of transfers; (3) that Massanutten be required to maintain detailed records supporting the capital assets contributed by Great Eastern, and record such assets in accordance with the Uniform System of Accounts for Water and Wastewater Utilities, and file an Annual Informational Filing ("AIF") based on calendar year 2002 operations on or before July 31, 2003; (4) that the Commission grant Massanutten's request for amended certificates pursuant to § 56-265.3 D of the Code of Virginia permitting the Company to operate in the designated New Areas of Rockingham County, Virginia; and (5) that Massanutten be granted a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to § 56-265.2 of the Code of Virginia permitting the acquisition of new water and sewer facilities in the designated New Areas.

On March 11, 2003, counsel for Massanutten filed a letter requesting that the Commission issue a final order granting the Company's application and the requisite approvals associated with that application.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered Massanutten's application, §§ 56-89, 56-265.3 D, and 56-265.2 of the Code of Virginia, and the Staff's report, is of the opinion and finds that the Company's requests should be granted. We find that the transfer of facilities from Great Eastern to Massanutten pursuant to the Utility Transfers Act will not impair or jeopardize adequate service at just and reasonable rates. We also find, pursuant to §§ 56-265.2 and 56-265.3 D of the Code of Virginia, that the public convenience and necessity require us to issue a certificate to Massanutten to provide water and sewer service to the New Areas in Rockingham County, Virginia.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Pursuant to the Utility Transfers Act, approval is hereby granted for the transfer of water and wastewater utility assets from Great Eastern to Massanutten as installed.

¹ Availability fees may be imposed only by agreement, such as through a contract or restrictive covenant.

(2) Massanutten shall file quarterly status reports with the Commission's Division of Public Utility Accounting providing notice of transfers that have taken place. Such reports should identify the facilities transferred and the dates of transfers.

(3) Massanutten shall maintain detailed records supporting the capital assets contributed by Great Eastern, record such assets in accordance with the Uniform System of Accounts for Water and Wastewater Utilities, and file an AIF based on calendar year 2002 operations or before July 31, 2003.

(4) Certificate Nos. W-252 and S-75 are hereby canceled.

(5) Massanutten shall be granted an amended certificate of public convenience and necessity, Certificate No. W-252(a), to furnish water service in Massanutten Village and the Newman (Hopkins) Development, as well as in the New Areas in Rockingham County, Virginia, all as shown on the map attached to the certificate, at the Company's current rates, charges, rules and regulations of service.

(6) Massanutten shall be granted an amended certificate of public convenience and necessity, Certificate No. S-75(a), to furnish sewer service in Massanutten Village and the Newman (Hopkins) Development, as well as in the New Areas in Rockingham County, Virginia, all as shown on the map attached to the certificate, at the Company's current rates, charges, rules and regulations of service.

(7) Massanutten shall submit for review and filing a revision to its tariff that specifically identifies connection fees for services located in the New Areas.

(8) There being nothing further to be done, this matter is hereby dismissed from the Commission's docket of active cases.

PETITION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

For an exemption of transfers of equipment between affiliated generation companies from the filing and prior approval requirements of Chapter 4, Title 56 of the Code of Virginia or, in the alternative, prior approval of such transfers

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On October 30, 2002, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power" or the "Company") filed a petition with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 4 (§ 56-76, et seq.) of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") for exemption from the prior approval and filing requirements thereof, or, in the alternative, for approval of Dominion Virginia Power's sales and/or purchases of inventoried materials, parts, and equipment ("Inventory") to and from affiliated generation companies.¹

Currently, Dominion Virginia Power consults, among other similar sources, the RAPID (Readily Accessible Parts Information Directory) system, an online database available to utilities, for the rapid procurement of needed equipment from other utilities and other companies for the maintenance and repair of generation facilities on an expeditious basis, including during forced and scheduled outages. The Company states that it must expeditiously obtain needed parts to prevent extensions of scheduled and forced outages, which may result in additional costs for power and decreased reliability. The Company plans to continue to use the RAPID system or other similar sources.

In addition, to maximize the availability of needed parts on an expeditious basis, the Company seeks to share Inventory, as it does with non-affiliated companies, with other affiliated generation companies. Such affiliated generation companies include the following: Armstrong Energy Limited Partnership, LLLP; Dominion Nuclear Connecticut, Inc.; Dresden Energy, LLC, Elwood Energy, LLC; Kincaid Generation, L.L.C.; Pleasants Energy, LLC; State Line Energy, L.L.C.; Troy Energy, LLC; and other Dominion Virginia Power generation affiliates.

Under the proposed sharing of Inventory, neither Dominion Virginia Power nor its generation company affiliates would be obligated to purchase and/or sell the Inventory under the proposed arrangement. Rather, Dominion Virginia Power seeks the option to purchase and sell the Inventory as part of a cooperative effort to improve the availability of needed parts in order to operate more efficiently and reliably and to lower the costs related to the purchase and storage of Inventory. Dominion Virginia Power represents that there is a recurring need for spare equipment and parts, as demonstrated by exchanges between the Company's own generation units.

Dominion Virginia Power is proposing to use the moving average cost of equipment, which is the average Inventory in stock, as its basis for calculating the price of the proposed transactions. The Company indicates that this method of pricing would apply to both sales and purchases of the Inventory for all generation affiliates, including Dominion Virginia Power. After discussion with Staff regarding moving average pricing, by letter dated January 15, 2003, counsel for Dominion Virginia Power proposed the following transfer pricing modifications:

(1) For items with a unit price of $10,000 or less, the transfer should occur at the moving average cost;

(2) For items with a unit price of greater than $10,000, the transfer should occur at the moving average cost if the moving average cost is within 10% of the last purchase price in Inventory and the last purchase made for the unit was within the previous six months; and

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

(3) If neither (1) or (2) applies, moving average cost is not deemed to equal market price for a particular transfer of the item, and market price must be independently obtained and documented (e.g., contact usual vendor(s) to obtain price(s)). Then, (a) sale of the item by Dominion Virginia Power to affiliated companies would be at the higher of cost or market (obtained by independent information) or moving average cost, or (b) purchase of the item by Dominion Virginia Power from affiliated companies would be made at the lower of the market price (obtained by independent information) or the moving average cost. If an item is obsolete and no current (within the last six months) market price can be obtained through usual vendor(s), then obsolescence would be documented, and the item would be transferred at the moving average cost.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the petition and representations of the Company and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the requested exemption should be denied. We believe, however, that the proposed sharing of inventory, subject to certain modifications made in the proposed transfer pricing of shared Inventory as detailed herein, is in the public interest.

We also believe that, should a generation affiliate decide to sell a part obtained from Dominion Virginia Power within 12 months of purchase and sells the part at a price higher than that paid to Dominion Virginia Power, the difference should benefit Dominion Virginia Power.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code, the requested exemption is hereby denied.
- (2) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code, Dominion Virginia Power is hereby granted approval for the proposed sales and/or purchases of inventoried materials, parts, and equipment to and from affiliated generation companies subject to the modifications to the proposed moving average cost transfer pricing as detailed herein.
- (3) Should an affiliate purchase a part from Dominion Virginia Power and then resell the part to a third party within 12 months of purchase at a price higher than that paid to Dominion Virginia Power, the difference shall be returned to Dominion Virginia Power.
- (4) Should there be any changes in the terms and conditions of the inventory sharing arrangement from those contained herein, Commission approval shall be required for such changes.
- (5) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.
- (6) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code hereafter.
- (7) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not the Commission regulates such affiliate.
- (8) Dominion Virginia Power shall include the inventory sharing arrangement approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- (9) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then Dominion Virginia Power shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- (10) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

JANUARY 21, 2003

PETITION OF
and
DOMINION ENERGY, INC.

For an exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements of Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia or, in the alternative, approval of the transfer of inventory and Parts Reimbursement Agreement

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On October 30, 2002, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power" or "Company") and Dominion Energy, Inc. ("Dominion Energy") (collectively, the "Petitioners"), filed a petition with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 4 (§ 56-76, et seq.) of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") for exemption from the prior approval and filing requirements thereof or, in the alternative, for approval of transfer of inventory and Parts Reimbursement Agreement. More specifically, Dominion Virginia Power requests approval to transfer inventory from Dominion Virginia Power to Dominion Energy at the price it paid for it, $23,864,473, and to enter into a Parts Reimbursement Agreement with Dominion Energy in connection with a maintenance and repair agreement with General Electric International, Inc. ("GEII"). The subject of the petition is a volume-based fleet agreement with GEII for repair and maintenance of electric generating units owned by Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Energy and its affiliates.

Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Energy purchased gas turbine generators from an affiliate of GEII and plan to purchase additional similar units in the future. Under the volume-based fleet agreement and individual agreements with Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Energy, GEII will repair and maintain these generators. By including Dominion Virginia Power's generating units along with Dominion Energy's generating units under the agreements with GEII, Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Energy have been able to negotiate significant discounts on costs for services and parts for both Dominion Energy and Dominion Virginia Power.

Agreement with GEII

On March 28, 2002, Dominion Energy entered into a Multi-Unit Master Contractual Service Agreement ("Master CSA") with GEII. Dominion Energy (through its subsidiaries) and Dominion Virginia Power have constructed six simple cycle generating facilities and are in the process of constructing three combined cycle electric generating facilities. Additional electric generating facilities are in the planning phase. Dominion Energy and Dominion Virginia Power purchased certain gas turbine generators (the "Covered Units") from an affiliate of GEII. Dominion Energy entered into the Master CSA with GEII for GEII to provide long-term maintenance services for the Covered Units.

Along with the Master CSA, the terms and conditions for GEII's long-term maintenance services to be provided to Dominion Virginia Power and the unregulated affiliates will be governed by individual Contractual Service Agreements (each a "CSA"), which each Dominion Resources, Inc. ("Dominion") subsidiary will (or has) executed individually with GEII. The individual CSAs will differ only in the entity that is a party to the agreement.

In order to fulfill its obligations under the Master CSA and the individual CSAs with Dominion subsidiaries, the Master CSA envisions the creation of an Initial Fleet Spares Inventory ("IFSI"). The IFSI is the inventory of parts that will be stored at a location designated by Dominion Energy and will be used by GEII to support and maintain the Covered Units.

IFSI

Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Energy acquired the IFSI in December 2001 from GEII for $26,500,000, which Dominion Virginia Power represents is significantly below market rates. More specifically, prior to the execution of the Master CSA, Dominion Virginia Power purchased $23,864,473 worth of inventory, which was intended for use as part of the IFSI by Dominion Virginia Power and the various Dominion affiliates pursuant to the terms of the Master CSA. It was contemplated that, upon execution of the Master CSA, the IFSI would be transferred to an affiliate for administration of the IFSI in conjunction with the Master CSA. Dominion Energy purchased $2,635,527 worth of inventory, which is currently stored in Elwood, Illinois. The Master CSA and the individual CSAs envision that the IFSI will be owned by Dominion Energy and managed by GEII. Company requests approval to transfer the IFSI at the price paid for it in December 2001.

Operation of the IFSI and the Parts Reimbursement Agreement

Dominion Energy will own, and GEII will manage the IFSI. GEII may use parts from the IFSI in the performance of Planned Maintenance, Unplanned Maintenance, and Extra Work as defined in the Master CSA. Dominion Energy, as owner of the IFSI, must be able to have an ongoing ability during the term of the agreements to transfer parts from the IFSI to GEII to be used on behalf of Dominion Virginia Power and to have Dominion Virginia Power pay Dominion Energy for those parts. Dominion Energy will then pay GEII. In order to conduct the necessary transactions, Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Energy propose to conduct these sales pursuant to a Parts Reimbursement Agreement.

Under the Parts Reimbursement Agreement between Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Energy, GEII may use parts from the IFSI for Planned Maintenance, Unplanned Maintenance, and Extra Work for Dominion Virginia Power's generation units. For Planned Maintenance, GEII may use the parts from the IFSI, but GEII must replace the parts at no additional expense to the Company. For Unplanned Maintenance or Extra Work, GEII may use the parts from the IFSI, and GEII must replace the parts. However, Dominion Virginia Power will pay the GEII price by reimbursing Dominion Energy for the price paid by Dominion Energy to GEII. Such price will be based on the discounted rates established in the Master CSA and the individual CSAs. Dominion Virginia Power represents that such discounts on initial spare parts and subsequent purchases of spare parts provided for in each CSA were achieved on a Dominion fleet volume basis to the benefit of Dominion Virginia Power and its affiliates.

Dominion Virginia Power states that both the transfer of inventory and the Parts Reimbursement Agreement are necessary for the successful implementation of the Master CSA between Dominion Energy and GEII and the CSA between Dominion Virginia Power and GEII. The Company further states that successful implementation of such transactions with GEII are in the public interest because they improve efficiency and reliability and reduce costs of Dominion Virginia Power's electric generating operations through the realization of discounts. In addition, Dominion Virginia Power's reliability of its Covered Units is improved because there are two complete sets of spare parts that are in possession of a Dominion entity, thereby reducing risk, cost, and time by significantly reducing reliance on outside sources for the spare parts.

As stated in the petition, Dominion Virginia Power will realize significant efficiencies and savings as part of the overall agreement with GEII. The transfer of the IFSI will be a one-time isolated transaction with such inventory being transferred at the exact cost that Dominion Virginia Power paid for it. Under the Master CSA, the individual CSAs, and the Parts Reimbursement Agreement, Dominion Virginia Power and its unregulated affiliates are all treated equally. Dominion Virginia Power states that there is a benefit to the Company and no advantage to the unregulated affiliates as the terms of the agreement with GEII apply equally to both the regulated and unregulated Dominion affiliates.

Furthermore, GEII is obligated under the contract to treat Dominion Virginia Power as a "preferred" customer, so it will obtain priority in terms of service and replenishment of parts. Financially, participation in the agreement with GEII is expected to reduce Dominion Virginia Power's costs significantly over the course of the contract. Further benefits, as represented by Dominion Virginia Power, are lower inventory costs, lower Unplanned Maintenance costs, and risk management strategies built into the contract.

Dominion Virginia Power's research and analysis of the consequences of Dominion Energy holding title to the IFSI versus Dominion Virginia Power holding title revealed that housing the inventory in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, the site of the Armstrong Energy Limited Partnership, LLP merchant facility, is beneficial from both a physical proximity to the entire Dominion fleet of units as well as a tax liability standpoint. According to the Company's research, parts from the IFSI could be physically obtained from the Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, location and transferred to the Virginia location in about five driving hours.

In addition, it would be more beneficial for Dominion Energy to hold title to the IFSI. If Dominion Virginia Power were to hold title and house the inventory in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, Dominion Virginia Power would incur significantly greater state tax liability in Pennsylvania than Dominion Energy.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Dominion Energy and the Company also considered housing the inventory in Virginia. However, this is a less central location for physical access to the IFSI for the Dominion fleet of units and would result in additional tax liabilities.

As a result, Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Energy determined that the most current cost-effective option and the most central location are to house the IFSI in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the petition and representations of the Petitioners and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the requested exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements of Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code is not in the public interest and should, therefore, be denied. We do believe, however, that the above-described transfer of inventory and Parts Reimbursement Agreement are in the public interest and should be approved.

We believe that the proposed transfer of inventory and Parts Reimbursement Agreement will enable Dominion Virginia Power to maintain a lower spare parts inventory and will allow it to realize savings through discounts from GEII as well as some tax savings. We believe, however, that Dominion Virginia Power should submit an analysis with the Division of Public Utility Accounting on an annual basis showing that benefits continue to accrue to the Company from participation in the Parts Reimbursement Agreement. We further believe that any approval granted herein should not in any way affect our decision in Dominion Virginia Power's functional separation case, Case No. PUE-2000-00584.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code, the Petitioners' requested exemption is hereby denied.
- (2) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code, Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Energy are hereby granted approval for the proposed transfer of inventory from Dominion Virginia Power to Dominion Energy and for the proposed Parts Reimbursement Agreement under the terms and conditions and for the purposes as described herein.
- (3) Should there be any changes in the terms and conditions of the Parts Reimbursement Agreement from those described herein, Commission approval shall be required for such changes.
- (4) Dominion Virginia Power shall submit a report with the Commission's Division of Public Utility Accounting containing an analysis showing that Dominion Virginia Power continues to benefit from the Parts Reimbursement Agreement. Such report shall be submitted at the same time as Dominion Virginia Power submits its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions.
- (5) The approvals granted herein shall in no way affect our decision in Dominion Virginia Power's functional separation case, Case No. PUE-2000-00584.
- (6) The approvals granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.
- (7) The approvals granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code hereafter.
- (8) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approvals granted herein whether or not the Commission regulates such affiliate.
- (9) Dominion Virginia Power shall include the transfer of inventory and the Parts Reimbursement Agreement in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- (10) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then Dominion Virginia Power shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- (11) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

APRIL 2, 2003

APPLICATION OF
SHENANDOAH VALLEY ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

Application for approval of retail access tariffs and terms and conditions of service for retail access

FINAL ORDER

On November 1, 2002, Shendandoah Valley Electric Cooperative ("SVEC" or the "Cooperative") filed an application for State Corporation Commission ("Commission") approval of the Cooperative's retail access tariffs and terms and conditions of service for retail access, as required by paragraph (11) of the Commission's Final Order approving the Cooperative's plan for functional separation issued on December 18, 2001, in Case. No. PUE-2000-00748 ("functional separation case"), and pursuant to the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act ("the Act"), Chapter 23 of Title 56 (§ 56-576 et seq.) of the Code of Virginia.¹

¹ On November 1, 2001, SVEC, in association with the other electric cooperatives in Virginia, filed a Comprehensive Wires Charge Proposal, Case No. PUE-2001-00306, Ex Parte: In the matter of considering requirements relating to wires charges pursuant to the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act, ("wires charge case"). The Commission rendered a decision in this case on May 24, 2002.

SVEC's filing included: (1) Unbundled Tariffs and Rate Schedules for All Classes for Competitive (Retail Access) Service; (2) Terms and Conditions of Service for Retail Access- General Rules and Regulations; (3) Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff, including, Competitive Service Provider Agreement, Electronic Data Interchange Trading Partner Agreement, Transmission Customer Designation Form, CSP Dispute Resolution Procedure, and Aggregator Agreement. On November 15, 2002, SVEC filed a Motion for Leave to Amend Application to Update Analysis and Updated Analysis, providing updated projected market prices and resulting wires charges to incorporate unadjusted base market prices contained in Dominion Virginia Power's ("DVP's") 2002 compliance filing.

On January 14, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Prescribing Notice And Inviting Comments And Requests For Hearing ("Order") in this proceeding, whereby it granted the Cooperative's motion, directed the Cooperative to publish notice of its application, and directed the Staff to investigate the application and file a report detailing its findings and recommendations. On February 27, 2003, the Cooperative filed its required proof of publication of notice and proof of notice to local governments, as required by the Order.

On March 4, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in this proceeding wherein it recommended that the Commission approve SVEC's tariffs and terms and conditions with the adoption of certain modifications recommended by Staff. Staff stated in its report that the methodology employed by SVEC in calculating projected market prices for generation applicable for the rate classes that will participate in retail choice was the methodology set forth in the electric cooperatives' Comprehensive Wires Charges Proposal, approved by Commission order issued May 24, 2002, in the wires charge case. The Staff further indicated that the Cooperative, through its amendment, employs up-to-date market information consistent with market prices in place for DVP's service territory. Staff found that the Cooperative's methodology for calculation of competitive transition charges ("CTCs") was appropriate, however, Staff further recommended that the value used for the fuel adjustment currently based on SVEC's October 2002 fuel factor should be updated to reflect the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to its initiation of retail access in its service territory. The Staff accepted the Cooperative's proposal reflected in its filed commitment document for the allocation of wires charges revenue between SVEC and its electricity supply cooperative, Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("ODEC"). Because the commitment agreement permits the parties to renegotiate the sharing ratios for the next year prior to December 31, 2003, and year-to-year thereafter, pursuant to Va. Code § 56-584, the Staff recommended that if the agreement is renegotiated after December 31, 2003, the renegotiated agreement must be submitted to the Commission for approval.

Staff further found that the proposed retail access schedules were consistent with the currently effective bundled service schedules and the rates proposed for each service class properly reflect the pricing approved by the Commission in SVEC's last rate case, Case No. PUE-2000-00747², and its functional separation case. SVEC proposes a bundled lighting service schedule in this proceeding. The Staff argued in its Report this provision of lighting service may conflict with Va. Code § 56-577 A 4, which provides that after January 1, 2004, retail customers may purchase electric energy from any supplier of electric energy licensed to sell retail electric energy in Virginia. Thus, Staff recommended that if the Commission determines that this service is not permitted as proposed by SVEC, the Cooperative should file retail access tariffs for this service using distribution rates established for this schedule in its functional separation case. In addition, the Staff recommended that historical summary usage information should be made available to a CSP as part of the mass list, consistent with the Retail Access Rules, 20 VAC 5-312-10 et seq., specifically, Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 B 1 (ix). Staff further recommended that SVEC amend its tariffs to conform with Rule 20 VAC 5-312 60 D. Rule 60 D requires the CSP to obtain customer authorization prior to requesting any customer usage information not included on the mass list from the local distribution company. The Staff further recommended that the Cooperative's proposed EDI exceptions should be addressed through the Virginia Electronic Data Transfer Working Group ("VAEDT"), and that the exceptions be removed from SVEC's proposed tariffs. Staff further accepted as cost-based the imposition of new fees for Technical Support ("IT"), Customer Service Representative ("CSR") and Wire Transfer. Staff accepted the Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements, finding that they were consistent with the Retail Access Rules, and that the agreements may be expanded as agreed to between SVEC and the contracting CSP or aggregator, consistent with the Commission's Rules and directives. Finally, the Staff found that the proposed dispute resolution procedure was appropriate and should be accepted.

On March 17, 2003, SVEC filed its response to the Staff Report ("Response"). In its Response, SVEC agreed with the Staff that its CTC calculations are to be updated prior to commencement of retail access in its service territory to take into consideration the most current fuel factor adjustment. The Cooperative stated that it would make a compliance filing including amended rate schedules that would reflect the updated information. With regard to the wires charges, SVEC does not agree with Staff's position that under Va. Code § 56-584, the Commission is to determine the apportionment of the wires charges revenue between the distribution cooperative and its power supply cooperative. SVEC argues that wires charges are determined by the Commission according to a mathematical equation based on the Commission's determination of the applicable market rate and the generation rate cap, and are not attributed or related to any corresponding stranded cost or transition cost determination. The Cooperative argues, therefore, that there is no available statutory or regulatory basis for the Commission to allocate or apportion wires charge revenue. SVEC also takes issue with Staff's recommendation that its binding commitment must be approved by the Commission if renegotiated. The Cooperative states that it does not agree that it is necessarily precluded from ever again collecting wires charges in the event of termination or some other lapse in its agreement with ODEC. SVEC argues that if the binding commitment is renegotiated or renewed after a lapse, once SVEC provided evidence to the Commission that it had entered into a new binding commitment, the Commission should again establish and determine wires charges for the Cooperative.

The Cooperative also argues that it provides lighting service not as a separate energy service, but by supplying light from a Cooperative-owned light fixture, and as such, the Cooperative does not regard this as a sale and purchase of "electric energy" under Va. Code § 56-577 A 4. Furthermore, SVEC states that the Commission approved SVEC's lighting service rate schedules in Case No. PUE-2000-00747, and thus, they are the filed rate schedules in effect for this service.

In response to a recommendation in the Staff Report, SVEC offered to amend Section VII-G to reflect that load profiles may be made available to customers or authorized CSPs on the local distribution company's website or by other appropriate cost-effective electronic media, to conform that section with the Retail Access Rules. Furthermore, SVEC also proposed to amend Section 9.1.4 of the CSP Coordination Tariff to provide that the Cooperative will electronically provide customer summary usage information not included on the mass list, if available to a CSP if that customer authorizes the release of such information, in accordance with the Retail Access Rules. SVEC agreed to Staff's recommendation that the references to exceptions to certain EDI transactions be removed from its CSP Coordination Tariff if they are approved by the VAEDT. In addition, in taking issue with Staff's comments in its Report, SVEC requests specifically that the Commission afford the CSP, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements recognition as part of SVEC's filed and approved CSP Coordination tariff.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

NOW THE COMMISSION, having given due regard to the Cooperative's application, Staff's Report, SVEC's response, and applicable law, hereby approves SVEC's application, as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications detailed herein.

We incorporate, by reference, our findings in the Wires Charge Case (Case No. PUE-2001-00306). The Cooperative's proposed CTC reflects the appropriate fuel adjustments and wires calculation. The wires charges established by this order are subject to the limitation of Va. Code § 56-583, which permits adjustments no more frequently than annually. Thus, these wires charges are effective for at least twelve months from the date the Cooperative commences retail access in the Commonwealth, in conformance with Ordering Paragraph (5) of the May 24, 2002, Order in the wires charge case. As discussed above, the value used for the fuel adjustment to base generation should be updated to reflect the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to SVEC initiating retail access in its service territory.

With respect to SVEC's commitment document with ODEC to reflect the allocation of wires charge revenue, we accept the Cooperative's proposal, however, with the condition that if the commitment agreement is renegotiated to change the revenue sharing ratio, SVEC must submit the renegotiated agreement to the Commission for further approval. Virginia Code § 56-584 states, in pertinent part:

To the extent not preempted by federal law, the establishment by the Commission of wires charges for any distribution cooperative shall be conditioned up such cooperative entering into binding commitments by which it will pay to any power supply cooperative of which such distribution cooperative is or was a member, as compensation for such power supply cooperative's stranded costs, all or part of the proceeds of such wires charges, as determined by the Commission.

We find that the plain language of the statute specifies that the allocation of wires charges between a power supply cooperative and a distribution cooperative is established "as determined by the Commission."

With respect to SVEC's proposed bundled lighting service schedule, we will accept the Company's proposed schedules. We have previously approved such schedules in Case No. PUE-2000-00747.

We accept the Cooperative's proposed amendments to Sections VII G and 9.1.4 of the CSP Coordination Tariff. We find that the revisions comply with the applicable provisions of the Retail Access Rules.

With respect to proposed exceptions to certain EDI transactions, we have been advised that the VAEDT has approved the Cooperative's proposals as part of the VAEDT Plan and Implementation Standards. We therefore direct the Cooperative to file, as soon as practicable, revised tariff sheets reflecting the removal from its tariffs all references to its proposed EDI exceptions.

With respect to the proposed new IT, CSR and Wire Transfer fees, we adopt these fees as proposed by SVEC.

With regard to the CSP, Trading Partner, and Aggregator Agreements, the Commission in Case No. PUE-2000-000584, included these same type of agreements as attachments to Virginia Power's CSP Coordination Tariff. SVEC proposes to treat them in the same manner, and we accept their inclusion as attachments to the CSP Coordination Tariff.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) SVEC's tariffs and terms and conditions of service as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications discussed herein are hereby approved.
- (2) SVEC shall file revised tariff sheets reflecting the removal of proposed EDI exceptions as soon as practicable after the date of this order.
- (3) SVEC may initiate retail choice in its service territory upon the filing required by paragraph (2) above.
- (4) This case is hereby dismissed, and the papers shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

JULY 31, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.
STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION
HARRY M. LANTZ
v.
MONTVALE WATER COMPANY, INC.

FINAL ORDER

By notice dated August 20, 2002, pursuant to the Small Water or Sewer Public Utility Act, §§ 56-265.13:1 et seq. of the Code of Virginia ("Code"), Montvale Water Company, Inc. ("Montvale" or the "Company"), notified its customers and the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") of its intent to increase its rates and fees effective for service rendered on and after November 1, 2002. By November 1, 2002, the Commission's Staff had received objections to that proposed rate increase from approximately thirty-two percent (32%) of Montvale's customers.

By Preliminary Order dated November 6, 2002, the Commission determined that a hearing should be scheduled on the Company's proposed rate increase; that the Company's proposed rates and fees should be declared interim and subject to refund; and that the Company should file certain financial information with the Commission's Division of Public Utility Accounting on or before December 2, 2002. By Order entered on November 19, 2002, the Commission scheduled the matter for hearing, appointed a Hearing Examiner to conduct all further proceedings, and directed the Company to give notice of its proposed rates and fees.¹

In a Ruling dated December 16, 2002, the Hearing Examiner granted the Company's "Motion to Amend Notice to Customers on Raising of Rates" to reflect accurately the Company's proposed changes in water usage rates.² The Company's proposed rates and fees, as corrected, are as follows:

	Current	Proposed
Minimum Charge	$7.00 (3,000 gallons of water usage)	$20.75 (2,000 gallons of water usage)
	Next 2,000 gallons $2.50/1,000 gallons	Next 3,000 gallons at at $2.25/1,000 gallons
	Next 5,000 gallons $2.00/1,000 gallons	Next 3,000 gallons at at $3.25/1,000 gallons
	Next 10,000 gallons at $1.20/1,000 gallons	Over 8,000 gallons at $5.00/1,000 gallons
	Over 20,000 gallons at $1.00/1,000 gallons
Connection Fee	$750.00	$1,500.00

A local public hearing was held in Bedford, Virginia, on March 18, 2003. Eight persons testified at that hearing, five of whom objected to the proposed rate increase. The primary objections were as follows: (1) the Company should not be serving the Montvale Elementary School and the County of Bedford's industrial park; (2) the Company's rates are quadrupling; and (3) the minimum monthly usage is decreasing from 3,000 to 2,000 gallons.

The hearing was resumed on April 16, 2003.

On June 30, 2003, Hearing Examiner Michael D. Thomas filed his Report. In his discussion of the issues raised by customers, the Hearing Examiner noted the need for system upgrades, insufficient capital to fund improvements, and revenues insufficient to attract the capital needed to make such improvements. The Hearing Examiner noted that the Company's current water rates are among the lowest in Virginia and that the Company had not strayed from its non-profit roots.

The Hearing Examiner commended the Company for obtaining the grant/loan package to fund the system upgrades. The Company has obtained almost $1 million in grants, $480,300.00 from the United States Department of Agriculture, Rural Development ("USDA") and $500,000.00 from the County of Bedford ("County"), which the Company's customers do not have to repay. The remainder of the improvements will be paid from the proceeds of the USDA loan, payable over a 40-year period at an interest rate of 4.5%. The Hearing Examiner noted that, based on the Preliminary Engineering Report, attached to Montvale witness Karnes' pre-filed testimony, if Montvale had to fund the improvements solely through revenues, customers' rates would need to increase from $7 per month to approximately $44 per month.

With respect to the objections raised by the customers, the Hearing Examiner stated that Montvale's Articles of Incorporation show that the water company was initially formed to serve commercial and industrial customers and that there was nothing to preclude the Company from extending service to the Montvale Elementary School or the County's industrial park. In discussing the Company's proposed rates, the Hearing Examiner stated that customer bills will average between $20.75 and $23.00 per month based on the Company's customers' average monthly usage. He found that such rates were not unreasonable especially since the Company's customers will not have to pay for two-thirds of the cost of the system upgrades. He agreed that decreasing the monthly minimum usage from 3,000 to 2,000 gallons would provide greater revenue certainty for the Company.

Finally, the Hearing Examiner found that:

- (1) The Company's proposed increasing block rates and usage blocks are reasonable;
- (2) The Company's proposed $1,500 connection fee is reasonable;
- (3) The Company should adopt Staff's booking recommendations;³

¹ The hearing date and the procedural schedule were subsequently extended pursuant to a Hearing Examiner's Ruling dated December 4, 2002.

² The Company did not implement its proposed increase in rates and fees on an interim basis until April 1, 2003.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

- (4) The Company should determine its tax status and make the appropriate filings with the Internal Revenue Service;
- (5) The Commission should require the Company to escrow the monthly loan payment of $2,421, plus the reserve portion of $242 a month, until such time as the USDA loan is disbursed and the funds are needed to make payments on the loan;
- (6) The Commission should require the Company to file quarterly reports with the Commission detailing the progress of the system upgrades and showing the escrow account balances until relieved of such responsibility by the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting; and
- (7) The Company should adopt Staff's recommended tariff.

The Hearing Examiner recommended that the Commission enter an Order that adopts the findings in his Report; grants the Company the requested increase in its rates and connection charges; directs the Company to escrow the monthly loan payment of $2,421, plus the reserve portion of $242 a month, until such time as the USDA loan is disbursed and the funds are needed to make payments on the loan; directs the Company to file quarterly reports with the Commission detailing the progress of the system upgrades and showing the escrow account balances until relieved of such responsibility by the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting; and dismisses this case from the Commission's docket of active causes and passes the papers herein to the file for ended causes.

By letter filed on July 7, 2003, counsel for Montvale stated that the Company took no exception to the Hearing Examiner's Report.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the record, the Hearing Examiner's Report, and the comments filed thereto, is of the opinion and finds that the Hearing Examiner's findings and recommendations should be adopted.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The findings and recommendations of the Hearing Examiner's June 30, 2003, Report are hereby adopted.
- (2) Pursuant to the Small Water or Sewer Public Utility Act (§ 56-265.13:1 et seq. of the Code), Montvale Water Company, Inc., may implement its proposed increase in rates and connection fee on a permanent basis effective as of the date of this Order.
- (3) Within thirty (30) days from the date of this Order, the Company shall submit to the Commission's Division of Energy Regulation rates, rules, and regulations of service consistent with the terms of this Order.
- (4) The Company shall implement Staff's booking recommendations and the recommendation regarding the determination of Montvale's tax status and the appropriate filing thereof.
- (5) The Company shall escrow the monthly loan payment of $2,421, plus the reserve portion of $242 a month, until such time as the USDA loan is disbursed and the funds are needed to make payments on the loan.
- (6) The Company shall file quarterly reports with the Commission detailing the progress of the system upgrades and showing the escrow account balances until relieved of such responsibility by the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting. The first report covering the effective date of rates through June 30, 2003, shall be filed on or before August 30, 2003. Subsequent reports shall be filed no more than 30 days after each calendar quarter.
- (7) This case is hereby dismissed from the Commission's docket of active cases, and the papers placed in the file for ended causes.

FEBRUARY 5, 2003

SALTVILLE GAS STORAGE COMPANY, L.L.C.

For authority to receive initial capital contributions from an affiliated entity

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On November 14, 2002, Saltville Gas Storage Company, L.L.C. ("SGSC"), and Duke Energy Saltville Gas Storage, L.L.C. (the "Duke Member") (collectively, the "Applicants"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to receive a series of initial capital contributions from the Duke Member.

SGSC is a limited liability company whose principal office is located in Abingdon, Virginia. The Duke Member, a Delaware limited liability company, is one of two members of SGSC. Duke Energy Gas Transmission Corporation is the sole member of the Duke Member. The other member of SGSC is NUI Saltville Storage, Inc. (the "NUI Member"), a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Abingdon, Virginia. The NUI Member is wholly owned by NUI Corporation. Therefore, SGSC and the Duke Member are considered affiliated companies.

By Commission Orders dated August 6, 2002, and October 7, 2002, in Case No. PUE-2001-00585, the Commission approved SGSC's application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity ("CPCN") subject to certain conditions. Consistent with the information provided as a part of the CPCN proceeding, the Duke Member, as one of two members of SGSC and in keeping with the terms of the agreement creating SGSC, has agreed to make a series of initial capital contributions to SGSC of approximately $16,300,000.

Under the terms of the agreement creating SGSC, within 18 months from the date SGSC is organized, or sooner as required by SGSC's budget, in order to match the in-kind contribution of the NUI Member, the Duke Member is obligated to make a series of cash capital contributions totaling $16,321,397. SGSC states that these contributions are necessary for the Duke Member to maintain an ownership interest that is equivalent to the NUI Member in SGSC. Payments in the amount of $8.7 million were made prior to SGSC filing an application for obtaining its CPCN. The remaining portion of $7.6 million will subsequently be made by the Duke Member to SGSC. SGSC states that it requires the Duke Member's capital contributions to fund its development and construction activities required to complete caverns and related infrastructure for the underground storage of natural gas for which it obtained its CPCN.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of the Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the requested receipt of capital contributions by SGSC from the Duke Member is in the public interest and, should, therefore, be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, SGSC is hereby granted authority to permit the Duke Member to make capital contributions to SGSC in the amount of approximately $16,300,000 as described herein.
- (2) The authority granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- (3) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein whether or not the Commission otherwise regulates such affiliate.
- (4) The authority granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.
- (5) The transactions authorized herein shall be included in SGSC's Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- (6) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then SGSC shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- (7) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

JULY 24, 2003

At the relation of the
STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Ex Parte: In the matter concerning the provision of default service to retail customers under the provisions of the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act

ORDER

Section 56-585 of the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act ("Restructuring Act" or "Act"), (§ 56-576 et seq. of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia), directs the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") to determine the components of default service and establish one or more programs making such services available to retail customers.¹ Default service, as defined in the Act, means service made available to retail customers who (i) do not affirmatively select a supplier, (ii) are unable to obtain service from an alternative supplier, or (iii) have contracted with an alternative supplier who fails to perform.

In an Order dated December 23, 2002, the Commission directed the Staff to invite representatives of incumbent electric utilities, competitive service providers, retail customers and other interested parties to participate in a work group to assist the Staff in developing recommendations to the Commission in furtherance of its statutory obligations under § 56-585 of the Act. The Commission also sought input on a number of issues in order to frame the work group discussion. We directed the Staff to file its report by May 1, 2003, and interested parties to file comments or requests for hearing on the Staff's Report by May 16, 2003.

The Commission received comments from New Era Energy, Inc., Allegheny Power, Constellation NewEnergy, Inc., LG&E Energy Corp., Mirant Americas, Inc., Appalachian Power Company, Virginia Committee for Fair Utility Rates and Old Dominion Committee for Fair Utility Rates, Reliant Resources, Inc., Strategic Energy, LLC, Virginia Electric Cooperatives, Washington Gas Energy Services, Virginia Electric and Power Company, National Energy Marketers Association, Virginia Municipal League/Virginia Association of Counties, and Conectiv.

The Staff filed its report on May 1, 2003. In its report, the Staff stated that, pursuant to the Commission's Order, interested parties were invited to participate in a work group to assist in making recommendations to the Commission regarding the provision of default service. According to the Staff, the work group met twice during March 2003, and focused on the questions posed by the Commission in its December 23, 2003, Order regarding the characteristics and components of default service and the challenge of establishing the provision of default service by entities other than the incumbent utility during the capped rate period.

Although the Staff notes that the formal comments filed by parties in this proceeding reflect significant variations on the optimal long-term model for default service, most participants seemed to agree during the work group meetings that the definition and provision of default service will be a complex and evolving process that should be driven by competitive market development. The Staff states that, regarding the short-term, most participants believe that an initial determination of the components and characteristics of default service should maintain simplicity with the flexibility to modify such structure as market development provides new opportunities. For example, the Staff states that the majority of work group members favor initially viewing default service as a bundled service – i.e., generation or generation and transmission service, inclusive of all associated ancillary services. In other words, default service should consist of the same components as electricity supply service that may be provided by a competitive service provider at competitive prices or by the incumbent utility under capped rates.

The Staff also states that participants believe, at least during the capped rate period, that default service should conform geographically to the incumbent utility's service territory, and be compatible with customer rate classifications. Additionally, to mitigate initial complexity, the Staff states that the majority of work group participants believe that distinctions should not be made at present regarding types of default service customers (i.e., those who do not affirmatively select a supplier, those who are unable to obtain service from an alternative supplier, or those who have contracted with an alternative supplier who fails to perform).

The Staff believes that absent a significant change in the current capped rate/wires charge structure, there is substantial uncertainty as to the feasibility of an entity other than the incumbent utility providing default service until the end of the capped rate period. The Staff states that when it raised this issue during the work group discussion, no supplier attending the work group meeting was willing to represent that it could submit a competitive bid to provide default service in 2004. However, some participants indicated that the possibility of alternative default service providers, while probably not feasible in 2004, should not be precluded from consideration for 2005, since market conditions and other circumstances could change favorably.

In its report, the Staff states that it is not prepared to advise the Commission that the public interest will be served by the establishment of a competitive bidding process at the current time to designate one or more providers of default service. Accordingly, the Staff recommends that the Commission:

(1) Determine that effective January 1, 2004, and until modified by future order of the Commission, the components of Default Service include all elements of Electricity Supply Service as defined by the Commission's Rules Governing Retail Access to Competitive Energy Services; and

(2) Require Appalachian Power Company, Delmarva Power & Light Company, The Potomac Edison Company, and Virginia Electric and Power Company, effective January 1, 2004, and until modified by future order of the Commission, to provide default service to all retail customers requiring such service within their respective service territories under the rates, terms, and conditions of capped rate Electricity Supply Service.

¹ Pursuant to the provisions of § 56-577 A 4, retail customer choice of generation provider must be available in the service territories of all Virginia electric utilities by January 1, 2004. It should also be noted that pursuant to § 56-585 C 1, when default service is provided by incumbent utilities, rates for that service will be such incumbents' capped rates under § 56-582 of the Act until the expiration or termination of such capped rates.

By May 16, 2003, the Commission had received comments on the Staff Report from the National Energy Marketers Association ("NEM"), Allegheny Power ("AP"), Constellation NewEnergy, Inc. ("CNE"), the Division of Consumer Counsel of the Office of the Attorney General ("Consumer Counsel"), Dominion Virginia Power ("DVP"), and the VML/VACo APCo Steering Committee ("Steering Committee").

In its comments, NEM states that it disagrees with Staff and submits that for generation-related default service, the separate components of generation service to retail customers should be unbundled and treated as separate default services. NEM states that providing more competitive options will maximize the benefits of innovation, reduce prices, and provide higher quality service, while minimizing the economic distortions inherent in potentially cross-subsidized bundled default service prices. NEM further argues that default service does not need to conform geographically to the incumbent utility's service territory. It suggests that the default provider could be different by customer group since the cost to provide default service varies by customer group. NEM states that when suppliers focus their efforts on specific customer classes they can achieve economies of scale that can and should result in lower prices to consumers. NEM also urges the Staff and Commission not to interpret competitive provision of default service to mean competitive wholesale provision of supply to utilities for their retail customers as NEM believes that the law requires that competitive suppliers are to provide default service directly to retail customers, not on a wholesale basis to the utility as an intermediary. Finally, NEM agrees with Staff that the Commission should not foreclose any future opportunities for alternative default service providers, and encourages the Commission to permit alternative suppliers to provide default service as soon as practicable. However, NEM states that the provision of default service based on capped or subsidized rates will not foster the development of the competitive market.

AP supports the recommendations in the Staff Report. However, AP points out that default service will only be provided by the incumbent utility under the rates, terms, and conditions of capped rate electricity supply service until the expiration of the capped rate period. Also, AP recommends that additional action is necessary to facilitate the development of the competitive retail electricity supply market. AP offers its assistance and support in developing solutions to enhance market development during the remainder of the capped rate period. Regarding the competitive bidding process, AP supports Staff's position that it should not be required at this time. AP states that current statutory provisions, as well as market conditions in Virginia, make it unlikely that a wholesale supplier could provide electric supply at a price below the incumbent utility's price-to-compare during the rate cap period. However, AP states that should it, Staff or other stakeholders identify other alternatives that would enhance the development of the competitive retail electricity supply market, this issue should be revisited. AP also supports a wholesale competitive bidding model for default service, and suggests that the Commission, Staff and other interested parties should review the wholesale bidding model approved by the Maryland Public Service Commission in Case No. 8908, Standard Offer Service.

CNE largely concurs with the overall conclusions of Staff. Specifically, CNE agrees that the Commission does not need to take any specific action with respect to establishing default service for retail customers in the service territories of the electric utilities in light of the significant barriers to retail choice in Virginia during the existing transition period. CNE reiterates that the obstacles listed in the Staff Report need to be resolved before competitive markets will be able to offer meaningful alternatives to the incumbent utilities. Specifically, the capped rates, wires charge structure for the recovery of still unquantified stranded costs, lack of RTE membership, and the retail electricity supply cost components in Virginia need to be addressed in order for competition to flourish in Virginia. Therefore, CNE believes that discussions on default service should continue as these barriers to competition are removed over time. CNE states that while there is no reason to foreclose any future possibilities at the present time, as a matter of clarification, CNE notes that it does support the following characteristics for default service: (i) that some elements of default service will need to conform geographically to the incumbent utilities service territory, (ii) that default service needs to be compatible with customer rate classifications, (iii) that meaningful opportunities for competitively bid default service will be difficult until the utilities have been integrated into a RTE, and (iv) that consistency among the competitive procurement processes developed for each utility will promote regulatory and legal efficiencies and promote competition.

Consumer Counsel generally endorses the Staff Report and supports Staff's recommendations. Consumer Counsel states that given the currently negligible amount of competition in Virginia, the Report's simplistic, yet flexible, approach best serves consumers and the public interest. Further, according to Consumer Counsel, the bundled service approach will minimize customer confusion regarding the provision of default services, and it agrees that the Commission should not foreclose the possibility that it may be advantageous in the future to alter the components of default service.

DVP also supports the Staff's recommendations. DVP agrees with the Staff's observations and believes that the bundled default service model proposed by the Staff would achieve the stated objectives of simplicity and flexibility. Further, for purposes of conducting a competitive default service program, DVP believes this model would provide a consistent basis for bidders to submit, and for the Commission to evaluate, bids in response to an RFP for default service. DVP agrees with Staff, however, that as the market develops, the benefits and costs of unbundling or otherwise modifying the components of default service should be periodically evaluated. DVP also agrees that, until a competitive default service program becomes feasible and competitive suppliers are willing and able to submit competitive bids for default service, incumbent utilities should provide default service at capped rates during the rate cap period, as provided in the Act, effective January 1, 2004. DVP notes that its proposed competitive bid supply service pilot program will provide valuable insight into potential issues that may arise in the competitive bidding process for default service and will assist the Commission in developing rules and guidelines for a competitive default service bidding process. Also in its comments, DVP reiterates its position and further argues that the Act does not provide for a wholesale model for default service during the rate cap period.

The Steering Committee also agrees with Staff's recommendations. However, the Steering Committee interprets the Staff's second recommendation to extend default service to the Commonwealth and its municipalities to the extent that such entities are "retail customers", as defined by the Act.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered § 56-585 of the Code of Virginia and all other applicable statutes and rules, the Staff Report, and all comments received by interested parties and work group participants, finds that the Staff's recommendations are reasonable and should be adopted.

We believe the Staff's recommendations are consistent with the early stage of competitive retail and wholesale market development in Virginia, yet permit flexibility if the composition of the market changes in the future. We expect the establishment of a default service model to be an evolutionary process, one that will require the continued assistance of the work group and other interested parties. As the Staff continues its investigation, we encourage them and others to explore the various default service models adopted by other states, and draw on any experience gained from DVP's proposed competitive bid supply service pilot program, if approved by this Commission.

We also note that § 56-585 F of the Act assigns both the obligation and the right to each distribution electric cooperative, or one or more of its affiliates, to supply default services in its certificated service territory at capped rates during the capped rate period, and at the cooperative's prudently incurred cost thereafter.

Finally, we reserve judgment on the Steering Committee's interpretation of the Staff's second recommendation pending the receipt of comments from interested parties on that issue. The Staff Report did not address the application of § 56-585 to the Commonwealth and its municipalities, and the Steering Committee first raised this issue in its comments on the Staff Report. We request interested parties to respond to the Steering Committee's comments, and permit the Steering Committee to reply to any responses filed. Specifically, interested parties should comment on (i) whether the Commonwealth and its municipalities are "retail customers", as defined by the Act, and are entitled to default service pursuant to § 56-585 of the Code of Virginia,² and (ii) if so, how the Commission should determine default service rates for this class of customers.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) On January 1, 2004, and until modified by future order of this Commission, the components of default service shall include all elements of Electricity Supply Service as defined by the Commission's Rules Governing Retail Access to Competitive Energy Services.

(2) On January 1, 2004, and until modified by future order of this Commission, Appalachian Power Company, Delmarva Power & Light Company, The Potomac Edison Company, and Virginia Electric and Power Company shall provide default service to all retail customers requiring such service within their respective service territories under the rates, terms, and conditions of capped rate Electricity Supply Service.

(3) Pursuant to § 56-585 F of the Act, each distribution electric cooperative, or one or more of its affiliates, shall supply default services in its certificated service territory at capped rates during the capped rate period, and at the cooperative's prudently incurred cost thereafter.

(4) On or before August 4, 2003, interested parties may respond to the Steering Committee's comments of May 16, 2003 on the Staff Report. Such comments shall address (i) whether the Commonwealth and its municipalities are "retail customers", as defined by the Act, and are entitled to default service pursuant to § 56-585 of the Code of Virginia, and (ii) if so, how the Commission should determine default service rates for this class of customers. The Steering Committee may reply to any responses filed on or before August 13, 2003.

(5) This matter shall be continued generally for further orders of the Commission.

² We note that the Steering Committee cites § 56-581 C of the Code of Virginia as support for its position that the Commonwealth and its municipalities are entitled to default services pursuant to § 56-585 of the Code of Virginia. Section 56-581 C of the Code of Virginia provides that "[e]xcept for the provision of default services under § 56-585 or emergency services in § 56-586, nothing in this chapter shall authorize the Commission to regulate the rates or charges for electric service to the Commonwealth and its municipalities."

CASE NO. PUE-2002-00645 SEPTEMBER 3, 2003

At the relation of the
STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Ex Parte: In the matter concerning the provision of default service to retail customers under the provisions of the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act

ORDER

In our Order dated July 24, 2003, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") determined that on January 1, 2004, and until modified by future order of this Commission, the components of default service shall include all elements of Electricity Supply Service as defined by the Commission's Rules Governing Retail Access to Competitive Energy Services, 20 VAC 5-312-10 et seq. We also directed that on the same date, and until modified by future order of this Commission, Appalachian Power Company, Delmarva Power & Light Company, The Potomac Edison Company, and Virginia Electric and Power Company shall provide default service to all retail customers requiring such service within their respective service territories under the rates, terms and conditions of capped rate Electricity Supply Service. Pursuant to § 56-585 F of the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act ("the Act"), we directed each distribution electric cooperative, or one of more of its affiliates, to supply default services in its certificated service territory at capped rates during the capped rate period, and at the cooperative's prudently incurred cost thereafter.

The Commission reserved judgment on one issue raised by the VML/ VACo APCo Steering Committee ("Steering Committee"), pending the receipt of comments from interested parties. The Steering Committee interpreted the Staff's second recommendation¹ to extend the provision of default service to the Commonwealth and its municipalities to the extent such entities are "retail customers", as defined by the Act. In our July 24, 2003 Order, we requested interested parties to respond to the Steering Committee's comments, and permitted the Steering Committee to reply to any responses filed. Specifically, interested parties were asked to comment on (i) whether the Commonwealth and its municipalities are "retail customers", as defined by the Act, and are entitled to default service pursuant to § 56-585 of the Code of Virginia, and (ii) if so, how the Commission should determine default service rates for this class of customers.

¹ The Staff recommended that the Commission "[r]equire Appalachian Power Company, Delmarva Power & Light Company, The Potomac Edison Company, and Virginia Electric and Power Company, effective January 1, 2004, and until modified by future order of the Commission, to provide default service to all retail customers requiring such service within their respective service territories under the rates, terms, and conditions of capped rate Electricity Supply Service." May 1, 2003 Staff Report, p. 8.

On August 4, 2003, we received comments from Appalachian Power Company ("Appalachian"), the Virginia Energy Purchasing Governmental Association ("VEPGA"), the Virginia Electric Cooperatives ("Cooperatives")², Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power"), and the Division of Consumer Counsel of the Office of the Attorney General ("Consumer Counsel"). With respect to the first question, the responding parties generally agreed that the Commonwealth and its municipalities are "retail customers" as defined by the Act, and in most cases are entitled to default service pursuant to § 56-585 of the Code of Virginia. Virginia Power commented, however, that it is premature to determine whether any particular customers are entitled to default service since that question can only be answered under particular factual situations in the future. According to Virginia Power, the Commission can no more authoritatively answer that question now than it can decide whether any particular residential customer will be eligible for such service at some later date. Virginia Power asserts that governmental customers may become entitled to default service depending upon their existing contract with the incumbent and as they meet the criteria of Va. Code § 56-585 A. According to Virginia Power, for so long as incumbents remain the supplier under those contracts or governmental customers receive electric supply service through contracts with competitive service providers, they will not require and will not be entitled to default service, because they already have a supplier and thus do not meet the criteria for default service set forth in Va. Code § 56-585 A.

Regarding the Commission's second question, the responding parties made clear that there is no need for the Commission to address the issue of default service rates for the Commonwealth and its municipalities at this time, given that contracts govern the provision of electric service to these entities through June 30, 2007. In its comments, Appalachian states that it is currently providing service to its Public Authority ("PA") and Commonwealth of Virginia ("CV") customers under contract and has been designated the default service provider in its service territory, so there is no reason for the Commission to address default services rates for Appalachian's PA or CV customers at this time. Similarly, VEPGA states that its members have a contract for electric service with Virginia Power that extends through June 30, 2007, and therefore knows of no controversy that requires a determination by the Commission as to how it should determine default service rates for municipalities. Consumer Counsel states that it may be appropriate to simply treat existing contract rates as "capped rates" for the purpose of determining rates for default service for the Commonwealth and its municipalities.

In the Cooperatives' view, since the Commission previously has not had the general authority to regulate the rates or terms and conditions for electric service to the Commonwealth and its municipalities, it should not broadly construe its new, limited authority over default service, and default service rates, to the Commonwealth and its municipalities.

Virginia Power observes that the Act does not provide a clear answer to whether and how the Commission should determine default service rates for governmental customers, at least during the capped rate period. According to Virginia Power, neither the rates in effect at the time capped rates were established, nor the rates established during any later rate case, would have included rates for governmental customers since such rates have long been "non-jurisdictional," and the Commission therefore had no authority to "establish" them under § 56-582 A. Thus, there are no Commission-approved capped rates for governmental customers. Virginia Power notes that after the end of the capped rate period, such rates can be set based on the competitive market standards set forth in Va. Code § 56-585 C.

On August 13, 2003, the Steering Committee filed its reply comments. In its comments, the Steering Committee notes that all of the responding parties generally agreed that the Commonwealth and its municipalities are "retail customers" as defined in the Act, and entitled to default service under at least some circumstances. The Steering Committee also concludes that, based on the comments filed by other parties, there is no controversy requiring the Commission to make determinations at this time concerning default service rates for the Commonwealth and its municipalities. Should circumstances change, the Steering Committee notes that a default service provider and/or a governmental retail customer could request that the Commission address the issue at that time.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered all applicable statutes and the comments filed by interested parties, finds that the Commonwealth and its municipalities are "retail customers", as defined by the Act, and therefore entitled to default service pursuant to § 56-585 of the Act if they meet the criteria set forth in Va. Code § 56-585 A. We agree with Virginia Power that governmental customers would be entitled to default service if and when they require such service and meet the criteria for such service set by the Act. We further find that there is no need to address at this time whether or how the Commission should determine default service rates for this class of customers, given that these entities are currently being provided electric service pursuant to contracts through the end of the capped rate period, or June 30, 2007.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) The Commonwealth and its municipalities are hereby determined to be "retail customers", as defined by the Act, and are therefore entitled to default service pursuant to § 56-585 of the Act if they meet the criteria set forth in Va. Code § 56-585 A.

(2) There being nothing further to come before the Commission, this matter shall be dismissed and the papers filed herein shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

JULY 14, 2003

JOINT APPLICATION OF
WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY
COLUMBIA GAS OF VIRGINIA, INC.

For Amendment of Certificates of Public Convenience and Necessity Pursuant To Virginia Code § 56-265.3

ORDER PERMITTING WITHDRAWAL OF APPLICATION

On November 13, 2002, Washington Gas Light Company ("WGL") and Columbia Gas of Virginia, Inc. ("Columbia") (collectively, the "Companies") filed a joint application ("Application") with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), pursuant to § 56-265.3 of the Code of Virginia, requesting the Commission to amend certain certificates of public convenience and necessity which allot between the Companies all of Fairfax, Loudoun and Prince William Counties, Virginia, for the development of natural gas service. In the Application, the Companies proposed the provision of natural gas service throughout a single residential or commercial development by a single natural gas distribution company to promote the development of efficient gas service to the benefit of existing and future customers of both Companies. The Companies contend that such an action would be consistent with the purpose of the Utility Facilities Act, Chapter 10.1 (§ 56-265.1, et seq.) of Title 56 the Code of Virginia.

On June 23, 2003, the Companies requested authority to withdraw the Application and advised that they planned to file an administrative request for the service territory realignments directly with the Commission's Division of Energy Regulation in accordance with established practice for such matters.

NOW, upon consideration of the foregoing, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that the Companies' request should be granted; that the Companies should be permitted to withdraw the captioned Application; and that this case should be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The Companies' request for authority to withdraw the captioned Application is hereby granted.
- (2) The Companies' Application may be withdrawn.
- (3) This case is hereby dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings, and the papers filed herein shall be placed in the Commission's files for ended causes.

JANUARY 9, 2003

APPLICATION OF
WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY

For authority to participate in a tax sharing agreement between WGL Holdings, Inc., and its subsidiaries under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On November 20, 2002, Washington Gas Light Company ("WGL") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code"). WGL requests authority to participate in an "Agreement for Filing Consolidated Income Tax Returns and for Allocation of Liabilities and Benefits Arising from such Consolidated Tax Returns between WGL Holdings, Inc. ["Holdings"], and [its] Subsidiary Companies" (hereinafter referenced to as the "Tax Sharing Agreement" or "TSA").

WGL is a public service company providing natural gas distribution service to more than 900,000 residential, commercial, and industrial customers in the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia.

Holdings is a holding company established November 1, 2000, under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935. Holdings owns all of the shares of common stock of WGL, Crab Run Gas Company, Hampshire Gas Company, and Washington Gas Resources Corporation ("WGRC") and holds a 50% equity investment interest in Primary Investors, L.L.C.

The Tax Sharing Agreement was entered into September 30, 2001, and is effective for tax years ending September 30, 2001, and thereafter. The TSA is in accordance with, and is consistent with, the requirements of Rule 45(c) of the Securities and Exchange Commission's General Rules and Regulations under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935. Holdings and its subsidiaries (the "member companies") have authorized Holdings, as the common parent organization of an affiliated group of corporations as described in § 1504 of the Internal Revenue Code, to make and file a consolidated federal income tax return on behalf of the group.

The Tax Sharing Agreement apportions the consolidated federal income tax liability of the member companies by utilizing the "separate return tax" method. The member companies are assessed tax for the taxable income each company generates as a separate entity. A member company (excluding Holdings) that has negative taxable income and owes negative separate return tax ("tax benefit") receives a current payment from the affiliated group equivalent to the tax benefit to the extent that it has sufficient taxable income in its carryback period to utilize that tax benefit.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

According to the TSA, tax benefits that are not utilizable currently by a loss company are allocated temporarily to the positive separate return member companies, excluding Holdings, to reduce their tax payment obligation. The positive separate return member companies receive an allocation of these tax benefits based on the ratio of each member company's positive separate return tax to the total positive separate return tax. In the future, should the loss company generate sufficient positive taxable income to make use of the tax benefit, its current tax obligation is reduced, and the excess tax liability is allocated to the member companies that previously received the tax benefits.

The Tax Sharing Agreement states that any Holdings positive separate return tax will be one hundred percent (100%) allocated to Holdings. Any Holdings negative separate return tax ("tax benefit") will be allocated permanently to positive separate return member companies based on the ratio of each member company's positive separate return tax to the total positive separate return tax. Holdings may not utilize subsequently any of its tax benefits that have been allocated to the member companies.

In the event the consolidated return reflects tax benefits which cannot be utilized currently, the TSA apportions the unutilized tax benefits according to the general guidelines outlined above. When the tax benefits become realizable, the member companies originally denied the benefits receive allocations of the benefits for the year the benefits were generated.

The Tax Sharing Agreement states that, in the event of an amended return, any payments or refunds will be allocated as though the adjustments had been part of the original return.

According to the TSA, no subsidiary company shall be required to pay more than its separate return tax.

The Tax Sharing Agreement states that state income taxes will be allocated to the member companies doing business in that state using the "separate return tax" method, with consolidated state tax benefits allocated in the same way as federal tax benefits.

In the event that a member company leaves the consolidated group and, due to a statutory or regulatory provision, takes with it tax attributes that are different from those allocated previously, then the TSA states that the departing member will settle with the consolidated group. Any additional tax liabilities or benefits arising from the settlement will be apportioned to the remaining member companies in accordance with the general guidelines outlined above.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of WGL and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described Tax Sharing Agreement is in the public interest and should be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, Washington Gas Light Company is hereby authorized to participate in the Tax Sharing Agreement with WGL Holding, Inc., and its subsidiaries under the terms and conditions and for the purposes described herein.
- 2) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in the terms and conditions of the Tax Sharing Agreement.
- 3) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.
- 4) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 5) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 6) WGL shall include the Tax Sharing Agreement approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission.
- 7) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then WGL shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- 8) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

FEBRUARY 11, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA NATURAL GAS, INC.

For waiver of gas pipeline safety requirements of 49 C.F.R. Part 193

ORDER GRANTING MOTION TO WITHDRAW

On November 21, 2002, Virginia Natural Gas, Inc. ("VNG" or the "Company") filed an application requesting a waiver for a period of three years of certain gas pipeline safety standards found at 49 C.F.R. Part 193, which address Liquefied Natural Gas ("LNG") facilities. Specifically, the Company requested a waiver of 49 C.F.R. §§ 193.2057 and 193.2059 for three years for the construction and operation of a satellite LNG facility to be located in Chesapeake, Virginia, on VNG's property.

On November 25, 2002, the Company supplemented its application, providing additional details concerning this project.

On November 27, 2002, the Commission issued its procedural order in this matter. In that Order, the Commission directed the Company to publish notice of its application, required the Company to serve a copy of the order on local officials, and invited interested persons to file comments or requests for hearing on the application on or before December 20, 2002. The November 27, 2002 Order further directed the Commission Staff to file a report which could take the form of testimony, on VNG's application on or before December 30, 2002.

On December 20, 2002, the Virginia Industrial Gas User's Association ("VIGUA") filed a "Notice of Participation, Request for Hearing, and Motion to Consolidate and Expand Scope of Proceeding in this proceeding."

On December 30, 2002, the Staff, by counsel, filed a Response to VIGUA's Motion, urging the Commission to deny VIGUA's Motion.

On the same day, the Staff filed its Report in the matter. In its Report, the Staff recommended that the Commission grant the Company's request for a waiver of 49 C.F.R. § 193.2057 for the proposed facility and further recommended that the Commission require VNG to construct a fence along the southwest property line of VNG's Chesapeake Propane plant to ameliorate thermal flux concerns discussed in the Report. The Staff further recommended that the Commission direct VNG to install an alarm for the residents of adjacent mobile homes to alert these residents in case of an incident at the LNG plant and that the Commission require VNG to include procedures in the Company's emergency manual for the facility to educate nearby residents about the alarm and procedures for evacuation in case of an incident at the LNG facility. Staff concluded that a waiver of 49 C.F.R. § 193.2059 was unnecessary.

On January 6, 2003, VNG filed its Response to VIGUA's Motion, urging the Commission to deny the same.

VNG, by counsel, filed a Motion dated January 30, 2003, to withdraw the captioned application. In support of its filing, the Company advised that it had experienced difficulties in procuring the tanks that VNG's original design for the facility called for, and as a consequence, VNG intended to operate from tanker trucks during the current heating season. It noted that if any new design necessitates a waiver for future heating seasons, it would file a new application.

On February 4, 2003, VNG, by counsel, filed a Notice of Agreement in both the instant case and Case No. PUE-2002-00653, wherein VNG represented that counsel for VIGUA had no objection to the request for withdrawal.

NOW, UPON consideration of the Company's Motion to withdraw the foregoing application and the pleadings filed herein, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that VNG's Motion to withdraw Case No. PUE-2002-00648 should be granted, and that this matter should be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) VNG's Motion dated January 30, 2003, is hereby granted.
- (2) VNG is hereby granted leave to withdraw the captioned matter.
- (3) This application is dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings, and the papers filed herein shall be made a part of the Commission's files for ended causes.

JANUARY 30, 2003

PETITION OF
and
DOMINION TRANSMISSION, INC.

For approval of a pipeline construction contract and pipeline operation and maintenance agreement under Chapter 4, Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On November 13, 2002, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power" or the "Company") and Dominion Transmission, Inc. ("DTI") (collectively, the "Petitioners"), filed a petition with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 4, Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting approval to increase the maximum amount of costs that Dominion Virginia Power is authorized to reimburse DTI under the Pipeline Construction Contract associated with the gas pipeline for service to the Possum Point Power Station from $24,275,000 to $28,900,000.

Dominion Virginia Power is a Virginia public service corporation providing electric retail service to customers in its service territory in North Carolina and Virginia. Dominion Virginia Power is a wholly owned direct subsidiary of Dominion Resources, Inc. ("Dominion"). Dominion is a holding company as defined in the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 and is subject to regulation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

DTI is a Delaware corporation engaged in the ownership and operation of facilities for the transmission of natural gas in interstate commerce subject to regulation by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission under the Natural Gas Act. DTI is a wholly owned, indirect subsidiary of Dominion.

In Case No. PUA-2001-00025 (PUA010025), on June 29, 2001, the Commission issued an Order Granting Approval of a Pipeline Construction Contract between Dominion Virginia Power and its affiliate, DTI, for the construction by DTI of natural gas pipeline facilities ("New Gas Facilities") needed to receive and deliver natural gas to Dominion Virginia Power's Possum Point Power Station. The Order Granting Approval provided that Dominion

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Virginia Power was authorized to pay DTI up to $24,275,000 in construction costs and that, if DTI incurred additional costs, Dominion Virginia Power and DTI would need to file a new application for reimbursement of such costs detailing justification for those costs.

DTI has determined that its updated actual costs for services under the Pipeline Construction Contract are estimated to be as much as $28,900,000. The original estimate was qualified to be within plus or minus 15%. The New Gas Facilities are nearing completion and may exceed the original cost projections of $23,457,000 by approximately $5,443,000, or 23.2%.

As stated in the petition, the increased overall cost is due in part to a longer than estimated pipeline route of 66,662 feet versus an actual length of 72,170 feet, representing an increase of approximately 8.3%. The Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries required relocation of a portion of the pipeline route. This resulted in additional pipeline footage and required supplementary environmental evaluations. Other increases in estimates were due to increased right-of-way acquisition costs, increased construction cost due to the requirement to relocate a portion of the pipeline and, therefore, increasing the length of the route, and increased costs in engineering, permitting, procurement, and project management. The pipeline alignment was modified slightly at the request of homeowners, and the updated estimates were increased to include potential contractor costs to complete the horizontal directional drilling under the Occoquan Reservoir.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the petition and representations of Petitioners and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-referenced increase is in the public interest and should, therefore, be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, Dominion Virginia Power is hereby granted approval to pay DTI up to $28,900,000 under the Pipeline Construction Contract for the purposes as described herein.

(2) Dominion Virginia Power shall continue to pay DTI the lower of cost or market for services rendered under the Pipeline Construction Contract. Dominion Virginia Power shall file a new application for approval to reimburse DTI any amounts in excess of the maximum $28,900,000 approved herein. Such application shall include, among other things, detailed justification for the increased costs.

(3) Should any terms and conditions of the Pipeline Construction Contract change from those approved herein and in Case No. PUA-2001-00025, additional Commission approval shall be required for such changes.

(4) Dominion Virginia Power shall bear the burden of proving, during any rate proceeding, that it paid DTI the lower of cost or market for services received under the Pipeline Construction Contract.

(5) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.

(6) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate of Dominion Virginia Power, including DTI, in connection with the Pipeline Construction Contract approved herein whether or not the Commission regulates such affiliate.

(7) Dominion Virginia Power shall include the Pipeline Construction Contract approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Director of Public Utility Accounting.

(8) The approval granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.

(9) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

PETITION OF
CNG INTERNATIONAL CORPORATION

For exemption from the prior approval and filing requirements of the Affiliates Act or, in the alternative, for approval of transfer of furniture and office equipment pursuant to Chapter 4, Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On December 3, 2002, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power" or "Company") and CNG International Corporation ("CNG International") (collectively, the "Petitioners") filed a petition with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") for an exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements of Chapter 4, Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (the "Affiliates Act") or, in the alternative, for approval of the transfer of furniture and office equipment pursuant to the Affiliates Act. Specifically, the Petitioners request exemption or approval of a transfer of certain furniture and office equipment as described in the petition from CNG International to Dominion Virginia Power. The Petitioners propose to transfer the furniture and office equipment at the net book value as of October 31, 2002, of $15,179.00.

CNG International is a direct subsidiary of Consolidated Natural Gas Company and an indirect subsidiary of Dominion Resources, Inc., and, therefore, is an affiliate of Dominion Virginia Power. Thus, the approval to transfer the furniture and office equipment requires Commission approval or an exemption under the Affiliates Act.

The Petitioners represent that CNG International no longer requires the furniture and office equipment that it wishes to transfer to Company as its business operations have diminished. Although Dominion Virginia Power is already using some of the furniture, the change in ownership and payment for the furniture will not occur until appropriate regulatory approvals are obtained. CNG International does not need the furniture and office equipment, and Company can efficiently reuse the furniture and office equipment that it will obtain from CNG International rather than purchase new furniture and equipment.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the petition and representations of the Petitioners and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the requested exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements of the Affiliates Act is not in the public interest. We believe that the transfer is in the public interest, however, we believe that the net book value that Dominion Virginia Power should pay to CNG International should be the actual net book value at the time of transfer rather than the proposed $15,179.00, which represents the net book value of the furniture and office equipment as of October 31, 2002. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, the requested exemption is hereby denied.
- (2) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, Dominion Virginia Power and CNG International are hereby granted approval to transfer certain furniture and office equipment as detailed in the petition at the net book value at the time of transfer.
- (3) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- (4) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not the Commission regulates such affiliate.
- (5) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.
- (6) Company shall include the transaction approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions to be submitted to the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission by no later than May 1 of each year for the preceding calendar year, subject to extension by the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission.
- (7) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then Dominion Virginia Power shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- (8) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

For approval of a liquefied natural gas transportation agreement pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On December 9, 2002, Virginia Natural Gas, Inc. ("VNG"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under the Public Utilities Affiliates Act requesting approval of a liquefied natural gas ("LNG") transportation agreement (the "Agreement").

VNG states in the application that demand growth has created a critical need for additional gas volumes to maintain pressure in the southern portion of its distribution system on design days. Historically, VNG has met its peak demand needs by contracting for upstream pipeline storage deliverability, operating local propane plants, contracting for LNG service, and operating satellite LNG facilities. In 1999, Virginia Gas Company canceled an agreement with VNG to supply up to 53,600 dekatherms in firm seasonal storage and transportation service to the southern portion of VNG's system. Since then, VNG has considered several gas pipeline expansion projects, but the projects have been too costly, delayed, or canceled.

The impending capacity shortfall has led VNG to seek a short-term solution until a gas pipeline project is completed. Over the next three winter heating seasons, VNG proposes to obtain LNG from Columbia Gas Transmission Company's LNG storage facility in Chesapeake, Virginia, and transport it to a temporary, portable LNG facility to be sited at VNG's existing propane air peak-shaving plant in Chesapeake, Virginia. There, the LNG will be vaporized into VNG's system.

VNG plans to use the portable LNG facility to serve firm sales and firm transport standby customers and, if possible, on-system Rate Schedule 10 customers. VNG represents that it will purge the LNG tanks at the end of the winter season by emptying them into VNG's distribution system.

VNG is seeking Commission approval for the Agreement with its sister affiliate, Southeastern LNG, Inc. ("SE LNG"), to provide the LNG transportation service from Columbia's LNG facility to VNG's Chesapeake site. VNG represents that SE LNG is an experienced LNG tank truck operator that owns tankers suitable for providing LNG transportation.

The initial term of the Agreement will commence upon the date of the Agreement's approval and end March 31, 2005, with year to year renewals thereafter. The proposed Agreement has a three-part fee structure. First, VNG will pay a fixed fee of $14,000 per month to reserve four (4) LNG tankers to provide delivery from November through March of each heating season. Second, VNG will pay a mobilization fee of $6,900 per winter period for mobilizing and staging the tankers for service. Third, VNG will pay a trucking service fee of $75 per hour per driver for the first 240 hours of service each winter period. After 240 hours, VNG will pay $250 per hour of service.

Under the Agreement, SE LNG will carry general liability, automobile liability, and worker's compensation insurance. SE LNG plans to subcontract with an unaffiliated business to perform the actual LNG deliveries, and that company will be required to carry $1 to $4 million in liability insurance per occurrence. SE LNG will also indemnify and hold harmless VNG from any third party claims arising from the LNG transportation service.

VNG represents that SE LNG developed the proposed fee structure to cover its overall costs and provide a return component while remaining competitive with alternative proposals in a deregulated marketplace. Assuming 10 days (240 hours) of run time per winter period, SE LNG projects that it will earn an 8.9% after-tax return on assets from the Agreement. That is equivalent to the 8.91% cost of capital shown by VNG in its 2001 AIF (Case No. PUE-2001-00307). VNG compared the terms of the Agreement with quotes from two unaffiliated vendors and found the Agreement to be the least cost alternative. VNG plans to treat the LNG transportation service charges as a demand component of the cost of gas and will book the charges to Account 803 (Natural Gas Transmission Line Purchases).

On December 20, 2002, counsel for the Virginia Industrial Gas User's Association ("VIGUA") filed a Notice of Participation, Request for Hearing, and Motion to Consolidate and Expand the Scope of Proceeding ("VIGUA's Notice, Request and Motion") in this case and Case No. PUE-2002-00648 (Application of VNG for Waiver of Gas Pipeline Safety Requirements). Specifically, VIGUA sought to expand the scope of the consolidated docket to include other regulatory issues, including (a) why the new facilities and related contracts and expenses are necessary for the public convenience and necessity; (b) how VNG should treat its costs of such new facilities and related contracts for rate-making purposes; (c) who will manage the use of the new facilities - VNG or Sequent Energy Management, LLC ("Sequent"), pursuant to the asset management agreement between those affiliates; (d) whether it is proper and in the public interest to use such new facilities for making off-system sales; (e) whether VNG will and should use such new facilities as a basis for providing firm back-up sales service under regulated rates to industrial transportation customers, including, for example, under its Rate Schedules 6, 7, and 10; and (f) whether VNG should be required to offer firm standby gas service options under regulated rates to its industrial transportation customers at just, reasonable, and nondiscriminatory terms and rates, including from such planned LNG facilities.

On January 6, 2003, counsel for VNG filed a Response of Virginia Natural Gas, Inc., to VIGUA's Notice, Request and Motion. Counsel requested the Commission to deny VIGUA's request, reject VIGUA's claims, and grant relief to VNG as soon as possible.

On January 10, 2003, Staff, through counsel, filed a Response to VIGUA's Notice, Request, and Motion in Case No. PUE-2002-00653. Staff asserted that VIGUA's Notice, Request and Motion was beyond the scope of VNG's application under the Virginia Utility Affiliates Act and that the issues raised by VIGUA should be addressed in a separate proceeding. Therefore, Staff recommended that VIGUA's request for hearing and motion to consolidate and expand the scope of the proceeding be denied.¹

On February 4, 2003, counsel for VNG filed a Notice of Agreement wherein VNG advised the Commission that VIGUA no longer objects to the Commission's approval of this application.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of Applicant and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described liquefied natural gas transportation agreement between VNG and SE LNG is in the public interest and should be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, VNG is hereby granted approval to enter into a Liquefied Natural Gas Transportation Agreement with SE LNG under the terms and conditions and for the purposes as described herein.
- 2) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.
- 3) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia.
- 4) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not the Commission regulates such affiliate.
- 5) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in terms and conditions of the Agreement from those contained herein, including any successors and assigns as referenced in Section 7(a) of the Agreement.
- 6) VNG shall include the Agreement approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions filed with the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- 7) VNG shall include in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions filed with the Commission a summary of the portable LNG facility's activity by month, runtime hours, customer class served, dekatherms vaporized, and SE LNG transportation charges incurred.
- 8) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then VNG shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- 9) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

¹ On December 30, 2002, Staff, through counsel, filed a Response to VIGUA's Notice, Request, and Motion in Case No. PUE-2002-00648. Staff asserted that VIGUA's Notice, Request and Motion were beyond the scope of VNG's application for a three-year waiver of 49 C.F.R. Part 193 Pipeline Safety Regulations and that the issues raised by VIGUA should be addressed in a separate proceeding. Therefore, Staff recommended that VIGUA's request for hearing and motion to consolidate and expand the scope of the proceeding be denied.

STAND ENERGY CORPORATION

For a license to conduct business as a natural gas competitive service provider

ORDER GRANTING LICENSE

On December 10, 2002, Stand Energy Corporation ("Stand Energy" or "the Company") filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") for a license to provide competitive natural gas services. The Company intends to serve commercial and industrial customers in the natural gas retail access programs of Washington Gas Light Company ("WGL") and Columbia Gas Company of Virginia ("CGV"). The Company attested that it would abide by all applicable regulations of the Commission as required by 20 VAC 5-312-40 B of the Commission's Rules Governing Retail Access to Competitive Energy Services, 20 VAC 5-312-10 et seq. ("Retail Access Rules").

On December 23, 2002, the Commission issued its Order for Notice and Comment, establishing the case and requiring that this Order should be served upon appropriate persons. The Order also required the Commission's Staff to analyze the reasonableness of the Company's application and present its findings in a Staff Report.

No comments from the public on Stand Energy's application were received.

The Staff filed its Report on January 14, 2003, concerning Stand Energy's fitness to provide competitive natural gas services. In its report, Staff summarized Stand Energy's proposal and evaluated its financial condition and technical fitness and found the Company to be technically and financially qualified. No comments were filed by the Company in response to the Staff Report.

NOW UPON CONSIDERATION of the application and Staff's report, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that Stand Energy's request should be granted.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Stand Energy shall be granted License No. G-17 for the provision of competitive natural gas services to commercial and industrial retail customers in the retail access programs of WGL and CGV.
- (2) This license is not valid authority for the provision of any product or service not identified within the license itself.
- (3) Failure of Stand Energy to comply with the Retail Access Rules, the provisions of this Order, other State Corporation Commission orders and rules, or other applicable state or federal laws may result in an enforcement action by the Commission including, without limitation, the revocation, suspension, or modification of the license granted herein, the refusal to renew such license, the imposition of appropriate fines and penalties, or such other additional actions as may be necessary to protect the public interest.
- (4) This matter shall remain open pending the receipt of any reports required by the Retail Access Rules, as well as any subsequent amendments or modifications to the license granted herein.

FEBRUARY 11, 2003

APPLICATION OF
WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY

For authority to enter into billing system access agreements pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On December 16, 2002, Washington Gas Light Company ("WGL" or "Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under the Public Utilities Affiliates Act requesting authority to enter into a billing system access agreement with its affiliate, Washington Gas Energy Services, Inc. ("WGES").

WGL's application stems from Case No. PUE-1998-00005, in which the Commission approved a retail access pilot program whereby WGL's residential, commercial, industrial, and group metered apartment customers were allowed to shop for their energy needs from third party energy marketers. WGES participates in this program. WGL offers billing service to all third party energy marketers operating in WGL's service territory. The customer of a marketer opting for such billing receives a single bill for gas consumption and transportation service rather than one bill from the marketer for gas consumption and a second bill from WGL for transportation service. WGES uses this billing service, which is one of several services provided by WGL to WGES under a service agreement approved by the Commission on August 8, 1988, in Case No. PUE-1988-00021. Due to the implementation of new software, WGL's third party energy marketers, including WGES, can no longer access WGL's billing system through the Internet to view their customer accounts. In order to analyze their customer accounts, third party energy marketers using WGL's billing service now need access to WGL's computer system.

In WGL's initial application, WGL sought authority to enter into a billing agreement ("Agreement #1") with WGES whereby WGL would provide billing system access to WGES via a third party call center with preexisting connections to WGL's computer system. Subsequent to the application, WGL encountered difficulties in negotiating a contact extension with the call center, whose contract expires March 31, 2003. Agreement #1 will expire coincident with this contract. Therefore, WGL filed a request on January 30, 2003, to amend its application by submitting two additional billing system agreements ("Agreements #2 and #3"). Agreement #2 is identical to Agreement #1 except that the third party call center's name has been replaced with "insert name here." Agreement #3 is the form agreement WGL uses for third party energy marketers whose call centers do not have preexisting access to WGL's computer system. WGL proposes to use Agreement #1 for the period through March 31, 2003, and either Agreement #2 or #3 thereafter, depending on which call center WGES ultimately uses.

Agreements #1 and #2 have four main provisions. First, WGL will grant access to WGES customer accounts to the third party call center employees for billing and collection purposes only. Second, WGL will grant to the call center employees read-only access and the ability to make notes on the accounts. Third, WGES agrees that the billing system access is provided without warranty of any kind. Fourth, WGES agrees to indemnify and hold WGL and its directors, officers, employees and agents harmless from any claims, suits, legal proceedings or damages arising from WGES' actions under the agreement.

Agreement #3 includes the provisions described above, but it also details additional security guidelines for directly connecting to WGL's computer system through a virtual private network.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of Applicant and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described billing system access agreements between WGL and WGES are in the public interest and should be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, WGL is hereby granted authority to enter into billing system access agreements with WGES under the terms and conditions and for the purposes as described herein.
- 2) The authority granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.
- 3) The authority granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia.
- 4) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein whether or not the Commission regulates such affiliate.
- 5) Commission authority shall be required for any changes in terms and conditions of the agreements from those contained herein.
- 6) WGL shall include the agreements authorized herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions filed with the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- 7) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then VNG shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- 8) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

JANUARY 10, 2003

APPLICATION OF
APPALACHIAN POWER COMPANY

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On December 16, 2002, Appalachian Power Company d/b/a/ American Electric Power ("APCO" or "Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") for authority under Chapter 3 (§ 56-55 et seq.) of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia to issue long-term debt. Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

In its application, APCO requests authority to issue long-term debt in the form of notes and pollution control bonds (collectively, "Debt Securities"). Specifically, Applicant requests authority to issue: 1) up to $450,000,000 in secured or unsecured promissory notes ("New and Refunding Notes") from time to time through December 31, 2003; and 2) up to $187,500,000 in pollution control bonds ("Tax-Exempt Bonds") to refinance existing pollution control bonds from time to time on or before January 1, 2004.

The New and Refunding Notes may be issued in the form of first mortgage bonds, senior or subordinated debentures (including junior subordinated debentures), or other unsecured promissory notes. Applicant indicates the New and Refunding Notes will have maturities of not less than nine months and not more than 50 years. The interest rate on the New and Refunding Notes may be fixed or variable and may be sold through either competitive bidding, negotiation with underwriters or agents, or by direct placement with a commercial bank or other institutional investor. No fixed rate security shall be issued at an interest rate in excess of 350 basis points above the yield to maturity on a comparable maturity U.S. Treasury obligation at the time of issuance. The proceeds from the New and Refunding Notes will be used to provide financing for APCO's ongoing construction programs, to provide additional working capital, to refinance bonds or notes prior to maturity, or to retire short-term debt.

Applicant states that the Tax-Exempt Bonds are being issued to allow for the redemption of outstanding pollution control bonds prior to maturity. The Tax-Exempt Bonds will be issued via a public offering. The interest rate on the Tax-Exempt Bonds may be fixed or variable and will be established by competitive bidding or through negotiation with underwriters or agents. The maturity of any Tax-Exempt Bonds may be up to 40 years, depending on market conditions at the time of issuance.

Applicant indicates that it may enter into one or more interest rate hedging agreements from time to time through December 31, 2003, with respect to the Debt Securities. Such arrangements may include, but are not limited to, treasury lock agreements, treasury put options, or interest rate collar agreements. These hedges will be used to protect against future interest rate movements in connection with the issuance of the Debt Securities. Each hedging agreement will correspond to specific securities, and the aggregate corresponding principal amounts of all hedging agreements will not exceed the aggregate levels defined above. The term of any hedge agreement will not exceed 90 days.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Applicant is hereby authorized to issue up to $450,000,000 in secured or unsecured promissory notes from time to time through December 31, 2003, and to issue up to $187,500,000 in tax-exempt pollution control bonds from time to time through January 1, 2004, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.

(2) Applicant shall submit a preliminary Report of Action within ten (10) days after the issuance of any Debt Securities pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (1), to include the type of security, the issuance date, amount of the issue, the interest rate, the maturity date, and the yield to maturity on a U. S. Treasury security of comparable maturity.

(3) Within sixty (60) days after the end of each calendar quarter in which any securities are issued pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (1), APCO shall file with the Commission a detailed Report of Action with respect to all Debt Securities issued and sold during the calendar quarter to include:

- (a) the issuance date, type of security, amount issued, interest rate, date of maturity, underwriters' names, underwriters' fees, other issuance expenses realized to date, and net proceeds to Applicant; and
- (b) the cumulative principal amount of New and Refunding Notes and Tax-Exempt Bonds issued under the authority granted herein and the amount remaining to be issued.

(4) Applicant shall file a final Report of Action on or before February 28, 2004, to include all information required in Ordering Paragraph (3) and a detailed account of all the actual expenses and fees paid to date for the New and Refunding Notes and Tax-Exempt Bonds, with an explanation of any variances from the estimated expenses contained in the Financing Summary attached to the application.

(5) Approval of the application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.

(6) This matter shall be continued, subject to the continuing review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

The Commission's Division of Utility and Railroad Safety ("Division"), charged with the investigation of probable violations of the Act, has completed investigations of certain incidents between April 4, 2002, and October 24, 2002, listed in Attachment A, involving Utiliquest, LLC ("Company"), and alleges that:

- (1) The Company is a contract locator as that term is defined in § 56-265.15 of the Code of Virginia;
- (2) During the aforementioned period the Company violated the Act by committing the following violations:
 - (a) Failing on certain occasions to mark the approximate horizontal location of the underground utility lines on the ground to within two feet of either side of the underground utility lines, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (b) Failing on certain occasions to mark within the time prescribed in the Act, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (c) Failing on certain occasions to report to the notification center that lines had been marked or they were not in conflict with the proposed excavation, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.

As evidenced in the attached Admission and Consent document, the Company neither admits nor denies these allegations but admits the Commission's jurisdiction and authority to enter this Order.

As an offer to settle all matters before the Commission arising from the Division's allegations made herein, which includes all probable violations presented to the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Advisory Committee on December 10, 2002, and set out in Attachment A hereto, the Company represents and undertakes that it will pay a civil penalty to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $8,500 to be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order. This payment will be made by cashier's check or money order, payable to the Treasurer of Virginia and directed to the attention of the Director of the Division of Utility and Railroad Safety.

The Commission, being advised by the Staff and finding sufficient basis herein for the entry of this Order, hereby accepts this settlement.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to the authority granted the Commission by § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, the offer of settlement made by the Company be, and it hereby is, accepted.
- (2) The sum of $8,500 tendered contemporaneously with the entry of this Order is accepted.
- (3) This case is dismissed, and the papers herein shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

CASE NO. PUE-2002-00699
DECEMBER 10, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA GAS STORAGE COMPANY

For an Annual Informational Filing

ORDER ADOPTING RECOMMENDATIONS AND DISMISSING PROCEEDING

On December 17, 2002, Virginia Gas Storage Company ("VGSC" or the "Company") by counsel, filed a motion with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting an extension of time in which to file its Annual Informational Filing ("AIF") for the period October 1, 2001, through September 30, 2002. VGSC requested that the date for filing its AIF be extended from January 28, 2003, to May 31, 2003. VGSC also requested a partial waiver from the filing requirements of Rule 20 VAC 5-200-30 A 9 so that VGSC's AIF for the period ending September 30, 2003, could be filed without Schedules 9 through 14. VGSC alleged that the Company had no regulatory assets or capitalized interest subject to the earnings test required by these schedules or workpapers.

On January 14, 2003, the Commission entered an Order that granted VGSC's request, extended the time in which VGSC could file its AIF from January 28, 2003, to May 31, 2003, and permitted the Company to file its AIF for the period ending September 30, 2002, without Schedules 9 through 14.

On May 28, 2003, VGSC filed its AIF for the twelve months ending September 30, 2002, with the Commission.

On October 30, 2003, the Staff filed its Report on the captioned application. This Report included a financial and accounting analysis. In its financial analysis, Staff noted that it employed an 11.5% return on equity for illustrative purposes. It explained that in VGSC's application for a storage facility, the Company was not a going concern. Because actual operating data was not available, the Company's application was based on rates derived from estimates of revenues and costs. VGSC received authority from the Commission to provide gas storage service on the basis of the rates filed in its certificate application rather than on a specified return on equity range.

Staff reported that NUI Corporation ("NUI") acquired VGC and VGSC's ownership interest in VGSC on March 28, 2000.¹ The Staff explained that it used the consolidated capital structure of NUI in its Report for ratemaking purposes because NUI is the ultimate source of market capital available to VGSC. Staff noted that NUI's consolidated ratemaking capital structure has an equity ratio of 39.54% and produces a cost of capital of 7.522% for the test year.

In its accounting analysis, the Staff observed that the Company had no regulatory assets subject to an earnings test evaluation on its books and did not propose to defer any new costs as regulatory assets. Staff related that in VGSC's preceding AIF, Case No. PUE-2001-00358, the Commission directed the Company to conduct a full review of its jurisdictional allocation methodology and to report the results of such review in the Company's next AIF. Since certain facilities, such as lines, compressor station equipment, and measuring and regulating station equipment were designed based on maximum daily flows rather than annual flow, Staff and the Company agreed to use the maximum daily withdrawal quantity ("MDWQ") rather than annual injections and withdrawals to allocate these items. Staff's presentation of VGSC's jurisdictional results included the following revisions: (i) the use of depreciable plant in service rather than contracted volumes to allocate depreciation expense and accumulated depreciation, (ii) the use of net utility plant rather than customer count to allocate property tax expense, (iii) the use of rate base rather than contracted volumes for allocating interest expense, (iv) the use of gas plant in service rather than contracted volumes for allocating Construction Work in Progress, (v) the use of net utility plant rather than contracted volumes for allocating Accumulated Deferred Income Taxes, (vi) the use of Operations and Maintenance ("O&M") expense rather than contracted volumes for allocating cash working capital. Staff commented that the resulting jurisdictional study provides a more characteristic representation of the actual nature of Company operations. Staff cautioned that this methodology was not intended to preclude or limit any future improvements that Staff, the Company, or the Commission may determine are necessary through additional experience or improved understanding of VGSC's operations. Staff also commented that the pro forma loss of two storage customers has a considerable impact on jurisdictional earnings when developing a fully adjusted jurisdictional return on equity.

Staff expressed concern about the costs allocated from Virginia Gas Company to VGSC and VGSC's other regulated affiliates. It noted that the allocation of VGC general costs to VGSC was applied after an estimated allocation was made of VGC general costs to Saltville Gas Storage Company, L.L.C. ("Saltville"). Staff recommended that once operating data for Saltville becomes available, this data be incorporated in the formula used to allocate costs from VGC to VGSC.

With regard to corporate costs incurred related to NUI and allocated to VGC and, in turn, to VGSC, the Staff noted that the Commission granted authority to allocate such corporate costs in Case No. PUE-2003-00129 on June 27, 2003. The Commission's June 27, 2003 Order directed that the booking of these costs would take place on a prospective basis. The Staff noted that after considering the reporting requirements directed in Case No. PUE-2003-00129, the appropriate ratemaking treatment for these costs should not be determined in this AIF, but should be explored in VGSC's next AIF. Staff recommended that once operating data for Saltville becomes available, this data be incorporated in the formula used to allocate costs from NUI to VGC and, in turn, to VGSC.

Staff related that VGSC has used Account 922-Administrative Expenses Transferred to transfer amounts from a variety of accounts, including non-Administrative and General ("A&G") accounts. Staff recommended that amounts transferred from O&M accounts other than 920 and 921 should be credited directly to the accounts from which the amounts are transferred. Staff further recommended that the Company utilize Account 922-Administrative Expense Transferred in accordance with the Uniform System of Accounts.

Staff concluded that, based on Staff's adjusted rate of return analysis, no action on VGSC's rates appeared necessary. Staff made the following recommendations for VGSC's prospective AIFs: (i) Saltville operating data should be incorporated into the formula used to allocate costs from VGC to VGSC once the data becomes available; (ii) Saltville operating data should be incorporated in the formula used to allocate costs from NUI to VGC and, in turn, to VGSC; (iii) VGSC should use Account 922 in conformance with the Uniform System of Accounts; and (iv) accounts transferred from O&M accounts other than 920 and 921 should be credited directly to the accounts from which these amounts are transferred.

On November 19, 2003, the Company, by counsel, advised that it did not intend to file any formal comments responsive to the Staff Report.

NOW, UPON CONSIDERATION of the Company's application, the October 30, 2003, Staff Report, and the applicable statutes, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that the Staff's recommendations found in the October 30, 2003, Staff Report should be adopted and that the captioned application should be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Consistent with the findings made herein, the recommendations set out in the Staff's October 30, 2003, Report are hereby adopted.
- (2) There being nothing further to be done in this proceeding, this application shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active cases, and the papers filed herein placed in the Commission's file for ended causes.

DECEMBER 12, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA GAS DISTRIBUTION COMPANY

For an Annual Informational Filing

ORDER ADOPTING RECOMMENDATIONS AND DISMISSING PROCEEDING

On December 17, 2002, Virginia Gas Distribution Company ("VGDC" or the "Company"), by counsel, filed a Motion with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting an extension of time in which to file its Annual Informational Filing ("AIF") for the period October 1, 2001, through September 30, 2002. VGDC requested that the date for filing this AIF be extended from January 28, 2003, to May 31, 2003. The Company also asked that the AIF for the period ending September 30, 2002, be filed without Schedules 9 through 14. VGDC represented that it was appropriate to omit these Schedules because the Company had no regulatory assets or capitalized interest subject to the earnings test required by these Schedules or workpapers.

In its January 14, 2003, Order Granting Motion, the Commission, among other things, extended the time within which VGDC had to file its AIF to May 31, 2003, and authorized VGDC to file its AIF for the test period ending September 30, 2002, without Schedules 9 through 14.

On May 28, 2003, VGDC filed its AIF for the twelve months ending September 30, 2002.

On November 7, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in the captioned case, which included a financial and accounting analysis. In its financial analysis, Staff noted that it had used an 11.5% cost of equity in the ratemaking capital structure for illustrative purposes since the Company does not have an authorized point or range for return on equity. Staff explained that the lack of actual operating data made it necessary for the Company to base its application for certificate of public convenience and necessity, docketed as Case No. PUE-1993-00013, on rates derived from estimates of revenues and costs. Such estimates included a cost of capital that incorporated a return on equity rate of 11.5%.

VGDC filed an application for its first rate increase in August 1999, in Case No. PUE-1999-00531. VGDC elected not to seek an authorized return on equity, which would have supported a higher rate increase than it had requested in its application. The February 22, 2000, Order entered in Case No. PUE-1999-00531 permitted VGDC's proposed rate increase to take effect on January 23, 2000, under the terms of a Joint Stipulation reached between the Company and Staff.

The Staff analyzed NUI Corporation's ("NUI's") consolidated capital structure for ratemaking purposes in its Report since NUI acquired Virginia Gas Company's ("VGC's") ownership interest in VGDC on March 28, 2000.¹ According to the Staff, NUI is the ultimate source of market capital available to VGDC. The consolidated NUI ratemaking capital structure has an equity ratio of 39.543% and produces a cost of capital of 7.522% for the test year. Staff reported that in September 2003, NUI's Board of Directors announced that NUI was up for sale as a result of credit downgrades and what was described as adverse business conditions. Staff determined that VGDC's return on rate base after previously approved adjustments was 2.44%, and its return on equity after previously approved adjustments was -1.35%.

In its accounting analysis, Staff reported that it had corrected several of the Company's accounting adjustments. Staff noted that on September 6, 2002, the Commission had issued an Order Granting Approval in Case No. PUA-2001-00041, which approved a comprehensive affiliate agreement. Staff expressed concern that while VGC is directly charging costs associated with Saltville Gas Storage Company, L.L.C. ("Saltville"), NUI's joint venture with Duke Energy, no general costs are being allocated from VGC to Saltville. Staff noted that employee nonproductive time such as vacation leave, sick leave, employee development costs and office training, depreciation maintenance, utilities, and computer systems are beneficial to Saltville just as they are to Virginia Gas Storage Company ("VGSC"), Virginia Gas Pipeline Company ("VGPC"), and VGDC. Staff recommended that once Saltville has sufficient operating data available, the allocation methodology for these costs should include Saltville in the formula when allocating costs to VGDC. In the alternative, the Staff recommended that the Company demonstrate that all legitimate costs are already being properly charged to Saltville, such that costs which are necessarily allocated to the other regulated companies, including VGDC, need not include Saltville.

¹ See Joint Petition of NUI Corporation, VGC Acquisition, Inc., and Virginia Gas Company, For approval of agreement and plan for merger under Chapter 5 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia, Case No. PUA-2000-00079, 2001 S.C.C. Ann. Rep. 162.

The Staff also reported that VGC received Commission approval in Case No. PUE-2003-00129 to allocate corporate costs incurred at the NUI level down to VGC and to the regulated subsidiaries. The Staff concluded that with the commencement of book allocations to VGDC nine months after the end of the test year, the appropriate ratemaking treatment for these services should not be incorporated in the current AIF, but should be explored more fully beginning in the next AIF. The Staff, therefore, incorporated no costs allocable from NUI to VGDC in its AIF review for this case.

Additionally, Staff commented in its Report that the Company used Account 922 - Administrative Expenses Transferred to transfer amounts from a variety of accounts, including non-Administrative and General ("A&G") accounts. Staff observed that amounts transferred from Operating and Maintenance ("O&M") accounts other than Account 920 and 921 should be credited directly to the accounts from which the amounts are transferred. Staff recommended that the Company use Account 922 - Administrative Expenses Transferred in accordance with the Uniform System of Accounts.

In summary, Staff recommended that: (i) Saltville operating data be incorporated in the formula used to allocate costs from VGC to VGDC once Saltville operating data becomes available; (ii) Saltville operating data be incorporated into the formula used to allocate costs from NUI to VGC, and in turn to VGDC; (iii) VGDC use Account 922 in conformance with the Uniform System of Accounts; and (iv) accounts transferred from O&M accounts other than 920 and 921 be credited directly to the accounts from which these amounts are transferred.

On November 19, 2003, VGDC, by counsel, advised that the Company did not intend to file any formal comments to the Staff Report.

NOW UPON CONSIDERATION of the Company's application, the Staff's Report, and the applicable statutes, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that the Staff's recommendations set out in the November 7, 2003, Staff Report should be adopted, and this case dismissed.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Consistent with the findings made herein, the recommendations set out in the Staff's November 7, 2003, Report are hereby adopted.

(2) There being nothing further to be done herein, this case shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings, and the papers filed herein placed in the Commission's files for ended causes.

DECEMBER 16, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA GAS PIPELINE COMPANY

For an Annual Informational Filing

ORDER ADOPTING RECOMMENDATIONS AND DISMISSING PROCEEDING

On December 17, 2002, Virginia Gas Pipeline Company ("VGPC" or the "Company"), by counsel, filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") a motion requesting an extension of time in which to file its Annual Informational Filing ("AIF") for the test period October 1, 2001, to September 30, 2002. The Company requested that the date for filing its AIF be extended from January 28, 2003, to May 31, 2003.

On January 14, 2003, the Commission entered an Order granting VGPC's Motion and extending the date by which VGPC was to file its AIF to May 31, 2003. The January 14, 2003 Order continued the case generally.

On May 28, 2003, VGPC filed its AIF for the twelve months ending September 30, 2002, with the Commission.

On November 7, 2003, the Staff filed its Report on the captioned application. Staff noted in its Report that a 13.5% return on equity had been used for illustrative purposes since the Company does not have an authorized point or range for return on equity. Staff explained that in VGPC's application for certificates of public convenience and necessity for its storage and pipeline facilities, a cost of equity of 13.5% had been used for illustrative purposes to establish VGPC's rates because actual operating data was unavailable.

In its discussion of the relevant capital structure, the Staff used the consolidated capital structure of NUI Corporation ("NUI") in its Report because NUI is the ultimate source of market capital available to VGPC. Staff reported that NUI's consolidated ratemaking capital structure has an equity ratio of 39.543% and produced a cost of capital of 8.313% for the test year. Staff calculated that VGPC's return on rate base, after previously approved adjustments, was 5.54%, and its return on equity, after previously approved adjustments, was 6.49%.

In its accounting analysis portion of the Report, the Staff noted that it had reached an agreement with VGPC that had been accepted by the Commission in Case No. PUE-1998-00627, regarding the treatment of capitalized interest. Based on Staff's analysis of VGPC's earnings for the 12 months ended September 30, 2002, the Staff concluded that the Company had not recovered its interest costs. However, based on continuing methodology differences between Staff and the Company, a partial disallowance of capitalized interest from rate base appeared to be appropriate for the test period. Staff calculated that $35,961 should be removed from rate base for the test year.

Staff used the methodology approved by the Commission in Case No. PUE-1998-00627 to calculate the jurisdictional amount of capitalized interest to be included in rate base. The amount of Total Company capitalized interest calculated by Staff was $114,039. The Company calculated an adjustment of $112,738, with the small difference relating to Staff's use of a revised capital structure filed by the Company.

Staff commented that the agreed upon treatment regarding capitalized interest is an exception to the Commission's long standing approach regarding capitalized interest. Staff acknowledged that there may come a time when it may no longer be appropriate to capitalize VGPC's interest. It observed that inclusion of capitalized interest in VGPC's rates should continue to be examined in VGPC's next AIF or rate case, and that the Company should reflect capitalized interest at a level consistent with the use of the agreed upon methodology in VGPC's next AIF or rate case.

As to the Company's earnings test, the Staff noted that VGPC is not earning above the 13.50% return on equity benchmark that Staff has used in prior AIFs. Therefore, Staff did not recommend any write-off of the Company's regulatory asset related to amortization of Segment 5 of VGPC's P-25 intrastate pipeline.

Staff expressed concern about the costs being directly charged by Virginia Gas Company ("VGC") associated with Saltville Gas Storage Company L.L.C. ("Saltville"). Staff commented that no VGC general costs were being allocated to Saltville, even following the commencement of allocations to VGPC and its other regulated affiliates on October 1, 2002. Staff asserted that employee non-productive time (vacation leave/sick leave), employee development costs and office training, depreciation, maintenance, utilities, and computer systems are beneficial to Saltville just as they are to VGPC and its other regulated affiliates Virginia Gas Storage Company ("VGSC") and Virginia Gas Distribution Company ("VGDC"). Staff recommended that once Saltville has sufficient operating data available, VGC's allocation methodology should include Saltville in the formula when allocating costs to VGPC and VGC's other regulated affiliates. In the alternative, Staff proposed the Company demonstrate that the entirety of legitimate costs are already being properly charged to Saltville, such that costs which are necessarily allocated to the other regulated companies need not be allocated to Saltville.

Staff also noted that on June 27, 2003, VGC received approval from the Commission in Case No. PUE-2003-00129 to allocate corporate costs incurred at the NUI level down to VGC, and in turn to VGC's regulated affiliates including VGPC. The approval granted by the Commission in that docket was prospective in nature. Based on the reports required by the June 27, 2003, Order, the magnitude of the dollar amount related to the costs, and the commencement of book allocations to VGPC nine months after the end of the test year, the Staff concluded that the appropriate ratemaking treatment for such costs should not be determined in the current AIF, but should be explored more fully in the next AIF. Consequently, Staff incorporated no costs allocable from NUI to VGPC in the current AIF review.

The Staff reported that on November 22, 2002, the Commission issued its Order Granting Authority in Case No. PUE-2002-00458 in response to an application filed by Saltville, VGPC, NUI, and VGC. In that Order, the Commission directed Staff to address the transfer price issues arising from the transfers of certain facilities and land in VGPC's next AIF or rate proceeding. In accordance with that Order, as well as the Commission's January 15, 2003 Order entered in Case No. PUE-2001-00359, Staff instructed the Company to include with the captioned AIF all journal entries made to reflect the transfer of assets as well as the justification for the transfer price for the subject assets.

Staff explained in its Report that there were two transfers in question: The first involved the transfer of an evaporation plant, three holding ponds, and a disposal well for fair market value ("FMV") of $13,794,110. The second transfer involved the reassignment of 582.14 acres of real estate. Both transfers would serve to remove plant from the books of VGPC and add plant to Saltville's books.

The basis of the transfer price for both transfers, according to Staff, was the actual cost of the assets at February 28, 2001. The actual cost was then adjusted downward to reflect the projected value of the asset to Saltville. For example, a 75% allocation factor was used for the evaporation plant because three of the associated caverns were being developed by Saltville, while only one cavern was owned by VGPC. The holding ponds, disposal well, and land was allocated based on 88% of actual cost as of February 28, 2001. This factor was derived by VGPC based on 10 Bcf of storage expected to be developed by Saltville and the 1.3 Bcf of storage created by VGPC. Staff concluded that the transfer prices should be accepted for purposes of the AIF.

Staff also reported that VGPC has used Account 922-Administrative Expenses Transferred to transfer amounts from a variety of accounts, including non-Administrative and General ("A&G") accounts. According to Staff, amounts transferred from Operating and Maintenance ("O&M") accounts other than 920 and 921 should be credited directly to the accounts from which the amounts are transferred.

Staff concluded that no action should be taken with respect to VGPC's rates since the Company's jurisdictional return on equity for the test year was 4.55% on a per books basis and 6.49% on an adjusted basis. For future AIFs, Staff recommended that: (i) Saltville operating data be incorporated in the formula used to allocate costs from VGC to VGPC once such data becomes available; (ii) Saltville operating data be incorporated into the formula used to allocate costs from NUI to VGC, and in turn, to VGPC; (iii) VGPC utilize Account 922 in conformance with the Uniform System of Accounts; and (iv) accounts transferred from O&M accounts other than 920 and 921 should be credited directly to the accounts from which the amounts are transferred.

On November 19, 2003, VGPC, by counsel, advised that the Company did not intend to file any formal comments in response to the Staff's Report.

NOW, UPON CONSIDERATION of VGPC's application, the Staff Report, and the applicable statutes, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that the Staff's recommendations set out in the November 7, 2003, Report should be adopted, and that this application should be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Consistent with the findings made herein, the recommendations set out in the Staff's November 7, 2003, Report are hereby adopted.
- (2) The Company shall reflect capitalized interest at a level that is consistent with the use of the agreed upon methodology for capitalized interest reached in Case No. PUE-1998-00627 in future AIFs.
- (3) There being nothing further to be done in this case, this application shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings and the papers filed herein placed in the Commission's files for ended causes.

MARCH 18, 2003

JOINT PETITION OF
PRINCE GEORGE SEWERAGE AND WATER COMPANY,
BEXLEY, LLC,
PRINCE GEORGE WASTEWATER, LLC, BEXLEY PROPERTIES, LLC,
and
PARK HOLDINGS GROUP, LLC

For authorization to transfer utility stock pursuant to the Utility Transfers Act

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On January 10, 2003, Prince George Sewerage and Water Company ("Prince George"), Bexley, LLC ("Bexley"), Prince George Wastewater, LLC ("PG Wastewater"), Bexley Properties, LLC ("Bexley Properties"), and Park Holdings Group, LLC ("Park") (collectively, the "Joint Petitioners"), filed a joint petition with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") pursuant to the Utility Transfers Act, Chapter 5 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code"), wherein they request permission to transfer 50% of the utility assets of Prince George to PG Wastewater. Pursuant to an amendment filed on February 18, 2003, the Joint Petitioners currently request authority, pursuant to § 56-88.1 of the Code, to transfer 50% of the stock of Prince George from Bexley to PG Wastewater.

Prince George is a Virginia corporation located in Prince George County, Virginia. Prince George is the owner and operator of a sewerage treatment plant that serves two customers, a motel and a mobile home park. The two customers currently served by Prince George are Bexley Mobile Home Park and an Econo Lodge Motel located near the Bexley Mobile Home Park. The sewerage treatment plant consists of the sewerage treatment facilities and related equipment, including all wastewater treatment plant assets, related operations, liabilities, machinery, mains, treatment tanks, drainage devices, pools, pumps, and other equipment constituting a complete system of sewerage disposal held by Prince George.

Bexley is a Virginia limited liability company currently owning one-half (50%) of the outstanding common stock of Prince George. Bexley, formerly known as Bexley Limited Partnership, converted to Bexley, LLC, on September 5, 2002. Bexley owns and operates Bexley Mobile Home Park located in Prince George County, Virginia.

PG Wastewater and Park are both Virginia limited liability companies located in Glen Allen, Virginia. Bexley Properties is a limited liability company also located in Glen Allen, Virginia. Bexley Properties is the sole member of PG Wastewater.

In 1994, Bexley Limited Partnership (now known as Bexley) purchased one-half of the outstanding common stock in Prince George, the owner of the sewerage treatment plant. Since this time, Prince George has provided sewerage services to the motel and to residents of Bexley Mobile Home Park. On May 6, 2002, Park entered into a Purchase Agreement with Bexley (the "Agreement") to purchase certain real property and improvements together with Bexley's 50% interest in the stock of Prince George.

In February of 2003, Park entered into a Partial Assignment of Purchase Agreement (the "Assignment") with PG Wastewater wherein it assigned to PG Wastewater all of its rights, title, and interest in, to, and under the Purchase Agreement, to purchase 50% of the stock of Prince George. As a result of this Assignment, PG Wastewater agreed to perform all of the duties, obligations, and liabilities of Park under the Purchase Agreement.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the joint petition and representations of the Joint Petitioners and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the transfer of 50% of the stock and, therefore, control of Prince George from Bexley to PG Wastewater, as described herein, will neither impair nor jeopardize the provision of adequate service to the public at just and reasonable rates and should, therefore, be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to §§ 56-88.1 and 56-90 of the Code of Virginia, approval is hereby granted for the transfer of 50% of the stock and, therefore, control of Prince George from Bexley to PG Wastewater, as described herein.
- 2) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it is hereby dismissed.

JANUARY 30, 2003

JOINT APPLICATION OF VIRGINIA ELECTRIC & POWER COMPANY D/B/A DOMINION VIRGINIA POWER
SOUTHSIDE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For revision of certificates under the Utility Facilities Act

ORDER FOR REVISION OF CERTIFICATE

On September 26, 2002, Southside Electric Cooperative ("SSEC" or the "Cooperative") and Virginia Electric & Power Company d/b/a Dominion Virginia Power ("Dominion Virginia Power") submitted to the Division of Energy Regulation of the State Corporation Commission a letter, along with copies of a detailed map, requesting a revision to Certificate E-V48 to change the boundary lines between their service territories.

The requested change relates to a parcel of land owned by a residential consumer who resides on Route 642 (Poor House Road) located in Brunswick County, Virginia. The parcel is currently within SSEC's service territory, however, the closest SSEC facilities are approximately 4000 feet away and the Cooperative has had difficulty obtaining the necessary right-of-way easements. Dominion Virginia Power, on the other hand, has adequate facilities, approximately 1260 feet away, to serve this customer. Dominion Virginia Power and SSEC agree to the proposed change and request that the territory line revisions delineated on attached Map V48 be made to Certificate E-V48 to reflect that Dominion Virginia Power would provide service to the parcel of land indicated herein. Dominion Virginia Power and SSEC represent that the consumer is in agreement with the boundary revision.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the request, is of the opinion and finds that it is in the public interest to amend Certificate E-V48. The parties affected by the proposed revision have notice thereof, and are in agreement with the revision of boundary lines.

ACCORDINGLY, IT IS ORDERED that Certificate E-V48 shall be amended as delineated on attached Map V48 and revised certificates shall be sent to Dominion Virginia Power and SSEC.

OCTOBER 22, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA NATURAL GAS, INC.

For an Annual Informational Filing

FINAL ORDER

On January 21, 2003, Virginia Natural Gas, Inc. ("VNG" or the "Company"), by counsel, filed a Motion with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting an indefinite extension of time in which to file its Annual Informational Filing ("AIF") for the twelve months ending September 30, 2002 ("test year"). On January 24, 2003, the Staff filed its Response to VNG's Motion, wherein the Staff indicated that it recommended an extension of 60 days and that VNG did not object to such an extension.

On January 30, 2003, the Commission entered an Order that docketed the request and directed the Company to file its 2002 AIF with the Commission by no later than March 31, 2003.

On March 27, 2003, VNG filed a Motion with the Commission requesting an additional forty-five (45) days, i.e., until May 15, 2003, in which to file its AIF. In support of its request, VNG alleged that Staff and Company had reached an agreement regarding the proper accounting for VNG's acquisition by AGL Resources, Inc. ("AGLR") from Dominion Resources, the related merger costs and savings, and the treatment of certain transition costs raised in the AIF. According to the Company, the Commission's final determination regarding these issues would impact VNG's AIF for the test period ending September 30, 2002.

Through its Response filed on March 28, 2003, the Staff advised that it did not oppose VNG's request for an extension of time in which to file the 2002 AIF.

On March 31, 2003, the Commission entered an Order granting VNG's request for an extension.

On April 8, 2003, VNG filed its AIF for the test year ending September 30, 2002, in the captioned docket. This application purported to include adjustments consistent with the Agreement reached with Staff in the Company's AIF for the twelve months ended September 30, 2001, in Case No. PUE-2001-00307. In its April 2, 2003 Order in Case No. PUE-2001-00307, the Commission accepted the methodology described in Appendices A, B, and C to VNG's Amended Response to the Staff Report filed in that docket for use when VNG prepared and filed its subsequent AIFs.¹

On July 18, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in this proceeding. That Report included a financial and accounting analysis. In its financial analysis in the instant case, the Staff noted that in the April 2, 2003 Order entered in Case No. PUE-2001-00307, the Commission authorized the Company to use the hypothetical CNG capital structure set out in Exhibit 2-A to the October 31, 2002 Staff Report filed therein until the issues of capital structure and return on equity were addressed in VNG's next rate proceeding. This hypothetical capital structure is based on an average of the dollar amount of each component of VNG's former parent, Consolidated Natural Gas Company's ("CNG's") capital structure from 1997 to 2000. The resulting average capitalization ratios are then applied to the total dollar amount of AGLR's test year capitalization. That capital structure produces an overall cost of capital of 8.91%, based on the 10.9% midpoint of the authorized return on equity range established in VNG's last rate case.

The Staff also reported that the Commission lowered the bottom of VNG's return on equity range by 40 basis points for future AIF filings, resulting in a new range of 10.0% to 11.4% in its Order Approving Experiment entered in Case No. PUE-2002-00237.² Further, in the September 27, 2002 Order Approving Experiment, the Commission accepted the provision of VNG's Offer of Settlement wherein VNG agreed not to file a base rate case, or any non-gas revenue neutral rate design proposals applicable to residential and general service classes, before July 1, 2004, except under the emergency conditions set forth in § 56-245 of the Code of Virginia.³

Consistent with the Commission's April 2, 2003 Order in Case No. PUE-2001-00307, both the Company and Staff have employed the same hypothetical CNG capital structure ratios in this case. Staff recommended that this approach be continued until VNG's next rate case when the cost of equity and the appropriate ratemaking capital structure may be considered together.

In the accounting analysis portion of its Report, Staff describes the differences between its accounting adjustments and those included by VNG in its cost of service. Staff's analysis focuses on VNG's proposals to adjust cost of service to reflect VNG's acquisition by AGLR. As part of this analysis, Staff noted that the Company experienced a substantial increase in intercompany billings. According to Staff, part of this increase is explained by a new 10-year lease agreement for office space at Ten Peachtree Place in Atlanta, Georgia. VNG's annual share of the lease payment for this office space amounts to $828,764 on a total company basis, representing an increase of $451,313 over VNG's share of last year's lease payments. Lease payments for the new office space began in January 2003. Staff also attributed the increase in billings to an increase in service company employees, a merit increase for service company employees, the implementation of a crisis management plan that considers system failures and terrorist attacks, an increase in banking fees, software upgrades and maintenance, and increases in insurance expenses, among other things.

The Company included a three-year amortization of merger transition costs in its cost of service.⁴ Such costs related to the termination of employees and computer software costs incurred as a result of the merger with AGLR.

Staff took issue with the deferral and amortization of these costs based on Dominion Resources, Inc.'s ("DRI's") and CNG's representation in a stipulation filed in Case No. PUA-1999-00020, waiving the right to recover from VNG's jurisdictional customers costs directly or indirectly related to VNG's disposition.⁵ Staff also asserted that VNG's severance and capitalized software costs have been recovered, because consistent with Commission policy, such transition costs were matched with savings related to reduced payroll, benefits, and payroll taxes, among other expenses. Staff reported that VNG's cumulative savings in payroll, benefits, and payroll taxes for the test year and previous fiscal year exceeded $13.2 million, an amount in excess of the deferred severance and computer software costs of $11.5 million. Staff asserted that its approach for matching these savings with the related expenses was consistent with the Commission's actions in Case Nos. PUE-1997-00455 and PUE-1989-00035, cases involving Columbia Gas of Virginia, Inc. and Virginia Electric and Power Company, respectively.

Finally, the Staff contended that even if the Company's proposal to amortize its transition costs was accepted in the captioned case, the Commission's Order Approving Experiment, does not permit the Company to file a rate application before July 1, 2004. By that time, Staff maintains, the transition costs related to the Company's merger would be fully amortized.

With respect to the Company's proposal to recover the expenses associated with amortization of the acquisition adjustment, Staff noted that the acquisition adjustment represented the difference between the cash paid by AGLR for VNG's stock and the net book value of VNG, i.e., $156,101,656. Staff reported that the annual amortization would amount to $3,817,691 on a jurisdictional basis. Staff further represented that Paragraph 5 of the stipulation accepted by the Commission in Case No. PUA-1999-00020 neither obligated nor otherwise bound the Commission to allow recovery of an acquisition adjustment in VNG's cost of services.

Moreover, as a result of AGLR's election to treat VNG's acquisition under Section 338 of the Internal Revenue Code, Staff asserted that VNG's net balance of accumulated deferred income taxes and deferred investment tax credits ("ITCs") of approximately $46 million on a jurisdictional ratemaking basis was adjusted to zero on October 1, 2000. According to Staff, the loss of these benefits to Virginia ratepayers represented an additional cost of the merger with a lost benefit of the reduction to rate base generated by ADIT as well as the loss of the tax credit amortization generated by the deferred ITC.

Additionally, the Staff cited the increase in intercompany billings as an additional cost of the merger of VNG and AGLR. Staff argued that before the Commission determines that amortization of the acquisition adjustment should be reflected in rates, it should assure itself that there are permanent savings that exceed total merger-related costs, and that a net benefit from the merger accrues to the ratepayer. Staff urged the Commission to consider the issues related to an acquisition adjustment within the context of a rate application. Staff noted that if the Commission authorized the acquisition adjustment for ratemaking purposes, Staff would accept the 39-year amortization period proposed by the Company.

Staff challenged the Company's analysis of merger cost/savings set out in the Company's AIF. Staff explained that the Company's methodology incorporated an arithmetic average growth factor per customer for both operating and maintenance ("O&M") expenses and plant that would have been experienced had CNG continued to own VNG. VNG's methodology then compares the imputed level of expense and plant with the actual AGLR level of expense and plant. Staff asserted that the Company's methodology could not guarantee what the actual results would have been under continued CNG ownership and that VNG's growth factors vary widely from year to year. Staff maintained that its analysis, relying upon actual expenses and account balances, was a more reliable indicator of merger costs and savings. Staff therefore eliminated the per book amount of the amortization of the acquisition adjustment, i.e., $3,817,691 on a jurisdictional basis.

Staff further reported that the Company had one regulatory asset related to the implementation of other pension employee benefits ("OPEB"). Staff differed in its earnings test adjustments from the Company as to: (i) the annualized revenues resulting from rates in effect at the end of the test year, (ii) the treatment of amortization expense for the acquisition adjustment, (iii) the Company's inclusion of the amortization of merger transition costs in the earnings test, and (iv) the Company's inclusion of lead days developed for use by AGLR in VNG's lead/lag study. Staff, in contrast to VNG, used the expense lead days established by the Commission in the Company's last rate case in its adjustments.

⁵ See Joint Petition of Dominion Resources, Inc., and Consolidated Natural Gas Company, For approval of agreement and plan of merger under Chapter 5 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia, Case No. PUA-1999-00020, 1999 S.C.C. Ann. Rep. 169, 173 (hereafter "Case No. PUA-1999-00020" wherein the Commission adopted the stipulation in toto).

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

According to Staff, after all adjustments, VNG's actual earnings resulted in a 5.68% return on equity on a regulatory basis, a return below the bottom of the Company's authorized range of return on equity. Staff concluded that the Company had not recovered charges related to regulatory assets beyond the authorized level of amortization reflected in rates and recommended that no further action on the Company's base rates or regulatory assets be undertaken at this time. Staff further contended that: (i) the Company's transition costs have been recovered, (ii) it was inappropriate for the Company to seek continued amortization of these costs, and (iii) total merger costs, including the write-off of ADIT and ITC and the increase in intercompany billings associated with VNG's merger with AGLR, are in excess of the savings. Staff recommended that the amortization of the acquisition adjustment be excluded from VNG's cost of service, and that any final determination of the treatment of the acquisition adjustment be made in the context of a rate proceeding.

On August 15, 2003, VNG, by counsel, filed its Response to the Staff Report. In its Response, the Company characterized the Staff's approach for measuring costs and savings associated with the AGLR and VNG merger as incomplete and as not considering all elements of costs and savings resulting from AGLR's acquisition of VNG. VNG asserted that the Staff ignored the significant decrease in net plant investment resulting from the AGLR acquisition and other reductions in O&M costs. The Company urged the Commission to use the method of determining acquisition costs and savings approved by the Commission in Case No. PUE-2001-00307 unless and until the Commission approved another methodology. VNG recognized in its Response that the methodology accepted in the April 2, 2003 Order did not obligate the Commission, Staff, or others who were not participating in the case to accept that methodology. VNG committed to continue to prepare its AIFs in accordance with the April 2, 2003 Order entered in Case No. PUE-2001-00307, and commented that the current differences between Company and Staff were essentially the same differences that existed before submission of the agreed upon methodology.

On August 22, 2003, the Staff filed its Reply to VNG's Response ("Reply"). In its Reply, Staff argued that Ordering Paragraph (2) of the April 2, 2003 Order entered in Case No. PUE-2001-00307, did not obligate Staff to accept the methodology adopted in that Order and represents how VNG may present its measurement of costs and savings and account for an acquisition premium when filing its AIFs. The Staff asked that the Commission permit VNG to use the method of determining acquisition costs and savings accepted in the April 2, 2003 Order for purposes of preparing and filing subsequent AIFs. Staff also requested the Commission to find that: (i) the methodology referenced in the April 2, 2003 Order did not bind the Commission, Staff, or any other party in future cases, (ii) the Staff may evaluate the Company's methodology on an ongoing basis, (iii) the Staff may exercise its right to recommend a different methodology in subsequent AIFs or in other future proceedings, and (iv) VNG's entitlement to and recovery of an adjustment associated with its acquisition will be determined in a future rate proceeding.

VNG did not file any further pleading responsive to the Staff's assertions.

NOW, upon consideration of the record and pleadings filed herein, the Commission finds that no change in VNG's base rates has been advocated by either the Staff or the Company. In view of that fact, we find that a determination as to the amount and amortization of the transition costs associated with the merger of VNG and AGLR need not be determined in this case. We note, however, that the financial and operating data filed by the Company in support of its application indicates that the Company anticipated a three-year recovery period for these expenses, beginning October 2000. As provided in Case No. PUE-2002-00237, the Commission accepted VNG's proposal not to file a base rate case or any non-gas revenue neutral rate design proposals applicable to residential and general service classes before July 1, 2004, except under the emergency conditions set forth in § 56-245 of the Code of Virginia. See Order Approving Experiment, 2002 S.C.C. Ann. Rep. at 543. Thus, these expenses would appear to be unavailable to the Company to support an increase in rates because the three year amortization period for the Company would have expired by the time the Company will be eligible to file for an increase in base rates.

As to the differences in methodology for measuring the merger costs and savings as well as VNG's entitlement to an acquisition adjustment, we note that our discussion at page 13 of the April 2, 2003, Order entered in Case No. PUE-2001-00307 provided that the methodology accepted herein does not bind the Staff, any party or this Commission in future proceedings when considering the issue of measuring merger costs and savings and the issue of an acquisition adjustment; that by accepting the proposed accounting for AIF purposes, the Commission has not decided the issues of VNG's entitlement to and recovery of an acquisition adjustment; that those issues should be reserved for decision in a rate proceeding; . . .

We affirm this earlier determination. As we determined in the preceding AIF, whether VNG is entitled to an acquisition adjustment; if it is entitled to an acquisition adjustment, the amount of such adjustment; the period of collection for the adjustment; the level of the Company's earnings after considering an acquisition adjustment; and any other issues subsidiary to such an adjustment, should be reserved for determination in the Company's next rate application. For purposes of preparing this and other subsequent AIFs, VNG may utilize the methodology accepted in Case No. PUE-2001-00307. However, our authorization to allow VNG to use this methodology should not be construed as our approval of that methodology for purposes of setting rates for VNG or as granting VNG permission to recover an acquisition adjustment. Simply put, acceptance of the methodology does not obligate the Commission, Staff or others not a party to this case to accept the methodology, but instead, represents how VNG may present its measurement of costs and savings and account for an acquisition premium when filing its AIFs. Staff and prospective parties are free to explore alternate methodologies to measure merger costs and savings in this and future AIFs. However, we reiterate that acceptance of the methodology for purposes of presentation in an AIF does not constitute approval of VNG's acquisition adjustment or recovery of the same in the Company's rates.

Finally, VNG did not take issue with the Staff's recommendation to continue the use of the hypothetical CNG capital structure accepted in the Commission April 2, 2003 Order in Case No. PUE-2001-00307. Consequently, we will authorize VNG to employ that approach in its subsequent AIFs, until further Order of the Commission.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) In accordance with Staff's recommendations, VNG shall continue to use the hypothetical CNG capital structure accepted in Ordering Paragraph (1) of the April 2, 2003 Order entered in Case No. PUE-2001-00307 in its subsequent AIFs until further Order of the Commission.

(2) The methodology to measure costs and savings and to account for VNG's acquisition premium accepted in the Ordering Paragraph (2) of the April 2, 2003 Order entered in Case No. PUE-2001-00307 is hereby accepted for use by VNG in preparing and filing subsequent AIFs with the Commission. Acceptance of this methodology does not obligate the Commission, Staff, or others who are not participants in this case to accept this methodology. Instead, acceptance of this methodology represents how VNG may present its measurement of costs and savings and account for an acquisition premium when filing its AIFs.

(3) Acceptance of the methodology relative to the Company's merger and acquisition for purposes of presentation in an AIF does not constitute approval of VNG's acquisition adjustment or of any and all issues ancillary to VNG's acquisition adjustment. These issues shall be addressed in VNG's next rate application, i.e., an application in which a change in base rates is sought.

(4) There being nothing further to be done herein, this case shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings, and the papers filed herein shall be placed in the Commission's files for ended causes.

FEBRUARY 21, 2003

APPLICATION OF
and
DOMINION RESOURCES. INC.

For an exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements of Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia or, in the alternative, approval of a parent company guaranty, and for expedited consideration

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On January 22, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power" or "Company") and Dominion Resources, Inc. ("DRY") (collectively, the "Applicants") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting an exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements of Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") or, in the alternative, approval of a parent company guaranty for the purpose of meeting a portion of Dominion Virginia Power's nuclear decommissioning financial assurance obligations.

Dominion Virginia Power is a Virginia public service corporation providing electric service to customers in its service territory in Virginia and North Carolina. It is a wholly owned subsidiary of DRI. DRI is a holding company as defined in the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("1935 Act"), subject to regulation as such under the 1935 Act by the Securities and Exchange Commission. DRI is the corporate parent of Dominion Virginia Power. DRI is, therefore, an affiliated interest of Dominion Virginia Power within the meaning of Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code.

Dominion Virginia Power is the licensee of four nuclear power plants and subject to the rules, regulations, and guidelines promulgated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission ("NRC") with regard to the operation, maintenance, and ultimate decommissioning of nuclear power reactors. For its obligation to decommission each nuclear reactor at the end of its useful life, Dominion Virginia Power established external trusts to which it funded all amounts included in customers' rates for electric service designated as nuclear decommissioning collections as approved by the various regulatory commissions.

Dominion Virginia Power expects to collect and earn over the respective operating lives of its nuclear power plants sufficient funds to meet its ultimate decommissioning obligation. As of December 31, 2001, the balance of the trusts amounted to $858 million. The current level of collections is approximately $36 million per year. The total estimated cost to decommission the plants is $1.6 billion, stated in 1998 dollars.

NRC regulations specify a minimum level of financial assurance and certain methods that a licensee, if it meets certain criteria, may use in satisfying its nuclear decommissioning financial assurance obligations. The 2002 minimum financial assurance level for Dominion Virginia Power's nuclear plants totaled $1.1 billion.

In 1998, the NRC changed its regulations regarding nuclear decommissioning financial assurance requirements via its Final Rule on Financial Assurance Requirements for Decommissioning Nuclear Power Reactors ("Final Rule"). The Final Rule modified the criteria that a licensee must meet to use certain of the prescribed methods for meeting the minimum financial assurance requirements. The NRC also modified the prescribed methods, which include external sinking funds (wherein funds are deposited over the operating life of the nuclear unit), surety mechanisms (including insurance and parent company guarantees), prepayment in an amount that with investment earnings will meet the future decommissioning obligation, and certain contractual arrangements.

Prior to the effective date of the Final Rule, Dominion Virginia Power, through its external trusts established for nuclear decommissioning, had been able to rely solely on the sinking fund method to meet its nuclear decommissioning financial assurance obligation. The sinking fund method required the establishment of funds in an account, such as a trust, "segregated from licensee assets and outside the licensee's administrative control in which the total amount of funds would be sufficient to pay decommissioning costs at the time termination of operation is expected." The Final Rule placed restrictions on a licensee's use of the sinking fund method as its sole method for meeting the NRC's financial assurance requirement.

Under the NRC's new regulations, Dominion Virginia Power was no longer able to rely solely on the sinking fund method for meeting its decommissioning financial assurance amount. The Company has relied on the purchase of surety bonds since 1999 to supplement the sinking fund method. Dominion Virginia Power pays an annual premium for the surety bonds and annually adjusts the amount being bonded.

For 2002 the amount being bonded was set at an aggregate total for the four nuclear units of $56.9 million at a premium of approximately $114,000. Dominion Virginia Power was notified that such premium would increase effective October 2002 to approximately $565,000, without the posting of collateral. Additionally, the premium of $565,000 would double to $1,130,000 annually effective April 1, 2003. Through its insurance broker, the Company determined that such increases were market-wide and not isolated to the Company's current surety provider. The posting of collateral would be a mandatory requirement from any other surety provider. Under the current indemnity structure, Dominion Virginia Power's current surety provider may not request collateral unless the Company's credit rating falls below investment grade.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Due to these significant cost increases, Dominion Virginia Power proposes to use a parent company guaranty as a replacement for the surety bonds, at no cost to Dominion Virginia Power. The amount of the parent company guaranty allowed by the NRC is defined by certain financial tests as applied to DRI's financial statements. Based on December 31, 2001 values, the parent guaranty available for Dominion Virginia Power is $142 million.

Dominion Virginia Power states that the issuance of a parent company guaranty by DRI to Dominion Virginia Power is in the public interest because it allows the Company to reduce its costs significantly by avoiding the significant rise in costs of the surety bond method for meeting a portion of its NRC decommissioning financial assurance requirement.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of the Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the requested exemption is not in the public interest and should be denied. We believe, however, that the above described parent guaranty by DRI to replace the surety bonds is in the public interest and should, therefore, be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code, the requested exemption is hereby denied.
- (2) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code, Dominion Virginia Power is hereby granted approval for the issuance of a parent company guaranty by DRI for the purposes as described herein.
- (3) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code hereafter.
- (4) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not the Commission regulates such affiliate.
- (5) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.
- (6) Company shall include the parent company guaranty approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions to be submitted to the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission by no later than May 1 of each year for the preceding calendar year, subject to extension by the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission.
- (7) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then Dominion Virginia Power shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- (8) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

FEBRUARY 11, 2003

PETITION AND COMPLAINT OF METROMEDIA ENERGY, INC.

Regarding Washington Gas Light Company's Plan to Return Customers to Sales Service Effective February 1, 2003

DISMISSAL ORDER

By Order Granting Temporary Injunction of January 24, 2003, the Commission docketed the Complaint and Petition for Relief filed by Metromedia Energy, Inc. We also enjoined Washington Gas Light Company from transferring Metromedia Energy customers to the utility's service unless additional financial security were provided. By Order Setting Hearing of January 28, 2003, the matter was set for hearing before the Commission. On February 6, 2003, Metromedia Energy moved for leave to withdraw its complaint and petition without prejudice. In support of its motion, Metromedia stated that Washington Gas Light had agreed to begin discussions on resolving the dispute.

Upon consideration of the motion, the Commission will grant leave to withdraw.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The motion of Metormedia Energy, Inc., for leave to withdraw its complaint and petition is granted.
- (2) The temporary injunction against Washington Gas Light Company is dissolved.
- (3) This case is dismissed from the Commission's docket and placed in closed status in the records maintained by the Clerk.

JULY 30, 2003

APPLICATION OF COMMUNITY ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

Application for approval of retail access tariffs and terms and conditions of service for retail access

FINAL ORDER

On January 29, 2003, Community Electric Cooperative ("CEC" or the "Cooperative"), filed an application for State Corporation Commission ("Commission") approval of the Cooperative's retail access tariffs and terms and conditions of service for retail access, as required by paragraph (5) of the Commission's Final Order issued on December 18, 2001, in the Cooperative's case for functional separation, Case. No. PUE-2000-00746 ("functional separation case"), and pursuant to the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act (the "Act"), Chapter 23 of Title 56 (§ 56-576 et seq.) of the Code of Virginia.

CEC's retail access tariff filing includes: (1) Terms and Conditions of Service (including Terms and Conditions of Service for Retail Access); (2) Tariffs and Rate Schedules (including Unbundled Tariffs and Rate Schedules, Retail Access Tariffs and Rate Schedules and Other Tariffs and Rate Schedules); (3) Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff (including, Competitive Service Provider Agreement, Electronic Data Interchange Trading Partner Agreement, Dispute Resolution Procedure, Aggregator Agreement, and Transmission Customer Designation Form); (4) Market Prices and Wires Charges Calculations; (5) Plan to Provide Price to Compare Information; and (6) Letter of Agreement between CEC and Old Dominion Electric Cooperative regarding the Competitive Transition Charge ("CTC").

On March 14, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Prescribing Notice And Inviting Comments And Requests For Hearing ("Order") in this proceeding, whereby it directed the Cooperative to publish notice of its application, and directed the Staff to investigate the application and file a report detailing its findings and recommendations. On April 15, 2003, the Cooperative filed its required proof of publication of notice and proof of notice to local governments, as required by the Order. On May 13, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in this proceeding wherein it recommended that the Commission approve CEC's tariffs and terms and conditions with the adoption of certain modifications recommended by Staff.

Staff stated in its report that the methodology employed by CEC in calculating projected market prices for generation applicable for the rate classes that will participate in retail choice, was the methodology set forth in the electric cooperatives' Comprehensive Wires Charges Proposal ("Comprehensive Plan"), approved by Commission Order issued May 24, 2002, in Case PUE-2001-00306 ("Wires Charges Case"). The Staff stated its support for CEC's methodology for calculating projected market prices, but noted a technical error in the calculation of the proposed wire charges. Staff indicated in its Report that CEC has agreed with Staff that there was an error in the calculation. Staff further stated that CEC has agreed to resubmit corrected Tables 7-11 at the time that CEC submits its compliance filing prior to initiating retail access in its service territory. Staff found that the Cooperative's methodology for calculation of competitive transition charges ("CTCs") was appropriate, however, Staff further recommended that the value currently used for the Cooperative's Wholesale Fuel Adjustment factor should be updated to reflect the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to its initiation of retail access in its service territory.

The Staff accepted the Cooperative's proposal, as reflected in its filed commitment document, for the allocation of wires charges revenue between CEC and its electricity supply cooperative, Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("ODEC"). Pursuant to Va. Code § 56-584, the Staff recommended that if the agreement is renegotiated, the renegotiated agreement must be submitted to the Commission for approval.

Staff further found that the proposed retail access schedules were consistent with the currently effective bundled service schedules and that the rates proposed for each service class properly reflect the pricing approved by the Commission in CEC's last rate case, Case No. PUE-1991-00030¹ and its functional separation case. The Staff further noted, however, that the unbundled rates in the filing did not include the effects of two riders – Rider F and Rider G6. These riders became effective after January 1, 2001, the effective dates of capped rates in CEC's functional separation case. Staff further recommended, pursuant to Va. Code § 56-582 B (ii), which allows the Commission to adjust capped rates following any changes in the taxation of incumbent electric utility revenues, that Rider F should be rolled into CEC's unbundled rates.

In addition, with regard to Rider G6, Staff recommended, pursuant to Va. Code § 56-582 B (v)² that Rider G6 be terminated upon the initiation of Customer Choice in CEC's service territory.

Furthermore, Staff indicated that CEC did not propose a retail access (unbundled) lighting service schedule in this proceeding. Staff noted that in CEC's functional separation case, the Commission approved the Cooperative's proposal to offer unmetered lighting service to its customers only as a bundled service. In its Report, Staff did not oppose this schedule offering unmetered lighting service only as a bundled service.

With respect to Extension of Facilities, Staff recommended that the term "distribution" be inserted in applicable areas to reflect that CEC may require a customer requesting an extension to contract with the Cooperative to receive "distribution" service to pay for the costs of the extension.

With respect to Billing and Payment for Service, Staff stated that the language in the Meter Reading section was ambiguous and recommended that the section should be revised to make clear that the requesting customer must pay the meter reading fee.

With respect to Meters and Metering, CEC had proposed the adoption of new language, which allows the Cooperative to adjust bills for meter inaccuracy back to the date of the event that caused the meter inaccuracy to occur, if the Cooperative is certain of the date of the event that the meter inaccuracy is deemed to have begun. The Staff recommended that the Cooperative keep the language addressing this issue currently in its tariff, which limits adjustments to customers' bills to the preceding period not to exceed six months.

With respect to CSP enrollment of a customer, Staff recommended that the Cooperative's proposed $15 fee for enrolling a customer be denied because it is anti-competitive. Staff recommended instead that the fee be reduced to $6 to reflect costs associated with special meter reads, and that such a charge be re-identified as a special meter reading fee.

With respect to Customer Information, including individual historical energy usage data and summary usage data, the Staff recommended that CEC amend its tariffs to conform with Rule 20 VAC 5-312 60 D. Rule 60 D requires the CSP to obtain customer authorization prior to requesting any customer usage information not included on the mass list from the local distribution company. The Staff recommended that the Cooperative amend its tariffs to release historical information to a CSP upon request at any time during the enrollment process. Staff further recommended that the Cooperative modify the applicable section of its Competitive Service Provider Tariff to include language that CEC will electronically provide Customer summary usage information not included on the mass list.

With respect to Customer Billing, pursuant to Retail Access Rule 10 VAC 5-312-90 M, Staff recommended that the section addressing billing and payment for service be modified to reflect that the LDC will be responsible for the communication, notification and collection of the CSP's portion of delinquent bills, while that customer is enrolled with the CSP, and for two billing cycles after service is terminated.

With respect to Budget Billing, Staff recommended, in light of the Commission's position on this issue articulated in its Final Order in Case No. PUE-2002-00086, that the Cooperative modify this section to permit the retail access customer to retain budget billing for the distribution portion of his bill, and have the ability to switch to the CSP of his choice after bringing such budget balance for distribution to zero, or making acceptable payment arrangements on the outstanding balance with the Cooperative.

Staff further accepted as cost-based charges, the imposition of the new CSP Registration and Aggregator Registration Fee, Technical Support ("IT") Fee, and Customer Service Representative ("CSR") Fee.

Staff accepted the Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements, as attachments to the Cooperative's CSP Coordination Tariff.

Finally, the Staff found that the proposed dispute resolution procedure was appropriate and should be accepted.

On May 23, 2003, CEC filed its response to the Staff Report ("Response"). In its Response, CEC provided comments on three specific areas. CEC disagreed with the Staff's recommendation that Rider G6 be terminated upon the initiation of Customer Choice in its service territory. CEC argued that the infusion of additional revenues through the elimination of Rider G is unnecessary and undesirable. CEC further asserted that while the Cooperative would not desire to lower the cap on its rates established July 1, 1999, it should be permitted to include in its rate structure as called for in Schedule G, Wholesale Power Cost Adjustment, Rider G6 and successor riders, to the extent that the Cooperative does not exceed its capped rates.

Furthermore, in its Response, CEC agreed with the Staff's recommendation to insert the word "distribution" in applicable areas in the Extension of Facilities section. Furthermore, the Cooperative requested the addition of the following sentence to the end of that section, Section VI.B.1: "The consumer may, at their option, make a contribution in aid of construction ("CIAC") to reduce the amount of the contracted increased minimum monthly bill or sufficient to eliminate the need for a five (5) year contract for distribution service as called for in this section."

With respect to the Service Connection Fee proposed by CEC, the Cooperative stated that the requested fee is intended to recover only the incremental cost to the Cooperative for enrolling a member with the CSP. CEC stated that these costs generally include a meter reading, processing of the EDI enrollment as well as the response, and the confirmation correspondence. CEC further stated that should the Cooperative not be permitted to recover these incremental costs, the costs will be borne by the entire Cooperative membership through reduced margins and capital credit assignments. CEC requested the Commission recognize the total incremental cost associated with the enrollment of a consumer by the approval of the originally proposed $15 enrollment fee.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Cooperative's application, Staff's Report, CEC's response, and applicable law, hereby approves CEC's application, as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications detailed herein.

We incorporate, by reference, our findings in the Wires Charge Case (Case No. PUE-2001-00306). The Cooperative's proposed CTC reflects the appropriate fuel adjustments and wires calculation. The wires charges calculated are subject to the limitation of Va. Code § 56-583, which permits adjustments no more frequently than annually. Thus, these wires charges are effective until December 31, 2004, in conformance with Ordering Paragraph (5) of the May 24, 2002, Order in the Wires Charges Case. As discussed above, the value used for the fuel adjustment to base generation should be updated to reflect the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to CEC initiating retail access in its service territory. As agreed to by CEC, the Cooperative shall resubmit corrected Tables 7-11 at the time that the Cooperative submits its compliance filing incorporating the updated fuel adjustment.

With respect to CEC's commitment document with ODEC to reflect the allocation of wires charge revenue, we accept the Cooperative's proposal, however, with the condition that if the commitment agreement is renegotiated to change the revenue sharing ratio, CEC must submit the renegotiated agreement to the Commission for further approval. As we have previously discussed in Case No. PUE-2002-00575³, Virginia Code § 56-584 states, in pertinent part:

To the extent not preempted by federal law, the establishment by the Commission of wires charges for any distribution cooperative shall be conditioned upon such cooperative entering into binding commitments by which it will pay to any power supply cooperative of which such distribution cooperative is or was a member, as compensation for such power supply cooperative's stranded costs, all or part of the proceeds of such wires charges, as determined by the Commission.

In that proceeding, we found that the plain language of the statute specifies that the allocation of wires charges between a power supply cooperative and a distribution cooperative is established "as determined by the Commission." Thus, any change to the commitment agreement must be submitted to the Commission for approval.

We now address Rider F and the Staff's recommendation to roll the base rate decrease into CEC's unbundled rates. Rider F represents the base rate decrease for power purchased from ODEC subsequent to a decrease in wholesale capacity rates due to the elimination of the Virginia Gross Receipts Tax. Staff has recommended that Rider F be rolled into, and such decrease reflected in, the unbundled capped rates. The Cooperative did not oppose this recommendation in its Response. We find, pursuant to Virginia Code § 56-582 B (ii), that it is appropriate to include Rider F in the Cooperative's unbundled rates.

With respect to Rider G6, the Staff has recommended that the Rider should be terminated upon CEC's initiation of Customer Choice in its service territory, because this rider does not qualify for inclusion in the capped unbundled rates as it represents a change in wholesale capacity rates not eligible to be passed through the fuel component of CEC's wholesale power adjustment clause. CEC has asserted that the Rider should be retained, as long as the Cooperative does not exceed its capped rates.

Although we agree with the Staff that Va. Code § 56-582 B (v) provides that the Commission may only adjust the capped rates of cooperatives that are members of power supply cooperatives in connection with fuel costs - and not capacity costs - we find that Va. Code § 56-581 B specifically addresses the circumstances here, and permits the implementation and retention of such riders, to the extent that the resulting changes do not exceed such cooperatives' capped generation rates. Section 56-581 B states:

Beginning July 1, 1999, and thereafter, no cooperative that was a member of a power supply cooperative on January 1, 1999, shall be obligated to file any rate rider as a consequence of an increase or decrease in the rates, other than fuel costs, of its wholesale supplier, nor must any adjustment be made to such cooperative's rates as a consequence thereof.

Thus, in the matter before us, CEC is free to file a rate rider to pass on decreases in the non-fuel rates that CEC pays ODEC. Furthermore, we do not find that § 56-582 or other provisions of the Act prohibit CEC from reflecting such decreases in capacity costs through such a rider. CEC has chosen to pass on such reductions, and having filed and received approval for such rate rider, thus, maintains Rider G6.

With respect to CEC's proposed unbundled lighting service schedule, we will accept the Company's proposed schedules. We have previously approved such schedules in CEC's functional separation case, Case No. PUE-2000-00746.

With respect to Extension of Facilities, we find CEC should amend this section to include "distribution" in the applicable areas, as proposed by the Staff, and as the Cooperative has agreed to in its Response. In addition, CEC has also offered tariff language that would allow a customer to make a CIAC to offset the costs of the requested extension. Thus, the CIAC would allow the customer to reduce the contracted increased minimum monthly bill or eliminate the need for a five (5) year contract for distribution service. We find that the language should be adopted to permit customers to make such a CIAC.

CEC proposes an enrollment fee of $15. We have previously denied such fees for customer enrollments with CSPs in the retail access pilot proceedings.⁴ We continue to find that the costs associated with customers' enrollment with a CSP of their choice is a part of the cost of customer choice, and not a new service. Thus, we deny the Cooperative's request to impose such a fee. We will, however, adopt the Staff's recommendation and allow the Cooperative to charge a separate $6 special meter reading fee to cover the incremental costs of providing a special meter read for a customer to switch to a CSP. CEC does not currently read meters on a regular basis and thus, reading meters fairly qualifies as a new service.

With respect to the proposed new CSP Registration and Aggregator, IT, and CSR fees, we adopt these fees as proposed by CEC.

With respect to the CSP, Trading Partner, and Aggregator Agreements, we accept their inclusion as attachments to the CSP Coordination Tariff.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) CEC's tariffs and terms and conditions of service as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications discussed herein are hereby approved.
- (2) CEC shall file revised tariffs and terms and conditions of service reflecting the findings herein, as soon as practicable after the date of this order.
- (3) CEC may initiate retail choice in its service territory upon the filing required by paragraph (2) above.
- (4) This case is hereby dismissed, and the papers shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

OCTOBER 24, 2003

APPLICATION OF
ATMOS ENERGY CORPORATION

For an Annual Informational Filing

ORDER ADOPTING RECOMMENDATIONS AND DISMISSING CASE

On February 3, 2003, Atmos Energy Corporation ("Atmos" or the "Company") filed its Annual Informational Filing ("AIF") for the twelve months ending September 30, 2002 ("2002 test year"). Atmos also filed financial and operating data for the 2002 test year in support of its application.

On September 15, 2003, the Staff filed its audit report in the captioned case, setting out its review and analysis of Atmos' AIF for the 2002 test year. Staff's audit report contained both a financial and accounting analysis. In its financial review, Staff reported that Atmos successfully negotiated additional lines of credit during the test year demonstrating its stable financial operating results. According to Staff, Atmos did not issue any new long-term debt financing during the test year. However, it did issue 884,431 shares of common stock through various common stock plans, increasing the balance for common stock by approximately $18.3 million. According to Exhibit 3 to the Staff Report, Atmos' utility-only capital structure consisted of 7.24% short term debt, 53.652% of long-term debt, 38.897% of common equity, and 0.204% of investment tax credits. Atmos' weighted cost of capital was in the range of 8.495% to 8.885%.

In its accounting analysis, Staff described the differences between its adjustments and those made by Atmos. For the test year ended September 30, 2002, Staff concluded that Atmos had an 11.81% per books return on common equity and a 9.44% fully adjusted return on equity. Atmos and Staff differed on the weather normalization adjustment, adjustments for residential and small commercial customer growth, and jobbing and service revenues and expenses, and calculation of income taxes.

With regard to the fiscal year 2000-2001 heating season, Staff reported that Atmos experienced record cold weather and high gas costs which resulted in a sharp increase in the level of uncollectible account charge-offs. Staff and Atmos agreed to provide for creation of a regulatory asset and deferral of the excessive uncollectible costs arising from unpaid natural gas bills. This deferral is equal to the excess of the test year net charge-off level compared to the four-year average net charge-off level from 1997-2000. According to Staff, the amount of this regulatory asset is $492,363. Amortization of the new regulatory asset commenced on January 1, 2002, and will take place over no more than a maximum of a three-year period. Staff agreed to use the midpoint (11.00%) of Atmos' currently authorized return on equity range, i.e., 10.50% to 11.50% as the benchmark to measure recovery of the deferred costs. Any accelerated recovery resulting from excess earnings would serve to shorten the three-year amortization period.

Since amortization of the excessive uncollectibles expense deferral began during the test year, the Staff included twelve months of amortization expense in the fully adjusted rate of return statement. In accordance with the agreement, amortization of the regulatory asset was to commence on January 1, 2002, for a period of 36 months. However, the Company did not commence amortization until March 2002, based on an amortization period of 33 months. Staff's adjustment to the amortization expense that is part of the uncollectible expense annualizes the amortization as if it had commenced on the agreed upon date of January 1, 2002.

Staff also noted that the Company provided documentation that demonstrated that the other postretirement employee benefits ("OPEB") voluntary employees benefit association ("VEBA") trust is fully funded as the result of catch-up contributions made in May and June of 2003. On a fully-adjusted basis, according to Staff, it was no longer necessary to reflect an unfunded OPEB liability in rate base. Staff commented that in the August 1, 2003 Order Adopting Recommendations and Dismissing Proceeding entered in Case No. PUE-2002-00002,¹ the Commission directed Atmos to: (i) establish a formal policy such that once VEBA trust funds are committed to funding the Virginia OPEB accrual, the funds cannot be transferred to another account without notice and explanation to the Staff, and (ii) provide Staff with an annual reconciliation of the Virginia OPEB accrual to the Virginia VEBA trust funding, to be included in the Company's prospective AIFs or rate application. Staff's earnings test results indicated that Atmos earned a 10.51% return on equity on a regulatory basis. According to Staff, this result demonstrated that Atmos had not experienced an accelerated recovery of the uncollectible accounts regulatory asset. Staff therefore recommended that no action be taken in relation to this excess uncollectible regulatory asset.

Staff reported that Atmos also has a deferral of Merger and Integration ("M&I") costs related to the merger of United Cities Gas Company with Atmos in June 1997. The amount of this deferral is $1,283,705 on a jurisdictional basis or $331,290 for ratemaking purposes. Staff reported that pre-fiscal year 2001 regulatory assets remain subject to a benchmark based on the bottom of the authorized range of return on common equity, i.e., 10.50%, for Atmos. Because Staff's earning test results were in excess of 10.50%, it was necessary to write off $898 of the M&I regulatory asset to reflect the accelerated amortization and reduce the earnings test return on common equity to the authorized level of 10.50%.

Staff concluded that Atmos should be directed to continue the following for subsequent AIFs and rate applications: (i) establish a formal policy such that once VEBA trust funds are committed to funding the Virginia OPEB accrual, the funds cannot be transferred to another account without notice and explanation to Staff; and (ii) provide Staff with an annual reconciliation of the Virginia OPEB accrual to the Virginia VEBA trust fund, to be included in any subsequent AIF or rate application.

On October 14, 2003, the Company, by counsel, filed a letter with the Commission, noting that Atmos took no exception to the recommendations in the Staff Report and agreed that it was appropriate to close the case.

NOW, upon consideration of the Company's application and record in this case, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that the Staff's recommendations are appropriate. As we noted in our August 1, 2003 Order entered in Case No. PUE-2002-00002, our acceptance of Staff's recommendation on the M&I regulatory asset merely reserves judgment on the remaining balance of the M&I regulatory asset until Atmos' next rate proceeding in which rates are changed. No change in rates has been recommended in this case.

¹ See Application of Atmos Energy Corporation d/b/a United Cities Gas Company-Virginia, For an Annual Informational Filing, Case No. PUE-2002-00002, Doc. No. 030810062, Order Adopting Recommendations and Dismissing Proceeding at 8 (August 1, 2003).

We further find that the proposals of Staff and Atmos to monitor the level of Atmos' OPEB funding prospectively appear appropriate. We will therefore direct Atmos to provide an annual reconciliation of the Virginia OPEB accrual to the Virginia VEBA trust funding in its subsequent AIF or rate application. We will also direct Atmos to establish a formal policy so that once VEBA trust funds are committed to funding the OPEB accrual for Virginia, these funds cannot be transferred to another account without notice and explanation to the Staff. Adoption of these proposals should permit the Commission, Staff or any interested case participant to evaluate the Company's compliance with the requirements of the Order entered in Commonwealth of Virginia, ex rel. State Corporation Commission, Ex Parte, In re: Consideration of a rule governing Accounting for Postretirement Benefits other than Pensions, Case No. PUE-1992-00003, 1992 S.C.C. Ann. Rep. 315, 316.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Consideration of the M&I regulatory asset issue shall be delayed until the Company files its next rate proceeding during which rates are changed.
- (2) Atmos is hereby directed to establish a formal policy so that once VEBA trust funds are committed to funding the OPEB accrual for Virginia, these funds cannot be transferred to another account without notice and explanation to the Staff.
- (3) Atmos shall provide an annual reconciliation of the Virginia OPEB accrual to the Virginia VEBA trust fund in its subsequent AIF or rate application.
- (4) There being nothing further to be done herein, this case shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings, and the papers filed herein shall be filed in the Commission's files for ended causes.

(2) Any fines paid in accordance with this Order shall not be recovered in the Company's rates as part of the cost of service. Any such fines shall be booked in Uniform System of Account No. 426.3. The Company shall verify its booking by filing a copy of the trial balance showing this entry with the Division of Public Utility Accounting.

The Commission, being advised by the Staff and finding sufficient basis herein for the entry of this Order, hereby accepts this settlement.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Pursuant to the authority granted the Commission by § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, the offer of settlement made by the Company be, and it hereby is, accepted.

- (2) The sum of $5,450 tendered contemporaneously with the entry of this Order is accepted.
- (3) This case is dismissed, and the papers herein shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

ORDER OF SETTLEMENT

Pursuant to § 56-265.30 of the Code of Virginia, the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") is charged with enforcing the provisions of the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Act, § 56-265.14 et seq. of the Code of Virginia (the "Act"). The Commission's Division of Utility and Railroad Safety ("Division"), charged with the investigation of probable violations of the Act, has completed investigations of certain incidents between May 28, 2002, and December 30, 2002, listed in Attachment A, involving Utiliquest, LLC ("Company"), and alleges that:

- (1) The Company is a contract locator as that term is defined in § 56-265.15 of the Code of Virginia;
- (2) During the aforementioned period the Company violated the Act by committing the following violations:
 - (a) Failing on certain occasions to mark the approximate horizontal location of the underground utility lines on the ground to within two feet of either side of the underground utility lines, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (b) Failing on certain occasions to mark within the time prescribed in the Act, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (c) Failing on certain occasions to report to the notification center that lines had been marked or they were not in conflict with the proposed excavation, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.

As evidenced in the attached Admission and Consent document, the Company neither admits nor denies these allegations but admits the Commission's jurisdiction and authority to enter this Order.

As an offer to settle all matters before the Commission arising from the Division's allegations made herein, which includes all probable violations presented to the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Advisory Committee on February 4, 2003, and set out in Attachment A hereto, the Company represents and undertakes that it will pay a civil penalty to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $11,250 to be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order. This payment will be made by cashier's check or money order, payable to the Treasurer of Virginia and directed to the attention of the Director of the Division of Utility and Railroad Safety.

The Commission, being advised by the Staff and finding sufficient basis herein for the entry of this Order, hereby accepts this settlement.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to the authority granted the Commission by § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, the offer of settlement made by the Company be, and it hereby is, accepted.
- (2) The sum of $11,250 tendered contemporaneously with the entry of this Order is accepted.
- (3) This case is dismissed, and the papers herein shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00063
MAY 8, 2003

APPLICATION OF
WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY

For an exemption under Virginia Code § 56-77 B from the filing and prior approval requirements of the Affiliates Act for certain construction contracts with an affiliate

ORDER DENYING EXEMPTION

On February 13, 2003, Washington Gas Light Company ("WGL" or "Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting an exemption under § 56-77 B of the Code of Virginia (the "Code") from the filing and prior approval requirements of the Affiliates Act for certain construction contracts between WGL and an affiliated company, American Combustion Industries, Inc. ("ACI").

WGL states that the requested contract exemption will be limited to construction projects to repair, renovate, or enlarge facilities, such as heating, ventilation, or air conditioning ("HVAC") systems, at WGL buildings for which WGL puts the work out for bid and ACI is the low bidder. No such contracts are currently outstanding.

WGL represents that it is requesting the contract exemption in order to obtain the lowest possible price on future construction projects. WGL's construction projects typically require multiple contractors, and bids are held open for 30 days. WGL is concerned that bids from other contractors could lapse before approval could be obtained under the Affiliates Act for ACI's portion of the project even if ACI were the low bidder. The nature of the projects, which require close scheduling and coordination between the trades, prevents other contractors from proceeding with construction while WGL awaits the Commission's action.

WGL states that it can estimate neither the frequency nor the average dollar amount of the contracts to be exempted. WGL also represents that it does not have a standard contract to present for exemption but that ACI's terms and conditions, warranties, and other contractual requirements will be same as for other project participants and consistent with industry standards.

WGL states that most, if not all, of the construction projects in which ACI will participate will be led by unaffiliated general contractors or supervised by unaffiliated architects and engineers. These parties will be responsible for selecting the group of subcontractors to minimize the total project cost and present the most favorable bid.

WGL represents that ACI, like any other contractor, bids its jobs at anticipated cost plus overhead and profit. For WGL projects where ACI is the low bidder, WGL represents that ACI's bid will be at the low end of the market range.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of Applicant and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described contract exemption for certain WGL-ACI agreements is not in the public interest and, accordingly, should be denied.

We have insufficient information to determine that such exemption is in the public interest, WGL has not been able to provide Staff with any documentation regarding the type, number, or size of contracts applicable to the requested exemption. Moreover, WGL has represented to Staff that no ACI-biddable projects currently exist and that none are currently anticipated.

The requested exemption appears to have limited applicability because it applies only to projects where WGL contracts directly with ACI. WGL contracts directly with third party general contractors for the majority of its construction projects and the requested exemption would not apply.

In addition, we note that contract exemptions approved in the past, with the exception of telecommunications companies that are no longer under traditional cost of service regulation, have been extremely limited in nature, scope, and amount to allow Staff to monitor closely the utility's use of the exemption.

We believe that WGL's concerns can better be addressed within the context of the Affiliates Act by filing an application requesting expedited treatment. Such application should include a Transaction Summary, a copy of the proposed WGL-ACI agreement, and a copy of the Request for Proposal, including a list of the firms from which WGL solicited bids and a copy of the competing bids. A complete and accurate application filed in a timely manner should result in an expeditious review process. Once we gain a more complete understanding of the nature, type, size, and frequency of the WGL-ACI contracts, we will be in a better position to determine whether any requested exemption is in the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 B of the Code of Virginia, WGL's request for a contract exemption for the filing and prior approval requirements of the Affiliates Act is hereby denied.
- 2) WGL shall file with the Commission timely, complete, and accurate applications for approval of any contract arrangements with ACI for the provision of construction services including, at a minimum, the information detailed above.
- 3) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

OCTOBER 9, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

For a certificate of public convenience and necessity for facilities in the City of Chesapeake: Virginia portion of Fentress-Shawboro 230 kV Transmission Line

FINAL ORDER

On February 14, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company d/b/a Dominion Virginia Power ("Virginia Power" or "Company") filed an Application for Approval and Certification of Electric Facilities: Fentress-Shawboro 230 kV Transmission Line, Application No. 223 (the "Application") with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"). The Company seeks approval and a certificate of public convenience and necessity, pursuant to §§ 56-46.1, 56-265.2 and related provisions of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (the "Code"), to construct and operate a 230 kV transmission line in the City of Chesapeake, Virginia, extending 6.9 miles from the Hickory substation to the Virginia-North Carolina border (the "Transmission Facility"). The Transmission Facility includes 230 kV structures, conductors, insulators and other associated equipment. Work associated with the proposed line but not requiring specific Commission approval includes installing two 230 kV breakers and an additional breaker row at the Fentress substation, installing a 115 kV autotransformer at the Hickory substation, and reconfiguring existing 230 kV and 115 kV circuits between the Fentress and Hickory substations. The Transmission Facility will be constructed within the existing 150-foot right-of-way in which the existing 230 kV line is located. Therefore, no additional easement of right-of-way is required in Virginia.

Currently, a single 25-mile 230 kV transmission circuit runs from the Fentress substation in Chesapeake to the Shawboro substation in Currituck County, North Carolina. The Transmission Facility is the Virginia portion of the planned 230 kV transmission circuit that, when connected with an existing 4.32-mile circuit between the Fentress and Hickory substations, will create a new, second 25-mile 230 kV circuit from the Fentress substation to the Shawboro substation. The planned Fentress-Shawboro project is intended to meet expected substantial load growth in the Outer Banks area of North Carolina. The ten-year load forecast for the area indicates an average annual load growth of 3.6 percent.

The existing 4.32-mile line between the Fentress substation and the Hickory substation now consists of one 230 kV circuit, which is a segment of the #269 Shawboro-Fentress circuit, and one 115 kV circuit, which is a segment of the #74 Landstown-Portsmouth circuit. In connection with the planned 25-mile 230 kV Fentress-to-Shawboro circuit, the 115 kV circuit between the Fentress and Hickory substations will be converted from operation at 115 kV to 230 kV and made the northern segment of the existing circuit #269, with the previous northern segment of circuit #269 becoming the northern segment of the new 230 kV circuit. The Company obtained approval from the Commission for construction and operation at 230 kV of this double-circuit line between Fentress and Hickory by Certificate No. ET-95h, issued on October 21, 1975, in Case No. 11655. As a result, the conversion of the 115 kV circuit between the Fentress and Hickory substations to 230 kV does not require additional Commission approval.

On March 24, 2003, the Commission entered an Order for Notice in which it directed the Company to provide notice of the Application and invited comments and a request for a hearing. The order directed the Staff of the Commission ("Staff") to analyze the Application and file a report detailing its findings and recommendations by June 4, 2003. By letter dated February 21, 2003, Staff requested the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality ("DEQ") to coordinate a review of the Transmission Facility by appropriate agencies. By letter dated April 16, 2003, DEQ informed Staff that it was suspending its review of the Application pending receipt of certain additional information from the Company. By motion filed May 22, 2003, Staff requested an extension of the filing date for its report. On June 6, 2004, the Commission entered an order extending the filing date for the Staff's report to July 2, 2003, and extending the filing date for any Company comments to the report to fourteen days from the date the Staff files its report. On June 12, 2003, DEQ filed its report summarizing the Transmission Facility's potential impacts on natural resources and recommendations for minimizing those impacts.

The Order for Notice directed the Company to publish notice of the Application in one or more newspapers circulating in the City of Chesapeake and to serve a copy of the order on the mayor of the City of Chesapeake and to send a copy of the notice and a sketch map to all owners of property within the proposed line. The Company filed an affidavit of service of notice on April 11, 2003, and the Company filed proof of publication of the notice on May 9, 2003. No person filed comments, sought to intervene or requested a hearing with respect to the Application.

On June 18, 2003, the North Carolina Utilities Commission approved, without opposition or hearing, an application for approval of the fourteen-mile North Carolina segment of the transmission line project.

On July 2, 2003, Staff filed its report on the Application (the "Report"). The Report recommends that the Application be approved. The Report states that economic development of the Outer Banks area would be negatively impacted if reliability of the bulk power system was not maintained, and notes that completion of the Transmission Facility is essential to maintaining the reliability of the bulk power system.¹ The Report recommends that the Commission require the Company to prepare a report on the merits of lengthening its planning horizon for transmission projects, particularly in high-growth areas, beyond ten years. The Report also recommends that, in the future, the Company provide a detailed description of not only its proposal, but also reasonable alternatives. The Report discusses an alternative for maintaining 115 kV supply at Hickory that would involve constructing a new 115 kV Fentress-Shawboro line adjacent to the existing circuit that is being converted from 115 kV to 230 kV. Staff expressed concern that eliminating the existing 115 kV circuit while re-establishing it through an expensive autotransformer at the Hickory substation may be inefficient. While the alternative offers better reliability, the Company's proposal offers less visual impact. Staff notes that there is no significant cost difference between the alternatives, and the Company's proposal presents only slightly less reliability. Therefore, Staff concludes that the Company's proposal should be approved in order to minimize visual impact to the local public.

At the request of the Staff, the DEQ coordinated a review of the Transmission Facility by various state and local agencies responsible for reviewing the impacts upon natural resources of electric utility projects. Staff incorporated the DEQ review as attachment 3 to the Report. DEQ recommends that the Company, in addition to obtaining required permits or approvals, take the following steps:

- Conduct an on-site survey to determine the presence or absence of wetlands and surface waters within the proposed route of the project.
- Avoid stream and wetlands impacts to the maximum extent practicable, and minimize unavoidable impacts by practices such as: operating machinery and construction vehicles outside of stream-beds and wetlands and using synthetic mats when in-stream work is unavoidable; preserving the top twelve inches of material removed from wetlands for use as wetland seed and root-stock in the excavated area; designing and implementing erosion and sedimentation controls in accordance with the most current edition of the Virginia Erosion and Sediment Control Handbook; placing heavy equipment, located in temporarily impacted wetlands areas, on mats or geotextile fabric or using other suitable measures to minimize soil disturbance to the maximum extent practicable; restoring all temporarily disturbed wetlands areas to pre-construction conditions and planting or reseeding with appropriate wetlands vegetation in accordance with the cover type; taking appropriate measures to promote re-vegetation of these areas; and placing materials designated for use for the immediate stabilization of wetlands that are temporarily stockpiled in wetlands on mats or geotextile fabric and managing these materials in a manner that prevents leachate from entering state waters, and returning disturbed areas to their original contours, stabilized within thirty days following removal of the stockpile, and restored to the original vegetated state.
- Conduct a survey for natural heritage resources along the entire length of the right-of-way.

- Contain all work within the existing transmission line right-of-way and use tracked or high flotation equipment within existing right-of-way along the MacAlpine Tract.
- Protect individual trees or small groups of trees in the project area from construction impacts.
- Conduct site-specific test drilling prior to construction.
- Use pesticides and herbicides for landscape maintenance in accordance with principles of integrated pest management.
- Follow pollution prevention principles, including the reduction of solid wastes at the source and the re-use and recycling of materials to the maximum extent practicable.

On July 14, 2003, the Company filed comments to the Staff Report. In its comments on the Report, the Company expressed no objections to any of the recommendations. With respect to Staff's recommendation that the Company be required to prepare a report on the merits of lengthening the planning horizon for transmission projects beyond ten years, the Company states that in planning its transmission system, it implements and fully complies with industry standards established by the North American Electric Reliability Council and the Southeastern Electric Reliability Council, both of which recognize a ten-year planning horizon. The Company further states that it has developed and continually updates its ten-year power flow base case model, which reflects yearly changes in load, generation dispatch, and net interchange with interconnected systems.

With respect to Staff's recommendation that the Company provide a detailed description of reasonable alternatives to the Transmission Facility, the Company asserts that, while it takes no issue with the recommendation, there were no reasonable alternatives in this case. Transmission alternatives would not be reasonable because they would involve the construction of new lines over many miles of new right-of-way through environmentally-sensitive areas. Generation alternatives would not be reasonable for economic and reliability reasons. While stating that the Company has always provided reasonable alternatives in its filings, in this case "the Company's solution is clearly the most economical and reliable and it would be wasteful of time and resources to develop details of alternatives which are not in any sense reasonable in relation to the proposed project."²

With respect to the Report's discussion of the trade-off between reliability and visual impact on customers in the decision to install an autotransformer at the Hickory substation rather than building a new 115 kV line, the Company asserts that installing the autotransformer is less costly and avoids the removal of a forest buffer. The Company observes that this matter would not normally be addressed by the Commission because no additional Commission approval was necessary to upgrade the existing 115 kV circuit to operate at 230 kV due to the Commission's previous approval of operation of the line at 230 kV.³

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the record, the pleadings, and the applicable law, is of the opinion and finds that approval for the Transmission Facility should be granted and that a certificate of public convenience and necessity to construct and operate the Transmission Facility should be issued, subject to the conditions discussed herein. The public convenience and necessity require construction of the Transmission Facility as approved by this order.

We have considered and weighed the factors set forth in §§ 56-46.1 and 56-265.2 A, which factors are, to a large extent, interrelated and overlapping. As required by § 56-46.1 A of the Code, we have considered the effect of the Transmission Facility on the environment. We will condition the certificate granted herein upon the Company's receipt of all environmental and other permits necessary to construct and operate the Transmission Facility. The DEQ's coordinated review of the project identified no potential adverse environmental impacts associated with the Transmission Facility. The environmental agencies recommended conditions to which the Company did not object. We find that these conditions are desirable or necessary to minimize the adverse environmental impact of the Transmission Facility.

We find that the construction of the Transmission Facility will have no material adverse effect upon reliability of electric service provided by any regulated public utility.

We find that, as required by § 56-46.1 B of the Code, proper notice has been given and the Commission may consider the Application.

We determine that the Transmission Facility is needed to respond to increased loading of existing transmission facilities and thereby maintain system reliability. We further determine that the proposed route of the Transmission Facility uses existing right-of-way and is located completely on the Company's property or existing right-of-way, and thus reasonably minimizes any adverse impact on the scenic assets, historic districts and environment of the concerned area.

With respect to the recommendation in the Staff's Report that the Company be required to prepare a report on the merits of lengthening the planning horizon for transmission projects beyond ten years, we find that the comments submitted by the Company adequately address the issue in this case. If the Company finds in future applications that a planning horizon that extends beyond ten years can provide reasonably reliable data to assist in the analysis of the proposed facility, it should provide such data. However, we will not require that this issue be addressed in each application.

With respect to Staff's recommendation that in the future the Company provide a detailed description of not only its proposal, but also reasonable alternatives, we note that we will ask for a discussion of alternatives whenever reasonable alternatives exist. In this case, we find that alternatives relating to the Transmission Facility are addressed adequately in the Company's comments, and that the proposed Transmission Facility is the best technical and environmental option available.

Finally, we determine that the certificate should expire if the Transmission Facility is not constructed and in-service by September 1, 2005.

³ Id. at note 2 (citing Staff Report at 6).

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) As provided by § 56-46.1, § 56-265.2, and related provisions of Title 56 of the Code, the Company is hereby granted a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing construction and operation of the Transmission Facility as provided for in this Order.

(2) The Company is hereby authorized to construct and operate in the City of Chesapeake a 230 kV transmission line extending for approximately 6.9 miles from the Hickory substation to the Virginia-North Carolina border, and related facilities.

(3) Pursuant to the Utility Facilities Act, Chapter 10.1 (§ 56-265.1 et seq.) of Title 56 of the Code, Virginia Power is issued the following certificate of public convenience and necessity:

Conducting an on-site survey to determine the presence or absence of wetlands and surface waters within the proposed route of the project.

Conducting a survey for natural heritage resources along the entire length of the right-of-way.

Containing all work within the existing transmission line right-of-way and use tracked or high flotation equipment within existing right-of-way along the MacAlpine Tract.

Protecting individual trees or small groups of trees in the project area from construction impacts.

Conducting site-specific test drilling prior to construction.

Using pesticides and herbicides for landscape maintenance in accordance with principles of integrated pest management.

Following pollution prevention principles, including the reduction of solid wastes at the source and the re-use and recycling of materials to the maximum extent practicable.

(5) As a condition of the certificate granted in this case, the transmission facilities must be constructed and in-service by September 1, 2005; however, the Company is granted leave to apply for an extension for good cause shown.

(6) There being nothing further to come before the Commission in this proceeding, this case shall be removed from the docket and the papers transferred to the file for ended causes.

APRIL 10, 2003

APPLICATION OF
KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY d/b/a OLD DOMINION POWER COMPANY

For authority to issue securities under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia and to engage in an affiliate transaction under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On February 18, 2003, Kentucky Utilities Company, d/b/a/ Old Dominion Power Company ("Applicant" or the "Company"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting authority to issue securities under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") and to engage in an affiliate transaction under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code.¹ Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

Applicant requests authority to issue up to $250,000,000 of fixed rate long-term debt ("Proposed Debt") during the 2003 calendar year. The Company intends to issue the Proposed Debt with a fixed rate of interest on maturities ranging between two to twelve years. The Proposed Debt will be used to reduce the Company's short-term borrowings, refund maturing long-term debt and finance the acquisition of combustion turbines and construction of pollution control facilities.

Applicant requests authority to issue the Proposed Debt in the form of secured loans to its affiliate, Fidelity Corporation ("Fidelity"). The Company and Fidelity are both wholly owned subsidiaries of E.ON AG ("E.ON"). Applicant states that it will also require approval from the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") to issue the Proposed Debt on a secured basis to Fidelity. Applicant is requesting such authority due to restrictions in the Company's Articles of Incorporation which limit the amount of unsecured debt that can be issued without the consent of its preferred stockholders. Issuance of the Proposed Debt would exceed the Company's unsecured debt limit. Applicant represents that the cost to obtain such consent would be significantly higher than the expected cost of less than $50,000 for issuing secured debt.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to issue up to $250,000,000 of fixed-rate long-term debt securities for the purposes as set forth in its application, through the period ending December 31, 2003.
- 2) Applicant shall promptly submit to the Commission a copy of its application to the SEC for authority to engage in secured loan transactions with its affiliates and promptly submit any subsequent SEC order that grants or denies the authority requested.
- 3) Applicant shall submit a Preliminary Report of Action within ten (10) days after the issuance of any securities pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (1), to include the type of security, the issuance date, amount of the issue, the interest rate, the maturity date, a brief explanation of reasons for the choice of maturity and issuance date, and a cost/benefit analysis for any outstanding securities refunded prior to maturity from the proceeds.
- 4) Within sixty (60) days after the end of each calendar quarter in which any of the Proposed Debt is issued pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (1), Applicant shall file with the Commission a detailed Report of Action with respect to all Proposed Debt issued during the calendar quarter to include:
 - (a) The issuance date, type of security, amount issued, interest rate, date of maturity, issuance expenses realized to date, and net proceeds to Applicant;
 - (b) The cumulative principal amount of Refunding Bonds issued under the authority granted herein and the amount remaining to be issued; and
 - (c) A balance sheet that reflects the capital structure following the issuance of the Refunding Bonds.
- 5) Applicant shall file a final Report of Action on or before March 31, 2004, to include all information required in Ordering Paragraph (3) and a detailed account of all the actual expenses and fees paid to date for the Proposed Debt with an explanation of any variances from the estimated expenses contained in the Financing Summary attached to the application.
- 6) Approval of the application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 7) This matter shall be continued, subject to the continuing review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

¹ By Commission Order dated March 13, 2003, the Commission extended the period of review in this case for an additional 30 days, or through April 13, 2003, to permit sufficient time to consider fully matters associated with Applicant's requested authority.

MARCH 13, 2003

RAPPAHANNOCK ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On February 21, 2003, Rappahannock Electric Cooperative ("Rappahannock" or "Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to incur long-term indebtedness with the Rural Utilities Service ("RUS") and the National Bank for Cooperatives ("CoBank"). Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $250.

Rappahannock requests authority to obtain financing from RUS in the amount of $26,950,000 and from CoBank in the amount of $11,550,000. The proceeds will be used to fund new construction and system improvements as approved by RUS in the Company's most recent three-year work plan. The loans will have concurrent maturities of thirty-five years. The loan from RUS may be drawn down from time to time and may have a variable or fixed interest rate, not to exceed 7% per year. The CoBank loan may have a variable or fixed interest rate depending on market conditions at the time of the drawdown.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $26,950,000 from RUS and to borrow up to $11,550,000 from CoBank, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of any advance of funds from either RUS or CoBank, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected, and the interest rate maturity.
- 3) In the event Applicant wishes to convert its CoBank loan to a variable interest rate after a fixed rate has been established, it shall file for Commission approval for such action.
- 4) Approval of this application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 5) There being nothing further to be done, this matter is hereby dismissed.

APPLICATION OF
THE POTOMAC EDISON COMPANY d/b/a ALLEGHENY POWER

For authority to enter into a tax allocation agreement among affiliates

DISMISSAL ORDER

On March 6, 2003, The Potomac Edison Company d/b/a Allegheny Power ("Allegheny") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia for approval to enter into a tax allocation agreement for the purpose of allocating federal and state tax liability among affiliates in Allegheny Energy, Inc.

By letter dated May 29, 2003, Allegheny, through counsel, advised that it is currently in negotiations with the Securities and Exchange Commission that could result in wording changes to the Tax Allocation Agreement as originally submitted to conform to the requirements of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935. Allegheny further advises that to date the negotiations have not been completed. Therefore, Allegheny withdraws its application filed on March 6, 2003, and will resubmit the revised Tax Allocation Agreement for Commission approval when it is finalized.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of Allegheny's May 29, 2003, letter and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion that Allegheny's application should be withdrawn.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Allegheny's request to withdraw its application filed on March 6, 2003, is hereby granted.
- (2) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

ORDER OF SETTLEMENT

Pursuant to § 56-265.30 of the Code of Virginia, the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") is charged with enforcing the provisions of the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Act, § 56-265.14 et seq. of the Code of Virginia. The Commission's Division of Utility and Railroad Safety ("Division"), charged with the investigation of probable violations of the Act, has completed investigations of certain incidents between July 9, 2002, and February 22, 2003, listed in Attachment A, involving Utiliquest, LLC ("Company"), the defendant, and alleges that:

- (1) The Company is a contract locator as that term is defined in § 56-265.15 of the Code of Virginia;
- (2) During the aforementioned period the Company has violated the Act by the following conduct:
 - (a) Failing on certain occasions to mark the approximate horizontal location of the underground utility lines on the ground to within two feet of either side of the underground utility lines, in violation of § 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (b) Failing on certain occasions to mark within the time prescribed in the Act, in violation of § 56-265.17 C and § 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (c) Failing on certain occasions to report to the notification center that lines had been marked or they were not in conflict with the proposed excavation, in violation of § 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.

As evidenced in the attached Admission and Consent document, the Company neither admits nor denies these allegations but admits the Commission's jurisdiction and authority to enter this Order.

As an offer to settle all matters before the Commission arising from the Division's allegations made herein, which includes all probable violations presented to the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Advisory Committee on March 5, 2003, and set out in Attachment A hereto, the Company represents and undertakes that it will pay a civil penalty to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $12,250 to be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order. SEPTEMBER 16, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.
v.
UTILIQUEST, LLC,
Defendant

AMENDING ORDER NUNC PRO TUNC

On July 24, 2003, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") entered an Order of Settlement (hereafter "July 24, 2003, Order") involving Utiliquest, LLC, ("Company").

The July 24, 2003, Order in Ordering Paragraph (4) incorrectly referred to the sum of $12,250 as tendered contemporaneously with the entry of the Order. In addition, page 2 of the July 24, 2003 Order of Settlement, states that "the Company represents and undertakes that it will pay a civil penalty to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $12,250 to be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order." The reference to $12,250 should be revised to $11,800. The Company tendered the sum of $11,800 contemporaneously with the July 24, 2003, Order. Ordering Paragraph (4) of the July 24, 2003, Order should be amended to reflect the correct amount tendered by the Company, i.e., $11,800, instead of $12,250, as referenced in the July 24, 2003 Order. We therefore find it appropriate to revise the July 24, 2003 Order to correct these clerical errors.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT Ordering Paragraph (4) and page 2 of the July 24, 2003 Order are hereby amended to refer to $11,800 instead of $12,250.

APRIL 3, 2003

APPLICATION OF
ATMOS ENERGY CORPORATION

For authority to issue common stock

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On March 10, 2003, Atmos Energy Corporation ("Atmos" or "Applicant") filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") an application under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia, Va. Code §§ 56-55 et seq. and 56-76 et seq., requesting authority to issue common stock through its Pension Account Plan for employees and retirees ("Plan"). Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

Atmos states that as a result of decline in the U.S. equities markets since 2000, the value of the liabilities of the Plan exceed the value of the assets in its Master Retirement Trust ("Trust") for the benefit of the Plan. This means that for the first time in several years, Atmos will need to fund the Plan with cash or other assets prior to the Plan valuation date of June 30, 2003. Atmos requests authority to issue up to 1,700,000 shares of common stock to the Trust, subject to the limitation of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 ("ERISA") that no more than 10% of the Plan's fair market value can be in the form of Atmos stock.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to issue up to 1,700,000 shares of Atmos common stock to the Master Retirement Trust, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Applicant shall submit to the Commission a report of action on or before September 15, 2003. The report shall include the date the stock was issued, the total number of shares issued to the Trust, the amount of any cash contribution to the Trust, and a summary of the accounting transaction completing the issuance.
- 3) Approval of this application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) This matter shall remain under the continued review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00113
MAY 8, 2003

APPLICATION OF EAST COAST TRANSPORT, INC.,
and
TENASKA VIRGINIA PARTNERS, L.P.

For authority to enter into affiliate transactions under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On March 11, 2003, East Coast Transport, Inc. ("ECTI"), and Tenaska Virginia Partners, L.P. ("TVF") (collectively referred to as the "Applicants"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") pursuant to Chapter 4 to Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (the "Code"). The Applicants request authority to enter into a Letter Agreement Regarding Compliance with Provisions of § 316(b) of the Clean Water Act (the "Letter Agreement") and a Perpetual Water Pipeline Right-of-way and Easement Agreement (the "ROW/Easement Agreement").

ECTI is a Virginia public service corporation incorporated on January 16, 2001, which plans to construct, own, and operate water supply facilities to provide raw, non-potable water to customers in Fluvanna and Buckingham counties. ECTI is 100% owned by Tenaska Energy, Inc. ("TEI"). ECTI filed its initial rates and regulations for water sales and transportation service with the Commission on July 16, 2001, pursuant to § 56-236 of the Code. ECTI's rates and regulations were last amended and re-filed May 2, 2002.

TVP is a limited partnership formed to construct and operate a 900-megawatt ("MW") natural gas-fired electrical generating facility in Fluvanna County, Virginia. TVP is 1% owned by Tenaska Virginia, Inc., the general partner, and 99% owned by Tenaska Virginia L.L.P., which is 50% owned by TEI. On January 16, 2001, TVP filed an application, Case No. PUE-2001-00039, requesting approval of a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity ("CPCN) to construct and operate the Fluvanna County facility. On April 19, 2002, the Commission issued an order granting TVP the CPCN to construct and operate the facility.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

On May 7, 2002, ECTI, TVP, Tenaska Virginia 11 Partners, L.P. ("TV2P"), and Tenaska Operations, Inc. ("TO"), jointly filed an application, Case No. PUE-2002-00303, requesting approval of several affiliate agreements, including an ECTI-TVP Water Service Agreement whereby ECTI agreed to provide cooling water to TVP's Fluvanna County generating facility. On July 18, 2002, the Commission issued an order approving the agreements.

On October 7, 2002, ECTI, TVP, TV2P, Tenaska, Inc. ("TI"), and TO jointly filed an application, Case No. PUE-2002-00522, requesting authority to enter into several affiliate agreements, including two amendments to the ECTI-TVP Water Service Agreement. The amendments to ECTI-TVP's Water Service Agreement included a delay in the initial service date from July 1, 2003, to October 1, 2003, and the replacement of the term "Service Connection Charge" with the term "Facility Construction Charge." On December 17, 2002, the Commission issued an order authorizing the agreements.

The Letter Agreement

Part I, Paragraphs F.2 and 3 of the Virginia Pollutant Discharge Elimination System ("VPDES") permit issued May 13, 2002, to TVP by the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality requires TVP to obtain cooling water for its Fluvanna County generating facility in compliance with 40 Code of Federal Regulations ("C.F.R.") §§ 125.80 through 125.89, the regulations implementing § 316(b) of the Clean Water Act ("CWA"). These federal regulations require that the location, design, construction, and capacity of cooling water intake structures for new electrical generating facilities reflect the best technology available for minimizing adverse environmental impact. The regulations also require new facility operators to perform biological and velocity monitoring and visual or remote inspections, maintaining records showing compliance with all permit requirements, for a period of at least three years from the date of permit issuance.

The Applicants are seeking approval of a Letter Agreement between ECTI and TVP which documents ECTI's assurance to TVP that the water intake facilities that ECTI will design, construct, and operate to serve TVP's Fluvanna County generating facility will comply with current and future VPDES requirements under the CWA. The Letter Agreement also requires ECTI to submit to TVP, at least 240 days prior to TVP's initial discharge of cooling water and on annual basis thereafter, a report containing the environmental data necessary to indicate compliance with the monitoring requirements of 40 C.F.R. 125.84 of the CWA.

The Letter Agreement states that TVP will bear any incremental costs associated with complying with the CWA, including all monitoring and recordkeeping charges. This is consistent with § 6 of ECTI-TVP's amended Water Service Agreement, dated May 9, 2002, which states in part that:

"Customer ("TVP") shall be responsible for all costs incurred by the Company ("ECTI") in any efforts to secure and/or maintain such rights-of-way, permits, franchises or other necessary authorizations."

The Letter Agreement runs conjointly with the Water Service Agreement, which has an initial term of approximately 22 years, from October 1, 2003, through June 30, 2025. Thereafter, the Letter Agreement will continue in effect until either party to the Water Service Agreement gives 90 days written notice of termination.

The Right-of-Way/Easement Agreement

The Applicants represent that the general purpose of the ROW/Easement Agreement is to allow ECTI to construct, repair, maintain, operate, alter or replace that portion of its water pipeline that is situated on TVP's property. The narrow purpose of the ROW/Easement Agreement is to facilitate ECTI's obligation to provide cooling water service to TVP's Fluvanna County generating facility under the ECTI-TVP Water Service Agreement.

The estimated total cost of the water pumping and transportation facilities to be constructed by ECTI to serve TVP's Fluvanna County generating facility is $14 million, which includes a pumphouse, metering equipment, and approximately 14 miles of pipeline. The pipeline will be able to transport up to 8.5 million gallons of water per day. The approximate cost of the portion of ECTI's water pipeline that will be located on TVP's property is $300,000. This portion of the pipeline will consist of 5,100 feet of 24-inch diameter ductile iron pipe furnished with fittings, valve vents and low point drains as required.

The cost of the ROW/Easement Agreement is nominal (ten dollars paid in hand by ECTI to TVP). It has no termination date. The Applicants represent that the limited easements granted to ECTI under the ROW/Easement Agreement are perpetual so that ECTI may serve TVP's generating facility over its commercial life, which is unknown, and also so that ECTI can retire the pipeline facilities on TVP's property even after the generating facility is decommissioned, if it so elects.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described agreements are in the public interest and should be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, East Coast Transport, Inc., is hereby authorized to enter into a Letter Agreement with Tenaska Virginia Partners, L.P., under the terms and conditions and for the purposes as described herein.
- 2) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, East Coast Transport, Inc., is hereby authorized to enter into a Right-of-Way/Easement Agreement with Tenaska Virginia Partners, L.P., under the terms and conditions and for the purposes described herein.
- 3) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in terms and conditions of the affiliate agreements from those contained herein, including any successors or assigns under the affiliate agreements.
- 4) The authorities granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 5) The authority granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications should there be any future rate proceedings.

- 6) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 7) East Coast Transport, Inc., shall include agreements authorized herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting, on or before May 1 of each year, subject to extension by the Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- 8) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

JULY 30, 2003

IN THE MATTER OF

Receiving comments on a draft memorandum of agreement between the State Water Control Board and the State Corporation Commission

ORDER DISTRIBUTING MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT

Section 62.1-44.15:5 D 2 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") requires the State Water Control Board ("Board") and the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") to "develop a memorandum of agreement pursuant to §§ 56-46.1, 56-265.2, 56-265.2:1 and 56-580 [of the Code] to ensure that consultation on wetland impacts occurs prior to siting determinations" by the Commission. The Department of Environmental Quality ("Department") is acting on behalf of the Board for this matter. On March 18, 2003, on behalf of the Department and the Commission, the Commission issued an Order inviting interested persons or entities to submit comments on a draft memorandum of agreement, which was affixed to the Order as Attachment A. The Order also noted that the Department and the Commission would consider such comments and enter into a final memorandum of agreement.

Written comments were filed jointly by Virginia Electric and Power Company and Dominion Transmission, Inc. (collectively, "Dominion Companies"), and by Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("Old Dominion"). The final memorandum of agreement entered into by the Department and the Commission is attached to today's Order. On behalf of the Department and the Commission, this Order discusses certain issues raised in the comments and the modifications reflected in the final memorandum of agreement attached hereto.

Paragraph 4 of the memorandum of agreement requires the Department to submit certain information to the Commission no later than sixty (60) days after receipt of the complete wetland impacts analysis information from the applicant. The Dominion Companies request that this time period be clarified as sixty (60) "calendar" days. This change is reflected in the final memorandum of agreement.

Pursuant to paragraph 3 of the memorandum of agreement, the Appendix to the agreement is a Guidance Document that provides guidance on the information the Department has determined it may need in order to conclude its Wetland Impacts Consultation. The Dominion Companies request that the Guidance Document be clarified to apply specifically to alternatives "considered by the applicant." The Dominion Companies state that this would ensure the Department considers only alternatives offered by the applicant, resulting in a more efficient and cost effective consultation process. This change is reflected in the Guidance Document.

The Dominion Companies support reviewing wetlands for the applicant's proposed alternatives using the desktop tools described in the Guidance Document. The Guidance Document, however, also states that the applicant may be asked by the Department to "field verify" certain areas for one or more of the proposed alternatives. The Dominion Companies assert that they typically do not have access to the properties under consideration and, thus, recommend that the Department not require field verification under any circumstances. In this regard, the Guidance Document has been modified to reflect that the Department will request field verification only if appropriate and feasible.

The Guidance Document also requires the applicant to provide a "field delineation" of wetlands and streams for the applicant's preferred alternative. The Dominion Companies state, however, that field delineation should not be required until after the Commission has approved the construction of the facilities. The Dominion Companies contend that utilities typically do not have access to the properties under consideration, and the process of obtaining access through the Circuit Court would be lengthy and expensive and also would cause the owner anxiety for a route that ultimately may not be approved by the Commission. In this regard, the Guidance Document has been modified to require the same level of information for the preferred alternative as for the other alternatives, i.e., a desktop evaluation with field verification only if appropriate and feasible.

In addition, the Guidance Document requires the applicant to submit, for its preferred alternative, documentation from the Department of Game and Inland Fisheries, the Department of Conservation and Recreation Natural Heritage Program, and the Department of Historic Resources. The Dominion Companies argue that this information should not be required as part of the Wetland Impacts Consultation. The Department, however, requires this information to prepare a complete evaluation of the permitting necessary for the preferred alternative for purposes of the Wetland Impacts Consultation. Thus, the Guidance Document has not been modified in this regard.

The Guidance Document also states that documentation from either the affected localities or directly from the Chesapeake Bay Local Assistance Department regarding any potential impacts to Chesapeake Bay Resource Protection Areas or Resource Management Areas must be submitted if applicable. The Dominion Companies assert that there are no standards provided to assess whether such potential impacts would be relevant to the Wetland Impacts Consultation and, thus, the Department should not accept such documentation. The Department, however, is required to consult with the Chesapeake Bay Local Assistance Department when a proposed activity could impact a designated Chesapeake Bay Protection Area. The Department also requires this information to prepare a complete evaluation of the permitting necessary for the preferred alternative for purposes of the Wetland Impacts Consultation. The Guidance Document further notes that, based on the information provided in this regard, the Department may consult with and consider the comments of the Norfolk District Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. In addition, public utility projects, in general, may be exempt from many local Chesapeake Bay ordinances. Thus, the Guidance Document has been clarified to require the above information only if local ordinances are applicable to the project under consideration.

Old Dominion's primary concern relates to the length of time that may be required for the Department to complete the Wetland Impacts Consultation. Old Dominion states that this time could be better used for direct coordination of issues between the applicant and the Department. Similarly, the Dominion Companies express concern regarding potential delays in the Department's development of the Wetland Impacts Consultation. The Department's completion of the Wetland Impacts Consultation may be delayed if the Department does not receive necessary information. The applicant may facilitate this process by working closely with the Department before and after an application is filed with the Commission. Indeed, the Dominion Companies recommend that the memorandum of agreement include a provision allowing the applicant to begin consultation with the Department prior to filing an application with the Commission. We agree with the Dominion Companies that such a procedure should assist the parties and help expedite the Department's review process. Although the draft memorandum of agreement does not prohibit the applicant from working with the Department prior to filing an application with the Commission, the final agreement explicitly references this option as requested by the Dominion Companies.

Finally, Old Dominion states it should be made clear that the process developed under the memorandum of agreement is to be applied to the application for certification of a particular facility, and not to other supporting facilities owned and operated by entities other than the applicant. Section 62.1-44.15:5 D 2 of the Code requires development of the memorandum of agreement "pursuant to §§ 56-46.1, 56-265.2, 56-265.2:1 and 56-580 [of the Code] to ensure that consultation on wetland impacts occurs prior to siting determinations" by the Commission for "[f]acilities and activities of utilities and public service companies." Paragraphs 2 and 3 of the memorandum of agreement recognize that the Department's consultation is triggered when the Commission receives an application for certification of facilities pursuant to §§ 56-46.1, 56-265.2, 56-265.2:1 or 56-580 of the Code. The siting determination by the Commission is limited to the facilities requested by the applicant for approval. Likewise, the Wetland Impacts Consultation by the Department also will be limited to the facilities requested by the applicant for approval.

Accordingly, this matter is now closed.

Federal Regulation

The Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), through Title 17, Code of Federal Regulations §250.45(c) ("Rule 45(c)"), requires holding companies registered under the PUHCA to file with the SEC written tax allocation agreements covering the holding company, its regulated utilities, and other consolidated subsidiaries (the "Group Members") in order to have the ongoing authority to file consolidated income tax returns with the federal government. On October 15, 2002, AEP filed an application with the SEC requesting approval of the Tax Agreement (the "SEC Application"). AEP requested specific approval of a provision in Paragraph 2 of the Tax Agreement that allows the holding company to retain the tax benefits associated with holding company extraordinary items that do not apply to the regulated business. AEP's request has two parts. First, AEP is seeking to retain the tax benefits associated with approximately $235 million in merger expenses incurred by AEP and Central and South West Corporation ("CSW) in connection with their June 15, 2000, merger that were not approved to be recovered in rates by the jurisdictional commissions that regulate AEP's operating subsidiaries. Second, AEP is requesting the SEC to approve such changes retroactively. As this time, the SEC application remains pending.

The Tax Agreement lists 148 AEP affiliates that are current Group Members. The Tax Agreement, in various forms, has been in place for more than 30 years and has no expiration date.

Tax Allocation Methodology

Rule 45(c)(2) states that:

The consolidated tax shall be apportioned among the several members of the group in proportion to (i) the corporate taxable income of each such member, or (ii) the separate return tax of each such member, but the tax apportioned to any subsidiary shall not exceed the separate return tax of such subsidiary.

In accordance with this rule, Paragraph 1 of the Tax Agreement states that the consolidated federal income tax, excluding capital gains and preference taxes and before the application of general business credits, shall be apportioned among the Group Members based on corporate taxable income. Paragraph 2 states that before apportionment, each Group Member having positive taxable income shall first have its income reduced by a proportionate share of the holding company's tax loss, excluding the effect of extraordinary items that do not apply to regulated businesses. Paragraph 8 says that no Group Member shall be allocated federal income tax in excess of the amount the Group Member would owe if it had filed a separate return.

Rule 45(c)(3) says that the consolidated tax agreement:

Shall provide for appropriate and equitable adjustment of the allocation specified under paragraph (c)(2)(ii) to the extent that the consolidated tax and separate return tax for any year include material items taxed at different rates or involving other special benefits or limitations. Such adjustments will be directing to the individual members of the group the material effects of any particular features of the tax law applicable to them.

Accordingly, Paragraph 3 of the Tax Agreement states that, to the extent that there are material items taxed at rates other than the statutory federal rate (such as capital gains and preference items), the consolidated tax attributable to these items will be apportioned directly to the Group Members giving rise to the items. Paragraph 4 states that general business, foreign and other tax credits shall be equitably allocated to the members whose investments or contributions generated the tax credits. Paragraph 5 says that if the tax credits cannot be fully utilized, the carryover will be allocated to the members whose activities generated the credits.

Holding Company Tax Benefits

Rule 45(c)(5) states that, in general:

[The] agreement may include all members of the group in the tax allocation. An agreement under this paragraph shall provide that those associate companies with a positive allocation will pay the amount allocated and those subsidiary companies with a negative allocation will receive current payment of their corporate tax credits.

In accordance with Rule 45(c)(5), Paragraph 7 of the Tax Agreement states that a Group Member with a net positive tax allocation shall pay the holding company the net amount allocated ("Paying Member"), while a Group Member with a negative tax allocation shall receive a current payment from the holding company ("Loss Member").

In 1981, though, an SEC amendment to the PUHCA precluded registered holding companies, which are usually Loss Members, from sharing in consolidated return tax savings because of concerns about the possibility of improper upstream cash distributions. Accordingly, AEP currently pays its holding company positive tax liabilities, while its tax loss benefits are permanently allocated to the Paying Members, with no carrying charges assessed by AEP.

In the SEC Application, AEP requests specific approval to retain the tax benefits associated with approximately $235 million in merger expenses incurred to consummate the CSW merger that were not recovered in rates. AEP represents that its request is analogous to the National Grid Group case,¹ where the SEC allowed the holding company to retain the tax benefits associated with the interest expense on acquisition debt. AEP says that, rather than typical and customary expenses, both AEP's merger expenses and National Grid's interest costs were incurred to acquire significant investments. AEP also notes that neither company's subsidiaries are liable for the tax deductible expense. The tax benefit AEP seeks to retain stems solely from the unreimbursed merger expenses incurred by AEP. Finally, the pertinent expenses never affect the subsidiaries' income statements or balance sheets. Therefore, AEP has inserted a provision in Paragraph 2 of the Tax Agreement that allows the holding company to retain the tax benefits associated with holding company extraordinary items that do not apply to the regulated business. AEP defines extraordinary items as:

material transactions or events, such as a merger, that are not expected to recur frequently and are of a nature considerably different from its usual or customary business activities.

Other Provisions

Rule 45(c)(5) also states that the consolidated tax agreement:

Shall provide a method of apportioning such payments, and carrying over uncompensated benefits, if the consolidated loss is too large to be used in full.

Accordingly, the Tax Agreement states that, should the consolidated group generate a net operating tax loss, the tax benefits of any resulting refund shall be allocated proportionately to the Loss Members in the year the consolidated net operating loss occurred.

Other Taxes

For state tax returns applying to more than one Group Member, the Tax Agreement allocates the tax liability or benefit according to the principles described above for federal income taxes. If the consolidated state tax liability exceeds the separate return liability, the excess consolidated liability shall be allocated proportionately based on each member's contribution to the consolidated apportionment percentage. If additional state tax is attributable to a single significant transaction or event, such tax shall be allocated directly to the members responsible for the transaction.

Legal Provisions

According to the Tax Agreement, AEP shall pay to the Internal Revenue Service ("RS") the consolidated group's current federal income tax liability from the sum of the Group Members' payments and receipts. In the event the group's consolidated tax liability is subsequently revised by IRS audit adjustments, amended returns, refund claims, etc., the changes will be allocated as if the adjustments on which they are based had been part of the original return.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of APCO and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described Tax Agreement is in the public interest and should be approved subject to certain conditions.

The Tax Agreement's provision allowing AEP to retain the tax benefits related to all extraordinary items incurred by the holding company is a significant change from prior SEC interpretations of Rule 45(c)(5). Therefore, we believe that it is prudent to condition our approval of the Tax Agreement upon the SEC's approval of the SEC Application. For monitoring purposes, we further believe that APCO should disclose by type and amount any consolidated tax item and associated tax benefit that is retained by AEP in APCO's Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions.

We also find that APCO's request for a waiver from the Chapter 4 filing and approval requirements for changes in the Tax Agreement related solely to Group Member additions and deletions is reasonable and should be granted. For monitoring purposes, we believe that APCO should include an annual list of Group Members added and deleted in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, Appalachian Power Company is hereby authorized to participate in the Consolidated Affiliates Tax Agreement with American Electric Power Company, Inc., and its subsidiaries under the terms and conditions and for the purposes described herein. This approval is conditioned upon the subsequent approval of the Tax Agreement as presented by the SEC. Applicants shall promptly notify the Commission of the SEC's action in regard to its pending application.
- 2) Appalachian Power Company shall file with the Commission an executed copy of the Consolidated Affiliates Tax Agreement within 30 days from the date of this Order, subject to extension by the Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- 3) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in the terms and conditions of the Consolidated Affiliates Tax Agreement excepting Group Member additions and deletions.
- 4) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications. The Commission reserves the right to reflect ratemaking adjustments to Appalachian Power Company's income taxes in the course of the Commission's review and analysis of APCO's cost of service in the future.
- 5) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of § 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 6) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 7) APCO shall include the Consolidated Affiliates Tax Agreement approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission. APCO shall include an annual list of Group Member additions and deletions in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions. APCO shall also disclose by type and amount any consolidated tax item and associated tax benefit that is retained by AEP in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions.
- 8) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then APCO shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- 9) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

SEPTEMBER 10, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY D/B/A DOMINION VIRGINIA POWER

For approval of retail access pilot programs

FINAL ORDER

On March 19, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company d/b/a Dominion Virginia Power ("DVP" or "the Company") filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") an application (the "Application") requesting approval of three retail access pilot programs ("Pilots"): (i) a Municipal Aggregation Pilot; (ii) a Competitive Bid Supply Service Pilot;¹ and (iii) a Commercial and Industrial Pilot. Combined, the three Pilots make up to 500 MW of load available to competitive service providers ("CSPs"), with up to 65,000 customers from all rate classes eligible to participate. To encourage participation by CSPs, the Company proposed to reduce the wires charge for the duration of the Pilots by 50 percent of the amount approved by the Commission for 2003.

Under the Municipal Aggregation ("MA") Pilot, one or more localities may aggregate its residential and small commercial customers utilizing an opt-in method² and one or more localities may aggregate its residential and small commercial customers utilizing an opt-out method³ for the purpose of soliciting bids from CSPs for electricity supply service. Under the Competitive Bid Supply Service ("CBS") Pilot, CSPs may bid to serve blocks of residential and small business customers. Under the Commercial and Industrial ("C&I") Pilot, CSPs may make offers to large commercial and industrial customers, provided the total load does not exceed 200 MW.

The Company asserts that the Pilots are in the public interest and will help stimulate the development of competition within the Commonwealth while simultaneously providing market participants an opportunity to test new market concepts and attributes of default service, including bidding processes.

The Commission has the authority to approve pilot programs pursuant to §§ 56-577 and 56-589 of the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act (the "Act"), Chapter 23 (§ 56-576 et seq.) of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia. Subsection C of § 56-577 of the Code of Virginia states:

The Commission may conduct pilot programs encompassing retail customer choice of electricity energy suppliers for each incumbent electric utility that has not transferred functional control of its transmission facilities to a regional transmission entity prior to January 1, 2003. Upon application of an incumbent electric utility, the Commission may establish opt-in and opt-out municipal aggregation pilots and any other pilot programs the Commission deems to be in the public interest, and the Commission shall report to the [Commission on Electric Utility Restructuring] on the status of such pilots by November of each year through 2006.

Subdivision A 3 of § 56-589 of the Code of Virginia states in part:

Nothing in this subsection shall prohibit the Commission's development and implementation of pilot programs for opt-in, opt-out or any other type of municipal aggregation, as provided in § 56-577.

On April 21, 2003, the Commission issued its Order Prescribing Notice and Inviting Comments and Requests for Hearing (the "Procedural Order") in this proceeding, which, among other things, directed interested parties to file comments on or before June 4, 2003. Comments were filed by the Division of Consumer Counsel, Office of Attorney General ("Consumer Counsel"); Strategic Energy, LLC ("Strategic"); Compass Energy; Pepco Energy Services, Inc. ("PES"); Washington Gas Energy Services ("WGES"); the National Energy Marketers Association ("NEMA"); A&N Electric Cooperative, BARC Electric Cooperative, Central Virginia Electric Cooperative, Community Electric Cooperative, Craig-Botetourt Electric Cooperative, Mecklenburg Electric Cooperative, Northern Neck Electric Cooperative, Northern Virginia Electric Cooperative, Prince George Electric Cooperative, Rappahannock Electric Cooperative, Shenandoah Valley Electric Cooperative, Southside Electric Cooperative, Inc., and the Virginia, Maryland & Delaware Association of Electric Cooperatives (collectively, the "Cooperatives"); Mr. Urchie B. Ellis; Chaparral (Virginia), Inc. ("Chaparral"); and the Virginia Committee for Fair Utility Rates ("Committee"). None of the parties that filed comments requested a hearing.

On June 17, 2003, DVP filed a motion to revise and extend the procedural schedule, in which the Company stated its intent to file revisions to certain provisions of its pilot proposals and the Terms and Conditions filed with its original Application. On June 18, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Granting Motion that directed the Company to file revisions to its application by June 25, 2003; invited interested persons to file comments on the revisions on or before July 1, 2003; directed the Commission's Staff ("Staff") to file its report by July 15, 2003; allowed any interested person to file comments to Staff's report by July 25, 2003; and allowed the Company to file a response to Staff's report and any comments by August 1, 2003.

On June 25, 2003, the Company filed proposed revisions to the Application, including Revised Terms and Conditions for the Pilots (collectively, the "First Revision").⁴ The MA Pilot, as amended by the First Revision, includes the following elements:

1. One or more localities with a combined total of up to 30,000 customers may volunteer to participate to aggregate their residential and small business customers using an opt-in model.
2. One or more localities with a combined total of up to 30,000 customers may volunteer to participate to aggregate their residential and small business customers using an opt-out model.
3. Participating localities will register with DVP, be licensed as an aggregator by the Commission, and be responsible for customer communication efforts, including notifying customers about the Pilot and providing instructions on how to opt-in or opt-out.
4. Localities must adopt an Operation and Governance Plan that details the services to be provided and specifies the rights and obligations of customers, which will be filed with the Commission.

² The opt-in method requires that a consumer affirmatively choose to participate and switch to the CSP selected by the municipality.

³ The opt-out method provides that consumers will be given the opportunity to decline to participate; if they decline, they will continue on capped rate service from DVP or may select a CSP outside of the Pilot. A consumer who is chosen for participation and takes no action will automatically be included in the Pilot.

⁴ The following descriptions of the three pilots include the Company's original proposal as well as those modifications proposed in DVP's First Revision.

5. Localities will request bids from CSPs who will sell their electricity directly to customers. The Commission may review the bid solicitation and evaluation process and provide guidance during the analysis.

According to the Company, the CBS Pilot is intended to help stimulate competition within the Commonwealth and provide the Commission and interested parties an opportunity to learn about the competitive bidding process for electricity supply service. The CBS Pilot, as amended by the First Revision, consists of the following principal elements:

1. CSPs would bid to serve blocks of residential and small commercial customers.
2. The Pilot would serve 43,134 customers, with 200 MW load, in 4 rate classes, and will be available to all DVP customers except those eligible to participate in one of the other Pilots.
3. The blocks will each target 13,005 residential customers; 1,124 GS-1 customers, 229 GS-2 customers, and 20 Worship Site customers.
4. The three blocks will be arranged geographically (Northern Virginia, Central/Western Virginia, and Eastern Virginia).
5. DVP will select customers, first from volunteers, then by random selection to fill vacancies. The pool of customers from whom the random selection will be made will not include customers that have opted-out of the mass list or who have affirmatively selected to be served under specific tariffs, riders, or programs. Customers who are randomly selected must opt-out or will be included in the Pilot.
6. Staff will issue a request for qualifications ("RFQ") and a request for bids ("RFB"). CSPs must submit bids within twenty days of the issuance of the request for bids, and the Staff must select the winning bids within ten days of receiving the bids.
7. Qualifying bids must cover a minimum of two years, be block specific, include class-specific prices on a MWh basis. Bids exceeding the class average price-to-compare for any rate class will be eliminated. The winning bid for each block will be the weighted average bid for the block. No CSP may win more than two of the three blocks.
8. Any Customer selected for this Pilot will be removed from participation if the customer has an individual price-to-compare that is lower than the price offered by the winning CSP. Such customers will be replaced with others that have a price-to-compare higher than the offer. The CSP must send notice to each customer informing them of the offer and its terms and conditions and of the customer's individual pilot price-to-compare. Customers will have 21 days to decline the offer.
9. The CSP must notify DVP of all customers that decline and then enroll the remaining customers.

The C&I Pilot, as amended by the First Revision, consists of the following principal elements:

1. The number of participants depends on the respective loads of customers that are accepted.
2. The Pilot is open to GS-3 and GS-4 customers with load demands equal to or greater than 500 kW.
3. Eligible customers may volunteer to participate. If the load of those volunteering exceeds the 200 MW limit for the Pilot, the Company would conduct a lottery, overseen by Staff, to choose the eligible participants.
4. Eligible customers have 60 days following their selection to choose a CSP. If a customer has not chosen a CSP within 60 days, its position in the Pilot will be awarded to the next appropriate customer on the volunteer list, provided that the 200 MW limit is not exceeded.
5. Participating customers will be allowed to return to service from DVP under capped rates, subject to applicable minimum stay provisions. If a participating customer's CSP fails to provide service to the customer, the customer will be allowed 60 days after returning to capped rate service from DVP to choose another CSP. If another CSP is not selected within this 60-day period, the customer will remain on capped rate service and will be subject to the minimum stay requirement before it may again participate in the Pilot.
6. DVP will prepare simulations using two or more market-based pricing models in order to estimate what each participating customer's cost of electricity would have been. DVP and Staff are to mutually agree on the selection of the market-based pricing models from methods that are either in place or under consideration in other jurisdictions.

Each Pilot would commence within 150 days of the issuance of the Commission's order authorizing the Pilot to be conducted and would end at the expiration of the Company's period of capped rates as provided in § 56-582 of the Code of Virginia. The Company requests that the Commission, upon application by the Company no sooner than two years from the date of the Final Order in this proceeding, allow for modifications to the Pilots that may be required to more successfully transition to the post capped rate period. Such modifications would be exclusive of amendments to the size of the Pilots and the scope of the wires charge reductions.

Each of the Pilots proposes reducing the applicable wires charges for the duration of the Pilot by 50 percent of the amount approved by the Commission for 2003. The Company has offered to consider an increase in the wires charges reduction with a corresponding decrease in the amount of MW available in the Pilots if the proposed wires charge reductions appear to be insufficient to stimulate activity in the Pilot programs. On this issue, the Company "requests that the Commission provide the Company the latitude to make such appropriate changes, working with Commission Staff, in the wires charge reduction and the amount of MW available in the Pilot to effect any implementation in a timely fashion if it is determined that the existing wires charge reduction is insufficient to stimulate activity."⁵

⁵ First Revised Terms and Conditions at 4.

Six parties filed comments on the First Revision to the Pilots. Consumer Counsel (i) expressed concern with the ambiguity of DVP's request to modify the Pilots after two years; (ii) argued that DVP, rather than CSPs, should provide customers with their annually updated price-to-compare information; and (iii) argued that CSPs should not be allowed to charge termination fees to CBS Pilot participants who did not volunteer for this program.

Strategic expressed concern with DVP's intention to join PJM Interconnection, and requests a delay in the procedural schedule until it is known whether DVP will join PJM.

Constellation New Energy recommended that the Pilots remain at their proposed size. However, if no switching activity occurs within six months, the wires charge should be reduced by an additional 25 percent; and if no switching activity occurs in the ensuing six months, the wires charge should be reduced to zero.

The Cooperatives maintained that the Pilots are not in the public interest unless additional revisions are made to provide greater protection for consumers. The Cooperatives expressed concern with the opt-out provisions and with the RFB process, which they contend should be evaluated, but not administered, by the Commission.

Mr. Urchie B. Ellis stated that the Pilots are not in the public interest because they are too complicated and confusing, and that the public should participate on an opt-in basis, if at all.

The Committee raised concerns with the Company's offer to consider increasing the wires charge reduction with a corresponding decrease in the MW size of the Pilots. The Committee restated its position that the Commission should exercise its authority to approve a pilot program for commercial and industrial customers that is substantially larger in size, starts on January 1, 2004, lasts at least through July 1, 2007, and eliminates wires charges.

On July 15, 2003, Staff submitted its report ("Report") recommending that we approve the Pilots as amended by the First Revision, with certain modifications. The Report observes that "absent the Pilots, it appears there will be little, if any, competitive activity in the near future. Section 56-596 of the Code of Virginia requires the Commission to vigorously pursue the goal of advancing competition in the Commonwealth."⁶ The Report commends DVP's outreach effort and its genuine interest in garnering feedback from, and addressing concerns of, potential participants. Staff noted its concern that the comments do not indicate strong support for the Pilots and while DVP addressed a number of concerns in its First Revision, certain concerns remain.

Staff specifically agreed with the modification to the MA Pilot that removed any references to approval or administration by the Commission of the Operation and Governance Plans. While Staff noted that an opt-out approach may create confusion, it reports that the Pilot's Terms and Conditions include reasonable consumer protection provisions and a fairly comprehensive list of notification requirements that must be satisfied for both the opt-in and opt-out approaches.

Staff recommended that the CBS Pilot be approved with three changes. The Company should be required to provide annual notice to Pilot participants of any changes in the market price, fuel factor, wires charges, and price-to-compare information. The Company should be required to administer the RFQ and RFB processes and the Staff should monitor the bidding process and make the final selection of the winning CSPs.

The third change recommended by Staff pertains to the ability of customers who have not volunteered for the Pilot to opt-out. Staff believes that subsection C of § 56-577 gives this Commission broad authority to allow opt-out provisions in pilot programs. Though such opt-out provisions may be authorized, they are not inherently in the public interest. In order to ensure that customers are made cognizant of their opportunities to decline an offer to participate, the Report includes a recommendation that the Company notify customers of their selection immediately following their random selection process, which notice states that they have been selected to participate in the Pilot and have the right to opt-out immediately or can wait and evaluate the offer from the winning CSP.

Staff's largest concern is that randomly-selected customers could pay more under the Pilot than if they had remained on capped rates. The CBS Pilot provides that customers with an initial price-to-compare lower than the CSP's offer would be eligible to participate, however, customers whose historical usage and current rates make them eligible for the Pilot could end up paying more with the CSP if their price-to-compare changes or their actual usage pattern deviates from historical usage patterns. The Report identifies two potential remedies that we may wish to consider if we share this concern. First, DVP could be required to guarantee that non-volunteer customers will be no worse off with a CSP than they would have been on capped rates. If capped rates would have been more beneficial, the customer would be returned to capped rates and issued a refund equal to the difference between what they paid to the CSP and what they would have paid to DVP. Second, participation in the CBS Pilot could be limited to volunteers.

The Report notes that Staff does not object to the Company's desire to review the CBS Pilot and propose modifications after two years, since no changes can be made unilaterally nor can they be made without approval of this Commission. Staff also states that the Company's proposal that DVP be provided latitude to increase the 50 percent reduction in wires charges with a corresponding reduction in the amount of MW available in the Pilot, as proposed, is reasonable.

Staff did not agree with comments that the proposed size limit and wires charge reduction will render the C&I Pilot unsuccessful. To the contrary, Staff recommended that the C&I Pilot be approved, though with two exceptions. First, Staff recommends that the proposed choice of market-based pricing models to be used in performing the proposed simulation analysis not be limited to those that are either in place or are under consideration in other jurisdictions. Second, Staff recommended that the procedure for customers who are "passed over" on the list of volunteers for the C&I Pilot be clarified. As proposed, when a slot for participation opens, DVP will award this position to the next appropriate customer on the volunteer list, so long as the 200 MW ceiling is not exceeded. Staff seeks assurance that the passed-over customer would retain its rank on the list in the event another slot opens.

Five parties submitted comments to the Report. Consumer Counsel generally endorsed the recommendations of the Report regarding the three Pilots. Consumer Counsel agrees that the Commission, in order to ensure that customers who are randomly selected to participate in the CBS Pilot do not pay more than they would have had they remained on capped rates, should either (i) require DVP to guarantee that assigned customers be no worse off with a CSP than they would have been under capped rates or (ii) limit participation in the CBS Pilot to volunteers. If the Commission adopts the first option (requiring DVP to guarantee that non-volunteer CBS Pilot participants be no worse off with a CSP than they would have been under capped rates), ⁶ Staff Report at 10.

Consumer Counsel recommends that such participants who subsequently terminate CSP service and return to capped rate service not be charged a termination fee. Consumer Counsel reasons that requiring DVP to provide a refund without limiting the ability of CSPs to charge termination fees could effectively nullify the ability of a CBS Pilot participant who has failed to opt-out to truly return to the status quo.

The Cooperatives' comments to the Report focus on two issues. First, they recommend eliminating the non-consensual switching of randomly-selected customers and the opt-out approach, particularly in the CBS Pilot. Second, participation by localities in the MA Pilot should be restricted to those that are served wholly and exclusively by DVP.

The Committee criticized the scope of DVP's proposed Pilots, and asserted that the Commission has the ability to establish pilots that go beyond the elements DVP proposed in order to establish pilots that are in the public interest. Specifically, the Committee urged the Commission to exercise this authority by establishing a pilot that is substantially greater in size, starts on January 1, 2004, lasts at least through July 1, 2007, and eliminates wires charges.

Constellation New Energy suggested that DVP examine the possibility of additional reductions in wires charges, without a corresponding decrease in the pilot program size. It also asked that the CBS Pilot either include a fourth group consisting of GS-1 and GS-2 customers or allow GS-2 customers to opt-in to the C&I Pilot.

Food Lion LLC asked the Commission to direct DVP to reconsider the 500 kW eligibility threshold for participation in the C&I Pilot. Though Food Lion has an aggregate peak load of 70 MW, most of its individual grocery stores have significant peak period electric loads of between 240 kW and 500 kW. Under the C&I Pilot, each grocery store would be treated as a single customer and this would not meet the 500 kW entry threshold. Specific options identified include (i) waiving the 500 kW requirement for customers that operate at high load factors, in multiple locations, and with high per-store and high aggregate peak loads and (ii) redefining the entry requirement for the C&I Pilot to include such commercial customers.

On August 1, 2003, DVP submitted its response to the Report and to the comments of interested parties (the "Response"). The Response includes additional revisions to the Pilots and their Terms and Conditions (collectively, the "Second Revision"). The Second Revision incorporates several modifications to the Pilots that were recommended in the Report and in comments filed by parties, as well as changes not previously considered.

The Second Revision amends the CBS Pilot to adopt several recommendations included in the Report. DVP has agreed to be responsible for the initial notification to customers who are randomly selected to participate in the CBS Pilot, and to inform such customers of their right to withdraw from participation.

With respect to Staff's concern that randomly-selected customers in the CBS Pilot could pay more than they would have had to pay had they stayed under capped rates, DVP has agreed to include in the CBS Pilot a "hold harmless" condition whereby the Company will calculate annually whether randomly-selected customers would have saved money if they had been charged the Company's capped rate. If this calculation reveals that capped rates would have yielded lower billings on an annual basis, the customer would receive a refund equal to the difference between what the customer had paid to the CSP and what they would have paid the Company under capped rate service. The Company does not agree that a customer who receives a refund via this process should automatically be returned to DVP's capped rate service. Instead, DVP proposes to include an explanatory message on the customer's bill that discusses the reason for the refund and provides instructions on how the customer may discontinue participation in the Pilot.

DVP asserts that implementation of this hold harmless provision will require CSPs to provide additional information during the RFB process. Amendments are included in the Second Revision that would obligate CSPs to provide class-specific prices on a $-per-MWh basis for low load, normal load, and high load scenarios as provided by the Company. DVP also proposes to modify the determination of the winning bidder using these scenarios. In order for the Company to compare what customers paid to a CSP with what they would have paid had they continued under capped rates, DVP proposes that each CSP provide monthly billing amounts for each twelve month period for all of its customers that were initially randomly selected and assigned, netting non-tariff items such as rebates and credits, and excluding additional items such as late payment fees. The CSP's response to the RFQ must include a commitment to provide this information.

With respect to Staff's recommendation that DVP provide Pilot participants with updated market price, fuel factor, wires charges, and price-to-compare information, DVP observes that it currently notifies customers of changes in the fuel factor and is willing to notify customers of annual changes in their price-to-compare. DVP has also agreed to work with Staff in its role of monitoring the bidding process and selecting bid winners.

With respect to the C&I Pilot, DVP states that it is willing to work closely with Staff to identify methods in use or under consideration in other jurisdictions that should be tested in this Pilot, and to develop additional market-based methods that would be beneficial to test in the simulations. DVP also reiterated that the selection of any such method to conduct the simulations would not be considered an endorsement of that method by the Company or the Commission.

An amendment in the Second Revision pertaining to the C&I Pilot clarifies that a customer would not lose its position on the list of volunteers if it is not selected for participation because its inclusion would cause the Pilot's 200 MW ceiling to be exceeded. The C&I Pilot's Terms and Conditions are amended to allow GS-2 customers to volunteer to participate in the C&I Pilot. The Second Revision provides that customers whose peak demand reached or exceeded 30 kW during no less than three billing periods and reached or exceeded 500 kW during no more than two billing months during the previous 11 billing months (or during the actual number of billing months in the customer's history if there are less than 12 previous billing months) have the option to participate in the C&I Pilot. However, in order to ensure that a customer is not eligible to participate in more than one Pilot, these customers are not eligible for other Pilots after the lottery has been completed or they have enrolled with a CSP in the C&I Pilot.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Application, the Report, the revisions to the Terms and Conditions, the pleadings, the comments of interested parties, the Response, and the applicable law, is of the opinion and finds that the application for the Pilots, subject to the modifications detailed herein, should be approved.

All Pilots

We find that the Pilots are in the public interest and further the goal of advancing competition in the Commonwealth. The Pilots shall be subject to the existing Rules Governing Retail Access to Competitive Energy Services⁷ except as provided in the Application.

The First Revision extended the expiration of the Pilots from December 31, 2005, to the end of the capped rate period.⁸ The First Revision also included DVP's request that we allow the Company, no sooner than two years from the date of this order, to apply for modifications to the Pilots (other than modifications to the amount of MW in the Pilots and the wires charge reduction) that may be required to more successfully transition to the post-capped rate period. We agree that experience gained over the next two years may make it appropriate to consider modifying the Pilots in the future. If and when an appropriate application is made, we will fully consider any such request.

DVP also asks in the First Revision for latitude to make changes, working with Staff, in the 50 percent reduction in the wires charge amounts approved for 2003 with a corresponding decrease in the amount of MW available in the Pilots. DVP indicates that it may affect such changes if it is determined that the wires charge reduction is insufficient to stimulate activity. We observe that amendments to the size of the reduction in the wires charge and to the load allowed to participate in the Pilots could affect the extent to which the Pilots are in the public interest. Though DVP has offered to work with Staff in exercising the requested latitude to change these elements of the Pilots, we do not find that this informal amending process is appropriate. If the Company seeks to amend these elements of the Pilots, then it may seek such amendments upon application to this Commission.

In the Procedural Order, we asked whether pilot participants should receive notification of any change in the projected market price, the Company's fuel factor, wires charges and price-to-compare information and, if so, who should be responsible for providing such information. Staff recommended that DVP provide such information to participants in all three Pilots.⁹

DVP currently provides information on changes in the fuel factor and is willing to accommodate notification to customers of annual changes in their price-to-compare. However, DVP states that "providing customers with [market price and wires charge information] will be of little use and may, in fact, increase confusion and introduce unnecessary complexity."¹⁰ However, as the Company observes, the price-to-compare is derived using the market price and wires charges values. Rather than merely providing Pilot participants with the resulting price-to-compare, we find that DVP should also provide information about changes in the projected market price and wires charges and any other information that Pilot participants may need in order to determine how their price-to-compare is calculated. We further find that when the Company provides this information to Pilot participants, it should include a concise and conspicuously-located explanation of the relationship between the price-to-compare and the CSP's price, which explanation shall address how the customer would pay more if the price offered by the CSP exceeds the Company's price-to-compare.

MA Pilot

We note that § 56-589 A 1 requires that political subdivisions not earn a profit on, but recover the actual costs incurred in, aggregation programs. The Procedural Order invited comments on how this requirement should be monitored and enforced, and who should monitor or enforce it. Under the MA Pilot, each participating political subdivision is required to adopt an Operation and Governance Plan which will be filed with the Commission. We find that it is appropriate to require that the Operation and Governance Plans include information regarding how the political subdivision will conduct the pilot in a manner that ensures compliance with this statutory requirement.

The Cooperatives assert that political subdivisions that are not wholly and exclusively served by DVP should be ineligible to participate in the MA Pilot. They are concerned that cooperative customers in areas with both cooperative and DVP service should not be put in the confusing position of being subjected to a municipal aggregation pilot in their neighborhood, especially when they cannot participate. DVP counters that participation should not be predicated on the identity of the utilities that serve the locality's constituents.

We recognize the validity of the Cooperatives' concern that the operation of an MA Pilot that encompasses the entire area of a political subdivision could create confusion among residents who are customers of a utility other than DVP. In order to reduce the potential for confusion, we recommend that, if a political subdivision participating in the MA Pilot is not entirely within DVP's service territory, all advertising material and written communications that relates to the MA Pilot which is mailed to or directed at residents of such a political subdivision should include a clear and conspicuous statement that only DVP customers are eligible to participate in the Pilot. We further find that paragraph V(A) of the Terms and Conditions of the MA Pilot shall be amended to read as follows:

(A) The Pilot will be available to all of Dominion Virginia Power's Virginia jurisdictional customers within the selected municipality except those customers eligible to participate in the Commercial and Industrial Pilot.

CBS Pilot

In the Procedural Order, we asked interested persons to address whether §§ 56-577 C and 56-589 A of the Code of Virginia authorize opt-out provisions in pilot programs, such as the CBS Pilot, that do not involve aggregation by local governments. Consumer Counsel does not believe that these provisions of the Code preclude the Commission from authorizing an opt-out component to a pilot other than a municipal aggregation pilot. Subsection C of § 56-577, as amended by House Bill 2319 of the 2003 Session of the General Assembly,¹¹ authorizes the Commission to "establish opt-in and opt-out municipal aggregation pilots and any other pilot programs the Commission deems to be in the public interest." With respect to pilot programs that do not involve municipal aggregation, the Act appears to neither command nor prohibit any particular format. Staff agrees that this Commission is authorized to approve opt-out provisions in pilot programs, if we find that pilots with such provisions are in the public interest.

¹¹ Chapter 795 of the 2003 Acts of Assembly.

The CBS Pilot provides that if there are not sufficient volunteers, DVP customers chosen at random may become participants in the Pilot and receive service from a CSP. The terms of the CBS Pilot allow such randomly-selected customers to opt-out from such participation. We believe that such involuntary participants must be given ample opportunity to exercise this ability to opt-out of the CBS Pilot. Thus, we direct DVP to modify its Terms and Conditions to reflect that the Company must notify customers of their random selection "as soon as practicable" following selection. We note that the Second Revised Terms and Conditions for this Pilot require DVP to "inform such customers of their right to withdraw from participation." We agree with Staff and direct the Company to include a statement in the notice that the customers' right to opt-out may be exercised either immediately or after evaluating the CSP's offer. This notice requirement will not affect any notice that is required to be provided by the CSP.

We are concerned that the randomly-selected CBS Pilot participants could pay more receiving service from a CSP than they would have paid had they received capped rate service. To address this concern, Staff identified two potential remedies: Guarantee that non-volunteer customers are no worse off with the CSP than under capped rates, or limit CBS Pilot participation to volunteers. In its Response, DVP agreed to the "hold harmless" condition for customers who were selected at random to participate in this Pilot. We find that such a provision is appropriate for the CBS Pilot. We note DVP's concern that its agreement to this condition not be construed as establishing a precedent for other matters or for the implementation of retail access or default service outside of the CBS Pilot.¹²

Implementation of the hold harmless provision requires any non-volunteering customer who pays more under the CBS Pilot than it would have paid had it received capped rate service be issued a refund equal to the amount of the difference. DVP has agreed to refund such amount to these randomly-selected participants. Staff has also recommended that making such customers whole requires that they be automatically returned to capped rates. DVP disagrees that this requirement is necessary. Instead, the Company would give such customers notice explaining their refund and instructing the customer how to return to capped rate service. We agree with DVP that such customers should be allowed, but not required, to leave the CBS Pilot. We find that the notice to customers explaining the refund should address why such customers are receiving a refund, informing such participants that they paid, and may continue to pay (absent the end-of-year refund of the difference) more as a result of participating in the Pilot than they would have paid under capped rate service.

The Second Revision to the CBS Pilot imposes new requirements on CSPs regarding information to be provided during the RFB process and during the duration of the Pilot. DVP alleges that the additional information is necessary in order to perform the reconciliation of the amounts paid by non-volunteer participants and the amounts they would have paid under capped rates. We find that these amendments to the Terms and Conditions of the CBS Pilot should be permitted.¹³

Consumer Counsel has observed that if we require DVP to guarantee that non-volunteer participants be no worse off with a CSP under the CBS Pilot than they would have been under capped rates, then CSPs should not be permitted to assess such customers with a termination fee if they return to capped rate service after it is determined that they would have been better off under capped rate service. We agree that charging such customers a termination fee in such circumstances could nullify the goal of making such customers no worse off as a result of their Pilot participation. We find that such customers shall not be assessed a termination fee or similar charge by the CSP, DVP or related entity if they leave the CSP to return to capped rate service when it is determined that they were paying more under such service than they would have paid had they stayed on capped rate service.

In its Response, DVP states that it "will agree to the Staff's proposed modification in order to expedite the process of implementing the Pilot."¹⁴ The Second Revision provides that DVP, "in coordination with" Staff, will have responsibility to issue RFQs and RFBs for the CBS Pilot. Requiring DVP to coordinate with Staff with regard to the issuance of RFQs is not equivalent to requiring the Company to administer the RFQ and RFB process, as recommended by Staff. We find that requiring DVP administer the RFQ and RFB process, and limiting Staff's role to overseeing the process and making the final selection of CSPs, is a more efficient use of resources.

C&I Pilot

We find that the revisions to the C&I Pilot provided in DVP's Response are appropriate. The market-based models or methods to be used in conducting simulation analyses will not be limited to those that are in use or under consideration in other jurisdictions.

DVP proposes expanding the C&I Pilot to include GS-2 customers whose peak demand reached or exceeded 30 kW during three or more billing periods and reached or exceeded 500 kW during fewer than three billing months. This amendment adopts Constellation New Energy's suggestion that, as an alternative to adding a fourth subgroup in the CBS Pilot for small or medium sized customers, GS-2 customers be allowed to opt-in to the C&I Pilot. It also addresses Food Lion's recommendation that customers operating at high load factors, in multiple locations, with both high per store and high aggregate peak loads, be allowed to participate in the C&I Pilot. This change may make participation more attractive to potential commercial customers.

However, we find the wording of Section V B of the Second Revised Terms and Conditions of the C&I Pilot is unclear and should be modified to read as follows:

- (B) In addition, the Pilot shall also be available to all of Dominion Virginia Power's Virginia jurisdictional customers whose peak measured demand reached and exceeded (i) 30 kW during no less than three billing

¹² See Response at 7.

¹³ The amendments to sections VIII and X of the Terms and Conditions of the CBS Pilot that impose these additional informational requirements on CSPs were filed with DVP's Response dated August 1, 2003. We acknowledge that interested persons have not been provided the opportunity to comment on the effect of these additional requirements. CSPs that object to these new informational requirements on grounds that they are unduly burdensome have the opportunity to file with the Commission a request for a waiver from specific requirements.

months and (ii) reached or exceeded 500 kW during no more than two billing months, which billing months are (1) within the current and previous 11 billing months or (2) during the actual number of billing months in the customer's history if there are less than 12 previous billing months. Customers described in this subsection (B) shall not be eligible for other pilots after any lottery is completed or they have enrolled with a CSP in the Pilot according to Section VII of these Terms and Conditions.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) DVP's Application for Approval of Retail Access Pilot Programs as revised, subject to the modifications discussed herein, is hereby approved.
- (2) On or before October 1, 2003, DVP shall file revised Terms and Conditions of service for each of the pilots reflecting the findings herein. DVP's revised Terms and Conditions shall be subject to the review of the Staff for conformity with this Order.
- (3) One year from the date the pilots commence, and annually thereafter, DVP shall file an original and fifteen (15) copies of a report with the Clerk of the Commission, c/o Document Control Center, P.O. Box 2118, Richmond, Virginia 23218, detailing the status of each of the pilots.
- (4) This matter shall remain open for the receipt of reports by DVP and for other matters concerning the Pilots as they may arise.

MAY 8, 2003

APPLICATION OF
ROANOKE GAS COMPANY

For authority to issue short-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On March 25, 2003, Roanoke Gas Company ("Roanoke" or "Applicant") filed an application under Chapter 3 of Title 52 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to incur short-term indebtedness. The proposed amount of short-term debt exceeds twelve percent of capitalization as defined in §§ 56-65.1 of the Code of Virginia. Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $250.

Applicant proposed to incur short-term indebtedness in an aggregate amount not to exceed $22,000,000 over a three year period commencing July 1, 2003, and ending July 1, 2006. The indebtedness will be either in the form of issued negotiable notes maturing or temporary draws on its short-term line of credit. All borrowing will be maturing 12 months or less from the date of issuance.

Applicant estimates that its borrowing rate will be at or below published prime rates. The borrowing rate will vary with market conditions, the form of indebtedness, and the related term to maturity. Short-term notes will be issued with a maturity of either 30, 60, or 90 days. Applicant states that borrowings under its line of credit are currently priced at London Interbank Offered Rate (LIBOR) plus 50 basis points.

The proceeds from the short-term borrowings will be used mainly to fund Roanoke's gas inventory purchases. In addition, Applicant states that it may use its short-term borrowings to fund capital expenditures temporarily until permanent financing can be obtained.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to issue up to $22,000,000 in short-term debt from July 1, 2003, through July 1, 2006, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) On or before July 31st and January 31st of each year, Applicant shall file a Report of Action. Such report shall include the daily balance of short-term debt outstanding during the semi-annual period ending in June and December, respectively, and a schedule of issuances including the amount, date of issuance, interest rate, maturity, and lending institution.
- 3) On or before July 31, 2006, Applicant shall file a final Report of Action providing the information outlined in ordering paragraph (2).
- 4) Approval of this application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 5) This matter shall be continued, subject to the continuing review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

For approval of transactions with an affiliate

FINAL ORDER

By Commission Order dated September 3, 1997, in Case No. PUA-1997-00007, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power" or the "Company") was granted approval of an Affiliate Services Agreement with Virginia Power Services, Inc. Ordering paragraph (2) of the Commission's Order required Virginia Power to submit monthly financial statements of Virginia Power Services, Inc., and Virginia Power Nuclear Services Company to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting.

The Company has submitted such required reports in a timely manner.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the matter and having been advised by our Staff, is of the opinion that such reports are no longer needed on a monthly basis. Rather, we believe that annual financial statements should be included with the Company's Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Virginia Electric and Power Company shall cease submitting monthly financial statements for Virginia Power Services, Inc., and Virginia Power Nuclear Services Company to the Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- (2) Virginia Electric and Power Company shall begin submitting annual financial statements for Virginia Power Services, Inc., and Virginia Power Nuclear Services Company beginning with calendar year 2003. Such statements shall be included in the Company's Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions to be submitted on or before May 1, 2004.
- (3) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

MAY 21, 2003

APPLICATION OF DELMARVA POWER AND LIGHT COMPANY
and
PEPCO HOLDINGS, INC.

For approval of the Federal and State Income Tax Allocation Agreement between Pepco Holdings, Inc., and its subsidiaries under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On March 26, 2003, Delmarva Power and Light Company ("Delmarva") and Pepco Holdings, Inc. ("PHI"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (the "Code") requesting approval of a Federal and State Income Tax Allocation Agreement (the "Tax Agreement") whereby PHI and its consolidated subsidiaries, including Delmarva, allocate and book income taxes paid on a consolidated basis to federal and state governments.

Delmarva is a Delaware/Virginia public service corporation engaged in the supply, transmission, distribution, and sale of energy to approximately 502,000 electric and 109,000 natural gas customers in Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia. Delmarva serves 22,000 retail customers and one wholesale customer in Virginia's two Eastern Shore counties.

PHI is a Delaware corporation and registered holding company under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("PUHCA"). PHI is the parent company of Potomac Electric Power Company ("Pepco") and Conectiv, Inc. ("Conectiv"). Pepco is a District of Columbia/Virginia corporation that serves approximately 480,000 electric customers in Maryland and 220,000 electric customers in the District of Columbia. Pepco also owns 55 miles of interconnection transmission facilities in Virginia and several subsidiaries engaged in non-regulated business activities. Pepco serves no retail customers in Virginia. Conectiv is a Delaware corporation organized as a registered holding company under PUHCA. Conectiv owns one hundred percent (100%) of the outstanding common stock of Delmarva and Atlantic City Electric Company.

Federal Regulations

The Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), through Title 17, Code of Federal Regulations ("C.F.R.") § 250.45(c) ("Rule 45(c)", requires holding companies registered under the PUHCA to file with the SEC written tax allocation agreements covering the holding company, its regulated utilities, and other consolidated subsidiaries (the "Group Members") in order to have the ongoing authority to file consolidated income tax returns with the federal government. The Tax Agreement was filed with the SEC on March 27, 2002, as part of Pepco's and Conectiv's application seeking approval of their merger and acquisition by PHI (the "Merger Application"). The SEC approved the application, including the Tax Agreement, in its order dated July 24, 2002.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

The Applicants' Tax Agreement does not apply to unconsolidated affiliates such as foreign subsidiaries, partnership interests, limited liability corporations that are treated as partnerships, and corporations where there is less than an 80% ownership interest. The Tax Agreement also does not cover state income taxes paid on a separate legal entity basis, real and personal property taxes, sales and use taxes, and excise taxes.

Rule 45(c)(2) states that:

"The consolidated tax shall be apportioned among the several members of the group in proportion to (i) the corporate taxable income of each such member, or (ii) the separate return tax of each such member, but the tax apportioned to any subsidiary shall not exceed the separate return tax of such subsidiary."

Article I (A), Step 1 of the Tax Agreement states that PHI's consolidated federal tax liability (excluding any alternative minimum tax ("AMY")) will be apportioned among the Group Members using the ratio of each Group Member's separate tax liability divided by the sum of the positive separate tax liabilities of Group Members having taxable income.

Article I (A), Step 2 of the Tax Agreement states in part that each Group Member will be allocated an additional liability amount (an "Excess Separate Tax") equivalent to 100% of the excess of each Group Member's separate tax liability over the amount allocated to it in Step 1.

Article I (A), Step 2 further states that the allocated Excess Separate Tax shall be reduced by the Group Member's proportional share of PHI'S and Conectiv's tax benefits (excluding amounts associated with acquisition debt), and allocated using the ratio of each Group Member's Excess Separate Tax divided by the aggregate Excess Separate Tax for all Group Members.

Holding Company Tax Benefits

The Merger Application specifically requested SEC approval for PHI's and Conectiv's retention of the tax benefits associated with the $700 million in acquisition debt assumed to consummate the merger. The request stems from the SEC's interpretation of Rule 45(c)(5), which states that, in general:

"[The] agreement may include all members of the group in the tax allocation. An agreement under this paragraph shall provide that those associate companies with a positive allocation will pay the amount allocated and those subsidiary companies with a negative allocation will receive current payment of their corporate tax credits."

In 1981, an SEC amendment precluded registered holding companies from sharing in consolidated return tax savings because of concerns about the possibility of improper upstream cash distributions. More recently, the SEC revised its regulatory position to allow holding companies to retain selected tax benefits related to acquisition debt.¹ The SEC approved the Tax Agreement in its order dated July 24, 2002, approving the Merger Application. The Applicants state that the acquisition debt related to the acquisition of Conectiv and the related tax benefits are recorded on PHI'S books. Any tax benefits related to Conectiv's acquisition debt are recorded on Conectiv's books.

Other Tax Allocation Provisions

Article I (A), Step 3 of the Tax Agreement states that Group Members (excluding PHI and Conectiv) with negative separate taxable income, credits, or other tax benefits will receive compensation for the use of their tax benefits. The Applicants represent that the negative tax Group Members are compensated to the extent that the tax benefits can be currently utilized.

Rule 45(c)(5) further states that:

"The agreement shall provide a method for apportioning such payments, and for carrying over uncompensated benefits, if the consolidated loss is too large to be used in full. Such method may assign priorities to specified kinds of benefits."

Article I (D) of the Tax Agreement states that a Group Member that does not receive current payment for a tax benefit due to the Tax Agreement's allocation rules shall retain the right to payment to the extent that the benefit can be utilized in future years. Uncompensated tax benefits arising from negative taxable income will have priority over tax benefits attributable to excess tax credits.

The Applicants represent that allocated tax benefits are permanently distributed to Group Members unless the consolidated tax return is subsequently adjusted by PHI or the Internal Revenue Service. In this case, the tax effect of the adjustment including interest and penalties is assigned or apportioned, using the methodology described in Article I, to the Group Member(s) whose separate return tax is affected by the adjustment.

Article II of the Tax Agreement states that state and local income tax liabilities will be allocated using principles similar to those used for the consolidated federal income tax allocation.

Legal and Accounting Provisions

Article III of the Tax Agreement states that PHI shall have authority to prepare tax returns, settle tax issues, and make payments in connection with the consolidated federal and state income tax returns. Article III also says that the Tax Agreement shall apply for the tax year ending December 31, 2002, and subsequent years. Article III indicates that each Group Member shall pay its own expenses, including legal and accounting fees, incident to the Tax Agreement.

The Applicants describe four accounting transactions concerning the Tax Agreement that Delmarva records on its books. Delmarva records its current federal tax liability by debiting Federal Income Tax ("FIT") Expense and crediting Accrued FIT. Delmarva records a current federal tax refund by reversing the tax expense entry. Delmarva records its payment to the Consolidated Group for a positive federal tax liability by debiting Accrued FIT and crediting its Money Pool account. Likewise, Delmarva records a receipt from the Consolidated Group of a federal tax refund by reversing the tax payment entry.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of the Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described Tax Agreement is in the public interest and should be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, Delmarva Power & Light Company hereby is granted approval to participate in the Federal and State Income Tax Allocation Agreement between Pepco Holdings, Inc., and its subsidiaries under the terms and conditions and for the purposes described herein.
- 2) Delmarva shall file with the Commission an executed copy of the Federal and State Income Tax Allocation Agreement within 30 days from the date of this Order, subject to extension by the Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- 3) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in the terms and conditions of the Federal and State Income Tax Allocation Agreement.
- 4) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications. The Commission reserves the right to reflect ratemaking adjustments to Delmarva's income taxes in the course of the Commission's review and analysis of Delmarva's cost of service in the future.
- 5) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 6) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 7) Delmarva shall include the Federal and State Income Tax Allocation Agreement approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission.
- 8) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then Delmarva shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- 9) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

MAY 27, 2003

APPLICATION OF
and
DOMINION RESOURCES, INC.

For exemption of a Tax Allocation Agreement and a Cash Contribution from the filing and prior approval requirements of the Affiliates Act pursuant to § 56-77 B of the Code of Virginia or, in the alternative, approval to enter into such Agreement and Cash Contribution

ORDER DENYING EXEMPTION AND GRANTING APPROVAL

On April 1, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power") and Dominion Resources, Inc. ("DRI") (collectively the "Applicants"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") requesting an exemption of a Tax Allocation Agreement ("Tax Agreement") and Cash Contribution ("Contribution") from the filing and prior approval requirements of the Affiliates Act pursuant to § 56-77 B of the Code of Virginia (the "Code") or, in the alternative, approval to enter into the Tax Agreement and Contribution pursuant to the Affiliates Act.

DRI, which is headquartered in Richmond, Virginia, is a registered holding company under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("PUHCA") and subject to regulation by the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"). DRI's principal subsidiaries are Virginia Power, Consolidated Natural Gas Company ("CNG), and Dominion Energy, Inc.

Virginia Power is a Virginia public service corporation that generates, transmits, and distributes electricity within a 30,000 square mile area in Virginia and northeastern North Carolina. Virginia Power sells electricity to approximately 2.2 million retail customers, including governmental agencies, and to wholesale customers such as rural electric cooperatives, municipalities, power marketers, and other utilities. Virginia Power has trading relationships beyond its retail service territory and buys and sells wholesale electricity and natural gas off-system.

Federal Regulations

The Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), through Title 17, Code of Federal Regulations ("C.F.R.") § 250.45(c) ("Rule 45(c)"), requires holding companies registered under the PUHCA to file with the SEC written tax allocation agreements covering the holding company, its regulated utilities, and other consolidated subsidiaries (the "Group Members") in order to have the ongoing authority to file consolidated income tax returns with the federal government. On January 10, 2003, DRI filed an application with the SEC requesting approval of the Tax Agreement (the "SEC Application"). DRI requested specific approval of a provision in the Tax Agreement that allows the holding company to retain the tax benefits related to $4.3 billion in acquisition debt and related costs incurred to finance the fiscal 2000 acquisition of CNG. At this time, the SEC Application remains pending.

The Applicants currently list 140 affiliates that are Group Members under the Tax Agreement. The Applicants list 29 affiliates that are not parties to the Tax Agreement. The unconsolidated affiliates are partnerships or entities in which DRI holds a minority interest.

Tax Allocation Methodology

Rule 45(c)(2) states that:

The consolidated tax shall be apportioned among the several members of the group in proportion to (i) the corporate taxable income of each such member, or (ii) the separate return tax of each such member, but the tax apportioned to any subsidiary shall not exceed the separate return tax of such subsidiary.

Article II, § 2.1(b) of the Tax Agreement describes DRI's general methodology for allocating federal taxes. First, DRI multiplies 100% of the consolidated federal tax liability by the ratio of each Group Member's separate return tax, excluding alternative minimum taxes ("AMT") and related AMT credits ("AMTC"), divided by the sum of the Group Members' separate return tax. This step allocates the consolidated liability.

Second, DRI allocates an additional amount to each Group Member up to, but not exceeding, the difference between the Group Member's separate tax liability and the amount allocated in the first step. This step adjusts each Group Member's tax liability to a separate return tax level.

Third, DRI allocates any AMT liability based on the relative separate adjusted AMT of each Group Member, and any AMTC based on each Group Member's previously assigned AMT liability on a "first in/first out" basis. To the extent that any AMTC is not fully utilized, then it is utilized proportionately by Group Members previously assigned AMT for that year.

Holding Company Tax Benefits

Rule 45(c)(5) states that, in general:

[The] agreement may include all members of the group in the tax allocation. An agreement under this paragraph shall provide that those associate companies with a positive allocation will pay the amount allocated and those subsidiary companies with a negative allocation will receive current payment of their corporate tax credits.

In accordance with Rule 45(c)(5), Article II, § 2.1(c) of the Tax Agreement states that each Group Member's share of the consolidated federal tax liability will be used to determine the amounts paid by positive tax Group Members ("Paying Members") to DRI and the payments made by DRI to negative tax Group Members ("Loss Members"). Article II, § 2.1(d) of the Tax Agreement goes on to state that DRI will pay to the Loss Members the aggregate of the excess of the Paying Members' separate return tax liability over their consolidated tax liability. Article II, § 2.1(b)(i) affirms that the total of the tax amounts allocated to Group Members shall result in payments to Loss Members.

In 1981, though, an SEC amendment precluded registered holding companies, which are usually Loss Members, from sharing in consolidated return tax savings because of concerns about the possibility of improper upstream cash distributions. More recently, the SEC revised its regulatory position to allow holding companies to retain selected tax benefits related to acquisition debt.

The SEC Application requests specific approval for DRI's retention of the tax benefits associated with the $4.3 billion in acquisition debt costs incurred to consummate the CNG merger. DRI states that the tax benefits at issue relate to unsecured holding company debt used to finance DRI's investment in CNG. As such, the acquisition debt neither funds subsidiary operations nor obligates DRI's subsidiaries to repay it. DRI says it will pay off the acquisition debt through the investment income realized through dividends paid from the current and accumulated earnings of its subsidiaries. Also, DRI represents that it is not seeking recovery of its interest expenses or corporate costs from its subsidiaries. DRI notes that the SEC has granted relief on this issue in a similar case.¹

Therefore, DRI has proposed in Article II, § 2.1(d)(ii) of its Tax Agreement that:

The Tax Benefit Amount allocated to DRI and paid to DRI as a result of its being a Loss Member shall be limited to the lesser of the tax benefit of its interest deduction attributable to Acquisition Indebtedness or the tax benefit of its separate tax loss. The portion of DRI's tax benefits which cannot be allocated and paid to DRI due to the operation of this section shall be reallocated to Paying Members of the Consolidated Group other than DRI.

Other Tax Allocation Provisions

Rule 45(c)(5) further states that the consolidated tax agreement:

Shall provide a method of apportioning such payments, and carrying over uncompensated benefits, if the consolidated loss is too large to be used in full.

Article II, § 2.1(e) of the Tax Agreement states that consolidated net operating losses ("NOL") will be allocated using the general methodology previously described. To the extent that consolidated NOL are carried back, each Group Member's allocated NOL shall be carried back and utilized according to the proportion that its individual NOL bears to the consolidated NOL. Similar principles will apply for NOL carryforwards, tax credits, and tax credit recaptures.

Article II, § 2.1(f) of the Tax Agreement states that federal tax allocations will be subject to periodic adjustment as a result of amended returns or Internal Revenue Service audits.

Article II, § 2.2 of the Tax Agreement deals with "Other Taxes," which states that, in general, taxes owed to state, municipal, or other political subdivisions shall be allocated among the Consolidated Group in a manner consistent with the methodology used for federal taxes. Group Members that file an unconsolidated Other Return are solely responsible and obligated to pay the tax liability reflected by that return.

Legal Provisions

Article III of the Tax Agreement, which deals with the legal responsibility and the inter-company payments for the consolidated tax return, states that DRI assumes legal responsibility for the payment of the consolidated tax liability. DRI will assess or pay Group Members their share of estimated tax payments, and within sixty days after the consolidated return filing, DRI and the Group Members will settle the difference between the estimated and actual consolidated tax liability.

Article III also says that DRI shall have sole authority to deal with the IRS and other taxing authorities concerning any adjustments related to the consolidated return. DRI shall be responsible for maintaining the books and records with the inter-company accounts reflecting the amounts owed, collected and paid with respect to the consolidated return.

Article IV, § 4.2 states that the Tax Agreement shall be effective with respect to all taxable years ending on or after January 28, 2000. Section 4.4 states that each party to the Tax Agreement shall pay its own expenses, including legal and accounting fees, incident to the Tax Agreement. The Applicants represent that the Group Members are individually responsible for any cost they incur in applying the provisions of the Tax Agreement to their respective subsidiary. Group Members are not responsible for any cost incurred by DRI. Section 4.16 states that Members leaving the Consolidated Group shall be assigned their allocable portion of the consolidated tax liability and will settle with DRI any differences between estimated and actual tax liabilities within sixty days after leaving the Consolidated Group.

Cash Contribution

The Applicants' accounting treatment for income taxes has created a problem on Virginia Power's balance sheet. The Applicants interpret Statement of Financial Accounting Standards 109 to mean that Virginia Power's separate return tax should be the current tax liability that is booked for financial accounting purposes. The Applicants represent that DRI's holding company tax benefits are not allocated to Virginia Power for the purpose of determining Virginia Power's federal tax liability. Therefore, Virginia Power records its current year separate return tax expense and liability when it debits Federal Income Tax - Current Year and credits Accrued Federal Income Tax - Current.

At the time of settlement though, Virginia Power, consistent with the application of Rule 45(c), does not remit the full amount of its separate return tax to DRI. Instead, Virginia Power reduces its tax payments to DRI by its share of DRI's holding company tax benefits that are allocated among the subsidiaries with positive taxable income.

The result is that Virginia Power, over time, accumulates in its federal tax liability account amounts that are never payable to DRI. In order to correct this problem, the Applicants propose that Virginia Power, on an annual basis, transfer the residual balance of its federal tax liability account, after paying its allocable share of consolidated taxes, to its paid in capital account. Accordingly, DRI will transfer an equivalent amount from its federal income tax receivables account to its investment in subsidiaries account.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of the Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the Applicants' request for exemption of the Tax Agreement and Cash Contribution from the filing and prior approval requirements of the Affiliates Act should be denied.

The Tax Agreement is a formal, legal arrangement between a registered holding company and its consolidated subsidiaries that distributes cash income tax payments and refunds among the Group Members. The parties are exchanging cash, not services, so the Tax Agreement does not fall under the Applicants' existing Service Agreement. Likewise, the Tax Agreement provides tangible incremental benefits to the holding company and the Group Members by minimizing their total federal income tax liability through the filing of a consolidated return. Therefore, the Tax Agreement is not simply a cost allocation methodology. Finally, the PUHCA, Rule 45(c), and the SEC's 1981 amendment to Rule 45(c) make clear that the federal government has had and continues to have concerns that holding companies may misuse the allocation of consolidated income taxes to drain cash from their subsidiary utilities. We have the same concerns and, therefore, the Tax Agreement should be reviewed from a public interest standpoint.

On a similar note, the proposed Cash Contribution must be reviewed within the context of the Affiliates Act because it involves the exchange of rights between affiliated parties. DRI is exchanging a receivable for an increase in its equity interest in Virginia Power. Virginia Power, in turn, is exchanging equity ownership for a reduction in an obligation.

However, we believe that the Tax Agreement as proposed is, in general, an equitable means of assigning consolidated tax liabilities to member companies. In addition, we believe the Applicants' Cash Contribution proposal is a reasonable method for handling the difference between Virginia Power's separate return and paid taxes. The Tax Agreement benefits Virginia Power as a positive separate return company because Virginia Power has the opportunity to receive consolidated tax benefits, which can reduce its tax liability and boost its cash flow. Therefore, we find that the Tax Agreement and Cash Contribution proposal are in the public interest and should be approved.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00129
JUNE 27, 2003

APPLICATION OF NUI CORPORATION,
VIRGINIA GAS COMPANY,
VIRGINIA GAS DISTRIBUTION COMPANY,
VIRGINIA GAS PIPELINE COMPANY,
and
VIRGINIA GAS STORAGE COMPANY

For approval of application for permission to distribute costs from parent holding company to subsidiary and affiliates under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On April 4, 2003, NUI Corporation ("NUI"), Virginia Gas Company ("VGC"), Virginia Gas Distribution Company ("VGDC"), Virginia Gas Pipeline Company ("VGPC"), and Virginia Gas Storage Company ("VGSC") (collectively the "Applicants") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (the "Code"). In a series of prior cases before the Commission,¹ VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC were ordered to develop and file a comprehensive affiliates application. This application includes four agreements intended to achieve that goal. The Applicants are seeking approval of agreements between NUI and VGC,² VGC and VGDC, VGC and VGPC, and VGC and VGSC, that are intended to redistribute directly assigned and allocated centralized administrative ("shared service") costs from NUI through VGC to the three Virginia public service corporations, VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC. The agreements contain a cost allocation policy that includes one method for allocating costs from NUI to VGC, and a separate method for allocating costs from VGC to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC. The Applicants are also seeking authority to implement the terms of the agreements retroactive to October 1, 2002, in order to recover shared service costs that have already been passed down from NUI to VGC.

NUI, an exempt public utility holding company located in Bedminster, New Jersey, is a diversified energy company that is primarily engaged in the sale and distribution of natural gas, energy commodity trading and portfolio management, retail energy sales, and telecommunications. NUI's local distribution operations, which include Elizabethtown Gas Company (New Jersey), City Gas Company of Florida, Elkton Gas (Maryland), and VGC, provide natural gas and related services to more than 367,000 customers in four states along the eastern seaboard of the United States. NUI's non-regulated businesses include NUI Energy, Inc., an energy retailer; NUI Energy Brokers, Inc., a wholesale energy trading and portfolio management subsidiary; NUI Environmental Group, Inc., an environmental project development subsidiary; Utility Business Services, Inc., a geospatial and customer information systems and services subsidiary; NUI Telecom, Inc., a telecommunications subsidiary; and TIC Enterprises, LLC, a sales outsourcing subsidiary. On May 28, 2003, NUI announced the sale of NUI Energy, Inc.'s customer accounts to Houston Energy Services Company, LLC. The sale of the customer accounts, along with the liquidation of the underlying gas supply contracts, generated a pre-tax gain of $1.2 million and allowed NUI to exit from the retail energy marketing business.

VGC, which is located in Abingdon, Virginia, is a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of NUI. VGC is the parent of the three Virginia public service corporations: VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC.

VGDC provides natural gas distribution service to approximately 300 customers located in Southwest Virginia. VGDC has certificates of public convenience and necessity ("CPCNs") to offer natural gas service to the counties of Russell, Buchanan, and Dickenson, a portion of Tazewell County, and the Town of Saltville.

VGPC provides pipeline transmission and underground natural gas storage services to customers in southwestern Virginia and eastern Tennessee. VGPC has CPCNs to construct, own, operate and maintain an underground natural gas storage facility in Smyth and Washington Counties, and to own, develop, construct and operate an intrastate gas transmission line in the counties of Smyth, Wythe, and Pulaski.

VGSC provides underground natural gas storage service to customers in southwestern Virginia and eastern Tennessee. VGSC has a CPCN to operate the Early Grove storage field in Scott and Washington Counties.

The NUI/VGC Agreement

The NUI/VGC Agreement is intended:

to formalize the method to identify, charge where necessary and allocate costs associated with the following:
 (a) various corporate services and related costs pertaining thereto; (b) NUI corporate overheads; (c) NUI corporate service costs; and (c) other allocations from NUI to VGC.³

The Applicants state that NUI selects and provides to its business units ("BUs")⁴ a variety of shared services through its corporate headquarters. NUI also charges the BUs for corporate plant depreciation. As an exempt public utility holding company under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("PUHCA"), NUI is not subject to the PUHCA's registration requirements, and is not required to have a separate service company. Responsibility Centers located within the corporate office or host division oversee the budgeting, service quality, cost effectiveness, accounting, and cost distribution of the services provided to the BUs.

The shared services are listed by function below.

Environmental Affairs	Compensation and Benefits
Employee and Labor Relations	Payroll
Purchasing	Training and Organizational Development
Public Affairs	Legal
Executive	Information Technology
Treasury	Accounts Payable
Corporate	Accounting - Corporate and Tax
Investor Relations	Building Services
Human Resources	Insurance

The Applicants state that "the centralization of these functions is cost effective to the BUs because they do not have to maintain an 'in house' presence or acquire costly outside expertise for the shared services."⁵ The Applicants also represent that the centralization allows the BUs to focus more on operational issues. Shared service costs are expensed except for capital costs relating to computer equipment and systems, which are allocated to VGC as depreciation expense.

Article 2 and Appendix I of the NUI/VGC Agreement state that NUI uses a combination of direct charges and indirect allocations to charge its BUs for shared services. NUI costs that directly benefit a specific BU are directly charged to the entity that receives the benefit. Direct charges include, but are not limited to, items such as stock grants, pension expense, corporate office rent, special insurance, bonds, legal fees, and professional services. The Applicants represent that NUI charges cost for its services, with no profit markup or other fees associated with the NUI pass-throughs.

Indirect shared service costs, including depreciation, are distributed to VGC using a single three-part allocation factor (the "NUI Factor"). The NUI Factor is the simple average of the sum of the following three percentages: VGC's thirteen-month average gross plant balance divided by NUI's average plant; VGC's thirteen-month average number of customers divided by NUI's average number of customers; and VGC's budgeted gross payroll for the upcoming fiscal year ("FY") (including base salary, overtime, commissions, and bonuses) divided by NUI's budgeted payroll. Four cost centers (Environmental Affairs, Employee & Labor Relations, HR-North, and HR-FL/NC)⁶ employ a modified NUI Factor that includes only the BUS using the service. The Applicants represent that NUI uses budgeted rather than historic payroll in the NUI Factor to account for changes in the enterprise. The NUI Factor is recalculated annually and applied on a prospective basis. Retroactive true-ups to actual cost are seldom made.

For FY 2003, the basic NUI Factor for allocations to VGC is 4.2%, the modified NUI factor for Environmental Affairs costs is 5.3%, and the modified NUI factor for HR-FL/NC costs is 16.2%. The employee benefits overhead charge is $775 per employee per month.

The NUI/VGC Agreement has an initial term of three years, commencing with the Commission's approval date. Thereafter, the Agreement automatically renews for one-year terms unless written notice of termination is provided 60 days before the date of renewal.

The VGC/VGDC, VGC/VGPC, and VGC/VGSC Agreements ("Virginia Gas Agreements")

The three Virginia Gas Agreements between VGC and its three subsidiaries, VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC, are identical in form. Their shared purpose is:

to formalize the method to identify, charge for where necessary and allocate costs associated with the following:
(a) various NUI Corporation support service charges...; (b) NUI corporate allocations...; and (c) other NUI costs...[from VGC to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC].⁷

With one exception, the language in the Virginia Gas Agreements mirrors the language in the NUI/VGC Agreement. Article 2 of the Virginia Gas Agreements states that NUI distributions to VGC that directly benefit VGDC, VGPC, or VGSC will be directly charged by VGC to the benefiting subsidiary. Similarly, Article 3 describes the four types of NUI shared service costs (support service charges, Responsibility Center charges, non-cash charges, and employee benefit charges) that will be redistributed from VGC to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC. The initial term and renewals for the Virginia Gas Agreements are also the same as for the NUI/VGC Agreement.

The major difference between the NUI/VGC and Virginia Gas Agreements is in the allocation method. The NUI/VGC Agreement employs the NUI Factor, which is a three-part factor based on thirteen-month average gross plant, thirteen-month average number of customers, and fiscal year budgeted payroll. The Virginia Gas Agreements, in contrast, use a three-part factor based on a five quarter weighted average of gross plant, quarterly revenues, and quarterly operating expenses net of purchased gas (the "VGC Factor"). The Applicants propose to allocate NUI shared service costs from VGC to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC using the VGC Factor because they believe it more equitably distributes costs given the unique nature of each subsidiary's operations.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the agreements described above are in the public interest and should be approved, on a prospective basis, subject to certain conditions we find necessary in this instance to protect the public interest.

This Commission approved "s merger with VGC (the "Merger") in Case No. PUA-2000-00079 in part because of VGC's financial difficulties and inability to attract the capital necessary to expand its operations. The Applicants represent that VGC's debt restructuring has reduced its interest costs by approximately 150 basis points. If the current application is approved, the Applicants plan to submit a new affiliate application seeking approval for VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC to restructure their debt with VGC. Based on FY 2002's debt levels, restructuring the regulated subsidiaries' debt should yield jurisdictional interest savings of approximately $451,000 per year.

According to the Applicants, the Merger has achieved savings in other areas, too. VGC's change from a publicly traded company to a privately owned subsidiary yielded jurisdictional savings of about $302,000 annually. Employee reductions saved another $167,000. Tighter cost controls and consolidated purchasing power saved about $105,000. Altogether, gross jurisdictional savings from the merger total about $1.025 million. That more than offsets the estimated $808,000 in jurisdictional shared service charges that could be passed down to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC should the current application be approved.

We find that it is in the public interest for VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC to enter into the subject agreements and receive shared services from NUI.⁸ However, we have several concerns. First, it is not clear that the estimated $808,000 in jurisdictional shared service charges that could be passed down is less than the cost of these services if obtained at the local level. Second, we are concerned that NUI does not have practices in place, such as comparative pricing or competitive bidding, to ensure that its shared services are provided at least cost. Third, we are concerned that the majority of NUI's I shared service costs are allocated rather than directly charged. Fourth, we note that the NUI Factor uses a budgeted rather than actual number for one variable, and there is no provision for a retroactive true-up to actual cost. Finally, we are concerned about the effect of using one allocation method for distributing costs from NUI to VGC and a separate allocation method for distributing costs from VGC to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC.

Therefore, we condition our approval to address our concerns about the pricing of shared services and the differences between the NUI and VGC Factors. First, we find that VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC must maintain records to show that the centralization of shared services is cost beneficial to Virginia ratepayers. In other words, VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC must demonstrate that these services cannot be performed by VGC or outsourced to an unaffiliated local provider on a more economical basis.

Second, we find that for all shared services where a market may exist, that VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC must investigate whether alternative sources are available from which to purchase such services. If so, they must compare such market prices to NUI's costs and must pay the lower of cost or market. For some shared services, pricing at cost may be appropriate. However, some shared services may be obtainable from unaffiliated parties and, therefore, a market and a market price may exist. Examples of such shared services can include, but are not limited to, legal, accounting, accounts payable, and information technology. VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC bear the burden to show that for shared services obtained from NUI where a market and a market price existed, the jurisdictional applicants paid the lower of cost or market.

⁷ See Exhibits 2,3, and 4 to the April 4, 2003, Application.

Third, we find that the shared service costs passed down from NUI through VGC to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC must be directly charged or allocated using a direct cost factor to the greatest extent practicable. For the remaining indirect costs, the NUI Factor and the VGC Factor appear to be reasonable methodologies for allocating shared service costs to VGC and then redistributing them to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC. For monitoring purposes, though, we find that VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC must provide in their Annual Reports of Affiliate Transactions a summary of that year's shared service costs passed down from NUI to VGC, listed by function, direct charge or allocation, allocation factor, and amount, and must provide a similar summary of shared service costs redistributed from VGC to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC.

Fourth, we find that the annual dollar impact on shared service pass-throughs resulting from the use of a budgeted versus actual payroll variable in the NUI Factor must be fully disclosed in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted by VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC. Fifth, we find that the computation of the NUI Factor, including the monthly balances for each variable, and the computation of the VGC Factor, including the quarterly balances for each variable, must be fully disclosed in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions.

Finally, we find that the Applicants' request for authority to implement the subject agreements retroactive to October 1, 2002, so that costs passed down from NUI to VGC prior to approval of the agreements can be redistributed to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC, is inconsistent with Commission practice. Furthermore, the Applicants have not provided sufficient justification for retroactive approval. Therefore, we will approve the agreements on a prospective basis, as of the date of this order, subject to the conditions as described in this Order.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, the subject agreements are hereby approved on a prospective basis, commencing with the date of this Order, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes described herein.
- 2) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in the terms and conditions to the affiliate agreements submitted as part of this application, including any changes in the successors or assigns under the subject agreements.
- 3) The approvals granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 4) The approvals granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications for annual informational filings or future rate proceedings.
- 5) VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC must maintain records to demonstrate that the centralization of shared services is cost beneficial to Virginia ratepayers and that such services cannot be obtained more economically at the local level. For all shared services provided by NUI where a market may exist, VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC must investigate whether there are alternative sources from which they could purchase such services. If so, VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC must compare such market prices to NUI's costs and pay the lower of cost or market. Such records shall be available for Commission Staff review upon request.
- 6) Shared service costs passed down from NUI through VGC to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC shall be directly charged or allocated using a direct cost factor to the greatest extent practicable.
- 7) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approvals granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 8) VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC shall include the agreements approved herein in their Annual Reports of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting on or before May 1 of each year, which deadline may be extended administratively by the Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- 9) VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC must provide in their Annual Reports of Affiliate Transactions a summary of that year's shared service costs passed down from NUI to VGC, listed by function, direct charge or allocation, allocation factor, and amount, and a similar summary for shared service costs redistributed from VGC to VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC.
- 10) The annual dollar impact on shared service pass-throughs of using a budgeted versus actual payroll variable in the NUI Factor shall be fully disclosed in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted by VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC.
- 11) The Computation of the NUI Factor, including the monthly balances for each variable, and the computation of the VGC Factor, including the quarterly balances for each variable, shall be fully disclosed in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted by VGDC, VGPC, and VGSC.
- 12) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

SEPTEMBER 2, 2003

APPLICATION OF
WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY

For approval of amendments to its gas tariff, Va. S.C.C. No. 9, to implement daily balancing for gas suppliers serving interruptible customers

ORDER GRANTING LEAVE TO WITHDRAW APPLICATION

On April 8, 2003, Washington Gas Light Company ("WGL" or the "Company") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") that, among other things, proposed to revise WGL's Rate Schedule No. 7, the Company's Interruptible Delivery Service, and to initiate a new rate schedule, Interruptible Delivery Service Gas Supplier Agreement -- Rate Schedule No. 11. WGL proposed the revisions to Rate Schedule No. 7 and the addition of new Rate Schedule No. 11, among other reasons, to implement daily balancing procedures for suppliers providing natural gas to customers using natural gas on an interruptible basis.

On May 6, 2003, the Commission entered the procedural order for the case. This Order suspended the Company's rate proposals and tariff revisions to and through September 5, 2003, and provided that interested parties could file comments, requests for hearing, and notices of participation on or before June 12, 2003. The Order also directed the Commission Staff to file a Report that could take the form of testimony, if appropriate, by June 30, 2003.

On June 12, 2003, the Virginia Industrial Gas Users' Association ("VIGUA") filed with the Commission a Notice of Participation, Comments, and a Request for Hearing in a single pleading. On the same day, Stand Energy Corporation ("Stand") filed a "Notice of Participation and Request for Hearing."

On June 18, 2003, the Staff, by counsel, filed a Motion requesting suspension of the June 30, 2003, filing date for its Report.

On June 24, 2003, the Commission entered an Order granting Staff's Motion. The June 24, 2003, Order directed the Staff to report to the Commission on the status of its discussions with case participants by no later than thirty (30) days from the entry of that Order.

On July 24, 2003, Staff filed its Report on the status of its discussions with the parties. Staff advised that it had hosted a meeting on the Company's proposal with the case participants and had tentatively scheduled another meeting for August 21, 2003.

On August 29, 2003, WGL, by counsel, filed a "Motion for Leave to Withdraw Application" ("Motion"). The Company stated in its Motion that after extensive discussions with the participants to the proceeding, it now requested leave to withdraw the application without prejudice to file it in a future proceeding. WGL represented that the Staff, VIGUA, and Stand, the only participants to the proceeding, did not object to the withdrawal of the application.

NOW, UPON CONSIDERATION of WGL's August 29, 2003, Motion, and the record developed herein, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that WGL's August 29, 2003, Motion should be granted; that the Company should be permitted to withdraw its application without prejudice; and that this application should be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) WGL's August 29, 2003, Motion is hereby granted.
- (2) The Company shall be permitted to withdraw the captioned application without prejudice.
- (3) This case shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings and the papers filed herein shall be placed in the Commission's files for ended causes.

JUNE 16, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.

UTILIQUEST, LLC,
Defendant

ORDER OF SETTLEMENT

Pursuant to § 56-265.30 of the Code of Virginia, the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") is charged with enforcing the provisions of the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Act, § 56-265.14 et seq. of the Code of Virginia ("Act"). The Commission's Division of Utility and Railroad Safety ("Division"), charged with the investigation of probable violations of the Act, has completed investigations of certain incidents between September 4, 2002, and March 11, 2003, listed in Attachment A, involving Utiliquest, LLC ("Company"), and alleges that:

- (1) The Company is a contract locator as that term is defined in § 56-265.15 of the Code of Virginia;
- (2) During the aforementioned period the Company violated the Act by committing the following violations:
 - (a) Failing on certain occasions to mark the approximate horizontal location of the underground utility lines on the ground to within two feet of either side of the underground utility lines, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (b) Failing on certain occasions to mark within the time prescribed in the Act, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (c) Failing on certain occasions to report to the notification center that lines had been marked or they were not in conflict with the proposed excavation, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A, B, and D of the Code of Virginia.

As evidenced in the attached Admission and Consent document, the Company neither admits nor denies these allegations but admits the Commission's jurisdiction and authority to enter this Order.

As an offer to settle all matters before the Commission arising from the Division's allegations made herein, which includes all probable violations presented to the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Advisory Committee on April 8, 2003, and set out in Attachment A hereto, the Company represents and undertakes that it will pay a civil penalty to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $7,850 to be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order. This payment will be made by cashier's check or money order, payable to the Treasurer of Virginia and directed to the attention of the Director of the Division of Utility and Railroad Safety.

The Commission, being advised by the Staff and finding sufficient basis herein for the entry of this Order, hereby accepts this settlement.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to the authority granted the Commission by § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, the offer of settlement made by the Company be, and it hereby is, accepted.
- (2) The sum of $7,850 tendered contemporaneously with the entry of this Order is accepted.
- (3) This case is dismissed, and the papers herein shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

MAY 8, 2003

APPLICATION OF
DELMARVA POWER & LIGHT COMPANY

For authority to issue up to $225,000,000 of debt securities and/or preferred stock

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On April 21, 2003, Delmarva Power & Light Company, ("Delmarva" or "Applicant") completed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting authority under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia to issue up to $225,000,000 in debt securities and/or preferred stock (the "Refunding Securities"). The Applicant requested authority to issue the Refunding Securities from time to time, before December 31, 2004. Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

Delmarva requests authority to issue the Refunding Securities to refinance existing securities prior to or at maturity. Applicant proposes to take advantage of the current low rates in the capital markets to lower interest and/or preferred dividend costs. Specifically, Applicant has identified $66,530,000 of tax-exempt bonds for refinancing; $15,000,000 of Series 1993A, 6.05% bonds due 2032, $18,200,000 of Series 1993B, 5.90% bonds due 2021, $22,230,000 of Series 1999A, variable-rate bonds due 2024, and $11,000,000 of Series 1999B, variable rate bonds due 2024. Applicant supplied a detailed breakeven analysis estimating the interest cost savings at current market rates.

Applicant also requests authority to refinance up to $70,000,000 of 8.125% trust preferred securities due 2036. Applicant seeks the flexibility to refinance the trust preferred securities through a combination of debt securities, preferred stock, or a new series of junior subordinated debentures. In conjunction with refinancing the trust preferred securities, Applicant may issue a guarantee of the securities. Applicant provided a breakeven analysis to estimate the savings if the trust securities are refinanced at current market rates.

Applicant also requests authority to refund up to $87,200,000 of first mortgage bonds coming due in 2003. On June 1, 2003, a $2,200,000 sinking fund payment is due on Applicant's 6.95% first mortgage bonds, and on July 1, 2003, $85,000,000 of 6.40% Series first mortgage bond matures. Applicant intends to redeem these maturing securities with a combination of new secured or unsecured debt and cash currently invested in the Pepco Holdings Inc. Money Pool.

Applicant requests broad authority to issue the Refunding Securities in order to obtain the most favorable terms and conditions at the time of issuance. Applicant, therefore, proposes that the securities be sold in one or more underwritten public offerings, negotiated sales, or private placement transactions. Applicant also proposes that the maturity date(s), interest rate(s), redemption provisions, and other terms and provisions of the securities be determined under prevailing market conditions at the time of issuance. Applicant may purchase insurance to provide credit enhancement to lower its effective interest cost.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to issue up to $225,000,000 of a combination of secured or unsecured debt, preferred stock and/or junior subordinated debentures under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application, through the period ending December 31, 2004.
- 2) Applicant shall submit a preliminary Report of Action within ten (10) days after the issuance of any securities pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (1), to include the type of security, the issuance date, amount of the issue, the interest rate, a brief cost/benefit analysis if the proceeds of the issue are to refinance the refunding of existing securities, the maturity date, a brief explanation for the maturity and issuance date chosen.
- 3) Within sixty (60) days after the end of each calendar quarter in which any securities are issued pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (1), Delmarva shall file with the Commission a detailed Report of Action with respect to all securities issued and sold during the calendar quarter to include:
 - (a) the issuance date, type of security, amount issued, interest rate, date of maturity, underwriters' names, underwriters' fees, other issuance expenses realized to date, and net proceeds to Applicant;
 - (b) a list of any signed agreements not previously provided which were executed for the purpose of issuing any securities pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (1);
 - (c) the cumulative principal amount issued under the authority granted herein and the amount remaining to be issued;
 - (d) a general statement of the purposes for which the securities were issued, and if the purpose is for the early redemption of an outstanding issue, to provide a schedule all reacquisition losses and overall cost savings from refunding; and
 - (e) a balance sheet that reflects the capital structure following the issuance of the securities.
- 4) Applicant shall file a final Report of Action on or before February 26, 2005, to include all information required in Ordering Paragraph (3) and a detailed account of all the actual expenses and fees paid to date for all securities issued under this authority, with an explanation of any variances from the estimated expenses contained in the Financing Summary attached to the application.
- 5) Approval of the application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 6) This matter shall be continued, subject to the continuing review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

NOVEMBER 7, 2003

NOTIFICATION OF
AMVEST OIL & GAS, INC.

To furnish natural gas service pursuant to § 56-265.4:5 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER DISMISSING PROCEEDING

On April 14, 2003, AMVEST Oil & Gas, Inc. ("AOG" or "Company") notified the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), pursuant to § 56-265.4:5 of the Code of Virginia, of its plans to furnish natural gas services to Car Wash Investments, LC ("Car Wash Investments"), a Virginia limited liability company that is building and intends to operate its Supreme Clean Car Wash ("car wash") located on Woodland Drive Road in Wise, Virginia.

On August 8, 2003, the Commission entered an Order docketing the proceeding and notifying all public utilities providing natural gas service in the Commonwealth of AOG's plans to furnish gas service to the car wash. The utilities were advised they could file an application with the Commission to provide natural gas service within the area identified in the Company's notification documents within sixty (60) days of the entry of the August 8, 2003, Order. The Commission found the car wash not to be located within a territory for which a certificate of public convenience and necessity had been granted; in addition, the facility was found not to be located within any area, territory, or jurisdiction served by a municipal corporation that provided gas distribution service as of January 1, 1992.

Sixty days now have elapsed since the entry of the August 8, 2003, Order, and no jurisdictional public utility has filed an application to provide natural gas service within the area identified in the captioned notification.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the foregoing, is of the opinion and finds that the Company has satisfied the requirements of §§ 56-265.1(b)(4) and 56-265.4:5 of the Code of Virginia, and that there being nothing further to be done herein, the matter should be dismissed.

Accordingly, IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED THAT this matter shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings, and the papers filed herein made a part of the Commission's file for ended causes.

JULY 9, 2003

APPLICATION OF
and
DOMINION ENERGY, INC.

For exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements of Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia or, in the alternative, approval of transfers of inventory

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On April 23, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power" or "Company") and Dominion Energy, Inc. (collectively, the "Applicants"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 4 (§ 56-76, et seq.) of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") for an exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements or, in the alternative, approval of transfers of inventory.

Dominion Virginia Power is a Virginia public service corporation providing electric service to customers in its service territory in Virginia and North Carolina. The Company is wholly owned by Dominion Resources, Inc. ("DRI"). DRI is a holding company as defined in the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("1935 Act") and is subject to regulation as such by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Dominion Energy, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the Commonwealth of Virginia and is a direct subsidiary of DRI. Dominion Energy, Inc.'s business purpose is non-utility power production through subsidiaries, as well as oil and gas development.

Beginning in March 2001, Dominion Virginia Power's transmission employees began performing construction management services for the following Dominion Energy, Inc., merchant projects ("Projects"): Armstrong Energy Limited Partnership, LLLP, Dresden Energy, LLC, Troy Energy, LLC, Fairless Energy, LLC, and Pleasants Energy, LLC. The employees recorded their time, which was charged through the Dominion Virginia Power Support Agreement ("Support Agreement") with Dominion Resources Services, Inc. ("Dominion Services").¹ The charged time was incorporated in the billings to Dominion Energy, Inc. The services that the employees provided for the Projects were authorized pursuant to the Support Agreement.

The employees mistakenly believed that they could use the inventory for the Projects in performing such services. The physical inventory was transferred to the Project site that needed the inventory, and the transfer amounts were, therefore, erroneously reported to the Commission as services.²

² Such inventory transfers ceased after January 31, 2003.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

In August 2002, the employees moved to a newly created entity, Dominion Technical Solutions, Inc. ("DTech"), a wholly owned subsidiary of DRI. The employees continued to use the inventory for the Projects, billing through the Support Agreement. The employees used a total dollar amount of inventory of $1,344,308.17 from March 2001 through January 2003, which was included in the total amount of services billed through Dominion Services and reported to the Commission.

By Order dated January 27, 2003, in Case No. PUE-2002-00572, the Commission granted the Company authority to sell and purchase inventoried material, parts, and equipment to and from the Project entities.

Dominion Virginia Power states that Dominion Energy, Inc., paid the Company's cost for the transferred inventory (including overhead costs) used by employees for services provided for the Projects for which approval is requested in this application.

Dominion Virginia Power states that the transfers were in the public interest because they allowed the Company to obtain necessary equipment for the Projects quickly, thereby decreasing the risk of delays in construction schedules. The Company currently is authorized to purchase power from the Projects, as approved by the Commission in Case No. PUA-2002-00002 and by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. The inventory used in providing services to the Projects was Dominion Virginia Power's inventory. Dominion Virginia Power represents that it was compensated for the parts at cost (including overheads), which is the same price that the Company would charge for equipment sold to unaffiliated third parties.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of the Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that an exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements of Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code is not in the public interest. Such transfers appear to be in the public interest, and we will grant approval in this instance. We expect, however, the Company to be more diligent in seeking and obtaining prior approval for such affiliate arrangements.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code, Dominion Virginia Power's request for exemption from the filing and prior approval requirements of Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code is hereby denied.

(2) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code, Dominion Virginia Power is hereby granted approval of the transfers of inventory beginning March 2001 through January 2003 at cost as described herein.

(3) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.

(4) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code hereafter.

(5) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not the Commission regulates such affiliate.

(6) Dominion Virginia Power shall include the transferred inventory approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting.

(7) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then Dominion Virginia Power shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.

(8) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

AUGUST 22, 2003

APPLICATION OF
CHAPARRAL (VIRGINIA) INC.

For early termination of special contract and related findings

FINAL ORDER

On April 29, 2003, Chaparral (Virginia) Inc. ("Chaparral" or the "Applicant") filed an application in both public and confidential versions with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"). This application requested the Commission to approve the early termination of the Applicant's special rate contract ("Agreement") with Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power" or the "Company"). The subject Agreement was approved by the Commission in Application of Virginia Electric and Power Company, For approval of a special rate contract pursuant to § 56-235.2 of the Code of Virginia, Case No. PUE-1998-00333, 1999 S.C.C. Ann. Rep. 419.

In the captioned application, Chaparral represented that it sought approval to terminate service under the Agreement so that Virginia Power would provide service to Chaparral prospectively under Virginia Power's Rate Schedule 10 subject to certain conditions. Specifically, Chaparral proposed, subject to agreement by Virginia Power and certain findings by the Commission providing for average fuel cost treatment for electric service to Chaparral and other protections for Virginia Power, that: (a) Virginia Power forego its right to insist that the Agreement remain in effect through June 30, 2004, and agree to immediate termination of the Agreement; (b) effective as soon as reasonably possible after Commission approval, Virginia Power provide electric service to Chaparral under the Company's Rate Schedule 10; (c) Chaparral contractually agree to curtail its loads upon request by Virginia Power for capacity (as opposed to economic) needs for eighteen months from the date of the application; (d) Chaparral contractually agree to continue to pay for its interconnection facilities; (e) Chaparral contractually agree to address and rectify, as necessary, the flicker factor related to its operations; and (f) the fuel costs associated with service to Chaparral would be subject to average fuel cost treatment through Virginia Power's fuel factor, as is service to other Rate Schedule 10 customers.

According to Chaparral, the prices charged under its Agreement with Virginia Power have been much higher and more volatile than originally anticipated. Chaparral represented that Virginia Power did not oppose the proposed termination of the Agreement and prospective service under Rate Schedule 10, provided the Commission approves the average fuel cost treatment and other provisions as set forth in the application and finds the proposed changes to the Agreement to be in the public interest, and provided further that Chaparral agreed to the contractual provisions referred to above.

On May 16, 2003, the Commission entered a procedural order in the captioned matter. In that Order, the Commission invited interested parties to comment and request a hearing on the application and directed the Staff to investigate the application and file a report with the Commission that set out Staff's recommendations. The Commission determined Virginia Power to be a necessary party to the proceeding and directed the Company to participate in the matter as a respondent.

On May 22, 2003, Chaparral filed its "Motion of Chaparral (Virginia) Inc. for Approval of Immediate Effective Date and Other Relief" ("Motion"). In that pleading, Chaparral requested an immediate effective date for Rate Schedule 10 rates for accounting purposes, subject to the Commission's approval of its application, and proposed that while its application was under consideration, Virginia Power would calculate a set of "suspended bills" for Chaparral's actual electric usage, applying rates under Rate Schedule 10. Chaparral further explained that Virginia Power would continue to bill and Chaparral would continue to pay for service during the Commission's investigation of the application under the current terms and conditions of the Agreement.

The Applicant maintained that should the Commission ultimately deny the application, no further action would be required, and Chaparral, the Company, and Virginia Power ratepayers would remain unaffected by the Motion. Chaparral also explained that Virginia Power was protected under the terms of its Motion because if the application was denied, the Company would not have to wait for Chaparral to make a large payment to make up the difference in billing between the special contract rate and those in Rate Schedule 10. Instead, Chaparral would continue to pay its monthly bills under the terms and conditions of the Agreement. According to the Applicant, should the Commission ultimately approve the application, the Company would refund to Chaparral the difference between what it actually paid under the suspended bills for Rate Schedule 10, nunc pro tunc to the date the application was filed.

On June 3, 2003, Virginia Power filed its Response to Chaparral's May 22, 2003, Motion. In its Response, among other things, the Company stated that it took no position on the relief requested in the Motion, except as necessary to protect the Company from any potential adverse impact. Virginia Power asserted that in ruling on the Applicant's Motion, the Commission should apply the same standards and impose the same conditions that were set out in Chaparral's application.

By letter dated June 9, 2003, Chaparral, by counsel, advised that it did not intend to file a Reply to Virginia Power's Response.

On June 12, 2003, the Commission entered its Order on Motion, wherein the Commission took Chaparral's Motion under advisement. It directed the Applicant, Virginia Power, other Respondents, and Staff, as they participated further in the case, to address in greater detail the public interest and legal implications of Chaparral's request, including when rebilling should be initiated if Chaparral's Motion was granted. The Commission directed Chaparral to serve a copy of the June 12, 2003, Order on any Respondent, other than Virginia Power, who filed a Notice of Participation.

Virginia Power filed a Notice of Participation in the proceeding on June 13, 2003. No other Notices of Participation were filed, nor were any comments other than those submitted by Virginia Power filed herein.

On June 23, 2003, the Applicant filed its proof of publication and service, required by Ordering Paragraph (5) of the May 16, 2003, procedural order entered herein.

On July 11, 2003, the Commission entered a Protective Order in this case in order to facilitate the proper handling of proprietary and commercially sensitive information and to permit the development of all of the issues in the case, including those involving confidential or commercially sensitive documents.

On July 11, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in both public and confidential versions. In its Report, Staff characterized as flawed Chaparral's comparison of the request made in the May 22, 2003, Motion to requests made under §§ 56-237 and -238 of the Code of Virginia. Staff noted that other Virginia customers move from one rate schedule to another prospectively and are able to receive the benefit of a new tariff after they have requested to change rate schedules but not before. Staff explained that, unlike most other new customers to Rate Schedule 10, Chaparral proposes to pay its existing special contract rate until the Commission decides the case. Staff noted that if the Commission decided in Chaparral's favor and also granted Chaparral's Motion, the lower rates available under Rate Schedule 10 would relate back to the point in time when Chaparral filed its application. Staff further commented that, absent a detrimental effect on other ratepayers, Chaparral's request did not appear to be unreasonable.

Staff analyzed Chaparral's request in terms of its potential for retroactive ratemaking and under the requirements of § 56-234.1 of the Code of Virginia. Staff observed that Virginia Power had not provided any information to Staff that indicated other adverse effects on Virginia Power's other ratepayers aside from a slight increase in fuel costs that may occur if Chaparral's application and Motion were granted. Staff urged that if the Commission granted the Applicant's Motion, it make clear that its decision had no precedential effect for any other case.

In its analysis of Chaparral's application in chief, Staff considered the three criteria set forth under § 56-235.2 of the Code of Virginia, the Commission's Guidelines for Filing an Application to Provide Electric and Gas Service under a Special Rate, Contract or Incentive, 20 VAC 5-310-10 ("Guidelines"), and provisions of the Agreement between Chaparral and Virginia Power.

Staff noted that the Virginia Economic Development Partnership ("VEDP"), the Office of the Mayor of the City of Petersburg ("Petersburg"), Virginia's Gateway Region ("VGR"), and the Board of Supervisors of Dinwiddie County ("Dinwiddie") all provided letters supporting the captioned application and summarizing the benefits the Applicant brought to Virginia. Among the benefits identified by VEDP, Petersburg, VGR, and Dinwiddie were the employment of more than 400 Virginians at an average annual wage, excluding benefits, of $42,000, paying approximately $1.8 million in annual property taxes in Dinwiddie County, and attracting $35 million in additional capital investments with the concurrent creation of new jobs in the area. The Staff also provided estimates of the relative economic impacts of a suspension or curtailment of operations at the Chaparral facility and the economic impact of the hypothetical increase in dollars recovered through the fuel factor if Chaparral took service under Rate Schedule 10.

As to the effects on reliability of electric service to other ratepayers, Staff noted that the conditions proposed in Chaparral's application addressed changes to Chaparral's facilities arising from the possibility of "flicker" in the system power delivery occurring as a result of Chaparral's operation of its arc furnace. Staff commented that Chaparral proposed to permit interruption of its operations for capacity, but not economic, reliability purposes if requested by Virginia Power during the initial 18 months of its operation under Rate Schedule 10.

Staff concluded that moving Chaparral to Rate Schedule 10 would afford the Applicant the same fuel treatment that would have occurred had Chaparral notified the Company 18 months prior of its intent to transfer to another Virginia Power Schedule and had the Agreement terminated in its normal cycle. Staff determined that if Chaparral's request were granted, there would likely be a slight increase in fuel costs for other ratepayers while producing a slight increase in Dominion's earnings.

Further, according to Staff, Chaparral's agreement to correct any prospective system anomalies arising from the Applicant's operations and to permit interruption of its operations for capacity purposes addressed concerns about system reliability. Staff recommended that: (i) Chaparral's application be granted, (ii) that the Applicant's service under the Agreement with Dominion be terminated, (iii) service under Virginia Power's Rate Schedule 10 be permitted with the conditions proposed by Chaparral, and (iv) the fuel costs for Chaparral's service be afforded the same treatment as all other customers on Rate Schedule 10.

On July 25, 2003, the "Comments and Response of Virginia Power" ("July 25, 2003, Comments") were filed with the Commission. In its July 25, 2003, Comments, Virginia Power noted that it did not oppose the Staff's recommendation that the Commission grant the approval requested by Chaparral to receive Rate Schedule 10 service with the conditions set forth in Chaparral's application.

Virginia Power also maintained that § 56-234.1 of the Code of Virginia had no bearing on the matter and did not apply to special contracts. Among other things, at page 3 of its July 25, 2003, Comments, it concurred that the rates charged to Chaparral pursuant to the Agreement remained just and reasonable and not subject to retroactive changes. It commented that under the special circumstances of the case, the rates under the Agreement were not being lowered; but instead, characterized Chaparral's application as a request to be placed on an existing rate schedule as of a specified date.

Further, the Company related that it amended Section 23.j of the Agreement to read as follows in accordance with the Commission's January 26, 1999, Final Order, entered in Case No. PUE-1998-00333:

Amendments. This Agreement may not be amended, altered, modified, or supplemented except in a writing signed by authorized representatives of the Parties (hereinafter, an "Amendment"); provided, however, that no Amendment to this Agreement shall be effective prior to the date that such Amendment has been approved by the Commission.

July 25, 2003, Comments at 3-4.

Virginia Power asserted that the foregoing provision could be reasonably interpreted to allow Virginia Power and Chaparral to establish an effective date that (1) precedes the Commission's approval of the amendment, but (2) does not become activated unless and until the amendment is approved.

Based on that interpretation of Section 23.j of the Agreement, the Company expressed a willingness to agree to a modification or alteration as of the effective date requested by Chaparral, assuming the other conditions described in Chaparral's application were approved. Virginia Power maintained that this approach would help avoid a question of retroactive ratemaking. However, in footnote 3 at page 4 of its July 25, 2003, Comments, Virginia Power acknowledged that Section 23.j was susceptible of an alternative, narrower construction under which the Amendment would not relate back to the agreed upon effective date but would, instead, take effect on a prospective basis from the date of Commission approval.

Virginia Power stated that it did not oppose a ruling that Chaparral receive Rate Schedule 10 service as of the requested effective date, provided that average fuel treatment is implemented simultaneously and the other enumerated contractual provisions appearing in the application are approved. It urged the Commission to make clear that such action has no precedential effect as to any possible future cases involving a determination of effective dates for ratesetting purposes.

On August 6, 2003, Chaparral filed its "Response of Chaparral (Virginia) Inc. to the Staff Report and the Comments and Response of Virginia Power" ("August 6, 2003, Response"). Chaparral noted in its August 6, 2003 Response that since neither Staff nor Virginia Power opposed Chaparral's application for early termination of its Agreement with Virginia Power and to migrate to Rate Schedule 10, the Commission should grant the relief requested in Chaparral's application and Motion. Chaparral agreed with Staff and Virginia Power that such action should not have precedential effect for any other customer or class of customers. Chaparral asserted that terminating the Agreement and authorizing service under Rate Schedule 10 would lower Chaparral's electricity costs and aid the Applicant in its ongoing efforts to remain competitive.

Chaparral maintained that if its Motion was granted and its application approved, Virginia Power should refund to Chaparral the difference between the rate paid under the Agreement and Rate Schedule 10 rate for the period following the effective date set by the Commission for Chaparral's service under Rate Schedule 10. The Applicant asserted that it was not attempting to go back in time, nor trying to create a new rate. Chaparral supported Virginia Power's interpretation of Section 23.j of the Agreement as a way to address any retroactive ratemaking concerns associated with the application and urged the Commission to act expeditiously and grant the relief requested in the application and the May 22, 2003, Motion.

NOW, UPON CONSIDERATION of Chaparral's application, the pleadings, and record herein, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that Chaparral should be permitted to take service under Rate Schedule 10, effective as of the date of this Order, based on the circumstances of this case. As noted in the application, Chaparral has agreed to interrupt its service for capacity needs for a period of eighteen months from the date of its application. This agreement supplies a benefit not provided by other Rate Schedule 10 customers - priority of service during a capacity-constrained period. In addition, Chaparral has agreed to pay for its interconnection facilities. In return, Virginia Power has agreed, subject to the conditions and the proposed additional contractual representations noted at pages 4-5 of the application,¹ to the early termination of this contract. In the absence of such agreement, the special rate contract would have expired by June 30, 2004.

While this application involves the early termination, rather than the creation of, a special rate contract, we agree with Staff that the statutory standards found in § 56-235.2 of the Code of Virginia are useful in analyzing Chaparral's application and Motion. That statute provides, in pertinent part, that the Commission shall before approving a special rate ... ensure that such action (i) protects the public interest, (ii) will not unreasonably prejudice or disadvantage any customer or class of customers, and (iii) will not jeopardize the continuation of reliable electric service.

While Chaparral's movement to Rate Schedule 10 will not unreasonably prejudice or disadvantage any customers or class of customers, it will increase the cost of fuel slightly to other Virginia Power customers. However, Chaparral has also agreed to curtail its loads upon Virginia Power for capacity, as opposed to economic, needs for a period of eighteen (18) months from the date of the application, unlike other customers served under Virginia Power's Rate Schedule 10.

Under these factual circumstances, we find it proper to allow Chaparral to take service, effective as of the date of this Order. This effective date, in our view, together with the other provisions and conditions found in Paragraph 9 at pages 4-5 of the April 29, 2003, application, protects the public interest, and is consistent with Section 23.j of the Agreement. Because the effective date for the approval granted herein is the date of this Order, no refunds must be made by Virginia Power to Chaparral.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Chaparral's application shall be granted insofar as it seeks authority to terminate the Agreement with Virginia Power immediately and to receive service under Rate Schedule 10. The authorization to take service under Rate Schedule 10 and terminate the Agreement with Virginia Power approved in Case No. PUE-1998-00333 is effective as of the date of this Order.

(2) In accordance with the findings made herein, the authority granted to Chaparral to take service under Rate Schedule 10 is subject to the conditions, representations, and commitments set out in Paragraph 9 at pages 4-5 of the April 29, 2003, Application.

(3) There being nothing further to be done herein, the captioned application shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings, and the papers filed herein shall be made a part of the Commission's files for ended causes.

¹ The conditions and representations found at pages 4-5 of the application include that (a) Virginia Power forego its right to insist that the Agreement remain in effect through June 30, 2004, and agree to immediate termination of the Agreement; (b) effective as soon as reasonably possible after Commission approval, Virginia Power provide electric service to Chaparral under its Rate Schedule 10; (c) Chaparral contractually shall agree to curtail its loads upon request by Virginia Power for capacity (as opposed to economic) needs for eighteen (18) months from the date of this application; (d) Chaparral contractually shall agree to continue to pay for its interconnection facilities; (e) Chaparral contractually shall agree to address and rectify, as necessary, the flicker factor related to its operations; and (f) the fuel costs associated with service to Chaparral shall be subject to average fuel cost treatment through Virginia Power's fuel factor, as is service to other Rate Schedule 10 customers.

SEPTEMBER 10, 2003

APPLICATION OF
CHAPARRAL (VIRGINIA) INC.

For early termination of a special contract and related findings

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

On April 29, 2003, Chaparral (Virginia) Inc. ("Chaparral" or the "Applicant") filed an application in both public and confidential versions with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"). This application requested the Commission to approve the early termination of the Applicant's special rate contract ("Agreement") with Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power" or the "Company").

On August 22, 2003, the Commission entered its Final Order in the proceeding. In that Order, the Commission found, among other things, that it was appropriate to permit Chaparral to take service under Virginia Power's Rate Schedule 10, effective as of the date of the August 22, 2003, Order. The Commission noted that the effective date of the Order, together with the other provisions and conditions found in Paragraph 9, pages 4-5 of Chaparral's April 29, 2003, application, protect the public interest, and was consistent with Section 23.j of the Agreement. The Commission further found that because the effective date for the approval granted was the date of the August 22, 2003, Order, no refunds to Chaparral by Virginia Power were necessary.

On September 3, 2003, Chaparral, by counsel, filed the "Petition for Reconsideration of Chaparral (Virginia) Inc." ("Petition") in both public and confidential versions. In its Petition, among other things, Chaparral noted that it proposed a mechanism in its May 22, 2003, Motion, whereby the Applicant would continue to pay the special contract rate during the investigation of the application. According to Chaparral, in the event the Commission ultimately approved the application, Virginia Power had agreed to refund to Chaparral the difference between the special rate contract rate and the Schedule 10 rate during the time the application was under consideration by the Commission.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Petition, the record in this proceeding, and the applicable law, is of the opinion and finds that the Petition should be denied.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The Petition for Reconsideration of Chaparral (Virginia) Inc. is hereby denied.
- (2) There being nothing further to come before the Commission, this case shall be dismissed and the papers herein placed in the file for ended causes.

AUGUST 28, 2003

APPLICATION OF
DALE SERVICE CORPORATION

For an Annual Informational Filing for Calendar Year 2002

FINAL ORDER

On May 1, 2003, Dale Service Corporation ("Dale Service" or the "Company") filed its initial Annual Informational Filing ("AIF") with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") in accordance with the Commission's Rules Governing Utility Rate Increase Applications and Annual Informational Filings, 20 VAC 5-200-30 et seq. and the Company's last rate Order, issued February 21, 2003, in Case No. PUE-2001-00200 ("Rate Order").¹

On August 1, 2003, the Commission's Staff filed a Staff Report in this case in which Staff determined the Company's fully adjusted Debt Service Coverage Ratio to be 1.08. Therefore, no reduction in quarterly rates in conformance with the Stipulation is necessary.

Following the accounting analysis given in the Staff Report concerning the Company's payment of its bond, the Staff specifically recommended that the Company be required to report on certain items in each future AIF as follows:

- a bond repayment scheduling showing total principal outstanding and annual principal due each year through the final principal payment;
- a schedule showing the portion of the plant financed with the bond and subject to 5% amortization, test year 5% amortization expense recorded on that plant, and accumulated amortization on those same facilities;
- the amount of any retirements of sewage treatment upgrade facilities;
- any further grants received by the Company; and
- a schedule of up-front bond issuance costs and the accumulated amortization of those costs.

The Staff indicated that with these reporting requirements, the Commission, Staff, and Dale Service will be cognizant of any significant disparities between the level of the plant recovered from ratepayers and the amortization booked for those same facilities. The Staff Report concluded that no further action needs to be taken concerning the Company's rates at this time.

On August 23, 2003, Dale Service filed a letter of response to the Staff Report ("Comments"). The Company submitted in its Comments that the Rate Order authorized an 81% rate increase (as opposed to the 104% reported by Staff) when guaranteed imputed revenues from new connections are excluded. The Company offered that the revenue increase thus produced from the Rate Order may be restated in two components: $2.8 million of operating revenue from its customers; and $700,000 from the guaranteed imputed revenue. The total increase of $3.5 million matches the annual increase in revenue reported by Staff.

Finally, the Company commented on the Staff's report that Dale Service has made a claim against the engineering company for damages resulting from cracks discovered in the walls of the newly-constructed sequence batch reactors. The Company explains that it is likely to file such a claim against the engineering company but that Dale Service is presently analyzing the need to file a claim.

The Commission accepts the recommendations contained in the Staff Report and the Comments filed by Dale Service and finds that this case should be closed.

On May 1, 2003 and on each successive annual filing of the AIF, if Dale Service's AIF filing calculates a DSC [debt service coverage] based on appropriately adjusted test year results that exceeds 1.20, Dale Service agrees to reduce rates going forward as of the next quarterly billing to produce a 1.20 DSC. If the Commission later adjusts Dale Service's AIF such that it results in an increase to the DSC above 1.20 and above that calculated by Dale Service, then rates shall be adjusted on a going forward basis as of the next quarterly billing to produce a 1.20 DSC based on the Commission's adjustments.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) The Staff's recommended reporting requirements are approved, and Dale Service is hereby ordered to comply by reporting on all items as found hereinabove in each future AIF.

(2) There being nothing further to come before the Commission, this matter is hereby closed.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00180
MAY 21, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

For authority to establish credit facility

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On May 1, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power" or "Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapters 3 and 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia wherein it requests authority to establish a $1.25 billion 364-day revolving credit and competitive loan facility ("Credit Facility"). The amount of short-term debt proposed in the application is in excess of twelve percent (12%) of total capitalization as defined in § 56-65.1 of the Code of Virginia. Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

In its application, Virginia Power, along with its parent, Dominion Resources, Inc. ("Dominion"), and affiliate, Consolidated Natural Gas Company ("CNG"), proposes to establish and share access to the Credit Facility. The Credit Facility will have a term of 364 days. The Borrowers have the right to extend the maturity of any loans or drawn amounts for one year from the expiration date of the Credit Facility.

By Commission Order dated May 24, 2002, in Case No. PUF-2002-00248, the Commission granted Virginia Power authority to establish a shared $2.0 billion syndicated revolving credit and competitive loan facility ("Old Facility") consisting of two portions: 1) a $1.25 billion 364-day revolving credit and competitive loan facility; and 2) a $750 million 3-year syndicated revolving credit and competitive loan facility. The Old Facility was also to be shared by Virginia Power, Dominion, and CNG. The Credit Facility proposed herein will replace the $1.25 billion facility approved by the Commission in Case No. PUF-2002-00248.

Virginia Power's use of the Credit Facility will be for general corporate purposes, including commercial paper liquidity back up.

The New Facility will be available for borrowings by Virginia Power, Dominion, and CNG, subject to the maximum aggregate limit of $1.25 billion, with the maximum amount fully available to be borrowed by each borrower. The New Facility will incorporate two borrowing arrangements: 1) a revolving credit loan facility; and 2) a competitive loan facility. The revolving credit feature of the facility represents funds that will be provided on a committed basis. The competitive loan feature of the facility represents funds that may be provided on an uncommitted basis through an auction mechanism conducted at the request of the borrower.

Loans under the Credit Facility will bear interest at one of the following rates, depending on the individual borrower's election, plus a margin: 1) the higher of J.P. Morgan Securities Inc.'s prime rate in effect at its New York City office or the fed funds rate plus 0.5%; or 2) the rate for Eurodollar deposits. Loans under the competitive loan arrangement will bear interest at either an absolute rate or a margin above the LIBOR Loan rate.

Commitment fees will accrue and be payable to the lenders based on the full amount of the facility. Virginia Power states that Dominion will be responsible for paying the commitment fee. The commitment fee will be allocated internally among the borrowers.

Each borrower is responsible for its own borrowings under the New Facility.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application, subsequent information provided by Applicant, and the advice of its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

1) Applicant is hereby authorized to establish a $1.25 billion syndicated revolving credit and competitive loan facility with its parent, Dominion, and its affiliate, CNG, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.

2) Applicant shall file a copy of the executed credit agreement promptly after it becomes available.

3) Applicant shall pay the facility fee, after internal allocations, based on an implied borrowing capacity of $312.5 million as stated in the application.

4) On or before June 30, 2004, Applicant shall file a report detailing use of the 364-day portion of the New Facility to include the date, amount, applicable interest rate of any loans under the facility segregated by borrower, and the use of the proceeds. In addition, such report shall include a separate accounting by Virginia Power of its daily short-term debt balance and the source of the borrowings.

5) The authority granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from applying the provisions of § 56-78 and § 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.

- 6) The Commission reserves the right, pursuant to § 56-79 of the Code of Virginia, to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein, whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 7) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 8) This matter shall remain under the continued review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

JULY 9, 2003

APPLICATION OF
KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY d/b/a OLD DOMINION POWER COMPANY

For approval of a Tax Allocation Agreement with its parent company pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On May 2, 2003, Kentucky Utilities Company d/b/a Old Dominion Power Company ("KU/ODP" or the "Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") requesting approval of a Tax Allocation Agreement ("Tax Agreement") pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (the "Code"). The Applicant also requests ongoing authority to participate in the Tax Agreement effective as of July 1, 2002.

KU/ODP is a wholly owned subsidiary of LG&E Energy Corporation ("LG&E"). KU/ODP provides retail electric service to approximately 471,000 customers in 77 counties and wholesale service to 12 municipalities in Kentucky. In Virginia, KU/ODP provides retail service to approximately 29,500 customers in five counties. KU/ODP also provides retail electric service to five customers in Tennessee and one municipal customer in Pennsylvania.

LG&E is a Kentucky Corporation and the parent for a number of subsidiary corporations, including Louisville Gas & Electric Corporation ("Louisville Gas"). Louisville Gas provides retail electric service to approximately 378,000 customers and retail gas service to approximately 305,000 customers in Kentucky. LG&E is a wholly owned subsidiary of the former Powergen U.S. Investments Corporation, now known as E.ON U.S. Investments Corporation ("U.S. Parent").

U.S. Parent, a 99.5% owned subsidiary of Powergen Ltd. ("Powergen"), is a Delaware Corporation and the parent for Powergen's U.S. based energy businesses, which are primarily located in Kentucky. U.S. Parent is a registered holding company under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (the "PUHCA").

Powergen, which is based in Coventry, England, is a vertically integrated Anglo-American energy services business that is one of the United Kingdom's leading integrated electricity and gas companies. Powergen is a wholly owned subsidiary of E.ON AG and a registered holding company under the PUHCA.

E.ON AG is a holding company based in Diisseldorf, Germany. It is Germany's third-largest industrial group, consisting of nearly 2,200 affiliated companies that employ more than 150,000 people and generate approximately 80 billion euros in annual revenues. E.ON AG's core energy business has more than 108,000 employees and generates annual revenues of more than 37 million euros. It is Europe's largest investor-owned energy service provider. Including E.ON AG, thirteen E.ON AG affiliates are registered holding companies under the PUHCA.

Federal Regulations

The Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), through Title 17, Code of Federal Regulations §250.45(c) ("Rule 45(c)"), requires holding companies registered under the PUHCA to file with the SEC written tax allocation agreements covering the holding company, its regulated utilities, and other consolidated subsidiaries (the "Group Members") in order to have the ongoing authority to file consolidated income tax returns with the federal government. In connection with the approval of the acquisition by E.ON AG of Powergen, the SEC approved the Tax Agreement effective July 1, 2002.

Tax Allocation Methodology

Rule 45(c)(2) states that:

The consolidated tax shall be apportioned among the several members of the group in proportion to (i) the corporate taxable income of each such member, or (ii) the separate return tax of each such member, but the tax apportioned to any subsidiary shall not exceed the separate return tax of such subsidiary.

Section 4 of the Tax Agreement describes U.S. Parent's consolidated income tax allocation methodology. Each Group Member, including the holding company, that shows a positive separate return tax liability ("Paying Member") is required to make a payment in the amount of its positive tax liability to U.S. Parent. Each Group Member, excluding the holding company, that shows a negative separate return tax liability ("Loss Member") is entitled to receive a payment in the amount of its negative tax liability from U.S. Parent. The Applicant represents that such tax benefits are allocated to the Loss Members as long as the losses are utilized on the consolidated return. The Loss Members do not have to be able to utilize the benefits on a separate return basis. Any tax benefits generated by the holding company as a Loss Member, excluding amounts associated with acquisition debt, will be allocated proportionately among the Paying Members. The total tax liability allocated to individual Group Members cannot, under any circumstances, exceed their separate return tax liability.

Section 4 also includes provisions to comply with Rule 45(c)(3) requirements regarding intercompany transactions and material items taxed at different rates. Intercompany eliminations that affect the consolidated tax liability will be assigned to the Group Member that necessitated the entry. Material items that are taxed at different rates or involve special benefits or limitations will be allocated to the Group Members responsible for the items.

The Tax Agreement also states that alternative minimum tax ("AMT") liability will be treated as part of a Group Member's separate return tax liability if the entire Affiliate Group incurs an AMT liability.

Holding Company Tax Benefits

The issue of holding company tax benefits stems from a series of changes in the interpretation of Rule 45(c)(5), which generally states that:

[The] agreement may include all members of the group in the tax allocation. An agreement under this paragraph shall provide that those associate companies with a positive allocation will pay the amount allocated and those subsidiary companies with a negative allocation will receive current payment of their corporate tax credits.

In 1981, though, the SEC amended the PUHCA to bar registered holding companies, which are usually Loss Members, from sharing in consolidated tax savings because of concerns about the possibility of improper upstream cash distributions. More recently, the SEC modified its position to allow holding companies to retain consolidated tax savings related to acquisition debt.¹ Therefore, the Tax Agreement includes a provision allowing U.S. Parent to retain the tax benefits related to acquisition debt. The Tax Agreement defines acquisition debt as any debt incurred by U.S. Parent to finance, refinance, or refund acquisitions by its U.S. utility and energy-related businesses. The Applicant justifies U.S. Parent's retention of the acquisition debt tax benefits by representing that the acquisition debt is non-recourse to the LG&E Energy Group, including KU/ODP, and is unrelated to the financing of subsidiary operations.

Net Operating Losses

Rule 45(c)(5) further states that the consolidated tax agreement "shall provide a method of apportioning such payments, and carrying over uncompensated benefits, if the consolidated loss is too large to be used in full." In accordance with this subsection, the Tax Agreement states that, if the tax benefits of the Loss Members cannot be fully utilized, then the Loss Members receive a proportionate allocation of the unused tax credits. Loss Members retain the right to carry forward or carry back any unutilized tax benefits.

State and Local Taxes

In contrast to the single methodology used to allocate consolidated federal income taxes, U.S. Parent employs four different filing methods for allocating state and local income tax liabilities among its Group Members. In a separate entity filing, all tax costs and benefits are calculated for and allocated to the subsidiary that filed the return (a "stand alone return"). In a unitary filing, tax costs and benefits are calculated for and allocated to the business unit that filed the return. In a nexus combined filing, tax costs and benefits are calculated and allocated as if each entity filed a stand alone return. With this method, both apportionment factors and taxable income are considered in the allocation. In a consolidated filing, tax costs and benefits are calculated and allocated as if the entity filed a stand alone return using both (a) the entity's property, payroll, and receipts apportioned to the taxing locality; and (b) its taxable income or loss. Entities lacking a nexus in the taxing locality receive no tax cost or benefit allocations. U.S. Parent uses the consolidated filing method to file KU/ODP's Virginia state income taxes.

Legal Provisions

According to the Tax Agreement, U.S. Parent shall be solely responsible for the preparation, elections, and filing of the consolidated tax return. U.S. Parent will also make all federal corporate income tax payments to the Internal Revenue Service on behalf of the consolidated group. If the consolidated tax liability is adjusted or amended, U.S. Parent will recalculate the effect of the adjustment for each Group Member and will receive payments from or make payments to each Group Member reflecting the adjustment.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of the Applicant and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the Tax Agreement as proposed is, in general, an equitable means of assigning consolidated tax liabilities to member companies. The Tax Agreement benefits KU/ODP as a positive separate return company because KU/ODP has the opportunity to receive consolidated tax benefits, which can reduce its tax liability and boost its cash flow. Therefore, we find that the Tax Agreement proposal is in the public interest and should be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, Kentucky Utilities Company d/b/a Old Dominion Power Company is hereby granted approval to participate in the Tax Allocation Agreement between E.ON U.S. Investments Corporation and its subsidiaries under the terms and conditions and for the purposes described herein, effective as of the date of this Order.
- 2) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in the terms and conditions of the Tax Allocation Agreement.
- 3) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications. The Commission reserves the right to reflect ratemaking adjustments to KU/ODP's income taxes in the course of the Commission's review and analysis of KU/ODP's cost of service in the future.
- 4) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 5) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 6) KU/ODP shall include the Tax Allocation Agreement approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission.

7) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then KU/ODP shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.

8) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

OCTOBER 24, 2003

APPLICATION OF
RAPPAHANNOCK ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to sell public service corporation property

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On June 3, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power") and Rappahannock Electric Cooperative ("REC") (collectively, the "Applicants") completed an application filed on May 7, 2003, with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under the Utility Transfers Act requesting authority for Dominion Virginia Power to sell and REC to purchase certain utility assets.

Dominion Virginia Power is a public service corporation with its principal office in Richmond, Virginia, and is engaged in the business of providing electric utility service in Virginia and northeastern North Carolina.

REC is a rural electric cooperative in Fredericksburg, Virginia, that provides retail electric service in the Counties of Albemarle, Caroline, Culpeper, Essex, Fauquier, Goochland, Greene, Hanover, King & Queen, King William, Louisa, Madison, Orange, Rappahannock, Spotsylvania, and Stafford. REC is a member of Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("ODEC"), a generation and transmission cooperative. Dominion Virginia Power furnishes electricity to ODEC pursuant to the Amended and Restated Interconnection and Operating Agreement between Virginia Electric and Power Company and Old Dominion Electric Cooperative dated July 29, 1997.

In its application, Dominion Virginia Power proposes to sell and REC proposes to purchase certain distribution facilities located within REC's certificated service territory. Pursuant to the letter of agreement between Dominion Virginia Power and REC dated May 21, 2001, Dominion Virginia Power would sell the facilities to REC for a total price of $60,964.00, representing the reproduction cost new depreciated value of the facilities as estimated by Dominion Virginia Power of $59,964.00 plus a legal and administrative fee of $1,000.00. The Applicants represent that the proposed transaction will promote an economy of service to the public by allowing REC to utilize the assets, now owned by Dominion Virginia Power, to provide electric service to REC customers. The facilities to be conveyed include the portion of Dominion Virginia Power's existing 34.5 kV distribution circuit 699 originating at Pole XL37 located at the intersection of Routes 681 and 211 and extending to REC's Orleans Delivery Point. These assets were being used by Dominion Virginia Power in connection with the sale for resale of electricity to REC and will be used by REC in connection with the distribution and sale of electricity to its retail customers.

The Applicants provide the original cost of the facilities at $42,367.00, which was determined by using cumulative average cost of facilities. The Applicants represent the net book value of the facilities to be $21,082.00. The Applicants state that the sales price was established pursuant to arms' length bargaining.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of the Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described transfer of utility assets will neither impair nor jeopardize the provision of adequate service to the public at just and reasonable rates and should, therefore, be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Pursuant to §§ 56-89 and 56-90 of the Code of Virginia, Dominion Virginia Power and REC are hereby granted authority for Dominion Virginia Power to sell and for REC to purchase the facilities as described herein for a total sales price of $60,964.00.

(2) The authority granted herein shall not be deemed to include any approvals other than for the transfer of facilities as described herein.

(3) The Applicants shall submit a report of the action taken pursuant to the authority granted herein within thirty (30) days of the transaction taking place, which deadline may be extended administratively by the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting. Such report shall include the date the sale took place, the actual sales price, and the actual accounting entries reflecting the transaction.

(4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

JUNE 19, 2003

REQUEST OF
THE POTOMAC EDISON COMPANY d/b/a ALLEGHENY POWER

For waiver of a provision of the Rules Governing Retail Access to Competitive Energy Services

ORDER GRANTING PARTIAL WAIVER

On March 20, 2003, The Potomac Edison Company d/b/a Allegheny Power ("AP" or the "Company") filed a request with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") for partial waiver of 20 VAC 5-312-20 P of the Rules Governing Retail Access to Competitive Energy Services ("Retail Access Rules"). The Retail Access Rules provide that a request for waiver of its provisions shall be considered by the Commission on a case-by-case basis. Any waiver may be granted upon such terms and conditions as the Commission may impose.

Rule 20 VAC 5-312-20 P requires, by March 31 of each year, the provider of electricity supply service to report to its customers and file a report with the Commission stating to the extent feasible, fuel mix and emissions data for the prior calendar year. In support of its request, AP States that it is faced with a unique situation this year as a result of joining PJM West ("PJM") as of April 1, 2002. According to the Company, it has two different generation mix data sets for calendar year 2002 - the first data set is applicable to January 1, 2002 - March 31, 2002, and is representative of AP's generation supplier mix during this time period, and the second data set is applicable to April 1, 2002 -- December 31, 2002, and is representative of PJM's generation mix.

AP requests a partial waiver of Rule 20 VAC 5-312-20 P with respect to its bill insert for customers. The Company states that it believes supplying customers with two separate generation mix labels will be confusing, and would like to provide customers with only the PJM generation mix label that is applicable to April 1 - December 31, 2002. AP states that this will mitigate customer confusion, and will allow customers to accurately compare the 2002 label with the PJM emissions data that will be reported in future years.

On May 13, 2003, the Commission entered an Order Permitting Responses to Request giving interested parties and the Staff an opportunity to respond to AP's request on or before June 11, 2003. The Staff filed its comments on the request on June 9, 2003. The Staff does not object to granting a partial waiver of 20 VAC 5-312-20 P to the Company since it believes that combining differing data from two time periods would be complicated and confusing to customers. The Staff states, however, that it is not opposed to permitting AP to report to its customers generation mix data from PJM for the period April 1, 2002, through December 31, 2002, providing that: (1) such data clearly identifies the applicable time period and PJM as the source of data, and (2) such recognition is not construed as a Staff recommendation in Case No. PUE-2000-00736, the docket in which the Commission is considering AP's request to join PJM.

No other comments were filed in response to AP's request for partial waiver.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the request, the Staff's comments, and the applicable statutes and rules, finds that AP's request for partial waiver of 20 VAC 5-312-20 P should be granted. However, our granting of this request does not reflect any Commission position on AP's request to transfer functional control of its transmission assets to PJM-West in Case No. PUE-2000-00736.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) AP's request for partial waiver of 20 VAC 5-312-20 P of the Retail Access Rules is granted, subject to the condition that the reporting of generation mix data to customers clearly identifies the applicable time period and PJM as the source of data.
- (2) AP shall complete release of its 2002 generation mix data to its customers by bill insert within 90 days of the date of this Order.
- (3) There being nothing further to be done, this matter is hereby dismissed from the Commission's docket of active cases.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00191
MAY 21, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

For authority to establish a credit facility

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On May 9, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power" or "Applicant") filed an application under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to establish a revolving credit facility. Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

In its application, Virginia Power proposes to establish a $200 million 3-year syndicated revolving credit facility. This facility will replace two existing credit facilities totaling $196.6 million.

Loans under the revolving credit facility will bear interest at one of the following rates, depending on the borrower's election, plus a margin based on the credit rating of the borrower: 1) the higher of J.P. Morgan's prime rate or the fed funds rate plus 0.5% or 2) the rate for Eurodollar deposits. Commitment fees will accrue and be payable based on the full amount of the credit facility. This fee will accrue at an annual rate based on the highest rating of the Company's senior unsecured long-term debt.

The proceeds of any borrowings by the Applicant under the credit facility will be used to purchase its tax-exempt variable rate securities in the event that these securities cannot be remarketed for any reason. Borrowings under the credit facility will be accounted for on the Applicant's books as short-term debt.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and the advice of its Staff is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to establish a 3-year $200 million syndicated revolving credit facility under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set fourth in the application.
- 2) Applicant shall file a copy of the executed credit facility agreement promptly after it becomes available.

- 3) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) On or before June 30th of 2004, 2005 and 2006, Applicant shall file a report detailing use of the 3-year credit facility to include date, amount, applicable interest rate of any loans under the facility, and the use of the proceeds. In addition, such report shall include a separate accounting by Virginia Power of its daily short-term debt balance and the source of its borrowings.
- 5) This matter shall remain under the continued review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

AUGUST 15, 2003APPLICATION OF
SOUTHSIDE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For review of tariffs and terms and conditions of service

FINAL ORDER

On May 8, 2003, Southside Electric Cooperative, Inc. ("Southside" or the "Cooperative"), filed an application for State Corporation Commission ("Commission") approval of the Cooperative's retail access tariffs and terms and conditions of service as required by paragraph (3) of the Commission's Final Order issued on December 18, 2001, in the Cooperative's case for functional separation, Case No. PUE-2000-00749. Southside stated in its application that it anticipates commencing retail access in its service territory on October 1, 2003.

Southside's retail access tariff filing includes: (1) Unbundled Tariffs and Rate Schedules for all customer classes; (2) terms and conditions for providing electrical service updated for unbundled service; (3) a Competitive Service Provider Agreement; (4) a Competitive Service Provider Dispute Resolution Procedure; (5) a Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff; (6) an Electronic Data Interchange ("EDI") Trading Partner Agreement; (7) a Transmission Customer Designation Form; (8) an Aggregator Agreement; (9) a Market Rate and Competitive Transition Charge Calculation; (10) an Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("ODEC")/Southside letter, constituting a binding agreement, on sharing of competitive transition charges; and (11) an Education Plan for Customers on Price to Compare.

On May 29, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Prescribing Notice and Inviting Comments and Requests for Hearing ("Order") in this proceeding, whereby it directed the Cooperative to publish notice of its application, and directed the Staff to investigate the application and file a report detailing its findings and recommendations. On July 3, 2003, the Cooperative filed its required proof of publication of notice and proof of notice to local governments, as required by the Order. On July 23, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in this proceeding wherein it recommended that the Commission approve Southside's tariffs and terms and conditions with the adoption of certain modifications recommended by Staff.

Staff stated in its report that the methodology employed by Southside in calculating projected market prices for generation applicable for the rate classes that will participate in retail choice, was the methodology set forth in the electric cooperatives' Comprehensive Wires Charges Proposal, approved by Commission Order issued May 24, 2002, in Case No. PUE-2001-00306 ("Wires Charges Case"). The Staff stated that it supports Southside's methodology for calculating the Cooperative's projected market prices, but noted a technical error in the calculation of the proposed wires charges. Staff indicated in its Report that Southside has agreed with Staff that there was an error in the calculation, and the Cooperative has provided Staff with the corrected tables, which are attached to its Report as Appendix A. Staff further found that the Cooperative's methodology for calculation of competitive transition charges ("CTCs") was appropriate; however, Staff recommended that the value currently used for the Cooperative's Wholesale Fuel Adjustment factor be updated to reflect the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to initiating retail access on October 1, 2003.

The Staff does not oppose the Cooperative's proposal, as reflected in its filed commitment document, for the allocation of wires charges revenue between ODEC and the Cooperative. If the agreement is renegotiated after December 31, 2003, the Staff stated that the renegotiated agreement must be submitted to the Commission for approval as required by § 56-484 of the Code of Virginia.

The Staff also stated in its Report that the Cooperative's proposed retail access schedules are consistent with the currently effective bundled service schedules, and the rates proposed for each service class reflect the rates in effect as of January 1, 2002, that were unbundled in Case No. PUE-2000-00749. Further, according to Staff, the CTCs included in the proposed retail access rates are supported by the Cooperative's Market Price Analysis. The Staff does not oppose Southside's proposal to offer Schedule SL to customers as a bundled lighting service only.

With respect to the Cooperative's proposed Terms and Conditions of service, the Staff made several recommendations for clarification and modification of existing and proposed language.

With respect to Customer Information, the Staff recommended that the Cooperative provide Competitive Service Providers ("CSPs") with historical energy usage information pursuant to Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D. Rule 60 D requires a CSP to obtain customer authorization prior to requesting any customer usage information not included on the mass list available from the local distribution company. The Staff recommended that the Cooperative amend its tariffs to release historical usage information that does not appear on the mass list to a CSP upon request at pre-enrollment, during enrollment and post-enrollment.

Staff recommends acceptance of the cost-based fees proposed by the Cooperative, namely the CSP Registration Fee, Technical Support ("IT") and Customer Service Representative ("CSR") Fees.

Staff also recommends acceptance of the Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements, as attachments to the Cooperative's Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff.

Finally, the Staff found that the proposed dispute resolution procedure was appropriate and should be accepted.

Southside did not file any comments on the Staff Report.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Cooperative's application, the Staff Report, and applicable law, finds that Southside's tariffs and terms and conditions of service should be approved, as modified and recommended by the Staff.

We incorporate, by reference, our findings in the Wires Charges Case (Case No. PUE-2001-00306). The Cooperative's proposed CTC reflects the appropriate fuel adjustments and wires calculation. The wires charges calculated are subject to the limitation of Va. Code § 56-583, which permits adjustments no more frequently than annually. Thus, these wires charges are effective until December 31, 2004, in conformance with Ordering Paragraph (5) of the May 24, 2002, Order in the Wires Charges Case. As discussed above, the value used for the fuel adjustment to base generation should be updated to reflect the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to Southside initiating retail access in its service territory.

With respect to Southside's commitment document with ODEC to reflect the allocation of wires charge revenue, we accept the Cooperative's proposal, however, with the condition that if the commitment agreement is renegotiated to change the revenue sharing ratio, Southside must submit the renegotiated agreement to the Commission for further approval. As we have previously discussed in Case No. PUE-2002-00575¹, Virginia Code § 56-584 states, in pertinent part:

To the extent not preempted by federal law, the establishment by the Commission of wires charges for any distribution cooperative shall be conditioned upon such cooperative entering into binding commitments by which it will pay to any power supply cooperative of which such distribution cooperative is or was a member, as compensation for such power supply cooperative's stranded costs, all or part of the proceeds of such wires charges, as determined by the Commission.

In that proceeding, we found that the plain language of the statute specifies that the allocation of wires charges between a power supply cooperative and a distribution cooperative is established "as determined by the Commission." Thus, any change to the commitment agreement must be submitted to the Commission for approval.

With respect to Southside's proposed unbundled lighting service schedule, we will accept the Cooperative's proposed schedules. We have previously approved such schedules in Southside's functional separation case, Case No. PUE-2000-00749.

With respect to the proposed new CSP Registration, IT and CSR fees, we adopt these fees as proposed by Southside.

With respect to the CSP, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements, we accept their inclusion as attachments to the CSP Coordination Tariff.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Southside's tariffs and terms and conditions of service, as modified by the Staff's recommendations and subject to the modifications discussed herein, are hereby approved.

(2) Southside shall file revised tariffs and terms and conditions of service reflecting the findings herein, as soon as practicable after the date of this order.

(3) Southside may initiate retail choice in its service territory upon the filing required by paragraph (2) above.

(4) This case is hereby dismissed, and the papers shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00218 NOVEMBER 4, 2003

PETITION OF
URCHIE B. ELLIS

Regarding a request for the State Corporation Commission to create and/or designate a special Staff to represent the interests of the general public

FINAL ORDER

On May 14, 2003, Urchie B. Ellis, a resident of the City of Richmond, Virginia, filed a petition ("Petition") with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission").¹ In the Petition, Mr. Ellis states that he is greatly concerned about the lack of public representation and voice in the numerous cases and dockets related to electric deregulation. Mr. Ellis specifically requests the Commission to act and take steps to create, and/or designate, a special Staff to represent the general public, such as homeowners, tenants, and small businesses. Mr. Ellis states that the basis for his request is that the general public does not have a professional staff and the business leverage to negotiate and get favorable rates in a deregulated environment, as do the parties pushing for electric deregulation. Further, Mr. Ellis indicates that the Virginia Constitution imposes on the Commission the duty to ensure that the interests of the consumers of Virginia are represented.

On July 11, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Inviting Comments ("Order Inviting Comments"), which docketed this proceeding, provided interested persons an opportunity to submit comments on the Petition on or before August 6, 2003, and permitted Mr. Ellis to respond to any comments on or before August 29, 2003. The Order Inviting Comments also explained that the legal issue central to the Petition is whether the Commission has the authority to grant Mr. Ellis' request, taking into consideration Article IX, Section 2 of the Virginia Constitution and Va. Code § 2.2-517. The Order Inviting Comments encouraged comments on both legal and factual issues raised by the Petition.

On July 20, 2003, Charles E. Webber, Jr., of Richmond submitted comments agreeing with Mr. Ellis. Mr. Webber states that the consumer would be better served by a special consumer staff at the Commission.

On July 21, 2003, Laura B. Greer of Richmond submitted comments asking the Commission to act favorably on the Petition. Ms. Greer states that this is an issue of tremendous concern to all consumers but that its impact is difficult to understand and assess.

On July 28, 2003, Gary C. Heath, former executive director of the California Electricity Oversight Board, submitted correspondence supporting the Petition. Mr. Heath states that a special staff is necessary due to the complexity of this issues and the voluminous filings that are required at the state and federal levels. Mr. Heath hopes that Virginia learns from California's mistakes and gives its consumers a stronger voice in these matters.

On July 31, 2003, the Honorable Thomas K. Norment, Jr., Member, Senate of Virginia, submitted a letter in this matter. Senator Norment states that "it seems prudent – indeed mandatory – for the Commission to determine if it has jurisdiction" to consider the matters raised in the Petition before proceeding further. Senator Norment requests that the Commission bifurcate this case, preserving the current comment schedule for jurisdictional questions and reserving comments on the merits until it is determined whether the Commission has jurisdiction to entertain the issues raised in the Petition. In addition, Senator Norment states: "To the extent necessary, please consider this letter as a motion for such action."

On August 1, 2003, the Commission issued an Order, which provided that the letter received from Senator Norment shall be treated as comments and as a motion to bifurcate this proceeding, and which established dates for the filing of any response and reply to such motion.

On August 1, 2003, C. William Uhr, Jr., Managing Partner, UHR Technologies, submitted comments supporting the creation of a special Staff to represent the general public with respect to how small consumers might be better served by regulated utilities and properly represented in dockets related to electric deregulation.

On August 4, 2003, the Honorable William J. Howell, Speaker, Virginia House of Delegates, submitted comments stating that he shared the concerns contained in Senator Norment's correspondence and that he joined in Senator Norment's formal request that the Commission amend the Order Inviting Comments to first consider only the jurisdictional question of whether the Commission has the requisite authority to grant the relief sought by Mr. Ellis.

On August 5, 2003, Jack Greenhalgh, President, New Era Energy, Inc., submitted comments supporting Mr. Ellis' Petition. Mr. Greenhalgh states that the Commission should establish full-time, dedicated, technically competent and adequately compensated staff positions to represent the interests of residential and small business consumers.

On August 6, 2003, John D. Golden of Richmond submitted comments in support of Mr. Ellis' position that the Commission appoint an advocate to represent consumers on issues regarding electric deregulation.

On August 6, 2003, Donna Reynolds of Richmond submitted comments in support of any effort to increase consumer protections as Virginia begins to deregulate electricity. Ms. Reynolds recommends that any new effort by the Commission should be charged with developing creative ways to engage the public's participation and encourage understanding of electric deregulation.

On August 6, 2003, Harry L. Cohn of Richmond submitted comments supporting the Petition. Mr. Cohn states that the public is unaware of the proposals to deregulate the power industry and asks the Commission to protect the consumer.

On August 6, 2003, Irene E. Leech, Ph.D., President, Virginia Citizens Consumer Council, filed comments concluding that one way to improve the current situation would be to take the step proposed by Mr. Ellis. Ms. Leech asserts that the Virginia Attorney General's Office does not have sufficient staff to address every consumer issue, and that the Attorney General's Office must balance its concerns for residential consumers with those of other consumers. Ms. Leech explains that it is appropriate to consider which government entities represent consumers, the extent of resources available to those entities, and ways to improve the current situation.

On August 6, 2003, Atmos Energy Corporation, Dale Service Corporation, Delmarva Power & Light Company, Kentucky Utilities Company d/b/a Old Dominion Power Company, Roanoke Gas Company, Southwestern Virginia Gas Company, Virginia-American Water Company, and the Virginia Telecommunications Industry Association ("Commenting Companies") filed joint comments. The Commenting Companies assert that the Commission lacks the authority to appoint a special Staff, and that creation of a special Staff is not necessary, would be duplicative of existing entities' responsibilities, and would be a significant waste of precious and limited state resources.

On August 6, 2003, the following former Attorneys General of Virginia submitted joint comments: the Honorable Andrew P. Miller; the Honorable Anthony F. Troy; the Honorable Marshall Coleman; the Honorable Gerald L. Baliles; the Honorable William G. Broaddus; the Honorable Stephen D. Rosenthal; the Honorable James S. Gilmore, III; the Honorable Richard Cullen; the Honorable Mark L. Earley; and the Honorable Randolph A. Beales ("Former Attorneys General"). The Former Attorneys General state that for more than three decades, the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Counsel ("Consumer Counsel") has served as an effective and persuasive advocate for the rights of consumers throughout the Commonwealth in regulatory proceedings, and that creation of an additional function or office within the Commission Staff would simply duplicate the functions that have been handled ably and conscientiously by Consumer Counsel. The Former Attorneys General also state that the General Assembly has provided for the representation of consumer interests through the creation and maintenance of Consumer Counsel as contemplated under Article IX, Section 2 of the Constitution of Virginia.

On August 6, 2003, Consumer Counsel filed a Motion to Dismiss and Comments. Consumer Counsel states that the Commission lacks the authority to grant the relief sought by Mr. Ellis. Consumer Counsel also asserts that a special Staff would be redundant and unnecessary, and likely would present difficult procedural and substantive issues that would hinder the Commission in its ability to continue adjudicating matters in an efficient and organized manner generally acceptable to all case participants. In addition, Consumer Counsel explains that it ably represents the interests of consumers before the Commission, and that it participates in the vast majority of the more controversial and issue-laden electric utility cases where the issues translate into real dollars to consumers.

On August 19, 2003, Mr. Ellis filed a reply. Mr. Ellis states that while no member of the public filed in opposition to his Petition, "there was some formidable opposition ... concentrated largely on the legal issues of Commission authority to do as requested, and to a small degree on the need to do so."

Mr. Ellis asserts that the "authority of the Attorney General to participate on behalf of the public in matters before the Commission is not an exclusive delegation, and does not obligate that [the Attorney General] do so. He has complete discretion." In addition, Mr. Ellis states that the "Commission has a Constitutional duty, which still remains, and has been augmented by various specific references in the [Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act ('Act')]." Mr. Ellis concludes that there is an acute need for more public voice in connection with electric deregulation.

Mr. Ellis also requests the Commission not to confine its consideration of a special Staff to representation only in Commission proceedings. Mr. Ellis contends that there is an acute need for better voices before the General Assembly's Commission on Electric Utility Restructuring and the Consumer Advisory Board, and he urges the Commission to consider a special Staff to participate in such matters on behalf of consumers.

Finally, Mr. Ellis states that several papers were filed in opposition to his Petition, and that these papers were signed by experienced attorneys who failed to have the courtesy to send him copies and some were submitted directly to the Commissioners. As a result, Mr. Ellis requests that the Commission strike all of the comments submitted in opposition to the Petition, except Consumer Counsel's comments, which were served on Mr. Ellis. Mr. Ellis also asserts that there is no reason to bifurcate this proceeding: "The issues are simple and clear and can easily be handled in one decision."

On August 20, 2003, the Commenting Companies filed a response to Senator Norment's motion. The Commenting Companies state that their prior comments adopt a position similar to that of Senator Norment. Also on August 20, 2003, Consumer Counsel filed a response supporting Senator Norment's motion.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the pleadings and the applicable law, finds as follows. We decline the request to create a special Staff that represents only consumers. The Staff's role in Commission cases is necessarily broader than that sought by Mr. Ellis, and the General Assembly has designated Consumer Counsel as the statutory representative of consumer interests.

In regulatory proceedings, the Commission's Staff appears in order to ensure that pertinent issues on behalf of the general public interest are clearly presented to the Commission.² The public interest is not limited to the interests of the consumers for which Mr. Ellis seeks special representation. The public interest is broader and encompasses, for example, public utilities, alternative providers, customers of all sizes, Virginia's citizens, and other concerns related to the unique facts and circumstances presented in each case. Conversely, as established by the General Assembly in Va. Code § 2.2-517, it is the responsibility of Consumer Counsel to represent solely the interests of consumers in matters before the Commission.

Mr. Ellis also requests that special Staff be created to give the general public a greater voice and more involvement in matters before the General Assembly. Consistent with the discussion above, however, the Commission Staff's participation before the General Assembly involves the general public interest. Article IX, § 2 of the Constitution of Virginia requires the Commission, "in proceedings before it," to ensure that the interests of the consumers of the Commonwealth are represented. We certainly do not have the authority to decide who represents the "consumer" before the General Assembly.

Although Mr. Ellis' Petition focuses on proceedings concerning electric deregulation, the matters regulated by the Commission, and involving Commission Staff, obviously extend well beyond electric deregulation. Staff is involved, for example, in matters relating to electricity, natural gas, telecommunications, water and sewer service, insurance, financial institutions, and securities. In addition, Consumer Counsel often participates in such matters on behalf of the interests of consumers.

We also recognize that the Virginia Constitution and statutes do not prohibit Commission Staff from focusing on consumer issues from time to time or on a regular basis. For example, the Act requires the Commission to "establish or maintain a complaint bureau for the purpose of receiving, reviewing and investigating complaints by retail customers against public service companies, licensed suppliers, aggregators and other providers . . ."³ As another example, the General Assembly established the Office of Managed Care Ombudsman within the Commission to help Virginia consumers who have health care insurance provided by a managed care health insurance plan. Moreover, Staff in the Commission's Bureaus of Financial Institutions and Insurance, and in the Divisions of Energy, Communications, and Securities and Retail Franchising regularly address consumer complaints, provide assistance to consumers, and develop educational materials for consumers. These various consumer-related activities, however, are distinct from, and do not encompass, the representation solely of consumer interests in proceedings before the Commission.

In proceedings before the Commission, the objective of the Commission's Staff is, and must continue to be, to protect the public interest. Staff's participation in Commission proceedings encompasses protection of consumer interests but is not limited to those interests. Rather, Staff must take into account consumer interests as part of the overall public interest.⁴ Consumer Counsel, on the other hand, is statutorily charged with representing the interests of consumers in matters before the Commission.⁵ Indeed, Consumer Counsel notes that the Commission may request Consumer Counsel to participate in proceedings if the Commission concludes that separate consumer representation is needed.⁶

Finally, we will not strike any of the documents discussed in this Order. We note that comments and motions were submitted to the Commission but not provided to Mr. Ellis. However, there does not appear to be any undue prejudice to Mr. Ellis as a result of these failures.

³ Va. Code § 56-592 E.

⁵ Consumer Counsel asserts that the roles of a special Staff and of Consumer Counsel apparently would be indistinguishable.

AUGUST 13, 2003

APPLICATION OF
COLUMBIA GAS OF VIRGINIA, INC.

For approval of gas supply and other related supply arrangements pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On May 19, 2003, Columbia Gas of Virginia, Inc. ("CGV" or the "Applicant"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") under Chapter 4, Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (the "Affiliates Act"), requesting approval of standardized base contracts ("Base Contract(s)") governing gas supply and other related supply arrangements with Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc. ("COH"), Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc. ("CKY"), Columbia Gas of Pennsylvania, Inc. ("CPA"), Columbia Gas of Maryland, Inc. ("CMD"), Northern Indiana Public Service Company ("NIPSCO"), Northern Indiana Fuel and Light Company ("NIFL"), Kokomo Gas and Fuel Company ("Kokomo"), Bay State Gas Company ("Bay State"), Northern Utilities, Inc. ("NU"), and Energy USA-TPC Corporation ("TPC"). The Applicant requests approval of the Base Contracts without time limitation restrictions and without further approval from the Commission. In addition, CGV requests approval to execute Base Contracts with future affiliated regulated distribution companies without further approval of the Commission. The Applicant also requests approval of a Gas Supply Policy ("GSP") under which CGV will enter into gas supply transactions with affiliates. Finally, the Applicant requests approval without the necessity of a public hearing. By Commission Order dated July 11, 2003, the Commission extended the period for review of the application through August 17, 2003.

The current application is the successor to CGV's initial application for approval of the Base Contracts and GSP, Case No. PUA-2001-00068, which was filed November 20, 2001. In the Order for that case, issued February 19, 2002, the Applicant received approval for the Base Contracts and GSP for 18 months from the date of the Commission's Order. The Commission stated that "this limited approval period will allow Staff to re-evaluate such transactions to ensure that the gas supply agreements and arrangements continue to be in the public interest."

CGV is a natural gas distribution company serving approximately 193,000 customers in central Virginia, southside Virginia, Piedmont Virginia, and most of the Shenandoah Valley as well as portions of Northern and Southwest Virginia. CGV is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Columbia Energy Group ("CEG").

CEG is the holding company for CGV, COH, CKY, CPA, and CMD, which collectively provide natural gas distribution service to approximately 2.1 million residential, commercial, and industrial customers in Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. CEG is a registered holding company under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (the "PUHCA"), and a wholly owned subsidiary of NiSource, Inc. ("NiSource").

NIPSCO, NIFL, and Kokomo provide natural gas distribution service to approximately 770,000 customers in northern Indiana. NIPSCO, NIFL, and Kokomo are wholly owned subsidiaries of NiSource.

Bay State and NU provide natural gas distribution service to more than 329,000 customers in Massachusetts, Maine, and New Hampshire. Bay State and NU are wholly owned subsidiaries of NiSource.

TPC is an energy marketing company that is engaged in the business of selling, purchasing, and exchanging natural gas commodities and other related services. TPC is a wholly owned subsidiary of Energy USA, Inc., which is a wholly owned subsidiary of NiSource.

NiSource is an energy holding company whose subsidiaries provide natural gas, electricity, and other products and services to approximately 3.7 million customers located within a corridor that runs from the Gulf Coast through the Midwest to New England. Effective November 1, 2001, NiSource became a registered holding company under the PUHCA. For the fiscal year ending 2002, NiSource reported gross revenues of $6.5 billion, total assets of $16.9 billion, and 9,307 employees. On July 3, 2003, NiSource reached agreements to sell its exploration and production subsidiary, Columbia Energy Resources, and the assets of its cogeneration subsidiary, Primary Energy, Inc., in order to focus on its core regulated businesses.

Base Contracts

CGV states that, in the natural gas industry, it is customary for buyers and sellers to negotiate a Base Contract to facilitate gas sales, purchases, exchanges, and other supply transactions. A Base Contract creates a contractual framework within which the parties can enter into one or more individual gas supply transactions ("transactions") by means of a "Transaction Confirmation" that generally incorporates by reference the standardized terms and conditions of the Base Contract. Under a Base Contract, either party can be the buyer or seller. A Transaction Confirmation specifies the details of a particular transaction with respect to such key contract terms as quantity, price, term, delivery and receipt points, and any other special provisions in the transaction. The purpose of the Base Contract structure is to allow the parties to quickly execute market orders and to avoid costly delays caused by extensive contract negotiations over specific sales and purchases. Each Base Contract has a term of one month and continues from month to month unless terminated by either party with 30 days advance notice.

Gas Supply Policy

The GSP governs CGV's management of gas supply transactions with its affiliates. The GSP states that its purpose is to ensure that CGV obtains the least cost-reliable supply of gas for the benefit of its ratepayers.

To fulfill its obligation as a supplier of economic-reliable gas supplies to its customers, CGV monitors and participates in the gas marketplace to obtain and, at times, reduce its available gas supplies. This process includes obtaining market information from a pool of gas suppliers, including CGV's affiliates, that may be interested in doing business with the Applicant. CGV uses the information to determine current market prices and measure the availability of gas supplies.

Under the GSP, when CGV buys gas it uses the market information to obtain the lowest price for gas purchases that meets its reliability requirements. In non-emergency situations, CGV purchases gas from affiliates only if the offer price is at or below current market prices.

Under the GSP, when CGV sells gas it uses the market information to obtain the highest price for its gas sales. In non-emergency situations, CGV sells gas to affiliates only if the offer price is at or above current market prices.

During emergency situations, CGV represents that its relationships with other NiSource gas utilities give it access to a larger gas supply market than it would have available as a stand alone utility. In these situations, the GSP states that gas sales and purchases will be made at the current market price.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the Base Contract agreements and the GSP described above are in the public interest and should be approved, subject to certain conditions we find necessary in this instance to protect the public interest.

Since the Order in Case No. PUA-2001-00068 granting 18-month approval of the Base Contracts and GSP was issued, only four gas supply transactions have taken place. Three of the four transactions were with COH; the other was with CPA. All four transactions occurred this past winter, in January, February, and March of 2003. The three COH transactions were temporary gas exchanges that allowed CGV to mitigate firm capacity constraints. The CPA transaction was a gas purchase that allowed CGV to avoid a temporary spike in local city gate prices. In the transactions to date, the Base Contract arrangements and GSP appear to have benefited CGV. However, we believe that four transactions in 18 months do not provide a sufficient sample for the Commission to make a definitive statement about the long-term merits of the gas supply arrangements. Therefore, we find that the Base Contracts should be approved for another 24 months with the same monitoring requirements that we approved in Case No. PUA-2001-00068.

Regarding the proposed GSP, the Commission believes that market pricing is appropriate as long as the market price used for CGV purchase transactions is the lowest available delivered market price to CGV, and the market price for CGV sales transactions is highest available delivered market price available to CGV. Therefore, we find that the GSP should be approved as requested.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, CGV is hereby granted approval to enter into Base Contracts with COH, CKY, CPA, CMD, NIPSCO, NIFL, Kokomo, Bay State, NU, and TPC, with the authority to execute individual Transaction Confirmations without Commission approval at the prevailing market price as long as such price is the delivered market price, for a period of 24 months from the date of this Order.
- 2) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, CGV is hereby granted approval to enter into Base Contracts with future regulated affiliate distribution companies without further Commission approval, for a period of 24 months from the date of this Order, to the extent that such Base Contracts are under the same terms and conditions and follow the pricing policy as approved herein. CGV shall promptly notify the Commission of any Base Contracts entered into with any future regulated affiliate distribution companies.
- 3) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, CGV is hereby granted approval of the Gas Supply Policy as requested.
- 4) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in the terms and conditions to the Base Contracts and Gas Supply Policy from those contained herein.
- 5) The approvals granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 6) CGV shall file a new application to extend the approval granted herein for the Base Contracts beyond 24 months from the date of this Order.
- 7) The approvals granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications for annual informational filings ("AIF") or future rate proceedings.
- 8) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approvals granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 9) CGV shall bear the burden of proving, in any AIF or rate proceeding, that gas supply purchases from affiliates were made at the lowest possible cost and that sales to affiliates were made at the highest possible price. CGV shall maintain the records necessary to show that gas supply purchases from affiliates were made at the lowest possible cost to meet CGV's needs at a particular time, and that sales to affiliates were made at the highest possible price.
- 10) CGV shall maintain a log of all transactions authorized pursuant to the Base Contracts and Gas Supply Policy approved herein and will submit quarterly reports to the Division of Energy Regulation. The log shall, at a minimum, note the dates of individual transactions, provide a description of each transaction including the reasons underlying the transaction, explain the basis for the market price ascribed to each transaction, and, in instances where CGV is selling gas to an affiliate, note CGV's actual cost of gas resold.
- 11) CGV shall provide to Staff any information deemed necessary to enable Staff to monitor effectively such transactions.
- 12) CGV shall include the Base Contracts approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting on or before May 1 of each year, which deadline may be extended administratively by the Director of Public Utility Accounting.

13) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then CGV shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.

14) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On May 21, 2003, Shenandoah Valley Electric Cooperative ("Applicant" or "Shenandoah"), filed an application under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"). In its application, Shenandoah requests authority to incur long-term indebtedness from the United States of America through the Rural Utilities Service ("RUS"). Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $25.

Applicant requests authority to borrow up to $18,000,000 ("Proposed Debt") from RUS. The proceeds from the loan will be used to finance construction of additional electric distribution, transmission and service lines consistent with its approved three year work plan. Applicant states that these improvements will provide service to approximately 1,789 additional customers.

The Proposed Debt will be issued in the form of a Mortgage Note secured by all the assets of Shenandoah, pursuant to the terms and conditions of the RUS Loan Contract and Mortgage Note as set out in Exhibits A and B of the application. The Proposed Debt will have a final maturity term of 35 years, during which portions may be advanced within an initial four year Fund Advance Period. For each advance under this program, Applicant has the option to select the current Treasury rate commensurate with interim terms of 1,2,3,5,7,10,20, or 30 years. Alternatively, Applicant may select the current 30-year United States Treasury ("Treasury") rate to apply over the entire 35 year period. At the end of each interim term, Applicant would select a subsequent term that falls within the remainder of the 35-year final maturity term.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to incur up to $18,000,000 in long-term debt from the RUS for the purposes, and under the terms and conditions, as set forth in its application.

- 3) Approval of the application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) There being nothing further to be done, this matter is hereby dismissed.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00222
JUNE 11, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

For authority to establish an inter-company credit agreement

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On May 23, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power" or "Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapters 3 and 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia wherein it requests authority to establish a $1 billion inter-company credit agreement ("Credit Agreement") with its parent, Dominion Resources, Inc. ("Dominion"). Loans under the Credit Agreement will be in the form of short-term demand notes with maturities of less than 365 days. The amount of short-term debt proposed in the application is in excess of twelve percent (12%) of total capitalization as defined in § 56-65.1 of the Code of Virginia. Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

Virginia Power states in its application that on occasions, Dominion has cash available for use by its subsidiaries. On a DRI-consolidated basis, the best use of this available cash may be to pay-off outstanding debt at Virginia Power. Approval of the Credit Agreement will provide a means to execute such a transaction. The Credit Agreement does not allow for borrowings by DRI from Virginia Power.

The Credit Agreement will have a termination date of May 30, 2005. The interest rate or cost to Virginia Power will be equal to or less than its displaced borrowing cost. Interest will accrue daily at a rate no greater than the average rate of Virginia Power's outstanding commercial paper as determined on the business day immediately preceding the borrowing. If there is no outstanding commercial paper on that day, the interest rate will be no greater than that as determined by adding 1) the spread over one-month London Inter-Bank Offering Rate ("LIBOR") of the average rate on outstanding commercial paper as of the most recent business day wherein commercial paper was outstanding; and 2) the one-month LIBOR rate effective on the business day immediately preceding the borrowing.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to establish a $1 billion credit agreement with its parent, Dominion, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Applicant shall file a copy of the executed Credit Agreement promptly after it becomes available.
- 3) On or before June 30th of 2004 and 2005, Applicant shall file a report detailing use of the Credit Agreement to include the date, amount, applicable interest rate of any loans under the Credit Agreement, the basis for the interest rate, and the use of the proceeds.
- 4) The authority granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from applying the provisions of § 56-78 and § 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 5) The Commission reserves the right, pursuant to § 56-79 of the Code of Virginia, to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein, whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 6) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 7) This matter shall remain under the continued review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

JULY 28, 2003

APPLICATION OF
COLUMBIA GAS OF VIRGINIA, INC.

For approval of intercompany financing

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On May 23, 2003, Columbia Gas of Virginia, Inc. ("CGV" or "Applicant"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapters 3 and 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia for authority to borrow and invest up to $75,000,000 through the NiSource Intrasystem Money Pool ("Money Pool").¹ CGV amended the investment limitation to $30,000,000 in a letter dated June 13, 2003. The amount of short-term debt authority requested in the application is in excess of twelve (12) percent of total capitalization as defined in § 56-65.1 of the Code of Virginia. Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

CGV requests authority to borrow up to $75,000,000 and invest excess short-term funds up to $30,000,000 in the Money Pool for the period July 1, 2003, through December 31, 2005. The proceeds will be used to finance peak short-term requirements, including gas purchases and gas stored. The interest rate on short-term borrowings from and lending to the Money Pool will equal the weighted average daily interest rate on (i) short-term extended borrowings by NiSource Finance Corp. ("NFC") plus (ii) earnings on external investments by NFC.

CGV requests authority to participate in the Money Pool with borrowing and investment limitations different than those established by the Commission in the Applicant's most recent financing application, Case No. PUE-2002-00310. In Case No. PUE-2002-00310, CGV received authority to borrow up to $45 million in short-term debt and invest up to $45 million in short-term funds through the Money Pool.²

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and the advice of its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application, subject to the modifications detailed herein, will not be detrimental to the public interest.

The Commission notes that participants in the Money Pool include both regulated and non-regulated participants. The non-regulated participants have less certain revenues and more business risk than rate-regulated participants. Such risks increase the likelihood of bankruptcy by those participants. In the event of a bankruptcy by one of the non-regulated participants, CGV's investment might be lost. Therefore, the Commission grants authority to CGV to participate in the Money Pool, on the condition that the non-regulated participants that may borrow from the Money Pool shall not be allowed to borrow, in the aggregate, more than the amount that the non-regulated participants (including NiSource, Inc., and NFC) have invested in the Money Pool. Additionally, the Commission is aware of the on-going debate over the possible repeal or amendment of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("PUHCA"). Therefore, the authority granted herein is subject to PUHCA remaining materially unaltered.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) CGV is hereby authorized to borrow up to $75,000,000 from the NiSource Money Pool from the date of this order through December 31, 2005, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application consistent with the findings and subject to the modifications detailed herein.
- 2) CGV is hereby authorized to invest temporary excess cash up to $30,000,000 in the NiSource Money Pool from the date of this order through December 31, 2005, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application, subject to the modifications detailed herein.
- 3) In the event that the PUHCA is repealed or materially amended before December 31, 2005, this authorization shall expire unless otherwise ordered in this case.
- 4) Should any of the terms and conditions of the NiSource Money Pool change from those approved herein, Applicant shall seek Commission approval for such changes.
- 5) Should Applicant wish to obtain authority to participate in the NiSource Money Pool beyond December 31, 2005, it shall file an application requesting such authority no later than November 1, 2005.
- 6) The application referenced in Ordering Paragraph (5) above shall include proforma sources and uses of funds schedules for the next three years; a monthly projection of money pool borrowing and lending balances; and documentation supporting the need of the requested short-term borrowing limit and the requested short-term investment limit.
- 7) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 8) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein, whether or not each affiliate is regulated by the Commission.
- 9) The approvals granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code hereafter.

10) Applicant shall file quarterly reports of action within 60 days of the end of each calendar quarter during the authorization period July 1, 2003, through December 31, 2005, for each preceding calendar quarter, with the last quarterly report being filed February 28, 2006. Such updates shall include:

- a) a monthly schedule of Nisource Money Pool borrowings, segmented by borrower; and
- b) a monthly schedule that separately reflects interest expenses, each type of allocated fee, and an explanation of how both the interest rate and allocated fees have been calculated.

11) This case shall remain open and the matter shall remain under the continued review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

APPLICATION OF
COLUMBIA GAS OF VIRGINIA, INC.

For approval of intercompany financing

ORDER GRANTING RECONSIDERATION

On May 23, 2003, Columbia Gas of Virginia, Inc. ("CGV" or "Applicant"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapters 3 and 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia for authority to borrow and invest up to $75,000,000 through the NiSource Intrasystem Money Pool ("Money Pool").¹ CGV amended the investment limitation to $30,000,000 in a letter dated June 13, 2003. The amount of short-term debt authority requested in the application is in excess of twelve (12) percent of total capitalization as defined in § 56-65.1 of the Code of Virginia. Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

CGV requested authority to borrow up to $75,000,000 and invest excess short-term funds up to $30,000,000 in the Money Pool for the period July 1, 2003, through December 31, 2005. The interest rate on short-term borrowings from and lending to the Money Pool will equal the weighted average daily interest rate on (i) short-term extended borrowings by Nisource Finance Corp. ("NFC") plus (ii) earnings on external investments by NFC.

CGV requested authority to participate in the Money Pool with borrowing and investment limitations different than those established by the Commission in the Applicant's most recent financing application, Case No. PUE-2002-00310. In Case No. PUE-2002-00310, CGV received authority to borrow up to $45,000,000 in short-term debt and invest up to $45,000,000 in short-term funds through the Money Pool.²

On July 28, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Granting Authority, which permitted CGV to participate in the Money Pool subject to certain restrictions and conditions. On August 12, 2003, CGV filed a Petition for Reconsideration and/or Partial Suspension of Order Granting Authority ("Petition"). CGV requests that the Commission reconsider and/or partially suspend its Order Granting Authority and that such Order be revised to provide for the following:

(1) In the event the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("PUHCA") is repealed or materially amended, CGV shall have ninety (90) days from the date of said repeal or material amendment to petition the Commission and suggest imposition of conditions, if any, that will substitute for the safeguards provided by PUHCA. The Commission may impose additional reasonable conditions on the authority granted in order to replace the safeguards provided by PUHCA, and CGV shall be allowed a reasonable period of time to implement those conditions.

(2) Should non-regulated participants that may borrow from the Money Pool borrow, in the aggregate, more than the amount that the non-regulated participants have invested in the Money Pool ("Imbalance Event"), then CGV shall so notify the Commission Staff within ten (10) days of the end of the month in which the Imbalance Event occurs. Within ninety (90) days of such occurrence of the Imbalance Event, CGV shall either file with the Commission a Petition that sets forth how, if at all, the Imbalance Event should affect its participation in the Money Pool, along with any requests for modification of the Order Granting Authority that may be appropriate or CGV shall cure the Imbalance Event. While the Commission considers such a Petition, CGV shall be allowed to participate in the Money Pool according to the terms and conditions imposed by the Order Granting Authority, as modified.

(3) The quarterly reports of action described in the Order Granting Authority shall be filed with the Commission Staff.

CGV also requests that the Commission only partially suspend its Order Granting Authority during its consideration of this Petition and allow CGV to participate in the Money Pool pending entry of its Order on Reconsideration. Finally, CGV requests such further relief as may be appropriate.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Petition, is of the opinion and finds as follows. We grant the Petition for the purpose of continuing our jurisdiction over this matter and considering such Petition. The July 28, 2003, Order Granting Authority shall remain in effect, in its entirety, pending further order of the Commission.

² Order Granting Authority, Case No. PUE-2002-00310, June 28, 2002.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The Petition is hereby granted for the purpose of continuing our jurisdiction over this proceeding and considering such Petition.
- (2) The Order Granting Authority of July 28, 2003, shall remain in effect, in its entirety, pending further order of the Commission.
- (3) This matter is continued pending further order of the Commission.

On August 12, 2003, CGV filed a Petition for Reconsideration and/or Partial Suspension of Order Granting Authority ("Petition"). CGV requested that the Commission reconsider and/or partially suspend its Order Granting Authority and that such Order be revised to provide for the following:

(1) In the event the public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("PUHCA) is repealed or materially amended, CGV shall have ninety (90) days from the date of said repeal or material amendment to petition the Commission and suggest imposition of conditions, if any, that will substitute for the safeguards provided by PUHCA. The Commission may impose additional reasonable conditions on the authority granted in order to replace the safeguards provided by PUHCA, and CGV shall be allowed a reasonable period of time to implement those conditions.

(2) Should non-regulated participants that may borrow from the Money Pool borrow, in the aggregate, more than the amount that the non-regulated participants have invested in the Money Pool ("Imbalance Event"), then CGV shall so notify the Commission Staff within ten (10) days of the end of the month in which the Imbalance Event occurs. Within ninety (90) days of such occurrence of the Imbalance Event, CGV shall either file with the Commission a Petition that sets forth how, if at all, the Imbalance Event should affect its participation in the Money Pool, along with any requests for modification of the Order Granting Authority that may be appropriate or CGV shall cure the Imbalance Event. While the Commission considers such a Petition, CGV shall be allowed to participate in the Money Pool according to the terms and conditions imposed by the Order Granting Authority, as modified.

(3) The quarterly reports of action described in the Order Granting Authority shall be filed with the Commission Staff.

CGV also requested that the Commission only partially suspend its Order Granting Authority during its consideration of the Petition and allow CGV to participate in the Money Pool pending entry of its Order On Reconsideration. Finally, CGV requested such further relief as may be appropriate.

On August 15, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Granting Reconsideration. We granted the Petition for the purpose of continuing our jurisdiction over this matter and considering such Petition. We also ruled that the July 28, 2003, Order Granting Authority will remain in effect, in its entirety, pending further order of the Commission.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application, the Petition, and the advice of its Staff, is of the opinion and finds as follows.

² Order Granting Authority, Case No. PUE-2002-00310, June 28, 2002.

Ordering Paragraph (3) of the July 28, 2003, Order Granting Authority, states as follows: "In the event that the PUHCA is repealed or materially amended before December 31, 2005, this authorization shall expire unless otherwise ordered in this case." CGV asserts that "[s]imply ordering the authorization to abruptly expire upon PUCHA's repeal or material amendment could create immediate and detrimental financial consequences to CGV."³ We will modify this requirement as follows: (1) within thirty (30) days after PUHCA is repealed or materially amended, CGV shall file an application with the Commission to continue the authority granted in this proceeding; and (2) the authority granted in this proceeding shall expire ninety (90) days after PUHCA is repealed or materially amended unless otherwise ordered by the Commission.

The July 28, 2003, Order Granting Authority also permitted CGV to participate in the Money Pool, "on the condition that the non-regulated participants that may borrow from the Money Pool shall not be allowed to borrow, in the aggregate, more than the amount that the non-regulated participants . . . have invested in the Money Pool." If this condition is violated, CGV requests that it be allowed to continue to participate in the Money Pool. Specifically, CGV asks that the Commission allow CGV to file a request for modification of its approval within ninety (90) days of a violation of this condition, or CGV may take steps over the same time frame either to remedy the violation or to remove itself from participation in the Money Pool. CGV also states that it will notify the Staff of the violation within ten (10) days of the end of the month in which a violation of this condition occurs.

The authority granted to CGV in this proceeding to participate in the Money Pool remains conditioned on the requirement that non-regulated participants shall not be allowed to borrow, in the aggregate, more than the amount that the non-regulated participants have invested in the Money Pool. We will, however, modify this condition to provide that CGV's authority to participate in the Money Pool is not immediately withdrawn if the condition is violated. Rather, when a violation of this condition occurs: (1) CGV will be deemed to have discovered the violation on the business day following its occurrence; (2) CGV shall notify the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance in writing that a violation has occurred within five (5) business days following the discovery of such violation and shall identify the steps taken to remedy the violation and to comply with the requirements of this Order; (3) CGV shall invest no additional funds in the Money Pool during the violation; and (4) if CGV does not remedy the violation within two (2) business days following the discovery of such violation, the authority provided in this proceeding to invest in the Money Pool is withdrawn and CGV shall immediately withdraw all of its investment in the Money Pool.

Finally, CGV requests the Commission to clarify that the quarterly reports required by the July 28, 2003, Order Granting Authority may be filed with the Staff. We grant this clarification and further clarify that such reports shall, among other things, certify that there were no violations other than those reported to Staff as required by the discussion above.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The text of Ordering Paragraph (3) of the July 28, 2003, Order Granting Authority is hereby stricken and replaced with the following:

As a condition of the authority granted in this proceeding, in the event that PUHCA is repealed or materially amended before December 31, 2005: (a) within thirty (30) days after PUHCA is repealed or materially amended, CGV shall file an application with the Commission to continue the authority granted in this proceeding; and (b) the authority granted in this proceeding shall expire ninety (90) days after PUHCA is repealed or materially amended unless otherwise ordered by the Commission.

(2) As a condition of the authority granted in this proceeding, the non-regulated participants that may borrow from the Money Pool shall not be allowed to borrow, in the aggregate, more than the amount that the non-regulated participants (including NiSource, Inc., and NiSource Finance Corp.) have invested in the Money Pool.

(3) In the event of a violation of Ordering Paragraph (2), above: (a) CGV will be deemed to have discovered the violation on the business day following its occurrence; (b) CGV shall notify the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance in writing that a violation has occurred within five (5) business days following the discovery of such violation and shall identify the steps taken to remedy the violation and to comply with the requirements of this Order; (c) CGV shall invest no additional funds in the Money Pool during the violation; and (d) if CGV does not remedy the violation within two (2) business days following the discovery of such violation, the authority provided in this proceeding to invest in the Money Pool is withdrawn and CGV shall immediately withdraw all of its remaining investment in the Money Pool.

(4) The quarterly reports required by Ordering Paragraph (10) of the July 28, 2003, Order Granting Authority may be filed with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance and such reports shall, among other things, certify that there were no violations other than those reported to Staff as required by Ordering Paragraph (3), above.

- (5) This case shall remain open and the matter shall remain under the continued review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

JUNE 2, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.
STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Ex Parte: In the Matter Adopting a Revised Rule Governing Utility Customer Deposits

ORDER ESTABLISHING INVESTIGATION AND INVITING COMMENTS

On February 22, 1983, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") issued its Final Order in Case No. PUE-1982-00073, revising the rate of interest that utilities must pay on customer security deposits held longer than 90 days.¹ Pursuant to that Order, the interest rate for investor-owned utilities is set annually in January at a rate equal to the average of the one-year Treasury bill rates for October, November, and December of the preceding year. Non-profit utilities that are owned by their customers pay an interest rate that is two percent (2%) less than the rate paid by the investor-owned utilities.

The interest rate for calendar year 2003 was calculated to be 1.5% for investor-owned utilities. The cooperatives paid no interest on customer deposits as a consequence of the two percent (2%) discount.

Because the Rule has not been revisited since 1983 and because the Commission is concerned that some customers are receiving no interest on their deposits, we are of the opinion that this matter should be docketed, and that the public should be afforded the opportunity to comment on the issues presented herein.

Following a thorough review of any responses and comments received herein, including a review of any suggested Rules, we will direct our Staff to propose revisions to the Rules regarding the interest rate paid on utility customer deposits, where appropriate. We will seek further public comment on Staff's proposals and conduct further proceedings as may be necessary herein.

Therefore, we find that this matter should be docketed; that notice should be published in major newspapers of general circulation throughout the Commonwealth; that this Order should be forwarded to the Virginia Register of Regulations; that interested persons should be afforded an opportunity to file written comments concerning the issues identified in this Order; and that the Staff should file a Report responding to the comments filed herein and proposing further revisions to the Rules, where appropriate.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The matter be docketed and assigned Case No. PUE-2003-00224.
- (2) Interested persons may obtain a copy of this Order by directing a request in writing for the same on or before July 30, 2003, to Farris Maddox, Division of Economics and Finance, P.O. Box 1197, Richmond, Virginia 23218.
- (3) A copy of this Order shall be made available for public review at the Commission's Document Control Center, located on the first floor of the Tyler Building, 1300 East Main Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219, during the Commission's regular hours of operation, Monday through Friday, from 8:15 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Interested persons may also review a copy of this Order on the Commission's website, <http://www.state.va.us/scc/caseinfo.htm>.
- (4) On or before June 30, 2003, the Commission's Division of Information Resources shall cause the following notice to be published as classified advertising on one occasion in newspapers of general circulation throughout the Commonwealth of Virginia:

NOTICE OF INVESTIGATION AND INVITING COMMENTS
BY THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION TO CONSIDER REVISIONS TO THE RULES GOVERNING THE RATE OF INTEREST FOR UTILITY CUSTOMER DEPOSITS
CASE NO. PUE-2003-00224

On February 22, 1983, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") issued its Final Order in Case No. PUE-1982-00073, revising the rate of interest that utilities must pay on customer security deposits held longer than 90 days. Pursuant to that Order, the interest rate for investor-owned utilities is set annually in January at a rate equal to the average of the one-year Treasury bill rates for October, November, and December of the preceding year (the rules adopted in the Commission's Final Order are codified at 20 VAC 5-10-20). Non-profit utilities that are owned by their customers pay an interest rate that is two percent less than the rate paid by the investor-owned utilities.

The interest rate for calendar year 2003 was calculated to be 1.5 percent for investor-owned utilities. The cooperatives paid no interest on customer deposits as a consequence of the two percent discount.

Because this Rule has not been revisited since 1983 and because the Commission is concerned that some customers are receiving no interest on their deposits, we are now soliciting comments on whether, and if so, how, the Rule should be revised.

Interested persons may obtain a copy of the Commission's Order by directing a written request for a copy of the same on or before July 30, 2003, to Farris Maddox, Division of Economics and Finance, State Corporation Commission, P.O. Box 1197, Richmond, Virginia 23218 and referencing Case No. PUE-2003-

DECEMBER 23, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.
STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Ex Parte: In the Matter Adopting a Revised Rule Governing Utility Customer Deposits

FINAL ORDER

On February 22, 1983, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") issued its Final Order in Case No. PUE-1982-00073, revising the rate of interest that utilities must pay on customer security deposits held longer than 90 days.¹ Pursuant to that Order, the interest rate for investor-owned utilities is set annually in January at a rate equal to the average of the one-year U.S. Treasury bill rates for October, November and December of the preceding year. Non-profit utilities that are owned by their customers ("cooperatives") pay an interest rate that is two percent (2%) less than the rate paid by the investor-owned utilities.

The interest rate for calendar year 2003 was calculated to be 1.5% for investor-owned utilities. The cooperatives, as a consequence of the 2% discount, paid no interest on customer deposits.

Because the Rule has not been revisited since 1983 and because the Commission is concerned that some customers are receiving no interest on their deposits, we issued an Order Establishing Investigation and Inviting Comments on June 2, 2003, affording the public an opportunity to comment on the issues presented in that Order.

Comments were received which provided the individual or collective responses of: four investor-owned electric utility companies; 12 electric cooperatives and the Virginia, Maryland, & Delaware Association of Electric Cooperatives ("Association of Electric Cooperatives"); three investor-owned gas utilities, one water company, and the Virginia Telecommunications Industry Association (collectively, the "Combined Companies"); and the Division of Consumer Counsel for the Office of the Attorney General. Staff filed its Report on September 5, 2003. Responses to the Staff Report were filed on October 1, 2003, by the Association of Electric Cooperatives and the Division of Consumer Counsel.

On October 24, 2003, we issued an Order for Notice and Comment or Requests for Hearing, publishing Staff's proposed Deposit Rules and establishing the procedural schedule for considering Staff's proposed rules. Pursuant to that Order, comments to the proposed Deposit Rules were filed on December 1, 2003, by Dominion Virginia Power, the Division of Consumer Counsel, and the Combined Companies. None of the commenters requested a hearing and all of the comments supported the proposed changes to the Deposit Rules. In addition to the proposed changes that were noticed, the Division of Consumer Counsel recommended that the benchmark rate used to establish the Customer Deposit rate be amended from the yield on one-year U.S. Treasury bills to the one-year Constant Maturity Treasury rate. This change was proposed because the Treasury no longer issues one-year Treasury bills; however, the Federal Reserve interpolates yields on actively traded Treasury securities to derive the Constant Maturity Treasury rates.

¹ The rules adopted in the Commission's Final Order of February 22, 1983, are codified at 20 VAC 5-10-20.

As directed by the Commission's Order dated October 24, 2003, Staff filed a report on December 12, 2003. Staff's report summarized the comments received, and supported the Division of Consumer Counsel's recommendation to change the benchmark interest rate to more accurately reflect currently available market rate information.

Responses to the Staff's report were due no later than December 22, 2003. No responses were received.

NOW UPON CONSIDERATION of the comments filed herein, we find that we should adopt the rules appended to this order as Attachment A, effective upon filing with the Virginia Registrar of Regulations, revising both the method of calculating the interest rate paid by utilities on customer deposits and the benchmark used to set the interest rate. We briefly summarize the rules we adopt ("Final Rules") below.

The Final Rules change the prior year period used to calculate the interest rate on all customer deposits from the three-month period ending in December, to the three-month period ending in November. The Final Rules also change the calculation of the interest rate on customer deposits for cooperatives from the investor-owned utility rate less a fixed rate of 2.0% (e.g., 2.0% less 2.0% = 0%), to 75% of the investor-owned utility rate (e.g., 2.0% x 0.75 = 1.5%). Based on comments received, the Final Rules change the benchmark interest rate used to calculate the consumer deposit from the annual yield on one-year Treasury bills, to the one-year constant maturity Treasury rate as calculated by the Federal Reserve. This change is necessary since one-year Treasury bills are no longer being issued. However, the Federal Reserve calculation of a one-year constant maturity Treasury rate provides a reasonable substitute that is derived from the interpolation of yield curve data from Treasury securities that are issued and traded.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) We hereby adopt the Rules Governing Utility Customer Deposits, appended hereto as Attachment A.
- (2) A copy of this Order and the rules adopted herein shall be forwarded forthwith for publication in the Virginia Register of Regulations.
- (3) This case is dismissed and the papers herein shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

NOTE: A copy of Attachment A entitled "Rules Governing Utility Customer Deposits" is on file and may be examined at the State Corporation Commission, Clerk's Office, Document Control Center, Tyler Building, First Floor, 1300 East Main Street, Richmond, Virginia.

SEPTEMBER 16, 2003

APPLICATION OF
THE POTOMAC EDISON COMPANY D/B/A ALLEGHENY POWER

For a determination that the Commission's July 11, 2000, Order Approving Phase I Transfers of Allegheny Power's functional separation plan covers the December 22, 2000, Release and Guarantee Agreement between Allegheny Power, Allegheny Energy Supply Company, LLC and the Holders of Certain Pollution Control Notes, or in the alternative, for approval of the said Agreement Nunc Pro Tunc

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On June 5, 2003, the Potomac Edison Company d/b/a Allegheny Power ("AP" or "Company"), filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") an application ("Application"), pursuant to §§ 56-76 to 56-92 of Chapters 4 and 5 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code"), seeking a determination that the Commission's July 11, 2000, Order in Case No. PUE-2000-00280 provided AP with the authority to enter into the December 22, 2000, release and guarantee agreement between AP, its affiliate, Allegheny Energy Supply Company, LLC ("AE Supply"), and the holders of certain pollution control notes.¹ The Company also requests in its Application that, in the alternative, if the Commission finds that approval is needed under § 56-59 of the Code or any other applicable Code sections, the Commission approve the Application, Nunc Pro Tunc.

On May 25, 2000, AP filed Phase I of its application for approval of a functional separation plan ("Phase I Application"). AP's Phase I Application was docketed as Case No. PUE-2000-00280. In its Phase I Application, AP requested all necessary approvals under §§ 56-76 to 56-92 of Chapters 4 and 5 of Title 56, and § 56-590 B of the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act, § 56-576 et seq., for certain transactions. By its Order Approving Phase I Transfers, entered July 11, 2000, the Commission found that "[t]he approvals sought by AP pursuant to the Affiliates Act, Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia, and the Transfers Act, Chapter 5 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia, are granted as requested in the application and as modified by the terms of the Memorandum of Understanding, as supplemented on July 7, 2000, and subject to the Stipulation entered into between AP and Consumer Counsel."²

² Application of The Potomac Edison Company d/b/a Allegheny Power, Case No. PUE-2000-00280, 2000 S.C.C. Ann Rep. 530-532. In its Phase I Application, AP filed a Memorandum of Understanding that the Company reached with the Commission's Staff. The MOU contained certain representations and undertakings that AP made in order to comply with the requirements of the Act. Furthermore, in Case No. PUE-2000-00280, the Division of Consumer Counsel, Office of the Attorney General ("AG") filed comments and a Stipulation the AG reached with AP. In the Stipulation, AP advised the Commission that it would not impose a wires charge but would recover its stranded costs solely through capped rates.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

The Company represents in its current Application that, by agreement dated August 1, 2000, AP conveyed nearly all of its generating assets at book value to an affiliate. AP asserts in its Application that prior to its Phase I Application, AP had issued $104.2 million in Pollution Control Notes ("Notes") under the financing authority granted to it by the Commission, among others, secured by pollution control property conveyed to AE Supply as part of the generating assets. According to AP, $3.2 million of these Notes matured and were retired in 2002.³ AP further represents that by an Assumption and Indemnity Agreement dated August 1, 2000, AE Supply assumed responsibility for the interest and principal payments on the Notes and agreed to indemnify AP for any payments it was required to make on the Notes issued by AP and secured by assets conveyed to AE Supply.

Furthermore, AP states that on December 22, 2000, AP, AE Supply and the holders of the Notes entered into an agreement denominated a Release and Guarantee Agreement ("Agreement") in which holders of the Notes released AP "from all its obligation under the Notes." According to AP, all references to AP as the issuer in the Notes were thereafter deemed to be references to AE Supply the obligor, as per the Agreement. AP states that the holders released AP from its obligations as issuer upon two conditions: (i) AE Supply delivering to holders a financial guaranty insurance policy; and (ii) AP guaranteeing, for the benefit of the holders, the payment of principal and interest on the Notes. According to the Company, as a result of the Agreement, AP was relieved of its obligations as issuer of the Notes, and thereafter, AE Supply was considered the issuer of the Notes. In addition, according to AP, AE Supply had provided the holders of the notes with a MBIA Insurance Company financial guaranty insurance policy, and AP had provided the holders of the notes with a guarantee.

AP asserts in its Application that the Agreement is in the best interests of AP's ratepayers because the Agreement memorializes the Note holders acceptance of AE Supply's substitution as issuer for AP, thereby relieving AP of its primary obligation as issuer of the Notes. In addition, AP asserts that the Agreement removes the liability connected with the Notes from AP's balance sheet, thus, improving AP's financial status. Furthermore, AP asserts that an agreement with the holders of the Notes, to release AP from its primary obligations as issuer under the Notes, is an integral part of the process of separation approved by the Commission in Case No. PUE-2000-00280. AP further asserts that the Company requested all necessary approvals to complete the separation plan, including approvals under § 56-82 of the Code, which statutory provision governs the assumption of a guarantee for an affiliated company. AP further asserts that in entering into the Agreement, the Company acted in accordance within its understanding of the authority granted to it by the Commission in its July 11, 2000, Order in Case No. PUE-2000-00280. AP contends in its Application that if the Commission issues an order finding that the Agreement is null and void, AP could return to its former issuer status and the bond obligations would be returned to AP's balance sheet.

AP also states that the Commission Staff has informed the Company that the Staff believes AP should have received a separate approval for the Agreement under § 56-59 of Chapter 3 of Title 56. AP requests that to the extent that the Commission agrees that approval is needed under § 56-59 of the Code, such approval should be given Nunc Pro Tunc, so as not to create uncertainty regarding the legality of the Agreement.

On June 27, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Establishing Proceeding and Inviting Comments and Requests for Hearing, which docketed this proceeding and established a procedural schedule. On July 18, 2003, the Commission Staff filed a Report in this matter. Staff concludes that AP did not receive authority to act as a guarantor on the pollution control notes under either Chapters 3 or 4 of Title 56 of the Code. In addition, Staff states that it would be contrary to the public interest for the Commission to authorize AP to guarantee the obligations of AE Supply in light of the fact that both Allegheny Energy, Inc., and Supply have defaulted on some of its trading partner agreements and due to their continued diminishing financial status.

The Division of Consumer Counsel, Office of the Attorney General ("Consumer Counsel") filed comments on July 18, 2003. Consumer Counsel asserts that the Commission did not previously grant necessary approval of the Agreement. Consumer Counsel argues that Nunc Pro Tunc approval is an inappropriate remedy. Consumer Counsel also states that the Agreement has created an unacceptable risk to rate-paying customers of AP, especially given the current financial condition of AE Supply. Consumer Counsel concludes that AP has failed to demonstrate that the Agreement is in the public interest.

On July 31, 2003, AP filed reply comments. AP requests that the Commission find that AP's signing of the Agreement, thereby providing a second guarantee for the pollution control bonds in question: (1) was a necessary step to remove the pollution control debt as an obligation on AP's books; (2) was further an inherent part of the Phase I transfers authorized by the Commission in its July 11, 2000, Order in Case No. PUE-2000-00280; and (3) was at the time the obligation was undertaken, and continues now to be, in the public interest. In the alternative, should the Commission find that approval under § 56-59 of the Code was necessary for AP to assume secondary guarantor status on these bonds, AP requests that the Commission recognize the public interest benefit of such guarantee and grant such authority after the fact.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the pleadings and the applicable law, is of the opinion and finds as follows.

Pursuant to § 56-59, which is part of Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code:

No public service company shall henceforth assume any obligation or liability as guarantor, indorser, surety or otherwise in respect to the securities of any other person, firm, association or corporation, when such securities are payable at periods of twelve months or more after the date thereof, without having first secured from the Commission an order authorizing it so to do. (Emphasis added.)

Accordingly, § 56-59 of the Code requires AP to obtain authorization from the Commission prior to assuming an obligation as guarantor under the Agreement. Our July 11, 2000, Order in Case No. PUE-2000-00280, however, neither explicitly nor implicitly authorizes AP to assume an obligation as guarantor under the Agreement.

In addition, the Agreement represents a contract by AP with an affiliated interest under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code (§ 56-76 et seq.). Thus, AP must file the Agreement with, and receive approval from, the Commission pursuant to Chapter 4. The Agreement, however, was not filed by AP in

Case No. PUE-2000-00280. Moreover, the Commission's July 11, 2000, Order in that case neither explicitly nor implicitly provides approval of the Agreement under Chapter 4 of Title 56.

Having found that AP is required to obtain the Commission's approval of the Agreement under Chapters 3 and 4 of Title 56 of the Code, but has not yet done so, we now turn to whether approval should be granted. The Commission's July 11, 2000, Order in Case No. PUE-2000-00280 does not prohibit AP from remaining the primary obligor under the Notes after the transfer of generation assets. When AP's generation assets were transferred, the Commission's July 11, 2000, Order did not require that the Notes also be amended such that AP would have no liability with respect to the Notes. In August 2000, when the generation assets were transferred, the Notes were not amended and AP remained the only obligor to the noteholders.⁴ Thus, AP asserts that it is in the public interest for AP to assume secondary guarantor status, as opposed to serving as the primary obligor and carrying the pollution control debt on its balance sheet. We agree and find that approval of the Agreement is in the public interest.

In the future, however, we expect the Company, in cases where it is requesting Commission approval, to file all agreements that will be entered into with respect to proposed transactions. The Company's application in such instances should be clear as to how its proposed transactions will be accomplished, and all necessary arrangements and agreements should be filed and explicitly approved as part of such proceeding.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) AP is hereby authorized to provide guarantees for a maximum amount of $101 million pursuant to the Release and Guarantee Agreement in the form filed with the Commission.
- (2) AP is hereby authorized to execute the Release and Guarantee Agreement in the form filed with the Commission.
- (3) The guarantee authority for the Release and Guarantee Agreement granted herein shall automatically decrease with the repayment of principal.
- (4) As a condition of our approval herein, AP shall not seek to recover in rates any expenses or debt service obligations related to the Release and Guarantee Agreement.
- (5) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- (6) Any subsequent financing arrangements or affiliate agreements shall require separate authority, which shall not be implied by approval of the Release and Guarantee Agreement herein.
- (7) Approval of the Release and Guarantee Agreement shall not preclude the Commission from applying the provisions of § 56-78 of the Code hereafter.
- (8) Approval of the Release and Guarantee Agreement is expressly conditioned upon the reserved power of the Commission to revise and amend the terms and conditions of the Release and Guarantee Agreement if, when, and as necessary to protect and promote the public interest.
- (9) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate, whether or not such affiliate is regulated by the Commission.
- (10) Within ten (10) days of AE Supply defaulting on the Notes, AP shall notify the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance of such default.
- (11) This matter shall remain under the continued review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

⁴ As noted above, when the assets were transferred, AE Supply assumed responsibility for the interest and principal payments on the Notes and agreed to indemnify AP for any payments it was required to make on the Notes issued by AP and secured by assets conveyed to AE Supply. AE Supply, however, was not an obligor on the Notes, and AP remained the sole obligor on the Notes.

NOVEMBER 7, 2003

APPLICATION OF
SKYLINE WATER CO., INC.

For authority to acquire and to dispose of utility assets and for certificates of public convenience and necessity authorizing it to provide water service

PRELIMINARY ORDER

On June 11, 2003, Skyline Water Co., Inc. ("Skyline" or "Company"), filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") its Application for Certificate ("Certificate Application"). As set out in the Certificate Application, Skyline proposes to operate twelve water systems formerly operated by Overlook Heights Water Company, Inc., Pelham Manor Water Supply, Inc., TWW, Inc., MTV, Inc., Wildwood Water Company, Inc., Rebel Water Works, Inc., Small Water Works Consolidated, Inc., and Skyline in the counties of Culpeper, Orange, and Fauquier. These systems include systems of Pelham Manor Water Supply, Inc., and Wildwood Water Company, Inc., for which certificates of public convenience and necessity had been issued by the Commission. Skyline proposes that the certificates held by Pelham Manor Water Supply, Inc., and Wildwood Water Company, Inc., would be replaced by a certificate issued to Skyline. The Certificate Application includes a proposed schedule of rates and charges, including increased rates for Pelham Manor Water Supply, Inc., and Wildwood Water Company, Inc.

On June 20, 2003, Overlook Heights Water Company, Inc., Pelham Manor Water Supply, Inc., TWW, Inc., MTV, Inc., Wildwood Water Company, Inc., Rebel Water Works, Inc., Small Water Works Consolidated, Inc., and Skyline filed with the Commission their Application for Approval of Merger and Transfer ("Merger and Transfer Application"). The Merger and Transfer Application was complete on July 23, 2003. The Merger and Transfer Application provides that Overlook Heights Water Company, Inc., Pelham Manor Water Supply, Inc., TWW, Inc., MTV, Inc., and Wildwood Water Company, Inc., propose to merge with Skyline. Skyline would be the surviving corporation and would provide water service using the facilities currently owned by the non-surviving corporations. The Merger and Transfer Application also provides that Rebel Water Works, Inc., and Small Water Works Consolidated, Inc., propose to transfer three water systems to Skyline.

Both the Certificate Application and the Merger and Transfer Application have been supplemented by additional information supplied by the Company.

On June 24, 2003, Pelham Manor Water Supply, Inc., and Wildwood Water Company, Inc., which had been issued certificates of public convenience and necessity, were merged into Skyline, which does not have a certificate of public convenience and necessity.

On July 30, 2003, the Commission entered an Order for Notice and Comment docketing the Certificate Application, as supplemented, and the Merger and Transfer Application, as supplemented (collectively, the "Applications"). The Order for Notice and Comment directed Skyline to serve copies of the order on the chairs of the Board of Supervisors of Culpeper, Orange, and Fauquier Counties and on all customers in its proposed service territory, which may be made by mailing the notice with bills. The Order for Notice and Comment also directed the Staff of the Commission ("Staff") to investigate the Applications and file its report ("Staff Report") by October 3, 2003, permitted the Company to file comments by October 17, 2003, and required that comments on the Applications and requests for a hearing be filed by September 10, 2003.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Comments and requests for a hearing have been filed with the Clerk of the Commission by Robert and Jacqueline Borges; Kenneth C. Cranston, Jr.; Pauline Wilmore; Bruce A. and Beverly J. Baker; Laurence R. and Jean E. Brakowiecki; Lucy K. Powers; Lee and Laura Hart; Morris and Ada Foster; Charles and Frances Berry; Christina and Alan Powers; David R. Rawls; Douglas J. and Carolyn G. Stephens; Russell Lane; and David Ruckman.

On October 21, 2003, the Board of Supervisors of Orange County submitted a copy of a Resolution stating that Skyline's acquisition of the waterworks in the Wolftrap subdivision in Orange County will not interfere with the mission and operation of the Rapidan Service Authority and that the proposed $10,000 disconnection fee is contrary to the best interests of the residents of the subdivision.

On September 25, 2003, the Staff filed a motion requesting that the date for the filing of the Staff Report be extended from October 3, 2003, to October 17, 2003, and that the date for the filing of comments by the Company be extended from October 17, 2003, to October 31, 2003. On September 30, 2003, the Commission entered an Order revising the procedural schedule as requested by the Staff's motion.

On October 14, 2003, the Staff filed a second motion requesting that the date for the filing of the Staff Report be extended from October 17, 2003, to November 10, 2003, and that the date for the filing of comments be extended from October 31, 2003, to November 21, 2003. On October 16, 2003, the Commission entered an Order further revising the procedural schedule as requested by the Staff's motion.

On October 20, 2003, the Company filed a Motion to Increase Rates for the water service provided by the Pelham Manor and Wildwood waterworks, beginning with the periods September 25, 2003, to October 25, 2003. The Company's motion requests that the increases be approved by October 27, 2003, in order to avoid financial deficiencies to meet certain obligations, and be instituted subject to refund.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Certificate Application, the Merger and Transfer Application, the Motion to Increase Rates for the Pelham Manor and Wildwood waterworks, the comments and requests for a hearing that have been submitted, and applicable law, finds that Skyline's rates proposed in the Certificate Application shall be interim and subject to refund until such time as an investigation by Staff has been completed and the appropriateness of the rates has been determined.

Currently Skyline is providing water service to more than 50 customers without having obtained a certificate of public convenience and necessity, and therefore we find that it is in violation of Va. Code § 56-265.3.

We will grant the request for a hearing and will appoint a hearing examiner to conduct all further proceedings in this matter.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Skyline's proposed rates and charges as set forth in the Certificate Application for Pelham Manor and Wildwood may take effect for service provided in billing periods commencing subsequent to September 25, 2003, subject to the Commission's power to fix and order substituted just and reasonable rates, charges, terms, and conditions, and to order refunds and credits.

(2) Skyline's proposed rates and charges as set forth in the Certificate Application for all of its other water systems may take effect on such date as Skyline elects, provided such rates and charges shall be subject to the Commission's power to fix and order substituted just and reasonable rates, charges, terms, and conditions, and to order refunds and credits.

(3) Pursuant to 5 VAC 5-10-520 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, a Hearing Examiner is appointed to conduct all further proceedings in this matter, including establishing a procedural schedule for a public hearing.

(4) On or before December 1, 2003, any person desiring to participate in this proceeding as a Respondent, as defined in Rule 5 VAC 5-20-80 B, shall file an original and twenty (20) copies of a Notice of Participation with the Clerk of the Commission and shall serve a copy of the same upon Skyline's counsel, Daniel J. Smith, Esquire, Keeler Obenshain, PC, 100 10th Street, N.E., Suite 300, Charlottesville, Virginia 22902; David K. Travers, President, Skyline Water Co., Inc., 8284 James Madison Highway, Rapidan, Virginia 22733; and upon other parties of record. The Notice of Participation shall contain: (i) a precise statement of the interest of the Respondent; (ii) a statement of the specific action sought to the extent then known; and (iii) the factual and legal basis for the action.

(5) On or before November 24, 2003, Skyline shall file with the Clerk of the Commission an original and twenty (20) copies of any direct testimony and exhibits, in addition to or in lieu of information submitted by Skyline with its Applications and other pleadings, including responses to Staff's data requests, that Skyline intends to present in support of its Applications and other pleadings.

(6) Any person who expects to submit evidence, cross-examine witnesses, or otherwise participate in the hearing in this proceeding as a Respondent shall file on or before December 22, 2003, an original and twenty (20) copies of the prepared testimony and exhibits the Respondent expects to present at the hearing, with the Clerk of the State Corporation Commission, c/o Document Control Center, P.O. Box 2118, Richmond, Virginia 23218-2118, referring to Case No. PUE-2003-00274, and shall simultaneously send a copy thereof to Skyline, Skyline's counsel, and to any other Respondents. Any corporate entity that wishes to submit evidence, cross-examine witnesses, or otherwise participate as a Respondent must be represented by legal counsel in accordance with the requirement of Rule 5 VAC 5-20-30 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure.

(7) The Commission's Staff shall present its findings and recommendations in prepared testimony and exhibits which shall be filed on or before January 9, 2004, in an original and twenty (20) copies. The filing of the Staff's prepared testimony and exhibits as provided in this Ordering Paragraph shall be in lieu of the requirement in the July 30, 2003, Order for Notice and Comment, as amended, that Staff file its Report on or before November 10, 2003. Staff counsel shall simultaneously serve a copy of Staff's testimony and exhibits on Skyline and its counsel and to each Respondent.

(8) On or before January 12, 2004, Skyline shall file with the Clerk of the Commission an original and twenty (20) copies of the any testimony it expects to introduce in rebuttal to the direct prefiled testimony of the Staff and Respondents. Additional rebuttal evidence may be presented without pre-filing, provided it is in response to evidence which was not prefiled but was elicited at the time of the hearing and, provided further, the need for additional rebuttal evidence is timely addressed by motion during the hearing and leave to present said evidence is granted by the Hearing Examiner. A copy of the prefiled rebuttal evidence shall be served upon the Commission Staff and all other parties to the proceeding on or before January 12, 2004.

(9) Skyline shall respond to written interrogatories, data requests, or requests for the production of documents within five (5) business days after the receipt of the same. Respondents shall provide to Skyline, other Respondents, and Staff, any workpapers or documents used in the preparation of their filed testimony promptly upon request. Except as so modified, discovery shall be in accordance with Part VI of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure.

(10) Staff's counsel is directed to send a copy of this order to all persons who have filed comments or requests for a hearing with the Clerk of the Commission in this proceeding. Such copies shall be sent by first class mail, postage prepaid, to those persons who submitted comments or requests in writing, or electronically to those persons who submitted comments or requests electronically.

(11) Except as modified herein, all other provisions of our July 30, 2003, Order for Notice and Comment shall remain in effect.

AUGUST 26, 2003

JOINT PETITION OF
CHINCOTEAGUE BAY TRAILS END ASSOCIATION, INC.
and
LOU AND JUDITH E. SAYLAND

For approval of the purchase of the stock of Trails End Utility Company, Inc., pursuant to Chapter 5 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On June 30, 2003, Chincoteague Bay Trails End Association, Inc. (the "Association"), and Lou and Judith E. Sayland (the "Saylands") (collectively the "Petitioners"), filed a completed joint petition with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") seeking approval pursuant to Chapter 5 of Title 56 (the "Utility Transfers Act") of the Code of Virginia (the "Code") for the Association to purchase from the Saylands all of the outstanding stock of Trails End Utility Company, Inc. (the "Utility"), for the sum of $810,000, and thereafter to operate the Utility for the benefit of the Association's members.

Trails End Utility Company, Inc., is a Virginia Corporation under the Small Water and Sewer Public Utility Act providing water to the Chincoteague Bay Trails End Subdivision in Accomac County, also known as Trails End Campground (the "Campground"), under a certificate of public convenience and necessity dated February 5, 1995. The Campground is situated in the northern part of Accomac County and contains 2,567 lots that are mostly used by transient vacationers that stay in tents, mobile homes, travel trailers, and the like for limited periods of time. One hundred people, representing 53 family units and owning 72 lots, are permanent residents of the Campground. The Utility, which was initially incorporated on September 26, 1977, is a completely self-sufficient, self-contained water utility with its own mains, wells, storage tanks, control building and equipment. The water system consists of three wells, two 2,000 gallon hydropneumatic tanks, one 60,000 gallon bulk storage tank, two 15 horsepower transfer pumps, and the distribution system. The Utility has an operation permit dated March 7, 1997, issued by the Virginia Department of Health allowing the Utility to pump 238,400 gallons per day. The Utility supplies water to the Campground's swimming pool, office and administrative buildings as well as all of the Campground's lots.

Lou and Judith E. Sayland are the sole stockholders of the Utility, which stock they acquired from Dallas D. Swan, Jr., through a Stock Acquisition Agreement dated September 30, 1991.

Chincoteague Bay Trails End Association, Inc., is a Virginia non-stock corporation and the property association for the lot owners ("Members") of the Campground. The Association is charged with furthering and promoting the common interests of the Campground's Members, which includes regulating, maintaining, and controlling all recreational and common facilities, including parks, swimming pools, playgrounds, streets, and other common facilities and properties. The Association also provides or authorizes commercial services and activities within the Campground, including the general store, marina, restaurant, miniature golf, recreational boat rental, and other enterprises. The Association has the authority to charge lot assessments, entry fees, and user fees. The Association is managed by a five to seven person Board of Directors (the "Board"), which is elected by the Members (one vote per lot), and serve a term of three years. The Board is authorized to buy and sell real and personal property and borrow money on the Association's behalf.

The Association plans to finance the acquisition of the Utility's stock with a $10,000 earnest deposit upon execution of the Agreement, a $190,000 cash down payment upon closing, and a $610,000 loan obtained from a commercial bank or provided by the Saylands. If seller-financed, the loan will have a 15-year amortization, carry an 8.5% annual interest rate, and be payable in ten equal, annual payments of principal and interest, with a balloon payment for unpaid principal and accrued interest due at the end of year ten. As of July 1, 2003, the Utility's outstanding debt consisted of a loan from the Saylands for $384,356, which will be paid off by the proceeds from the stock acquisition.

The $810,000 acquisition price represents a $110,000 premium over the price that the Saylands paid to acquire the Utility in 1991. The Association states that it will account for the premium as an Acquisition Adjustment.

Notice of Proposed Acquisition

The Association represents that, via a Special Assessment Notice Letter dated September 24, 2001, a public general meeting held October 20, 2001, a Chincoteague Bay Trails End Newsletter dated November 2001, and a public notice posted in the Association's office, the Association noticed all Campground lot owners of its intent to acquire the Utility and its intent to fund the cash down payment through a special assessment fee. The Association supplied copies of the above-referenced Special Assessment Notice Letter and Chincoteague Bay Trails End Newsletter to the Commission.

Chancery Cause 02CH001

On January 2, 2002, Faith J. Lynch, a lot owner at the Campground, filed a Bill of Complaint for Declaratory Judgment and Injunctive Relief with the Circuit Court (the "Court") of Accomac County. In her lawsuit, Ms. Lynch alleged that the Association was in violation of the governing covenants, Bylaws, and Code, to the extent that the Association:

1. Permitted the construction of homes on campsites for use as permanent residences;
2. Permits the overuse of the [Utility's] water system;
3. Has levied a special assessment against lot owners for a purpose not permitted by law;
4. Has contracted to purchase an asset, the [Utility], through a method not permitted by law;
5. Is violating its own prohibition against exceeding its budget by more than 10% for non-emergency expenditures;
6. Has refused to comply with the provisions of Virginia Code § 55-510; and
7. Permits Board Members to vote proxies on lots owned by the Association.

The Hearing was held September 13, 2002, and on March 6, 2003, the Court issued its Final Decree ("Decree"). In the Decree, the Court found that:

1. There are campsites within the Campground that are being used as permanent residences. However, the Court accepted an Amended Declaration of Covenants ("Amended Declaration") for the Association recorded November 29, 2002, which allows Association employees and retired persons 55 years of age or older to use Campground sites as permanent residences. The Court enjoined the Association to comply with the Amended Declaration, to maintain detailed records showing compliance, and to make such records available for inspection pursuant to § 55-510 of the Code.
2. There is no evidence to conclude that the Association permitted the overuse of the Utility's water system.
3. The Association's special assessment of $100 per lot is a valid assessment in accordance with the Amended Declaration and in accordance with the law.
4. The [Agreement] between the Association and the Saylands for the Association to acquire the common stock of the Utility is a valid and enforceable contract.
5. The Association has complied with its rules for expenditures, which is not material to the issues of the case.
6. The Association is enjoined from voting any lot owned by the Association on any matter the lot owners are permitted to vote, including the election of Directors.
7. The Complainant is denied all further relief, and each party shall pay its own attorneys' fees and costs.

The Decree is final as of that date since no motion to set it aside or appeal it to the Virginia Supreme Court was made within the statutory time limit.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the joint petition and representations of Petitioners and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the proposed purchase of the Utility's stock by the Association from the Saylands will neither impair nor jeopardize the provision of adequate service to the public at just and reasonable rates.

We believe the proposed acquisition is reasonable because it transfers ownership to the party that has the greatest economic interest in the Utility. Unlike a private owner who may be interested in maximizing his personal income, the Association, as the representative of the Campground's lot owners, will be motivated to keep water rates down while maintaining a quality water system. The Association is already extensively involved in the Utility's day-to-day operation. Association Members currently identify and report leaks and provide maintenance and security services for the Utility. The acquisition will allow the Association to extend and even enhance these services. We also believe that, with more than 2,000 Members, the Association is likely to have greater resources than the Saylands for financing, managing, and operating the water system. The Association has already collected through the special assessment fee $205,700, or 25%, of the acquisition price of the Utility. We, therefore, believe that the proposed acquisition should be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-88.1 and 56-90 of the Code of Virginia, Chincoteague Bay Trails End Association, Inc., is hereby granted approval to purchase from Lou and Judith E. Sayland all of the outstanding stock of Trails End Utility Company, Inc., for the sum of $810,000, and thereafter to operate the Utility for the benefit of the Association's members.
- 2) The approval granted herein shall in no way be deemed to include approval of any acquisition adjustment for ratemaking purposes related to the above-referenced acquisition, and shall have no other ratemaking implications.
- 3) Within 30 days of completing the transaction, subject to extension by the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting, Trails End Utility Company, Inc., shall file a Report of Action with the Commission. Included in the Report of Action shall be the date of acquisition, the price of the acquisition, a settlement sheet showing all receipts and disbursements related to the acquisition, and the accounting entries made to record the acquisition.
- 4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

DECEMBER 23, 2003

A&N ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For review of tariffs and terms and conditions of service for retail access

FINAL ORDER

On June 24, 2003, A&N Electric Cooperative ("A&N" or the "Cooperative") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") for approval of the Cooperative's retail access tariffs and terms and conditions of service for retail access as required by Ordering Paragraph (3) of the Commission's December 18, 2001, Final Order issued in A&N's case for functional separation,¹ Case No. PUE-2001-00008, and pursuant to the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act (the "Act"), Chapter 23 of Title 56 (§ 56-576 et seq.) of the Code of Virginia.

A&N's retail access tariff filing includes: (1) Terms and Conditions of Service (including Terms and Conditions of Service for Retail Access); (2) Tariffs and Rate Schedules (including Unbundled Tariffs and Rate Schedules and Retail Access Tariffs and Rate Schedules); (3) a Competitive Service Provider ("CSP") Coordination Tariff (including the Competitive Service Provider Agreement, Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) Trading Partner Agreement, Transmission Customer Designation Form, CSP Dispute Resolution Procedure, and Aggregator Agreement); (4) Adjusted Market Rate and Competitive Transition Charges ("CTCs") Calculations; (5) Plan to Provide Price to Compare Information and assistance to customers; (6) Letter of Agreement between A&N and Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("ODEC") regarding the terms of the binding commitment with regard to wires charges (competitive transition charges) required by § 56-584 of the Code of Virginia. A&N represented that its application was submitted for Commission approval in anticipation of the Cooperative commencing retail access in its service territory, effective January 1, 2004.

On July 14, 2003, the Commission issued its Order Prescribing Notice and Inviting Comments and Requests for Hearing. On July 17, 2003, the Commission entered an Amending Order to correct Ordering Paragraph (4) of the July 14, 2003, Order to require A&N to serve a copy of the July 14, 2003 Order on local officials within A&N service territory. In the July 14, 2003 Order, the Commission directed the Cooperative to publish notice of its application in the latest issue of Cooperative Living and directed the Staff to investigate the application and file a report detailing its findings and recommendations.

On August 13, 2003, the Commission entered an Order permitting the Cooperative to file a response to the Staff Report and to any comments or responses to the Staff Report filed in the captioned docket. On the same day, Staff counsel mailed a copy of the Commission's July 14, 2003 "Order Prescribing Notice and Inviting Comments and Requests for Hearing" to all of the licensed CSPs in the Commonwealth of Virginia.

On October 2, 2003, A&N filed its proof of publication of notice and proof of notice to local officials as required by the Commission's Orders of July 14, 2003, July 17, 2003, and August 13, 2003.

On October 17, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in the proceeding, wherein it recommended that the Commission approve A&N's tariffs and terms and conditions of service, subject to the adoption of certain modifications recommended by the Staff.

Staff stated in its Report that the methodology employed by A&N in calculating projected market prices for generation applicable for the rate classes that will participate in retail choice, was the methodology set forth in the electric Cooperatives' Comprehensive Wires Charges Proposal ("Comprehensive Plan"), approved by the Commission in Case No. PUE-2001-00306 ("Wires Charges Case"). The Staff noted its support for A&N's methodology for calculating projected market prices, but Staff commented that the current base market prices are to be updated following the Commission's Final Order on Virginia Electric and Power Company's ("DVP's") fuel factor application, Case No. PUE-2003-00285, in which the Commission was expected to specify ten days from which base forward market information will be collected in order to determine market prices for 2004.² Staff recommended that A&N's projected market prices incorporate the up-to-date market information specified in the DVP Order to reflect current market conditions.

Staff reported that Table 2 of the Market Price Tables included with the Cooperative's application contained data that was improperly tabulated with the result that market prices and wires charges contained in A&N's filing were incorrect. The Staff stated that upon notification of the error, A&N provided Staff with revised Market Price Tables containing the appropriate correction. The revised tables were attached as Appendix A to the Staff Report. Further, Staff noted that the value ($0.00921/kWh) used for the fuel adjustment to base generation in determining the CTC should be updated to the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to A&N's initiation of retail access in its service territory.

The Staff did not oppose the Cooperative's proposal, as reflected in A&N's filed commitment document for the allocation of wires charges revenue between A&N and its electric supply cooperative ODEC. Staff commented that if the agreement is renegotiated, the renegotiated agreement must be submitted to the Commission for approval as required by § 56-584 of the Code of Virginia. The Staff observed that by its terms, the commitment document provides that termination of the agreement at any time prior to the end of the capped rate period or July 1, 2007, eliminates any subsequent application of wires charges in retail access rates by the Cooperative.

Staff further found that the proposed retail access schedules were consistent with A&N's currently effective bundled service schedules, and that the rates proposed for each service class properly reflected the pricing approved by the Commission in A&N's functional separation case, Case No. PUE-2001-00008.

² The Order Establishing 2004 Fuel Factor in Case No. PUE-2003-00285 was issued on December 12, 2003. Consequently, A&N can now update this information.

The Staff commented that the unbundled tariffs, with suffixes ending in "-U", include the generation and transmission charges to be applied for default energy supply service. Staff noted that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-90 I (3) identifies the components of the customer bill using the description of "electricity supply service" for the default provision of electric supply service. Staff recommended that for clarity purposes, the Cooperative should identify these items on its service schedules using the same terminology as will be used on the customer bill. Staff proposed that Section II under the Monthly Rate portion of the unbundled tariffs should be labeled: "II. Electricity Supply Service."

Additionally, Staff indicated that A&N did not propose a retail access (unbundled) lighting service schedule in this proceeding. Staff noted that in A&N's functional separation case, the Commission approved the Cooperative's proposal to offer unmetered lighting service to its customers only as a bundled service. Staff did not oppose A&N offering unmetered lighting service only as bundled service.

With regard to the Terms and Conditions of Service that would apply to the Cooperative and any member who by default or by choice does not select an alternative energy supplier, the Staff observed that in numerous instances, A&N has added language that formalizes current practices or Cooperative policies. Staff commented that in instances where these additions did not appear to create any additional costs or impediments to obtaining or retaining service, it did not oppose the Cooperative's proposals to formalize such practices.

With regard to Section IV. "Requirements for Securing Electric Service B. Deposits," Staff noted that the last sentence in Subsection 1 should be deleted. Staff advised that the Cooperative concurred with this change. With regard to Subsection 2 of Section IV. "Requirements for Securing Electric Service B. Deposits", Staff recommended that the last sentence of Subsection 2 should also be deleted. That sentence states "[i]ninstallments shall not be available to any Customer who has not honored a previous installment agreement." Staff opposed this proposed language as raising a barrier to the restoration of service to A&N's customers.

Staff proposed that the last sentence of Subsection 1 of Section V. "Use of Electric Service B. Notification and Approval of Unusual Equipment Added by Customer" should be deleted. That sentence states "[t]he Cooperative reserves the right to charge for any in-depth studies required in order to determine the effect of the apparatus on the Cooperative's system." Staff commented that this language represents a change from the Cooperative's current Terms and Conditions of Service and creates a new charge for A&N's customers.

With regard to Section XI. "Meters and Metering. A. Ownership and Location", the Staff recommended that the fourth sentence of the section be deleted. This sentence states: "[t]he Cooperative may furnish the meter socket, or at its discretion may require the Customer to provide a meter socket approved by the Cooperative, which shall be installed by the Customer as a part of the service entrance." This language represents a change in the current Terms and Conditions that provides that the Cooperative will furnish the meter socket. Staff recommended that the Cooperative retain the existing language in its current Terms and Conditions rather than the proposed language because the proposed language raises the possibility of increasing costs to customers. Staff recommended that the sentence should be revised to read "[t]he Cooperative will furnish the meter socket which shall be installed by the Customer."

According to Staff, the third sentence of Section XI. "Meter and Metering. E. Tests Requested by Customer" should also be revised to read: "[i]f the test of the meter finds it to be more than two percent (2%) inaccurate, the deposit will be refunded and proper adjustment made." The language proposed by the Cooperative's application states "[s]uch fees are refundable only if the percentage registration of the meter exceeds 102%."

A&N set out the retail access general rates and regulations in Appendix B to its application. These rules and regulations supplement the general terms and conditions for customers electing to purchase energy from a CSP. The terms and conditions applicable to a CSP are included in the proposed Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff. Staff noted that the information in this Appendix generally summarizes the requirements in the Retail Access Rules as they relate to shopping customers. Staff commented on "IV. Customer Information, E.", where the Cooperative proposes that if a customer's historical energy usage information is available in interval meter data form, it will be provided only to the customer prior to enrollment by a CSP. Staff noted that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D requires a CSP to obtain customer authorization prior to requesting any customer usage information not included on the mass list available from the local distribution company ("LDC"). Staff noted that under this Rule, the CSP is responsible for providing proof that it has the customer's authorization to receive this information upon request by the customer or the Commission. Staff concluded that A&N should release historical information, including that in interval meter data form to a CSP upon request at pre-enrollment, during enrollment and post-enrollment and, therefore, should modify the language in its Retail Access General Rules and Regulations to reflect this change.

Staff also commented on A&N's Technical IT Fee, CSR Fee, and Wire Transfer Charge set out in A&N's Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff's Schedule of Fees. Staff agreed that the cost data provided by A&N supported the proposed Technical IT and CSR fees. However, Staff recommended that the Wire Transfer fee be limited to $15.00 to cover only the bank fee associated with wire transfers. The Cooperative's proposed Wire Transfer fee of $35.00 includes 0.25 hours of administrative labor costs in addition to the bank fee. Staff noted that administrative costs would be incurred regardless of the method of payment, i.e., by wire or otherwise, used by the CSP.

Staff reported that the Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements were identified as attachments to the Cooperative's Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff. Staff stated that it had no objection to the inclusion of these agreements in the application.

Finally, Staff noted that the Dispute Resolution Procedure attached to the Competitive Service Provider Coordinator tariff provides the steps for resolution of disputes between the CSP and A&N as required by 20 VAC 5-312-110 A of the Retail Access Rules. Staff found the proposed procedure appropriate and recommended that the Commission accept the same.

No comments from Respondents were filed in the case. A&N filed a Response to the Staff Report ("Response") on November 13, 2003.

In its Response, the Cooperative noted that it has corrected and provided to Staff Table 2 of the Market Price Tables. A&N represented that it intended to include updated market price projections in a compliance filing made with the Commission prior to the commencement of retail access in the Cooperative's service territory. It also acknowledged that its CTC calculations are to be reviewed for updating prior to the commencement of retail access. A&N stated that it intends to incorporate the most current fuel factor adjustment available in the compliance filing to be submitted in response to the Commission's Final Order in this proceeding.

With regard to its commitment document, A&N asked the Commission to recognize that a "new agreement could be negotiated to replace the current agreement at its termination, which new agreement (as approved by the Commission) would permit the continued collection of wires charges."

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

A&N represented that, subject to the updating and correction as discussed in its Response to the Staff Report, A&N's rate schedules will be ready for implementation on January 1, 2004. A&N committed to update its tariffs and rate schedules in a single compliance filing after the Commission's Final Order is issued.

The Cooperative accepted Staff's recommendation to change references to "Generation and Transmission Charges" in the general default service tariffs to "Electricity Supply Service."

A&N accepted the Staff's changes to IV.B.1 and IV.B.2 of the Cooperative's Terms and Conditions as well as the deletion of the final sentence in Subsection V.B.1. A&N also determined not to challenge the Staff's recommendation as to the fourth sentence of Subsection XI.A and agreed to preserve the language recommended by Staff for Subsection XI.E.

With regard to Appendix B, Subsection IV.E., the Cooperative maintained that in the Rappahannock Electric Cooperative and Shenandoah Valley Cooperative retail access cases, such interval data was to be provided directly to the customer. Additionally, the Cooperative asserted that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D does not require a local distribution company to release any available historical energy usage information at CSP's request. According to A&N, this Rule instead requires CSPs to obtain customer authorization before requesting information not on the Mass List, and that CSPs must be able to provide evidence of such authorization. A&N asserts that the language included in IV.E was intended to protect sensitive customer information and to prohibit the release of such information without the customer's knowledge and express authorization. As an alternative, A&N agreed to amend Subsection IV.E as follows:

Due to the sensitive nature of the information, historical energy usage information of Customers that have interval metering may be made available to the Customer or CSP upon request by the Customer to the Cooperative. The historical energy usage information will be made available by an appropriate, cost-effective electronic medium.

With respect to the CSP Coordination Tariff, the Cooperative continued to support the $20.00 cost component attributable to 0.25 hours of administrative time spent processing the wire transfer and its $35.00 wire transfer fee.

With regard to its Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements, the Cooperative requested that the Commission accept the form of agreements submitted by A&N as part of its filed CSP Coordination Tariff. A&N requested the Commission to: (i) consider the comments offered in its Response; (ii) enter an Order accepting and approving its Unbundled Tariffs and Rate Schedules for All Customer Classes, Terms and Conditions for Providing Electric Service and Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff, and the related agreements and procedures, with the changes recommended by Staff, subject to the modification proposed in A&N's Response; (iii) accept and approve its proposed calculations of adjusted market rates and CTCs, subject to such updating as is appropriate; and (iv) provide for such further relief as the Commission deems appropriate.

On November 21, 2003, the Staff filed its Reply to the Cooperative's Response ("Reply"). In its Reply, the Staff asserted that the language in its Report reflects the specific language used in the documentation of A&N's commitment with ODEC. Staff noted that under § 56-584 of the Code of Virginia, A&N's binding commitment with ODEC is a precondition for the establishment of wires charges. Staff commented that the terms of that commitment governs the Cooperative's allocation of wires charges, as determined by the Commission.

With regard to the issue of the provision of a customer's historical energy usage information in interval meter data form, the Staff noted that a CSP must obtain customer authorization prior to requesting any customer usage information not included on the mass list as available from the LDC. Staff explained that the CSP, not the LDC, is responsible for obtaining customer authorization. Staff asserted that interval meter data is not on the mass list and that the Cooperative's proposal in IV.E "Customer Information" does not capture the essence of the Commission's findings in the Shenandoah Electric Cooperative's retail access or Community Electric Cooperative's retail access cases. Staff observed that the language proposed by A&N as an alternative was not consistent with the language in VII.G "Load Profiles" portion of the Cooperative's Retail Access General Rules and Regulations. Staff noted that one way to address the apparent inconsistencies between Subsection IV.E "Customer Information" and Subsection VII.G "Load Profiles" is to remove IV.E "Customer Information" from the Cooperative's Retail Access Rules and Regulations.

In regard to the Wire Transfer Fee issue, Staff noted that currently the Cooperative sometimes receives the transfer of funds, albeit infrequently. Staff contended that A&N's rates already include a component to recover administrative costs associated with process of payment media, and that the data provided by A&N in its application does not explain why the cost of processing a wire transfer is higher than the administrative components for other means of payment already recovered in the Cooperative's rates. Staff further contended that the addition of a $20.00 add-on charge for CSPs that use wire transfers imposes an additional charge for service not imposed on nonshopping Cooperative customers or upon CSPs that do not use wire transfers. Staff contended that the administrative fee of $20.00 could be viewed as not advancing competition.

Finally, Staff agreed with A&N that it was appropriate to accept the Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements as attachments to the CSP Coordination Tariff.

On December 5, 2003, A&N filed its Response to the Reply of the Staff of the State Corporation Commission ("Response to the Reply"). In its Response to the Reply, the Cooperative asserted that the amended binding commitment letter filed by BARC differed only slightly from the language used in A&N's commitment with ODEC.

Further, A&N, among other things, asserted that Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D does not require that an LDC release any available historical energy usage information upon a CSP's request, and maintained that the goal of Subsection IV.E of its Retail Access General Rules and Regulations is to protect sensitive customer information by prohibiting the release of such information without proof of the customer's knowledge. The Cooperative continued to argue that no change to Subsection IV.E was needed and requested that the Commission find that the Cooperative has the right to verify that the customer has authorized the CSP to receive interval meter data.

A&N continued to assert that its cost for 0.25 hours of administrative time should be included in its wire transfer fee, and the wire transfer fee of $35.00 should be accepted by the Commission. A&N explained that while the costs of processing a wire transfer are not necessarily higher than other payment media, there are increased costs to processing such transfers.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Cooperative's application, the Staff Report, A&N's Response to the Report, the responsive pleadings of the Staff and the Cooperative, and applicable statutes, hereby approve A&N's application as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications prescribed below.

We incorporate, by reference, our findings in the Wires Charge Case (Case No. PUE-2001-00306). The methodology for the proposed CTC must reflect the appropriate fuel adjustments and wires calculation. The wires charges calculated are subject to the limitation of § 56-583 of the Code of Virginia, which permits adjustments no more frequently than annually. Thus, the effective date of A&N's wires charges must conform with Ordering Paragraph (5) of the May 24, 2002, Order in the Wires Charges Case. As noted in the foregoing discussion, the value used for the fuel adjustment to base generation should be updated to reflect the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to A&N initiating retail access in its service territory. As agreed to by A&N, the Cooperative shall resubmit updated Market Price Tables following the Commission's Final Order on DVP's fuel factor application, Case No. PUE-2003-00285, and should update the value ($0.00921/kWh) to include the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment prior to initiating retail access on January 1, 2004.

With respect to A&N's commitment document with ODEC, we note that the plain language of Virginia Code § 56-584 provides that the establishment by the Commission of wires charges is conditional upon such cooperative "entering into binding commitments by which it will pay to any power supply cooperative of which such distribution cooperative is or was a member, as compensation for such power supply cooperative's stranded costs, all or part of the proceeds of such wires charges, as determined by the Commission." This statute therefore assumes that there must be an active, unterminated commitment in place between the Cooperative and ODEC, A&N's power supply cooperative, and that the allocation between the power supply cooperative and a distribution cooperative is established "as determined by the Commission." While the Cooperative may not charge a wires charge without an active binding commitment, nothing prevents A&N from entering into a new agreement. Under those circumstances, the Cooperative must have the binding commitment establishing the wires charge approved by the Commission. It is our expectation that the Cooperative would file any new agreement for approval with the Commission before the existing agreement terminates.

With respect to A&N's proposed unbundled lighting service schedule, we will accept this schedule. We note that this Schedule was previously approved in A&N's functional separation case, Case No. PUE-2001-00008.

With regard to Subsection IV. "Customer Information E., we note that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D allows customers or the Commission to require the CSP to provide proof of its authorization. LDCs were not mentioned in this Rule to avoid opportunities for anticompetitive actions by the LDCs since LDCs or their affiliates may compete with the CSP to provide service to customers.

The Final Orders entered in Shenandoah's³ and Community's⁴ retail access cases do not plainly address whether the cooperatives are entitled to verify a CSP's entitlement to gain access to customer information. The authority to verify a CSP's entitlement to information not on the mass list has been deliberately lodged with the customer or the Commission. See Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D and 20 VAC 5-312-80 B. A&N should, therefore, modify its Retail Access General Rules and Regulations to remove IV. "Customer Information E."

With respect to the wire transfer charge fee, the Cooperative proposes a $35.00 wire transfer fee consisting of $15.00 associated with charges made to A&N by its bank and $20.00 attributable to costs associated with the Cooperative's administrative support. The Cooperative has not, in our view, demonstrated support for the $20.00 administrative component of this charge vis-à-vis other means of payment media. For example, there are costs associated with writing, processing and mailing a check. The Cooperative has not demonstrated that the administrative costs associated with a wire transfer exceed the costs for payment by check. A&N is directed to reduce its wire transfer fee to $15.00 to recover the costs charged to A&N by its bank for wire transfers. The remaining fees proposed by A&N are approved.

With regard to the CSP, Trading Partner, and Aggregator Agreements, we accept the inclusion of these arguments as attachments to the CSP Coordination Tariff.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) A&N's tariffs and terms and conditions of service as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications discussed herein are hereby approved.
- (2) A&N shall file revised tariffs and terms and conditions of service reflecting the findings made herein with the Commission's Division of Energy Regulation as soon as practicable after the date of this Order.
- (3) A&N may initiate retail choice in its service territory upon the filing required by Ordering Paragraph (2) herein.
- (4) This case shall be dismissed, and the papers filed herein shall be made a part of the Commission's files for ended causes.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00280
DECEMBER 22, 2003

APPLICATION OF
GROUNDHOG MTN. WATER & SEWER CO., INC.

For an increase in rates, fees, and charges pursuant to the Small Water or Sewer Public Utility Act

ORDER

By notice dated April 30, 2003, pursuant to the Small Water or Sewer Public Utility Act, §§ 56-264.13.1 et seq. of the Code of Virginia ("Code"), Groundhog Mountain Water and Sewer Company, Inc. ("Company"), notified its customers and the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") of its intent to increase rates, charges, and fees for water and/or sewer service effective July 1, 2003.

The Company proposed to increase its quarterly rates as follows:

WATER RATES

Current	Proposed
$140.25 minimum charge	$164.00 minimum charge

SEWER RATES

$95.00 minimum charge	$118.00 minimum charge
------------------------	-------------------------

The Company proposed a fee of $3,000.00 for new customers desiring to connect to the water system and a fee of $3,000.00 for customers desiring to connect to the sewer system. The Company also proposed to increase its bad check charge from $6.00 to $25.00 and to increase its maximum required customer deposit from the customer's estimated liability for two months' usage to the customer's estimated liability for one calendar quarter of usage. In addition, the Company proposed certain additional changes in its rules and regulations of service.

On June 27, 2003, the Commission issued a Preliminary Order declaring the Company's proposed rates, charges, and fees interim and subject to refund with interest. The Commission further directed the Company to file certain financial information on or before July 25, 2003.

On July 9, 2003, the Commission entered an Order for Notice and Hearing, wherein we appointed a Hearing Examiner to hear this case, scheduled a public hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence relevant to the Company's proposed tariff revisions, and directed the Company to provide notice to each of its customers of its proposed tariff revisions and the public hearing.

On November 5, 2003, counsel for Doe Run Properties, LLC ("Doe Run"), a respondent in this matter, filed on behalf of Doe Run and the Company a joint motion ("Joint Motion") requesting a limited stay of proceedings and an expedited consideration and approval of a settlement agreement ("Settlement Agreement").¹ The Settlement Agreement resolves all disputes and differences among the parties – including disputes outside the jurisdiction of the Commission. On November 6, 2003, the public hearing was convened as scheduled in the Roanoke City Council Chamber. The Commission's Staff ("Staff") appeared by its counsel, Wayne N. Smith, Esquire. The Company appeared by its counsel, Wilburn C. Dibling, Esquire. Doe Run appeared by its counsel, Thomas B. Nicholson, Esquire. No public witnesses appeared at the hearing. Staff, the Company, and Doe Run filed comments on the Joint Motion and Settlement Agreement subsequent to the hearing.

On December 2, 2003, the Company filed an Amended Application Requesting Expedited Consideration of Revised Tariff, Transfer of Utility Assets, and Amendments to Certificates of Public Convenience and Necessity as to Service Territories ("Amended Application"). The Amended Application reflects the Settlement Agreement and explains that the Settlement Agreement is conditioned upon closing occurring on or before December 31, 2003. The Amended Application explains that the Settlement Agreement provides, among other things, that: (1) Doe Run will transfer certain water and sewer facilities to Groundhog Mtn. Property Owners, Inc. ("GMPO") or to the Company; (2) the parties agree to water and sewer rates recommended by Staff and set out in the revised tariff; (3) the parties agree to water and sewer connection fees attached to the prefiled testimony of Company witness Viele; (4) the parties agree as to the number of Quarterly Minimum Service Charges to be charged to the Doe Run Lodge Commercial Complex ("Complex"); and (5) the parties agree as to the amendments to the rules and regulations set out in the revised tariff. The Amended Application also includes the utility assets proposed to be transferred, the consideration being paid by the Company, and other relevant information.²

On December 2, 2003, Staff filed a letter to the Examiner in which Staff, among other things, stated that it reserved judgment on the allocation of water and sewer service charges to Doe Run reflected in the Settlement, and that it cannot recommend to the Commission that these provisions be accepted in this proceeding.

On December 5, 2003, Hearing Examiner Michael D. Thomas issued his Report in this matter. The Examiner concluded that the Settlement Agreement is reasonable and in the best interests of the Company and its customers. The Examiner also found that adequate service to the public at just and reasonable rates will not be impaired or jeopardized by approving the Company's acquisition of utility assets. The Examiner explained that the Settlement Agreement adopts rates and tariff revisions recommended by Staff, and that it changes the allocation of equivalent residential connections to the Complex. The Examiner concluded that the resulting allocation of equivalent residential connections to the Complex is driven primarily by the number of pool chalets that are part of the Complex and is not per se unreasonable. The Examiner further stated that the Company is acquiring additional water supply sources, storage capacity, and an additional sewage treatment facility, and found that the Settlement Agreement will improve the level of service for all customers. Thus, the Hearing Examiner determined that the public interest would best be served by the Commission's approval of those portions of the Settlement Agreement over which it has jurisdiction.

On December 8, 2003, the Company submitted comments in support of the Hearing Examiner's Report. On December 8, 2003, Doe Run filed a letter stating that it supports the Company's comments generally, and that it fully supports the findings and recommendations in the Examiner's Report.

On December 10, 2003, Staff filed a response ("Response") to the Examiner's Report. Staff states, among other things, that the Company's proposed acquisition of facilities under the Settlement Agreement requires approval under the Utility Transfers Act, §§ 56-88 to -92 of the Code. Staff contends the Commission has routinely determined that the sound administration of § 56-90 of the Code requires an opportunity to request a hearing after notice. Staff further states that prior to acquiring facilities outside its service territory, the Company needs approval under the Utility Facilities Act, §§ 56-265.1 to -265.9 of the Code. Specifically, Staff asserts that the Company needs a "facilities" certificate pursuant to § 56-265.2 A and E of the Code, along with a modification of its "territorial" certificate pursuant to § 56-265.3 of the Code. Staff states that § 56-265.2 A requires an opportunity for a hearing and due notice to interested parties.³ Staff concludes that the general body of ratepayers is unaware of the proposal in the Settlement Agreement, and, as result, the Commission cannot approve the Settlement Agreement without providing notice and opportunity for hearing of the same.

On December 10, 2003, the Commission issued an Order permitting parties to file, on or before 5:00 p.m. on December 15, 2003, a reply to Staff's Response.

On December 15, 2003, Doe Run filed a reply to Staff's Response. Doe Run contends that additional notice is not required under the Utility Transfers Act. Doe Run further notes that it has agreed to sell utility assets to either GMPO or the Company. If the assets are transferred to GMPO, Doe Run states that approval under the Utility Facilities Act is unnecessary, since GMPO is not a "public utility" under § 56-265.1 of the Code. If the Company is the acquirer of the utility assets, Doe Run asserts that the Commission could discharge its duties under the Utility Facilities Act by issuing an order that conditionally approves the Settlement Agreement, subject to additional notice.

On December 17, 2003, the Company filed a Motion Requesting Extension of Time in which to File a Response to Staff Response and filed a Response to Commission Staff Response. The Company asserts that § 56-90 of the Code does not require notice in the case of every transfer, and that the Settlement Agreement and Amended Application are supported by the sole commercial customer (Doe Run) and the entity representing all residential property owners on Groundhog Mountain (GMPO). Thus, the Company asserts that requiring additional notice is unnecessary under § 56-90 if the Commission is satisfied that adequate service to the public at just and reasonable rates will not be impaired or jeopardized by granting the transfer. The Company further explains that GMPO may initially acquire the utility facilities from Doe Run under the Settlement Agreement, and that there may be some delay in transferring any such facilities from GMPO to the Company. Thus, with respect to approval under the Utility Facilities Act, the Company states that at the appropriate time it can, if required, come back to the Commission and request the Commission's approval with respect to its acquisition of utility assets from GMPO. The Company concludes that under this circumstance, the Commission may condition any order approving the Settlement Agreement upon the Company's providing due notice to any interested parties under § 56-265.2 A with respect to the proposed acquisition of utility facilities within the context of this proceeding.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the record, the Hearing Examiner's Report, the pleadings, and the applicable law, is of the opinion and finds as follows.

We grant the Company's Motion Requesting Extension of Time in which to File a Response to Staff Response. We also accept the Company's Amended Application as part of this proceeding. As explained by the Hearing Examiner, the Settlement Agreement and Amended Application provide an opportunity to resolve the continuing disputes regarding water and sewer service in the Groundhog Mountain community.

We adopt the rates, rules, and regulations of water and sewer service contained in the Settlement Agreement, and recommended by the Hearing Examiner, which do not appear unjust and unreasonable. The Settlement Agreement adopts the water and sewer rates recommended by Staff: $145.00 per quarter for water; and $128.00 per quarter for sewer. The Settlement Agreement also specifies that: (1) for water service, thirteen (13) Quarterly Minimum Service Charges will be applied to the Complex (one each for the pool chalets and three for the restaurant and conference center); and (2) for sewer service, fourteen (14) Quarterly Minimum Service Charges will be applied to the Complex (one each for the pool chalets and four for the restaurant and conference center). The Settlement Agreement also establishes water and sewer connection fees and agrees to the amendments to the rules and regulations set out in the revised tariff.

The Settlement Agreement currently provides that closing shall take place no later than December 31, 2003. As noted by Doe Run and the Company, the utility facilities initially may be transferred from Doe Run to GMPO, and then from GMPO to the Company. GMPO is a party to the Settlement Agreement. Furthermore, the Amended Application explains that all property owners on Groundhog Mountain are represented by GMPO, states that GMPO joins in requesting the expedited approvals sought by the Company, and is signed by GMPO's counsel.⁴

If the utility assets are transferred from Doe Run to GMPO, based on the facts and circumstances herein it is not clear whether the Utility Transfers Act applies to GMPO's acquisition. To the extent that such approval is necessary, however, we find in this instance that the transfer of these assets from one customer (Doe Run) to an entity representing the other customers (GMPO) of the same utility will not impair or jeopardize adequate service to the public at just and reasonable rates. In addition, we agree with Doe Run and the Company that GMPO's acquisition of utility facilities from Doe Run does not require approval under the Utility Facilities Act. Accordingly, the parties may comply with the Settlement Agreement by transferring the utility assets from Doe Run to GMPO on or before December 31, 2003.

³ Staff also states that the Commission could determine that notice is appropriate under § 56-265.3 B of the Code.

⁴ The Amended Application also states that GMPO owns all the stock of the Company and all utility assets used by the Company to provide water and sewer service, and that all existing utility assets and utility assets proposed to be acquired from Doe Run have been or will be licensed by GMPO to the Company.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

We also find that interested persons should receive due notice, pursuant to §§ 56-90, -265.2, and -265.3 of the Code, regarding the Company's proposed acquisition of facilities and modification of service territory contained in the Amended Application. We direct the Company to provide notice to each of its customers, in the form provided below, of its proposed acquisition of facilities and modification of service territory by first-class mail on or before January 9, 2003. Interested persons will be permitted to comment and/or request a hearing by January 30, 2003.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The Company's Motion Requesting Extension of Time in which to File a Response to Staff Response is hereby granted.
- (2) Doe Run may transfer utility assets to GMPO pursuant to the Settlement Agreement.
- (3) The Company shall make a copy of its Amended Application available for public inspection during regular business hours at Hillsville Public Library, 101 Beaverdam Road, Hillsville, Virginia 24343.
- (4) On or before January 9, 2003, the Company shall cause a copy of the following notice to be sent to each of its customers by first-class mail, postage prepaid (bill inserts are acceptable), to all customers in its service territory:

On June 27, 2003, Craig-Botetourt Electric Cooperative ("Applicant" or "Craig-Botetourt"), filed an application under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"). In its application, Applicant requests authority to incur long-term indebtedness from the United States of America through a Federal Financing Bank ("FFB") Loan guaranteed by the Rural Utilities Service ("RUS"). Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $25.

The proceeds from the loan will be used to finance construction of additional electric distribution facilities consistent with its approved work plan for the period of July 2002 through July 2006. Applicant states that these improvements will provide service to approximately 620 new customers in Virginia and 40 new customers in West Virginia. The improvements will require approximately 48 miles of overhead and underground construction.

The Proposed Debt will be issued in the form of a Mortgage Note secured by all the assets of Craig-Botetourt, pursuant to the terms and conditions of the RUS Loan Contract and Mortgage Note as set out in Exhibits 2 through 5 of the application. The Proposed Debt will have a final maturity term of 35 years; however portions may be advanced within an initial five-year Fund Advance Period. CASE NO. PUE-2003-00285
DECEMBER 12, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

To revise its fuel factor pursuant to Va. Code § 56-249.6

ORDER ESTABLISHING 2004 FUEL FACTOR

On July 1, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power" or "Company") filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") its application, written testimony, and exhibits requesting a fuel factor of $.02331/kWh, which results in an annual increase of approximately $441.7 million, to be effective with usage on and after January 1, 2004. Concurrently, and by motion dated July 1, 2003, the Company also requested that the Commission enter a protective order governing the treatment of confidential information in this proceeding.

On July 14, 2003, the Commission entered an Order docketing this case, establishing a procedural schedule, requiring notice of the application, and setting a hearing date for this matter. The Commission also directed its Staff to file testimony and provided an opportunity for interested persons to provide comments and to participate in this matter.

The Virginia Committee for Fair Utility Rates ("Committee"), the Division of Consumer Counsel of the Office of the Attorney General ("Consumer Counsel"), Chaparral (Virginia) Inc. ("Chaparral"), Food Lion LLC ("Food Lion"), Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("ODEC"), and the Virginia Independent Power Producers, Inc. ("VIPP"), filed notices of participation as respondents in this case.

On August 12, 2003, the Commission issued a Protective Order. The Committee and Consumer Counsel filed direct testimony and exhibits on September 5, 2003.¹ Staff filed a report on fuel recovery matters on September 16, 2003, and filed its direct testimony and exhibits on September 17, 2003. The Company filed rebuttal testimony and exhibits on October 2, 2003.

On August 12, 2003, the Company filed a Motion in Limine ("Motion"). The Company requested that the Commission limit the scope of this proceeding in accordance with § 56-249.6 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") and the regulations governing fuel factor cases, and rule that jurisdictional base rate revenues are not the subject of this proceeding. On August 12, 2003, the Commission entered an Order establishing an expedited schedule for responses to the Motion and for the Company's reply. On August 22, 2003, the Commission issued an Order on Motion in Limine, which granted the Motion for the limited purpose of ruling that over-earnings by the Company in jurisdictional base rate revenues may not be used to offset a proper increase in the fuel factor.

On October 7, 2003, the Commission held a hearing to receive testimony from public witnesses. Rose Williams Boyd testified on behalf of the City Council of the City of Alexandria. Steve Sinclair testified on behalf of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors. Jeremy Rowan of Richmond, Virginia, also testified.

The Commission held further evidentiary hearings on October 9-10, 2003. At the commencement of the hearing on October 9, 2003, the Company, Staff, Consumer Counsel, the Committee, Chaparral, and Food Lion offered a Stipulation proposing to settle most of the issues presented in this case. The Stipulation, as revised at the hearing: (1) reduces the $441.7 million proposed increase by approximately $42 million to reflect updates of the Company's projected fuel cost forecast and the actual deferral fuel balance as of September 1, 2003; (2) effects a $14 million reduction of the Company's fuel costs for which it seeks recovery in this proceeding; (3) amortizes, without interest, over a three and one-half year period (January 1, 2004, through July 1, 2007), the Company's collection of its actual under-recovery balance as of December 31, 2003; and (4) resolves certain issues raised by Staff regarding profits from Dominion Virginia Power's wholesale energy marketing activities during the years 2001 and 2002.²

The Stipulation results in a fuel factor for 2004 of $.01891/kWh, consisting of a current fuel factor of $.01756/kWh and an amortization factor of $.00135/kWh. Under the Stipulation, the amortization factor shall remain in effect until July 1, 2007, for collection of the actual under-recovery balance as of December 31, 2003, or until such balance is collected, whichever is sooner.

The Stipulation leaves two issues open for resolution by the Commission: (1) the Committee's recommendation that the Commission delay the effective date of any fuel rate increase to allow the General Assembly, if the General Assembly so wishes, an opportunity to consider the issues raised by the Committee in this case; and (2) the Staff's recommendation that the Commission allocate to ratepayers 50% of the profits from Dominion Resources Inc.'s ("DRI") and the Company's wholesale energy marketing activities during the period January 1, 2003, to October 1, 2003, and thereafter.

Post-hearing briefs were filed by the Company, Staff, the Committee, Consumer Counsel, Chaparral, and Food Lion.³ All of these participants request that the Commission approve the Stipulation.

In its post-hearing brief, the Company requests that the Commission reject: (1) the Committee's proposal to delay the order and effective date of the fuel factor; and (2) Staff witness Oliver's proposal to appropriate the unregulated trading profits of DRI for use in reducing the Company's recovery of its legitimate and prudently-incurred fuel costs.

¹ Consumer Counsel filed a correction on September 12, 2003.

² Revised Ex. 27. To properly reflect the Stipulation as revised at the hearing, on November 10 and 12, 2003, the Company filed a clean and a black-lined version, respectively, of Revised Exhibit 27 and Revised Page 2 of Exhibit 26 (Supplemental Schedule 8).

In its post-hearing brief, Staff contends the record clearly demonstrates that the Company and its customers support DRI's and Dominion Virginia Power's wholesale energy trading activities, bear the risks associated with these activities, and deserve to be compensated when these activities produce benefits.

The Committee's post-hearing brief asserts that the Commission should delay the effective date of any rate increase to permit the General Assembly to address the unfairness and economic harm that would result if the Company is permitted to increase significantly its capped rates (due to the increase in fuel expense sought in this case) while continuing to accumulate enormous excess earnings. The Committee also states that the Commission should compensate the Company's customers for the cross-subsidies revealed by Staff's analysis of out-of-system trades.

Chaparral's post-hearing brief supports the Committee's recommendation that the Commission delay the effective date of any increase to allow the General Assembly, if it so wishes, an opportunity to consider the issues raised by the Committee.

Consumer Counsel's post-hearing brief does not take a position on either: (1) the Committee's recommendation to delay the effective date of any fuel rate increase; or (2) the Staff's recommendation that profits from wholesale energy marketing activities should be shared with consumers. As a result, Consumer Counsel has not explained whether these proposals are, or are not, in the best interests of consumers.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the record, the pleadings, and the applicable law, is of the opinion and finds as follows.

We accept the Stipulation proposed herein. We find that a strong presentation was made in this record for reducing the Company's fuel rate request as a result of the nuclear plant outages and that such an adjustment may very well have been appropriate absent the Stipulation. Consumer Counsel also asserted that amortizing the prior period fuel costs over the remaining term of the capped rate period without interest is reasonable because the Company's shareholders will be the sole beneficiaries of the added value arising from the nuclear reactor vessel head replacements after the capped rate period expires. We agree that spreading out the prior period fuel cost recovery without interest is a benefit to ratepayers. There is evidence in this case, however, that the present value to ratepayers of amortizing the prior period fuel costs without interest is small when measured against the total fuel cost increase and the increased value received by the Company from extending the life of its four nuclear reactors. Staff's testimony includes estimates for the present value of the nuclear plant life extensions at between $1.95 and $4.27 billion. The Company did not file rebuttal testimony on this issue.

We conclude that it is appropriate for there to be a reduction in the requested fuel rate and accept the participants' settlement, which includes a $14 million write-off and an amortization of prior period fuel costs without interest. Specifically, the Company's fuel factor shall be $0.01891/kWh effective with usage on and after January 1, 2004, which consists of a current fuel factor of $0.01756/kWh and an amortization factor of $0.00135/kWh.

The approved fuel factor reflects an update of the projected fuel costs forecast and the actual deferral fuel balance as of September 1, 2003 (reducing the $441.7 million proposed increase by approximately $42 million). The amortization factor reflects a three and one-half year amortization, without interest, of the Company's actual under-recovery balance as of December 31, 2003, less the $14 million write-off. The amortization factor shall remain in effect until July 1, 2007, for collection of the actual under-recovery balance as of December 31, 2003, or until such balance is collected, whichever is sooner.

Based on the arguments and evidence presented, we are not persuaded to adopt the Committee's request to delay the effective date of the fuel rate increase to allow the General Assembly to consider issues raised by the Committee in this case. However, as reflected in the Order on Motion in Limine issued on August 22, 2003, we share a number of the concerns expressed by the Committee on this matter. For example, consumers' rates are not truly "capped" under § 56-582 of the Code, but rather may be adjusted by this Commission to a very significant extent in connection with a utility's recovery of fuel costs or for other reasons. Also, the "cap" may more correctly be described as a "freeze;" with a few exceptions, the Commission is prohibited by Virginia statute from raising or lowering rates. Even if the Company received approximately $680 million in over-earnings during 2002, as alleged by the Committee, current statutes prohibit the Commission from reducing the Company's requested rate increase to reflect such over-earnings.⁴ The Committee has suggested that the statute should be changed to remedy this situation. Obviously, the Committee or any interested party may seek such legislation. We must apply the law as we find it, and we will not suspend our implementation of existing law while the Committee or others may seek to have it changed.

We also do not adopt Staff's recommendation that 50% of the profits from calendar year 2003 resulting from DRI's and the Company's wholesale energy marketing activities be credited to the deferred fuel balance. Prior to October 2003, DRI and Dominion Virginia Power did not have separate trading floors. There is evidence in this case that prior to October 2003, the Company provided direct aid to DRI's trading operations in the form of facilities, generation-related assets, personnel, and credit support. The support provided by the Company after October 2003 for out-of-system transactions may not be as direct or significant, but some of the support may be just as real. However, we find that we are unable to act on this evidence as part of this proceeding.

The recovery of fuel costs in this case is governed by § 56-249.6 of the Code. This section states in part:

The Commission may, to the extent deemed appropriate, offset against fuel costs and purchased power costs to be recovered hereunder the revenues attributable to sales of power pursuant to interconnection agreements with neighboring electric utilities.

This provision defines the extent to which we may offset against fuel costs the revenues attributable to the electric utility's power sales in the fuel factor.⁵

The record establishes that as of October 1, 2003, DRI and the Company separated its trading operations. According to Dominion Virginia Power, DRI now conducts all out-of-system trades from its Tredgar campus, and the Company conducts all off-system trades from its Innsbrook office. As a result, based on the testimony in this case, on and after October 1, 2003, any out-of-system trades are not made by Dominion Virginia Power. Accordingly, based on this evidence it appears that these transactions clearly do not fall under § 56-249.6 of the Code.

In addition, for the period January 1, 2003, to October 1, 2003, the record is not clear as to which, if any, out-of-system trades were made by the Company pursuant to interconnection agreements with neighboring electric utilities. Thus, we will not offset fuel costs, as part of this proceeding, for any out-of-system transactions that may have been made by the Company during this period.

Finally, the fuel factor approved herein will be used in establishing wires charges for the Company for calendar year 2004. In the recent proceeding to establish wires charges, we stated that we would designate, in this case, the ten days on which the base forward market information will be collected for the calculation of wires charges.⁶ In this regard, we require that the base forward market information used in establishing wires charges be collected on the following ten dates: October 13, 2003; October 21, 2003; October 29, 2003; November 6, 2003; November 14, 2003; and November 17 through November 21, 2003.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The Stipulation (Revised Ex. 27) is hereby accepted.
- (2) The Company's fuel factor shall be $0.01891/kWh effective with usage on and after January 1, 2004, which consists of a current fuel factor of $0.01756/kWh and an amortization factor of $0.00135/kWh.
- (3) The amortization factor of $0.00135/kWh shall remain in effect until July 1, 2007, for collection of the actual under-recovery balance as of December 31, 2003, or until such balance is collected, whichever is sooner.
- (4) The Committee's request to delay the effective date of the fuel rate increase to allow the General Assembly to consider issues raised by the Committee in this case is hereby denied.
- (5) The Staff's recommendation that the Commission allocate to ratepayers 50% of the profits from Dominion Resources Inc.'s and the Company's wholesale energy marketing activities during the period January 1, 2003, to October 1, 2003, and thereafter, is hereby denied.
- (6) The base forward market information used in establishing wires charges shall be collected on the following ten dates: October 13, 2003; October 21, 2003; October 29, 2003; November 6, 2003; November 14, 2003; and November 17 through November 21, 2003.
- (7) This matter is continued generally.

⁶ Ex Parte: In the matter of considering requirements relating to wires charges pursuant to the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act, Case No. PUE-2001-00306, Final Order (Sep. 23, 2003).

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00286
JULY 23, 2003

APPLICATION OF
APPALACHIAN POWER COMPANY D/B/A AMERICAN ELECTRIC POWER

To revise its fuel factor pursuant to § 56-249.6 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER ESTABLISHING 2003-2004 FUEL FACTOR PROCEEDING

On July 1, 2003, Appalachian Power Company d/b/a American Electric Power ("Appalachian" or the "Company") filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") its application, written testimony, and exhibits requesting a decrease in the current fuel factor from 1.463¢/kWh to 1.300¢/kWh, effective with bills rendered on and after August 1, 2003. This results in an estimated fuel revenue decrease of approximately $35.7 million over the 17-month forecast period, August 1, 2003 to December 1, 2004. Appalachian states that this revision is necessary to reflect the appropriate level of ongoing fuel expenses, to prevent the buildup of a large over-recovery balance, provide customers with the benefit of the lower projected costs as soon as possible, and provide greater rate stability.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the application, § 56-249.6 of the Code of Virginia, and all other applicable statutes and regulations, finds that this matter should be docketed, that public notice and an opportunity for participation in this proceeding be given, and that a hearing should be scheduled. We will permit the proposed fuel factor of 1.300¢/kWh to be placed into effect, on an interim basis, effective will bills rendered on and after August 1, 2003.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) This matter is docketed and assigned Case No. PUE-2003-00286.
- (2) A public hearing shall be convened on November 5, 2003, at 10:00 a.m. in the Commission's courtroom, Second Floor, Tyler Building, 1300 East Main Street, Richmond, Virginia to receive comments from members of the public and to receive evidence on the application. Any person not participating as a respondent as provided in Ordering Paragraph (8) below, may give oral testimony concerning the application as a public witness at the November 5, 2003, public hearing. Public witnesses desiring to make statements at the public hearing concerning this application need only appear in the Commission's second floor courtroom in the Tyler Building at the address set forth above prior to 10:00 a.m. on the day of the hearing and sign up to speak.
- (3) The Company shall put its proposed fuel factor into effect, on an interim basis, effective will bills rendered on and after August 1, 2003.

Quinan, Esquire, Woods, Rogers & Hazlegrove, PLC, 823 East Main Street, Suite 1200, Richmond, Virginia 23219. Appalachian shall make a copy available on an electronic basis upon request.

(5) On or before August 5, 2003, Appalachian shall cause a copy of the following notice to be published as display advertising (not classified) on one occasion in newspapers of general circulation throughout its service territory:

NOVEMBER 14, 2003

APPLICATION OF
APPALACHIAN POWER COMPANY d/b/a AMERICAN ELECTRIC POWER

To revise its fuel factor pursuant to § 56-249.6 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER ESTABLISHING 2003-2004 FUEL FACTOR

On July 1, 2003, Appalachian Power Company d/b/a American Electric Power ("APCo" or the "Company"), filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") an application, exhibits, and a proposed tariff intended to decrease its current fuel factor from 1.463¢/kWh to 1.300¢/kWh, effective for bills rendered on and after August 1, 2003.

By Order dated July 23, 2003, the Commission established a procedural schedule and set a hearing date for November 5, 2003. The Commission also permitted APCo to put the proposed fuel factor in effect, on an interim basis, effective with bills rendered on and after August 1, 2003. The Commission directed its Staff to file testimony and provided an opportunity for interested persons to participate in the proceeding. Notices of Participation were filed by the Division of Consumer Counsel, Office of the Attorney General ("Consumer Counsel"), and the Old Dominion Committee for Fair Utility Rates ("ODCFUR").

On October 23, 2003, the Staff filed its testimony wherein it found that, for the purposes of setting an in-period fuel factor for the new fuel year, the assumptions made by the Company in its application were reasonable and in compliance with the Commission's fuel cost projection standards. The Staff recommended that the Commission approve the continuation of the total fuel factor of 1.300¢/kWh that became effective with bills rendered on and after August 1, 2003.

The hearing was convened on November 5, 2003. Appearances were made by counsel for the Staff, APCo, Consumer Counsel and ODCFUR. At the hearing, the Company submitted its proof of service and notice, and the Company's application, testimony, and exhibits, and the Staff's testimony were entered into the record without cross-examination.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the record in this case, is of the opinion that a decrease in the Company's fuel factor to 1.300¢/kWh is reasonable and appropriate.

Approval of this factor, however, is not construed as approval of APCo's actual fuel expenses. For each calendar year, the Commission's Staff conducts an audit and investigation which addresses, among other things, the appropriateness and reasonableness of APCo's booked fuel expenses. Staff's results are documented in an Annual Report ("Staff's Annual Report"). A copy of Staff's Annual Report is sent to APCo and to each party who participated in APCo's last fuel factor proceeding, all of whom are provided with an opportunity to comment and request a hearing on the report.

Based on Staff's Annual Report, any comments or hearing thereon, the Commission enters an Order entitled "Final Audit for twelve-month period ending December 31, 20__, Fuel Cost Recovery Position" ("Final Audit Order"). Notwithstanding any findings made by the Commission in an earlier order establishing APCo's fuel factor based on estimates of future expenses and unaudited booked expenses, the Final Audit Order will be the final determination of not only what are, in fact, allowable fuel expenses and credits, but also APCo's over- or underrecovery position as of the end of the audit period. Should the Commission find in its Final Audit Order (1) that any component of APCo's actual fuel expenses or credits has been inappropriately included or excluded, or (2) that APCo has failed to make every reasonable effort to minimize fuel costs or has made decisions resulting in unreasonable fuel costs, APCo's recovery position will be adjusted. This adjustment will be reflected in the recovery position at the time of APCo's next fuel factor proceeding. We reiterate that no finding in this Order is final, as this matter is continued generally, pending Staff's audit of actual fuel expenses.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) The total fuel factor of 1.300¢/kWh effective for bills rendered on and after August 1, 2003, established by Commission Order dated July 23, 2003, remains in effect.

(2) This case is continued generally.

As evidenced in the attached Admission and Consent document, the Company neither admits nor denies these allegations but admits the Commission's jurisdiction and authority to enter this Order.

As an offer to settle all matters before the Commission arising from the Division's allegations made herein, which includes all probable violations presented to the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Advisory Committee on July 1, 2003, and set out in Attachment A hereto, the Company represents and undertakes that it will pay a civil penalty to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $5,500 to be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order. - (2) The sum of $5,500 tendered contemporaneously with the entry of this Order is accepted.
- (3) This case is dismissed, and the papers herein shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

NOVEMBER 18, 2003

APPLICATION OF VIRGINIA GAS PIPELINE COMPANY
and
NUI ENERGY BROKERS, INC.

For approval of application to renew affiliate agreement for successive terms pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On October 10, 2003, Virginia Gas Pipeline Company ("VGPC") and NUI Energy Brokers, Inc. ("NUIEB") (collectively the "Applicants"), filed a complete application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") requesting approval to renew an affiliate agreement for successive terms under Chapter 4 of Title 56 (the "Affiliates Act") of the Code of Virginia (the "Code").

VGPC is a Virginia public service corporation that provides pipeline transmission and underground natural gas storage services to customers in southwestern Virginia and eastern Tennessee. VGPC has certificates of public convenience and necessity ("certificate(s)") to construct, own, operate and maintain an underground natural gas storage facility in Smyth and Washington Counties, and to own, develop, construct and operate an intrastate gas transmission line in the counties of Smyth, Wythe, and Pulaski. VGPC is a wholly owned subsidiary of Virginia Gas Company ("VGC"), which is headquartered in Abingdon, Virginia. VGC is a wholly owned subsidiary of NUI Corporation ("NUI").

NUIEB is a multi-state company engaged in the business of wholesale natural gas trading and marketing and the management of natural gas storage, supplies, and transportation assets. NUIEB buys and sells gas in fifteen states, has about 110 active trading partners, and traded 700 billion cubic feet of gas in the year ended May 31, 2003. NUIEB currently has 33 employees operating out of Bedminster, New Jersey, and Houston, Texas. NUIEB is a wholly owned subsidiary of NUI.

NUI is an exempt public utility holding company domiciled in Bedminster, New Jersey, that owns four natural gas utilities serving more than 365,000 customers in New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, and Florida. NUI also owns subsidiaries that provide natural gas pipeline and storage service, wholesale energy portfolio management, retail energy sales, telecommunications services, and customer information and field operations systems services.

Since the Applicants share the same senior parent company, NUI, the companies are considered affiliated interests under § 56-76 of the Code. As such, any contract or arrangement between the companies to provide or receive services must be approved by the Commission pursuant to the Affiliates Act.

Original Agreement

The Applicants initially filed on July 11, 2003, for approval to renew an asset optimization agreement (the "Original Agreement") that was approved by the Commission in Case No. PUA-2001-00062. Under the Original Agreement, NUIEB would manage and administer VGPC's short-term assets to maximize their value in a manner VGPC would be unable to do independently. The Original Agreement allowed NUIEB to buy and sell natural gas and perform related energy trading activities on VGPC's behalf. The Original Agreement also gave NUIEB control over all of VGPC's physical and contractual gas storage capacity and gas transportation rights. Finally, the Original Agreement allowed VGPC to share 10% of any net profits realized from the optimization transactions. Due to last year's cold winter, which resulted in large gas storage withdrawals, no transactions under the Original Agreement occurred.

During its review of the current application, the Commission's Staff ("Staff") realized that the Original Agreement exceeded the scope of VGPC's certificate. The Commission does not allow affiliates to perform activities on a regulated company's behalf which the utility itself cannot do.¹ In this case, VGPC's certificate prevents it from buying or selling natural gas except for base gas purposes, and prohibits its involvement in energy trading activities. Also, the Commission requires Virginia public service corporations to retain responsibility and control over their regulated assets.

After Staff notified the Applicants of its concerns, the Applicants filed with the Commission on August 19, 2003, "A Motion for Leave to Amend Application," in which the Applicants requested leave to amend the Application by revising the Original Agreement. On September 3, 2003, the Commission issued an "Order Granting Leave to Amend Application" ("Order Granting Leave"), in which the Applicants were granted leave to amend the Application pursuant to 5 VAC 5-20-130 within 45 days from the date of the Order Granting Leave. Staff's original memorandum of completeness filed July 22, 2003, pursuant to 5 VAC 5-20-160 was vacated, and Staff was directed to refile a new memorandum of completeness upon the filing of the revised agreement. On October 10, 2003, the Applicants filed a "Revised and Restated Agreement" (the "Revised Agreement").

Revised Agreement

Under the Revised Agreement, VGPC grants and NUIEB accepts authority to act as VGPC's non-exclusive agent for the limited purpose of the short-term marketing of VGPC's gas storage assets to third parties. VGPC shall continue to perform its own long-term marketing, and it shall retain the right to contract with unaffiliated third parties for marketing services. VGPC also agrees to provide NUIEB from time-to-time with interruptible gas storage service.

The Revised Agreement states that VGPC shall maintain operational control and retain responsibility for the primary function of its public utility system at all times. VGPC shall not buy, sell, or trade natural gas under the terms of the Revised Agreement except as required for base gas, compressor fuel, and evaporator fuel purposes.

The Revised Agreement also states that NUIEB shall pay VGPC for any gas storage services offered under VGPC's tariff at the filed and approved tariff rates for such service. There shall be no fee paid by VGPC to NUIEB for the marketing services provided by NUIEB under the Revised Agreement.

The Revised Agreement becomes effective on the date of the Commission's Order in this case, and its initial term ends on December 31, 2005, at which time the Revised Agreement automatically renews for successive one-year terms.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the Revised Agreement described above is in the public interest and should be approved. We find that the Revised Agreement allows VGPC the opportunity to optimize its short-term excess storage capacity while remaining in compliance with the scope of its natural gas storage certificate.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, the Revised and Restated Agreement between Virginia Gas Pipeline Company and NUI Energy Brokers, Inc., is hereby approved under the terms and conditions and for the purposes described herein.
- 2) The approval granted herein shall commence on the date of this Order and shall continue through December 31, 2005.
- 3) Should the Applicants wish to continue the Revised Agreement beyond December 31, 2005, the Applicants must file an application requesting approval to renew the Revised Agreement by no later than September 1, 2005.

- 10) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $7,992,835 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each advance of funds from CFC, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected, and the interest rate term.
- 3) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it is hereby dismissed.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00326
JULY 29, 2003

PRINCE GEORGE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On July 21, 2003, Prince George Electric Cooperative ("Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to incur long-term debt. Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $25.

Applicant requests authority to borrow $2,000,000 from the Federal Financing Bank ("FFB"). The FFB loan will be guaranteed by the Rural Utilities Services ("RUS"). The loan funds may be drawn down from time to time and will be used to finance renovations and additions to the Applicant's headquarters facilities. The FFB loan will have a thirty-five year maturity.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $2,000,000 from the Federal Financing Bank, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each advance of funds from FFB, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected and the interest rate term.
- 3) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it is hereby dismissed.

DECEMBER 19, 2003

CENTRAL VIRGINIA ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For approval of its plan to implement retail access

FINAL ORDER

On July 21, 2003, Central Virginia Electric Cooperative ("CVEC" or the "Cooperative") filed an application for State Corporation Commission ("Commission") approval of the Cooperative's retail access tariffs and terms and conditions of service for retail access, as required by Ordering Paragraph (10) of the Commission's December 18, 2001, Final Order issued in CVEC's application for a general increase in rates and for approval of its functional separation plan, Case No. PUE-2000-00583,¹ and pursuant to the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act (the "Act"), Chapter 23 of Title 56 (§ 56-576 et seq.) of the Code of Virginia.

CVEC's retail access tariff filing included: (1) Rate Schedules and Tariffs for Retail Access; (2) Terms and Conditions for Providing Distribution Service with Retail Access General Rules and Regulations; (3) a Competitive Service Provider Agreement, Electronic Data Exchange ("EDI") Trading Partner Agreement, Transmission Customer Designation Form, Dispute Resolution Procedure, and Aggregator Agreement; (4) a plan to provide Price-to-Compare Information and assistance to customers; and (5) minor modification to existing Terms and Conditions for Distribution Service and to Capped Rate Schedule B - General Service.

CVEC advised that it was not imposing a wires charge at this time and, therefore, was not filing market rate and competitive transition charge ("CTC") calculations. The Cooperative also noted that its Terms and Conditions for Retail Access provide that no unmetered service may be supplied by a Competitive Service Provider ("CSP"); there is no CTC; and that its Terms and Conditions for Retail Access provide for consolidated billing services. The Cooperative represented that its application was being submitted for approval in anticipation of the commencement of retail access in its service territory, effective January 1, 2004.

On August 13, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Prescribing Notice and Inviting Comments and Requests for Hearing in the proceeding, wherein it directed the Cooperative to publish notice of its application in the latest issue of CVEC's publication, The Current Communicator, and to serve copies of its Order on local officials and on the electric CSPs and aggregators set out in Attachment A to the Order. The same Order directed the Staff to review the application and file a report, presenting its findings and recommendations, with the Commission.

On October 20, 2003, the Cooperative filed its proof of publication and proof of service upon local officials, CSPs, and aggregators, as required by the August 13, 2003, Order. No notices of participation or comments were filed in response to the Cooperative's application.

On November 12, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in the captioned proceeding, wherein it recommended that the Commission approve CVEC's tariffs and terms and conditions with the adoption of certain modifications recommended by Staff. In its Report, the Staff noted that the proposed retail access schedules, identified with the designation "-RA" are consistent with the currently effective bundled service schedules and reflect the rates in effect as of January 1, 2001, that were unbundled in Case No. PUE-2000-00583.

Staff reported that in Case No. PUE-2000-00583, CVEC proposed that its unmetered lighting service, Schedule SHL, would be available to its customers only as a bundled lighting service from the Cooperative. Staff noted that this schedule was included among the Schedules approved by the Commission's Final Order in Case No. PUE-2000-00583. Staff did not oppose CVEC's proposal that Schedule SHL be offered to customers only as a bundled lighting service from the Cooperative.

With regard to the Cooperative's Terms and Conditions of Service, the Staff noted that CVEC is proposing two changes to its tariff. One change corrects a typographical error in the bundled capped rate sheet for Schedule B. Staff did not object to this correction.

With regard to Section VI. "Extension of Facilities H. Provisions for Providing Service to Lots in a Residential Development", the Staff recommended that the last sentence in Subsection 3 be deleted. As proposed by CVEC, this sentence reads

[I]f within five years after the installation is made, a house is built on a lot in the development and the Cooperative provides service thereto by the installation of no more than 1,400 feet of additional line, the Cooperative will, within two months after permanent service is installed and a refund is requested, refund to the Applicant the difference in 1,400 feet and actual footage of the extension, multiplied by the cost per foot for the line extension referenced in Section VI.H.2, above.

According to Staff, the foregoing language represents a change from CVEC's current Terms and Conditions that state that the Cooperative will "refund to the Applicant the difference in 1,400 feet and actual footage of the extension, multiplied by the average cost per foot." The Staff recommended that CVEC retain the foregoing language. It opposed CVEC's proposed language on the grounds that it had the possibility of increasing costs to customers.

With regard to CVEC's Retail Access General Rules and Regulations found in Appendix B to the application, the Staff commented that the information contained in the Appendix generally summarizes the requirements contained in the Retail Access Rules as they relate to shopping customers.

The Staff reviewed CVEC's Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements and recommended accepting these agreements as part of CVEC's Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff. Staff also concluded that the dispute resolution procedure proposed by CVEC was appropriate and should be accepted. Staff recommended that the tariffs and terms and conditions proposed by CVEC be approved as modified by the Staff Report.

On December 8, 2003, CVEC filed a letter indicating that it did not intend to file a response to the Staff's Report.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Cooperative's application, the Staff Report, and the applicable law, hereby approves CVEC's application, as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications described therein. We will accept the modifications recommended by Staff in its Report. With respect to CVEC's lighting service schedule, we will accept the Cooperative's bundled Schedule SHL. With regard to the CSP, Trading Partner, and Aggregator Agreements, we will accept the inclusion of the agreements as attachments to the CSP Coordination Tariff.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) CVEC's tariffs and terms and conditions, as recommended by and subject to the modifications proposed by the Staff, are hereby approved.
- (2) CVEC shall file revised tariffs and terms and conditions of service reflecting the findings herein, as soon as practicable after the date of this Order.
- (3) CVEC may initiate retail choice in its service territory upon the filing required by Ordering Paragraph (2) above.
- (4) This case is hereby dismissed, and the papers filed therein shall be placed in the Commission's file for ended causes.

DECEMBER 24, 2003

BARC ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For review of tariffs and terms and conditions of service for retail access

FINAL ORDER

On July 21, 2003, BARC Electric Cooperative ("BARC" or the "Cooperative"), filed an application for State Corporation Commission ("Commission") approval of the Cooperative's retail access tariffs and terms and conditions of service as required by paragraph (3) of the Commission's Final Order issued on December 18, 2001, in the Cooperative's case for functional separation, Case No. PUE-2001-00002. BARC stated in its application that it anticipates commencing retail access in its service territory on January 1, 2004.

BARC's retail access tariff filing includes: (1) Unbundled Tariffs and Rate Schedules for all customer classes; (2) terms and conditions for providing electric service; (3) a Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff, including a Competitive Service Provider Agreement, Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) Trading Partner Agreement, Transmission Customer Designation Form, CSP Dispute Resolution Procedure, and Aggregator Agreement; (4) an Adjusted Market Rate and Competitive Transition Charges Calculation; (5) a letter of agreement between BARC and Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("ODEC") outlining the terms of the binding commitment with regard to wires charges pursuant to § 56-484 of the Code of Virginia; and (6) BARC's Plan to provide price-to-compare information and assistance to customers.

On August 13, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Prescribing Notice and Inviting Comments and Requests for Hearing ("Order") in this proceeding, whereby it directed the Cooperative to publish notice of its application, and directed the Staff to investigate the application and file a report detailing its findings and recommendations. On October 6, 2003, the Cooperative filed its required proof of publication of notice and proof of notice to local governments, as required by the Order. On October 24, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in this proceeding wherein it recommended that the Commission approve BARC's tariffs and terms and conditions with the adoption of certain modifications recommended by Staff.

Staff stated in its report that BARC's methodology for calculating projected market prices for generation applicable for the rate classes that will participate in retail choice, was the methodology set forth in the electric Cooperatives' Comprehensive Wires Charges Proposal ("Comprehensive Plan"), approved by the Commission in Case No. PUE-2001-00306 ("Wires Charges Case"). The Staff noted its support for BARC's methodology for calculating projected market prices, but Staff commented that the current base market prices are to be updated following the Commission's Final Order on Virginia Electric and Power Company's ("DVPs") fuel factor application, Case No. PUE-2003-00285, in which the Commission was expected to specify ten days from which base forward market information will be collected in order to determine market prices for 2004.¹ Staff recommended that BARC's projected market prices incorporate the up-to-date market information specified in the DVP Order to reflect current market conditions.

Staff reported that its review of Table 11 of Market Price Tables included in BARC's application revealed an error in the calculation of the value of the Capped Generation and Transmission Charge for Schedule B. In discussions with Staff, the Cooperative agreed to correct the error and submitted the correction with a revised Table 11 and Schedule B-U-RA tariff. The revised tables were attached as Appendix A to the Staff Report. Further, Staff noted that the value ($0.00643/kWh) used for the fuel adjustment to base generation in determining the CTC should be updated to the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to initiating retail access on January 1, 2004.

The Staff did not oppose the Cooperative's proposal, as reflected in BARC's filed commitment document, for the allocation of wires charge revenue between BARC and its electric supply cooperative ODEC. Staff commented that if the agreement is renegotiated, the renegotiated agreement must be submitted to the Commission for approval as required by § 56-584 of the Code of Virginia. The Staff observed that by its terms, the commitment document provides that termination of the agreement at any time prior to the end of the capped rate period or July 1, 2007, eliminates any subsequent application of wires charges in retail access rates by the Cooperative.

¹ The Order Establishing 2004 Fuel Factor in Case No. PUE-2003-00285 was issued on December 12, 2003. Consequently, BARC can now update this information.

Staff further found that the proposed retail access schedules were consistent with BARC's currently effective bundled service schedules, and that the rates proposed for each service class properly reflected the pricing approved by the Commission in BARC's functional separation case, Case No. PUE-2000-00232.

Additionally, Staff indicated that BARC did not propose a retail access (unbundled) lighting service schedule in this proceeding. Staff noted that in BARC's functional separation case, the Commission approved the Cooperative's proposal to offer unmetered lighting service to its customers only as a bundled service. Staff did not oppose BARC offering lighting service only as a bundled service.

With regard to the Terms and Conditions of Service that would apply to the Cooperative and any member who by default or by choice does not select an alternative energy supplier, the Staff noted that BARC has added language that formalizes current practices and policies. Staff commented that although these additions are not presently part of BARC's Terms and Conditions, they do not appear to create any additional cost or impediment to obtaining or retaining service, and therefore the Staff does not oppose BARC's proposal to formalize these practices and policies.

BARC set out the retail access general rates and regulations in Appendix B to its application. These rules and regulations supplement the general terms and conditions for customers electing to purchase energy from a CSP. The terms and conditions are included in the proposed Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff. Staff noted that the information contained in this Appendix generally summarizes the requirements contained in the Retail Access Rules as they relate to shopping customers. Staff commented on "IV. Customer Information, E.", where the Cooperative proposes that if a customer's historical energy usage information is available in interval meter data form, it will be provided only to the customer prior to enrollment by a CSP. Staff noted that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D requires a CSP to obtain customer authorization prior to requesting any customer usage information not included on the mass list available from the local distribution company ("LDC"). Staff noted that under this rule, the CSP is responsible for providing proof that it has the customer's authorization to receive this information upon request by the customer or the Commission. Staff concluded that BARC should release historical information, including that in interval meter data form, to a CSP upon request at pre-enrollment, during enrollment and post-enrollment and, therefore, should modify the language in its terms and conditions accordingly.

Staff also commented on BARC's Technical IT, CSR Fees and Wire Transfer Charges set out in BARC's Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff's Schedule of Fees. Staff noted that the cost data provided by the Cooperative support the level of fees proposed, and therefore does not oppose the imposition of these fees for new services rendered.

Staff reported that the Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements were identified as attachments to the Cooperative's Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff. Staff stated that it had no objection to the inclusion of these agreements in the application.

Finally, Staff noted that the Dispute Resolution Procedure attached to the Competitive Service Provider Coordinator tariff provides the steps for resolution of disputes between the CSP and BARC as required by 20 VAC 5-312-110 A of the Retail Access Rules. Staff found the proposed procedure appropriate and recommended that the Commission accept the same.

No comments from Respondents were filed in the case. BARC filed a Response to the Staff Report ("Response") on November 4, 2003.

In its Response, the Cooperative represented that it intended to include updated market price projections in a compliance filing with the Commission prior to the commencement of retail access in its service territory. It also acknowledged that its CTC calculations are to be updated prior to the commencement of retail access, and intends to incorporate the most current fuel factor adjustment available in the compliance filing to be submitted in response to the Commission's final order in this proceeding. BARC also noted that it corrected certain tables and rate schedule information and provided a copy to Staff. The Cooperative stated that it will provide a full set of amended rate schedules that reflect an updated CTC calculation in its compliance filing.

BARC represented that, subject to such updating as is necessary, BARC's rate schedules are ready for implementation, and BARC will be updating its tariffs and rate schedules in a single compliance filing after the Commission's final order is issued.

With regard to Appendix B, Subsection IV.E, the Cooperative maintained that in the Rappahannock Electric Cooperative and Shenandoah Valley Cooperative retail access cases, such interval data was to be provided directly to the customer. Additionally, the Cooperative asserted that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D does not require a local distribution company to release any available historical energy usage information at a CSP's request. According to BARC, this Rule instead requires CSPs to obtain customer authorization before requesting information not on the Mass List, and that CSPs must be able to provide evidence of such authorization. BARC asserts that the language included in IV.E was intended to protect sensitive customer information and to prohibit the release of such information without the customer's knowledge and express authorization. As an alternative, BARC agreed to amend Subsection IV.E as follows:

Due to the sensitive nature of the information, historical energy usage information of Customers that have interval metering will be made available to Customers, or to registered CSPs that have and can prove the appropriate customer authorization, by an appropriate, cost-effective electronic medium.

The Cooperative also stated that another option would be for the Cooperative simply to eliminate subsection IV.E and rely on other parts of its remaining Terms and Conditions and tariffs to protect sensitive customer historical energy usage information.

BARC requested that the Commission: (i) consider the comments offered in its Response; (ii) enter an order accepting and approving its Unbundled Tariffs and Rate Schedules for All Customer Classes, Terms and Conditions for Providing Electric Distribution Service and Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff, and the related agreements and procedures, with the changes recommended by Staff, subject to the modifications proposed in its Response; (iii) accept and approve its proposed calculation of adjusted market rates and competitive transition charges, subject to such updating as is appropriate; and (iv) provide for such further relief as the Commission deems appropriate.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Cooperative's application, the Staff Report, BARC's Response to the Report, and applicable statutes, hereby approves BARC's application as recommended by the Staff and subject to the modifications prescribed below.

We incorporate, by reference, our findings in the Wires Charge Case (Case No. PUE-2001-00306). The methodology for the proposed CTC must reflect the appropriate fuel adjustments and wires calculation. The wires charges calculated are subject to the limitation of § 56-583 of the Code of Virginia, which permits adjustments no more frequently than annually. Thus, the effective date of BARC's wires charges must conform with Ordering Paragraph (5) of the May 24, 2002, Order in the Wires Charge Case. As noted in the foregoing discussion, the value used for the fuel adjustment to base generation should be updated to reflect the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to BARC initiating retail access in its service territory. As agreed to by BARC, the Cooperative shall resubmit updated Market Price Tables following the Commission's Final Order on DVP's fuel factor application, Case No. PUE-2003-00285, and should update the value ($0.00643/kWh) to include the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment prior to initiating retail access on January 1, 2004.

With respect to BARC's commitment document with ODEC, we note that the plain language of Virginia Code § 56-584 provides that the establishment by the Commission of wires charges is conditional upon such cooperative "entering into binding commitments by which it will pay to any power supply cooperative of which such distribution cooperative is or was a member, as compensation for such power supply cooperative's stranded costs, all or part of the proceeds of such wires charges, as determined by the Commission." This statute therefore assumes that there must be an active, unexpired commitment in place between the Cooperative and ODEC, BARC's power supply cooperative, and that the allocation between the power supply cooperative and a distribution cooperative is established "as determined by the Commission." While the Cooperative may not charge a wires charge without an active binding commitment, nothing prevents BARC from entering into a new agreement. Under those circumstances, the Cooperative must have the binding commitment establishing the wires charge approved by the Commission. It is our expectation that the Cooperative would file any new agreement for approval with the Commission before the existing agreement terminates.

With respect to BARC's proposed unbundled lighting service schedule, we will accept this schedule. We note that this Schedule was previously approved in BARC's functional separation case, PUE-2000-00232.

With regard to Subsection IV. E "Customer Information", we note that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D allows customers or the Commission to require the CSP to provide proof of its authorization. LDCs were not mentioned in this Rule to avoid opportunities for anticompetitive actions by the LDCs since LDCs or their affiliates may compete with the CSP to provide service to customers.

The Final Orders entered in Shenandoah's² and Community's³ retail access cases do not plainly address whether the cooperatives are entitled to verify a CSP's entitlement to gain access to customer information. The authority to verify a CSP's entitlement to information not on the mass list has been deliberately lodged with the customer or the Commission. See Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D and 20 VAC 5-312-80 B. BARC should, therefore, modify its Retail Access General Rules and Regulations to remove IV. E "Customer Information."

With regard to the CSP, Trading Partner, and Aggregator Agreements, we accept the inclusion of these agreements as attachments to the CSP Coordination Tariff.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) BARC's tariffs and terms and conditions of service as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications discussed herein are hereby approved.
- (2) BARC shall file revised tariffs and terms and conditions of service reflecting the findings made herein with the Commission's Division of Energy Regulation as soon as practicable after the date of this Order.
- (3) BARC may initiate retail choice in its service territory upon the filing required by Ordering Paragraph (2) herein.
- (4) This case shall be dismissed, and the papers filed herein shall be made a part of the Commission's files for ended causes.

APPLICATION OF
COMMUNITY ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On July 23, 2003, Community Electric Cooperative ("Applicant" or the "Cooperative"), filed an application the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia for authority to incur long-term debt with the Rural Utilities Service ("RUS"). Applicant paid the requisite fee of $25.

In its application, Applicant requests authority to borrow $4,800,000 in the form of a RUS Treasury Rate Loan. The proceeds will be used to fund a portion of Applicant's three-year construction work plan. The plan specifically includes improving systems, purchasing equipment and extending lines.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

The loan will have a 35-year maturity. Applicant represents that the interest rate on the loan is established daily by the United States Treasury. Applicant intends to select the interest rate term for each advance of funds. Such interest rate terms can range from one year to 35 years.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and the advice of its Staff is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $4,800,000 from the RUS, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each advance of funds from RUS, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected, and the interest rate term.
- 3) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it is hereby dismissed.

NOVEMBER 25, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA PILOTS ASSOCIATION

To revise rates of pilotage and other charges

FINAL ORDER PRESCRIBING INCREASED RATES OF PILOTAGE

On July 24, 2003, J. William Cofer, on behalf of himself and all other licensed branch pilots in the Commonwealth who are members of the Virginia Pilots Association ("Association"), filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") an application for a revision of rates of pilotage ("Application"). In its Application, the Association proposes to revise the rates and charges prescribed by the Commission by final order entered on September 13, 2000,¹ to increase annual revenues by 8.9 percent. By Order for Notice and Hearing dated August 25, 2003, the Commission docketed this application and established procedures for a hearing on November 24, 2003.

As provided by § 54.1-918 of the Code of Virginia, the Commission may fix or prescribe pilotage rates and charges after notice has been published in newspapers of general circulation in the cities of Norfolk, Portsmouth, and in Newport News. The Association filed with the Clerk of the Commission proof of the required publication on October 24, 2003. The Commission finds that required notice of the application was given.

The hearing was held on the application on November 24, 2003, in Richmond, Virginia. The Association presented the prefiled testimony and exhibits of its president, Captain J. William Cofer. The prefiled testimony of Mark R. DeBruhl, Principal Public Utility Accountant with the Commission's Division of Public Utility Accounting, was also presented. No interveners or protestants appeared.

Upon consideration of the record developed at the hearing, the Commission will grant the application.

The prefiled testimony and exhibits of Captain Cofer and Mr. DeBruhl demonstrate that the Association has experienced increases in operating expenses and salary and benefit costs since its rates and charges were last reviewed in 2000. The Association intends to make several purchases within the current fiscal year that it believes are necessary to maintain the ability of the pilots to provide safe and efficient pilotage in the waters of the Commonwealth. These include purchasing a new launch, equipping members and apprentice pilots with new portable differential global positioning satellite system units that are equipped to receive signals from Automated Information System transponders. The Association also plans to renovate and refurbish portions of its Lynnhaven Inlet and Cape Henry facilities.

As required by § 54.1-918 of the Code of Virginia, the Commission must consider, in addition to operating expenses, maintenance, and depreciation, the rates and charges of pilotage at comparable and competing ports. The testimony of Captain Cofer reviews the rates at the ports of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Charleston, and Savannah, and provides comparisons with the rates proposed in this application.² According to the Association, the proposed rates produce charges that are significantly lower than the current rates in New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, and that generally are only slightly higher than the current charges in Charleston and Savannah. Based on this evidence, the Commission concludes that the proposed rate increase would leave Virginia ports in a favorable competitive position.

The Association proposes to continue employing a formula based on a vessel's dimensions to calculate "ship units." The additional revenue would be generated by increasing the rates associated with ship units. The Commission will approve the proposed schedules of rates of pilotage attached to the Application as Appendix C.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) As provided by § 54.1-918 of the Code of Virginia, this application is granted and revised rates and charges are prescribed.

(2) The revised rates and charges prescribed herein shall become effective at 12:01 a.m. on November 27, 2003.

(3) The Association shall promptly file with the Clerk of the Commission a schedule of rates of pilotage and other charges as approved and prescribed by this Order. The schedule shall bear at the foot of each page the following caption:

Prescribed by the State Corporation Commission in Case PUE-2003-00330 and effective on and after 12:01 a.m., November 27, 2003.

(4) This case be dismissed from the Commission's docket.

SEPTEMBER 10, 2003

APPLICATION OF VIRGINIA GAS DISTRIBUTION COMPANY
SALTVILLE GAS STORAGE COMPANY L.L.C.

For approval of agreements for firm and interruptible gas storage service between affiliated entities pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On July 25, 2003, Virginia Gas Distribution Company ("VGDC") and Saltville Gas Storage Company L.L.C. ("Saltville") (collectively the "Applicants"), filed an application for approval of agreements for firm and interruptible gas storage service between affiliated entities with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 (the "Affiliates Act") of the Code of Virginia (the "Code").

VGDC, a Virginia public service corporation incorporated in 1992, provides natural gas distribution service to approximately 300 customers located in Southwest Virginia. VGDC has certificates of public convenience and necessity ("CPCN(s)") to offer natural gas service to the counties of Russell, Buchanan, and Dickenson, a portion of Tazewell County, and the Town of Saltville. VGDC is a subsidiary of Virginia Gas Company, which is a wholly owned subsidiary of NUI Corporation ("NUI").

Saltville, a Virginia limited liability company located in Abingdon, Virginia, has a CPCN to construct, develop, own, operate and maintain an underground natural gas storage facility and attendant pipeline facilities in Saltville, Virginia. Saltville is jointly owned by Duke Energy Saltville Gas Storage, L.L.C., and by NUI Saltville Storage, Inc., which is a wholly owned subsidiary of NUI.

NUI is an exempt public utility holding company domiciled in Bedminster, New Jersey, that owns four natural gas utilities serving more than 365,000 customers in New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, and Florida. NUI also owns subsidiaries that provide natural gas pipeline and storage service, wholesale energy portfolio management, retail energy sales, telecommunications services, and customer information and field operations systems services.

Since VGDC and Saltville share the same senior parent company, NUI, the Applicants are considered affiliated interests under § 56-76 of the Code. As such, any contract or arrangement between the companies to provide or receive services must be approved by the Commission pursuant to the Affiliates Act.

The Applicants are seeking approval for VGDC to enter into a firm gas storage service agreement (the "Firm Agreement") and an interruptible gas storage service agreement (the "Interruptible Agreement") with Saltville.

Firm Agreement

Under the proposed Firm Agreement, VGDC will be able to inject up to 444 million British Thermal Units ("MMBtu") per day, withdraw up to 1,000 MMBtu per day, and store a maximum of 20,000 MMBtu. This is also known as 40-day injection / 20-day withdrawal service. Saltville will charge VGDC a storage injection charge of $0.05 per MMBtu, a storage withdrawal charge of $0.05 per MMBtu, and a monthly storage charge of $2.00 per MMBtu times the 20,000 MMBtu Maximum Storage Quantity divided by 12. Any gas injected into or withdrawn from Saltville will be required to meet the minimum qualifications of East Tennessee Natural Gas Company's federal gas tariff. The Firm Agreement was executed August 1, 2003, but does not take effect until the Applicants obtain regulatory approval. The initial term of the Firm Agreement extends through March 31, 2005, at which time VGDC has the option to extend the Firm Agreement for another two years. The Firm Agreement also contains a clause which allows a company that succeeds by purchase, merger, or consolidation of title to the properties of either VGDC or Saltville to be entitled to the rights or subject to the obligations of its predecessor.

Interruptible Agreement

Under the proposed Interruptible Agreement, VGDC will be able to inject up to 444 MMBtu per day, withdraw up to 1,000 MMBtu per day, and store a maximum of 20,000 MMBtu. This is also known as 40-day injection / 20-day withdrawal service. Saltville will charge VGDC a storage injection charge of $0.05 per MMBtu, a storage withdrawal charge of $0.05 per MMBtu, and a monthly storage charge of $1.50 per MMBtu times the 20,000 MMBtu Maximum Storage Quantity divided by 12. In the event of a service interruption, Saltville shall notify VGDC no less than 72 hours in advance so that VGDC can withdraw parked or stored gas or return loaned gas. The Interruptible Agreement was executed July 2, 2003, but does not take effect until the Applicants obtain regulatory approval. The Interruptible Agreement has a one-year initial term. Thereafter, it continues from month-to-month unless terminated by either party with not less than 30 days written notice. The Interruptible Agreement also contains a clause allowing VGDC and Saltville to assign the contract to their successors.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the agreements described above are in the public interest and should be approved subject to certain conditions we find necessary in this instance to protect the public interest.

The proposed Firm and Interruptible Agreements have merit for several reasons. Employing natural gas storage to hedge against heating season price volatility is a time-tested industry practice. VGDC's decision to contract with Saltville makes sense given Saltville's favorable economics versus unaffiliated providers, and Saltville's available storage capacity versus the capacity constraints of VGDC's affiliates, Virginia Gas Pipeline Company and Virginia Gas Storage Company. Both the proposed firm and interruptible rates are tariff rates and appear competitive with market prices. Therefore, we find that the Firm and Interruptible Agreements are in the public interest and meet the test of the Affiliates Act.

However, we have concerns with Saltville's proposed pricing of $2.00 per MMBtu for firm storage service, which is above the bottom of its tariff range of $1.64 to $2.22 per MMBtu. Saltville's tariff is based on company projections provided in its certificate application, Case No. PUE-2001-00585, which we approved August 6, 2002. Saltville represents that the tariff range is designed to offer flexibility in marketing to customers with differing storage duration and volume requirements. Large, long-term customers are charged lower rates; small, short-term customers such as VGDC are charged higher rates. Since Saltville commenced operations August 1, 2003, it has not had the opportunity to collect sufficient data to determine its actual fully distributed cost of providing storage service.

To ensure that the Firm and Interruptible Agreements continue to be in the public interest, we grant approval of the agreements through March 31, 2005, the initial expiration date for the Firm Agreement. Should the Applicants opt to extend the Firm and Interruptible Agreements beyond that date, we find that VGDC and Saltville should be required to file a new application for approval pursuant to the Affiliates Act. This limited approval period will provide Staff an opportunity to reassess the reasonableness of the Firm and Interruptible Agreements' rates after a full year of operation by Saltville.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, the Firm and Interruptible Gas Storage Agreements between Virginia Gas Distribution Company and Saltville Gas Storage Company L.L.C. are hereby approved, commencing with the date of this Order and extending through March 31, 2005, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes described herein.
- 2) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in the terms and conditions to the affiliate agreements submitted as part of this application, including any successors or assigns under the subject agreements.
- 3) The approvals granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 4) Should VGDC and Saltville desire to continue the Firm and Interruptible Gas Storage Agreements past March 31, 2005, an application shall be filed requesting approval to continue the agreements.
- 5) The approvals granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications for annual informational filings or future rate proceedings.
- 6) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approvals granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 7) VGDC and Saltville shall include the agreements approved herein in their Annual Reports of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting on or before May 1 of each year, which deadline may be extended administratively by the Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- 8) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

AUGUST 15, 2003

RAPPAHANNOCK ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On July 28, 2003, Rappahannock Electric Cooperative ("Applicant") filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to incur long-term debt. Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $250.

Applicant requests authority to borrow up to $20,680,000 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation ("CFC"). The proceeds will be used to retire existing debt issued to the Rural Utilities Services ("RUS"). The loan will be structured so that the debt matures in installments throughout the next 15 years. The interest rate on the debt will be determined at the time and will be fixed for the first 7 and 1/2 years of the loan. At the end of the initial 7 and 1/2 years, the interest rate on the remaining balance of the loan will be re-priced at the then prevailing interest rate. The effective interest rate for the initial five year periods will be less than 5.0%, the current rate on the existing RUS debt to be retired.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $20,680,000 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each advance of funds from CFC, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected, and the interest rate term.
- 3) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it is hereby dismissed.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00336
OCTOBER 16, 2003

APPLICATION OF
COLUMBIA GAS OF VIRGINIA, INC.

For approval of a communications facilities co-location agreement pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On July 22, 2003, Columbia Gas of Virginia, Inc. ("CGV" or the "Applicant"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") under Chapter 4, Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (the "Affiliates Act"), requesting approval of a communications facilities co-location agreement (the "Agreement") with Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation ("TCO"). By Commission Order dated September 16, 2003, the Commission extended the period for review of the application through October 20, 2003.

CGV is a natural gas distribution company serving over 200,000 customers in central Virginia, southside Virginia, Piedmont Virginia, and most of the Shenandoah Valley as well as portions of Northern and Southwest Virginia. CGV is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Columbia Energy Group, which is a wholly owned subsidiary of NiSource, Inc. ("NiSource").

TCO is an interstate natural gas company with natural gas pipelines stretching from the Gulf Coast through the Midwest to New England. TCO's services and operations, including its rates and charges, are regulated by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. TCO also is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Columbia Energy Group.

NiSource is an energy holding company whose subsidiaries provide natural gas, electricity, and other products and services to approximately 3.7 million customers located within a corridor that runs from the Gulf Coast through the Midwest to New England. Effective November 1, 2001, NiSource became a registered holding company under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935. For the fiscal year ending 2002, NiSource reported gross revenues of $6.5 billion, total assets of $16.9 billion, and 9,307 employees.

Since CGV and TCO share the same senior parent company, NiSource, the companies are considered affiliated interests under § 56-76 of the Code of Virginia. As such, any contract or arrangement between the companies to provide or receive services must be approved by the Commission pursuant to the Affiliates Act.

The Applicant seeks approval under the Affiliates Act to enter into an Agreement with TCO to install Supervisory Control and Data Acquisition ("SCADA") communications equipment consisting of a radio, a modem, and a router at TCO's compressor station in Boswell's Tavern, Virginia. The radio equipment, consisting of a radio transceiver, antennae, and associated cables and power supply, will retrieve data from pipeline remote terminal units ("RTU(s)") at two point of delivery ("POD") stations and a measuring and regulating facility serving the Gordonsville Electric Limited Partnership ("GELP") Power Plant, the Gordonsville Power Plant, and the Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("ODEC") Power Plant. The ODEC plant already serves as the hub for two other RTUs. The radio will be linked to a network router that will connect to NiSource's wide area computer network. The router, which functions as the gateway between the RTU and NiSource's network, will be owned by CGV or TCO but will be operated and managed by NiSource Corporate Services Company ("Corporate Services") employees.

CGV's purchase and installation of the SCADA communications equipment will cost approximately $5,000. CGV will have rights of access to TCO's premises and buildings, rack space in the telecommunications room, a power supply, mounting structures, and the sharing of space for related facilities. CGV will also pay TCO an annual charge of $8 per square foot of occupied space, or $12 per year, which reflects an allocated share of the depreciation and operating and maintenance expenses, including pertinent overheads, incurred to operate TCO's facility. The Agreement will have no prescribed term. Each party will be free to terminate the agreement upon reasonable notice.

SCADA Communication Options

In the current application, the three power plant customers for which CGV will be collecting RTU data represent a large and highly variable load that requires near real-time monitoring with updates needed every 60 seconds. Using the above performance specifications, CGV evaluated three methods of SCADA communication.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

Under dial-up service, the SCADA system uses public phone service to periodically contact the RTU to retrieve information. The process takes 30 to 60 seconds per poll and is normally used at stations of lesser importance where frequent, near real-time updates are not required. Dial-up service also presents inherent security issues when control functionality is involved. Moreover, the cost of dial-up service over an extended period is the highest of the three alternatives. Therefore, CGV quickly rejected this option.

Leased lines are the traditional method for communicating with RTUs. Under this approach, CGV leases a full period data circuit from its contractual long distance carrier. The circuit is available at all times and allows data transfers to take place at a rate determined by the SCADA system, thereby meeting the requirement for near real-time performance. The dedicated circuit provides better security than dial-up, but its relatively high operating cost of $4,200 annually per RTU is a significant drawback.

When available, radio provides RTU communication performance that is equal to or better than leased lines. Modem radio technology also allows for data encryption to improve security. The initial cost of approximately $5,000 to purchase and install the radio equipment is significant, but radio's operating cost is negligible, which CGV represents makes it the most cost effective long-term option.

CGV proposes to establish a radio link at TCO's Boswell's Tavern site for several reasons. Since the TCO Station is on higher ground than the surrounding area, it is a near ideal location for a radio link. SCADA communications will be much more reliable. The TCO Station is also uniquely situated near the Gordonsville area power plants, which is vital given the distance-sensitive nature of RTU communications. Finally, the economics of radio communications should provide significant long term cost savings versus alternative SCADA communication methods such as dial-up or leased lines. By using the TCO site, CGV should be able to avoid the cost of separate leased lines to the GELP and the Gordonsville plants.

The Applicant proposes that operating costs be shared between CGV and TCO using the same compensation mechanism adopted by the Commission for an office sharing arrangement between CGV and TCO in Case No. PUA-2002-00013.

- (a) [A]11 expenses will be charged to the corresponding affiliate based on cost, including pertinent overheads;
- and (b) where office space between CGV and TCO is owned by one party, the entity using the assets will pay the owner of the assets an allocated share of the depreciation and operating and maintenance expenses, including overheads.

CGV estimates the operating costs under the Agreement to total approximately $12 per year.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of the Applicant and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the proposed Agreement is in the public interest and should be approved. By using TCO's Boswell's Tavern site as a SCADA communications hub, CGV should be able to minimize operating costs while preserving the reliability of its natural gas distribution system.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, Columbia Gas of Virginia, Inc., is hereby granted approval to enter into the above-referenced communications facilities co-location agreement with Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation at the Boswell's Tavern site.
- 2) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in the terms and conditions of the Agreement from those contained herein.
- 3) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 4) The approval granted herein shall not be deemed to include any approvals other than for the transactions contained in the Agreement approved herein.
- 5) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications for annual informational filings or future rate proceedings.
- 6) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 7) CGV shall include the Agreement approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting on or before May 1 of each year, which deadline may be extended administratively by the Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- 8) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then CGV shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.
- 9) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On August 1, 2003, Community Electric Cooperative ("Applicant") filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to incur long-term debt. Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $250.

Applicant requests authority to borrow up to $1,068,495 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation ("CFC"). The proceeds will be used to retire existing debt issued to the Rural Utilities Services ("RUS"). The loan will be structure so that the debt matures in installments throughout the next 12 years. The interest rate on the debt will be determined at the time and will be fixed for the first five years of the loan. At the end of the initial five years, the interest rate on the remaining balance of the loan will be re-priced at the then prevailing interest rate. The effective interest rate for the initial five year periods will be less than 5.0%, the current rate on the existing RUS debt to be retired.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $1,068,495 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each advance of funds from CFC, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected, and the interest rate term.

SEPTEMBER 10, 2003

APPLICATION OF
WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY

For authority to receive cash capital contributions from an affiliate

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On August 4, 2003, Washington Gas Light Company ("WGL" or "Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to receive cash capital contributions from its parent, WGL Holdings, Inc. ("Holdings").

WGL proposes to receive cash capital contributions up to an aggregate principal amount of $100,000,000 from Holdings from time to time during the period between October 1, 2003, and September 30, 2005. The proceeds from the proposed capital contributions will be applied by WGL to fund its construction program, to repay short-term debt, and for other corporate purposes. Applicant further states that the authority requested is consistent with WGL's goals of maintaining financial integrity and keeping its equity ratio in the mid-50% range, excluding short-term debt.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application is in the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to receive up to $100,000,000 in cash capital contributions from Holdings from time to time, during the period October 1, 2003 through September 30, 2005, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Applicant shall file a Report of Action within thirty days of the receipt of any cash capital contributions. Such report shall include the date (s) and amount (s) of any capital contributions made pursuant to this Order and the use of the proceeds.
- 3) Applicant shall file a Final Report of Action on or before November 28, 2005, to include a summary of the dates and amounts of all capital contributions made pursuant to this Order, the use of the proceeds, and a final capital structure for the quarter ended September 30, 2005.

4) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein, whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.

5) Approval of the application does not preclude the Commission from applying the provision of Sections 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.

6) This matter shall be continued, subject to the continuing review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

DECEMBER 29, 2003

PRINCE GEORGE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For review of tariffs and terms and conditions of service

FINAL ORDER

On August 4, 2003, Prince George Electric Cooperative ("Prince George" or the "Cooperative") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") for approval of the Cooperative's retail access tariffs and terms and conditions of service for retail access as required by Ordering Paragraph (3) of the Commission's December 18, 2001, Final Order issued in Prince George's case for functional separation,¹ Case No. PUE-2001-00001, and pursuant to the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act (the "Act"), Chapter 23 of Title 56 (§ 56-576 et seq.) of the Code of Virginia.

Prince George's retail access tariff filing includes: (1) Terms and Conditions of Service (including Terms and Conditions of Service for Retail Access); (2) Tariffs and Rate Schedules (including Unbundled Tariffs and Rate Schedules and Retail Access Tariffs and Rate Schedules); (3) a Competitive Service Provider ("CSP") Coordination Tariff (including the Competitive Service Provider Agreement, Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) Trading Partner Agreement, Transmission Customer Designation Form, CSP Dispute Resolution Procedure, and Aggregator Agreement); (4) Adjusted Market Rate and Competitive Transition Charges ("CTCs") Calculations; (5) Plan to Provide Price to Compare Information and assistance to customers; and (6) Letter of Agreement between Prince George and Old Dominion Electric Cooperative ("ODEC") regarding the terms of the binding commitment with regard to wires charges (competitive transition charges) required by § 56-584 of the Code of Virginia. Prince George represented that its application was submitted for Commission approval in anticipation of the Cooperative commencing retail access in its service territory, effective January 1, 2004.

On September 23, 2003, the Commission issued its Order Prescribing Notice and Inviting Comments and Requests for Hearing. On October 24, 2003, the Commission entered an Order Granting Extension of Procedural Schedule, granting the Cooperative's Motion for Change in Procedural Dates. Pursuant to the Commission's Orders of September 23, 2003, and October 24, 2003, the Commission directed the Cooperative to publish notice of its application in newspapers of general circulation throughout the Cooperative's service territory; directed that a copy of the Commission's Order of September 23, 2003, be served on local government officials; invited comments and requests for hearing; directed the Staff to investigate the application and file a report detailing its findings and recommendations; and permitted the Cooperative to file a response to the Staff Report and to any comments filed in the captioned docket.

On October 30, 2003, Prince George filed proof of service on local government officials and on November 14, 2003, filed proof of publication of notice as required by the Commission's Orders of September 23, 2003, and October 24, 2003. No comments or requests for hearing were filed by the public.

On November 21, 2003, the Staff filed its Report in the proceeding, wherein it recommended that the Commission approve Prince George's tariffs and Rules and Regulations, subject to the adoption of certain modifications recommended by the Staff.

Staff stated in its Report that the methodology employed by Prince George in calculating projected market prices for generation applicable for the rate classes that will participate in retail choice, was the methodology set forth in the electric Cooperatives' Comprehensive Wires Charges Proposal ("Comprehensive Plan"), approved by the Commission in Case No. PUE-2001-00306 ("Wires Charges Case"). The Staff noted its support for Prince George's methodology for calculating projected market prices, and Staff noted the Cooperative's representation that the current base market prices will be updated following the Commission's Final Order on Virginia Electric and Power Company's ("DVP's") fuel factor application, Case No. PUE-2003-00285, in which the Commission is expected to specify ten days from which base forward market information will be collected in order to determine market prices for 2004.² Staff recommended that Prince George's projected market prices incorporate the up-to-date market information specified in the DVP Order to reflect current market conditions.

Staff reported that Table 11 of the Market Price Tables included in the Cooperative's application presents the calculations of the competitive transition charges ("CTC") for each of the retail service rate schedules. The value ($0.01106/kWh) is used for the fuel adjustment to base generation in determining the CTC. Staff recommends that this value should be updated to the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to initiating retail access on January 1, 2004. With this update, Staff reports that the methodology for calculation of CTCs shown in Table 11 is appropriate.

The Staff did not oppose the Cooperative's proposal, as reflected in Prince George's filed commitment document, for the allocation of wires charges revenue between Prince George and its electric supply cooperative ODEC. Staff commented that if the agreement is renegotiated, the renegotiated agreement should be submitted to the Commission for approval as required by § 56-584 of the Code of Virginia. The Staff observed that by its terms, the commitment document provides that termination of the agreement at any time prior to the end of the capped rate period or July 1, 2007, eliminates any subsequent application of wires charges in retail access rates by the Cooperative.

Staff further found that the proposed retail access schedules were consistent with Prince George's currently effective bundled service schedules, and that the rates proposed for each service class properly reflected the pricing approved by the Commission in Prince George's functional separation case, Case No. PUE-2001-00001.

The Staff commented that the retail service tariffs, under Monthly Rate II. "Generation and Transmission Charges" should be changed to Monthly Rate II. "Electricity Supply Service Charges" to conform to the billing headings required by 20 VAC 5-312-90 13.

The Staff noted that the proposed retail access schedules, identified with the designation "-RA", are consistent with the currently effective bundled service schedules. The rates that are proposed for each service class reflect the pricing unbundled in Case No. PUE-2001-00001. The CTCs included in the proposed rates are supported by the Cooperative's Market Price Analysis and Staff recommended that these schedules should be accepted for service on and after January 1, 2004.

The Staff noted that there is no retail access (unbundled) lighting service schedule (Schedule OL-6) provided by the Cooperative. In Case No. PUE-2001-00001, Prince George proposed that its unmetered lighting service would be available to its customers only as a bundled lighting service from the Cooperative. This service would provide both the equipment and unmetered energy supply to the lighting fixtures owned and operated by the Cooperative and attached to Cooperative poles. Staff does not object to the omission of Schedule OL-6 as this schedule limitation was included in the schedules approved by the Commission's Final Order dated December 18, 2001, for Case No. PUE-2001-00001.

With regard to the proposed rules and regulations for service, Staff noted that the Cooperative redrafted its terms and conditions for regulated service to conform to the standardized format proposed by the Virginia members of the Virginia-Maryland-Delaware Association of Electric Cooperatives. This standardized format was put forward in an effort to provide Staff and the general public with documents that permit ready comparison among the cooperatives. The proposed format also addresses terminology changes necessary to conform the Terms and Conditions to the requirements of the Commission's Permanent Rules for Retail Access and the Electric Utility Restructuring Act.

In reformatting its Rules and Regulations, the Cooperative reorganized the terms and conditions and rewrote some of the sections. In some sections, language was deleted and in others, language was added. Many of the terminology changes were made to appropriately differentiate between electric distribution service and the provision of electric energy supply. Some of the additions formalized existing cooperative internal policies with regard to the provision of electric distribution service. Generally, Staff does not oppose the changes proposed by the Cooperative. However, some of the changes remove, modify or eliminate incentives or options relating to new services, or add prerequisites for obtaining or restoring distribution service.

Staff objects to Section IV-B-5 Deposits, which does not include the existing option for the customer to request refund of his deposit by check. Staff recommends that this option should be retained.

Staff notes the imposition of a late payment fee on the 20th day following the bill's presentation date, pursuant to the tariff's Section VIII-C Terms of Payment/Collection. The imposition of the late payment fee on bills unpaid by the 20th day following the bill presentation date is not included in the present terms and conditions which states that a late payment charge will be applied at the time of the next billing of the account, if the outstanding balance has not been paid. The Staff does not oppose this change in determination of late payment date provided the Cooperative complies with 20 VAC 5-10-10 C Late Payment Charge by including the appropriate late payment date on its bills.

The Staff further notes in the rules and regulations for service that Section IX-B.2 Settlement of Charges and Fees has changed the deadline for disconnected accounts to be reconnected the same day, from 4:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. This reduces by one-half an hour, the time permitted for a customer disconnected during the day, to settle his account in order to have service restored the same day without imposition of an after-hours reconnection charge. The Staff recommends that the Cooperative should restore the 4:00 p.m. deadline in its terms and conditions.

The Staff reports that Appendix B, Retail Access General Rules and Regulations, supplements Prince George's general terms and conditions for customers electing to purchase energy from a CSP. The CSP terms and conditions are included in the proposed Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff. The Staff notes that the information contained in this Appendix generally summarizes the requirements contained in the Retail Access Rules as they relate to shopping customers.

Staff commented on "IV. Customer Information, E.", where the Cooperative proposes that if a customer's historical energy usage information is available in interval meter data form, it will be provided only to the customer prior to enrollment by a CSP. Staff noted that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D requires a CSP to obtain customer authorization prior to requesting any customer usage information not included on the mass list available from the local distribution company ("LDC"). Staff noted that under this Rule, the CSP is responsible for providing proof that it has the customer's authorization to receive this information upon request by the customer or the Commission. Staff concluded that Prince George should release historical information, including that in interval meter data form to a CSP upon request at pre-enrollment, during enrollment and post-enrollment and, therefore, should modify the language in its Retail Access General Rules and Regulations to reflect this change.

Staff also commented on Prince George's IT Technical Support Fee, CSR Technical Support Fee, and Wire Transfer Fee, as set out in Prince George's Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff's Schedule of Fees. Staff agreed that the cost data provided by Prince George supported the proposed IT Technical and CSR fees. The Cooperative had proposed a wire transfer fee of $24.16 including a $15.00 bank imposed wire fee and $9.16 in administrative charges. Staff opposes the inclusion of the administrative costs in the fee. The Staff does not oppose a Wire Transfer fee of $15.00.

Staff reported that the Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements were identified as attachments to the Cooperative's Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff. Staff stated that it had no objection to the inclusion of these agreements in the Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff.

Finally, Staff noted that the Dispute Resolution Procedure attached to the Competitive Service Provider Coordinator tariff provides the steps for resolution of disputes between the CSP and Prince George as required by 20 VAC 5-312-110 A of the Retail Access Rules. Staff found the proposed procedure appropriate and recommended that the Commission accept the same.

No comments from Respondents were filed in the case. Prince George filed a Response to the Staff Report ("Response") on December 15, 2003.

In its Response, the Cooperative noted its agreement to update its market price projections in a compliance filing to be made prior to making retail access available in its service territory. The Cooperative further agrees to update the fuel adjustment to its base generation for its CTC, to reflect the most current fuel factor adjustment made prior to the initiation of retail access service on January 1, 2004. The Cooperative states that it will submit amended rate schedules with its compliance filing, reflecting its updated CTC calculations, and including any other changes to information previously provided or adjustments required by this Final Order.

The Cooperative further agrees in its Response to amend its unbundled tariffs to change references to "generation and transmission charges" to "electricity supply service", in accordance with the Commission's Retail Access Rules at 20 VAC 5-312-90 I 3. Prince George notes that it will be updating its tariffs and rate schedules in a single compliance filing following this Final Order.

Prince George opposes Staff's recommendation to revise the proposed terms and conditions regarding subsection IV.B.5 "Deposits", regarding the direct payment of deposit refunds. Prince George contends that it has no obligation pursuant to 20 VAC 5-10-20 to offer direct payment of deposit refunds, and prefers to credit a customer's deposit against the existing account.

Prince George reports its agreement with Staff's recommendation regarding Terms of Payment/Collection, in subsection VIII.C, and will identify the late payment date on the face of its bills, which date will be in excess of 20 days after the billing date, pursuant to 20 VAC 5-10-10 C.

The Cooperative opposes the Staff's recommendation that in subsection IX.B.2, Settlement of Charges and Fees, the restoration deadline should be restored to 4:00 p.m. from 3:30 p.m. The Cooperative asserts that setting of this deadline should be left to its discretion and sound business judgment.

With regard to Appendix B, Subsection IV.E., the Cooperative maintained that in the Rappahannock Electric Cooperative and Shenandoah Valley Cooperative retail access cases, such interval data was to be provided directly to the customer. Additionally, the Cooperative asserted that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D does not require a local distribution company to release any available historical energy usage information at CSP's request. According to Prince George, this Rule instead requires CSPs to obtain customer authorization before requesting information not on the Mass List, and that CSPs must be able to provide evidence of such authorization. Prince George asserts that the language included in IV.E was intended to protect sensitive customer information and to prohibit the release of such information without the customer's knowledge and express authorization. As an alternative, Prince George agreed to amend Subsection IV.E as follows:

Due to the sensitive nature of the information, historical energy usage information of Customers that have interval metering data will be made available to the Customers or authorized CSPs (that have and can present the required customer authorization) by an appropriate, cost-effective electronic medium.

With regard to its Competitive Service Provider, Aggregator and Trading Partner Agreements, the Cooperative requested that the Commission accept the form of agreements submitted by Prince George as part of its filed CSP Coordination Tariff. Prince George requested the Commission to: (i) consider the comments offered in its Response; (ii) enter an Order accepting and approving its Unbundled Tariffs and Rate Schedules for All Customer Classes, Terms and Conditions for Providing Electric Service and Competitive Service Provider Coordination Tariff, and the related agreements and procedures, with the changes recommended by Staff, subject to the modifications proposed in Prince George's Response; (iii) accept and approve its proposed calculations of adjusted market rates and CTCs, subject to such updating as is appropriate; and (iv) provide for such further relief as the Commission deems appropriate.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Cooperative's application, the Staff Report, Prince George's Response, and applicable statutes, hereby approves Prince George's application as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications prescribed below.

We incorporate, by reference, our findings in the Wires Charge Case (Case No. PUE-2001-00306). The methodology for the proposed CTC must reflect the appropriate fuel adjustments and wires calculation. The wires charges calculated are subject to the limitation of § 56-583 of the Code of Virginia, which permits adjustments no more frequently than annually. Thus, the effective date of Prince George's wires charges must conform with Ordering Paragraph (5) of the May 24, 2002, Order in the Wires Charges Case. As noted in the foregoing discussion, the value used for the fuel adjustment to base generation should be updated to reflect the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment available prior to Prince George initiating retail access in its service territory. As agreed to by Prince George, the Cooperative shall resubmit updated Market Price Tables following the Commission's Final Order on DVP's fuel factor application, Case No. PUE-2003-00285, and should update the value ($0.01106/kWh) to include the most recent actual monthly fuel adjustment prior to initiating retail access on January 1, 2004.

With respect to Prince George's commitment document with ODEC, we note that the plain language of Virginia Code § 56-584 provides that the establishment by the Commission of wires charges is conditional upon such cooperative "entering into binding commitments by which it will pay to any power supply cooperative of which such distribution cooperative is or was a member, as compensation for such power supply cooperative's stranded costs, all or part of the proceeds of such wires charges, as determined by the Commission." This statute therefore assumes that there must be an active, unexpired commitment in place between the Cooperative and ODEC, Prince George's power supply cooperative, and that the allocation between the power supply cooperative and a distribution cooperative is established "as determined by the Commission." While the Cooperative may not charge a wires charge without an active binding commitment, nothing prevents Prince George from entering into a new agreement. Under those circumstances, the Cooperative must have the binding commitment establishing the wires charge approved by the Commission. It is our expectation that the Cooperative would file any new agreement for approval with the Commission before the existing agreement terminates.

With respect to Prince George's proposed unbundled lighting service schedule, we will accept this schedule. We note that this Schedule was previously approved in Prince George's functional separation case, Case No. PUE-2001-00001.

With regard to Subsection IV. "Customer Information E.," we note that Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D allows customers or the Commission to require the CSP to provide proof of its authorization. LDCs were not mentioned in this Rule to avoid opportunities for anticompetitive actions by the LDCs since LDCs or their affiliates may compete with the CSP to provide service to customers.

The Final Orders entered in Shenandoah's³ and Community's⁴ retail access cases do not plainly address whether the cooperatives are entitled to verify a CSP's entitlement to gain access to customer information. The authority to verify a CSP's entitlement to information not on the mass list has been deliberately lodged with the customer or the Commission. See Retail Access Rule 20 VAC 5-312-60 D and 20 VAC 5-312-80 B. Prince George should, therefore, modify its Retail Access General Rules and Regulations to remove IV. "Customer Information E."

With respect to the wire transfer charge fee, the Cooperative proposes a $24.16 wire transfer fee consisting of $15.00 associated with charges made to Prince George by its bank and $9.16 attributable to costs associated with the Cooperative's administrative support. The Cooperative has not, in our view, demonstrated support for the $9.16 administrative component of this charge vis-à-vis other means of payment media. For example, there are costs associated with writing, processing and mailing a check. The Cooperative has not demonstrated that the administrative costs associated with a wire transfer exceed the costs for payment by check. Prince George is directed to reduce its wire transfer fee to $15.00 to recover the costs charged to Prince George by its bank for wire transfers. The remaining fees proposed by Prince George are approved.

With regard to the CSP, Trading Partner, and Aggregator Agreements, we accept the inclusion of these arguments as attachments to the CSP Coordination Tariff.

With respect to the Cooperative's proposal to change the deadline by which disconnected accounts can be reconnected in the same day, from 4:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., we note Staff's concern that the change shortens the time for a customer to settle his account in order to have service restored the same day without paying an after-hours reconnection charge. In this instance, we find that the proposed change from 4:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. is reasonable. The Commission does not adopt Staff's recommendation on this issue.

The Commission finds that the Cooperative's customers should retain the option of requesting their refund of deposit by check, and accepts Staff's recommendation that Section IV-B-5 Deposits be changed accordingly.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Prince George's tariffs and terms and conditions of service as recommended by Staff and subject to the modifications discussed herein are hereby approved.

(2) Prince George shall file revised tariffs and terms and conditions of service reflecting the findings made herein with the Commission's Division of Energy Regulation as soon as practicable after the date of this Order.

(3) Prince George may initiate retail choice in its service territory upon the filing required by Ordering Paragraph (2) herein.

(4) This case shall be dismissed, and the papers filed herein shall be made a part of the Commission's files for ended causes.

SEPTEMBER 10, 2003

APPLICATION OF THE POTOMAC EDISON COMPANY

For approval to enter into tax allocation agreement under Chapter 4, Title 56 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

The Potomac Edison Company, d/b/a Allegheny Power ("Allegheny" or "Applicant" or "Company"), a wholly owned subsidiary of Allegheny Energy, Inc. ("Allegheny Energy"), is a public service corporation organized and existing under the laws of the Commonwealth of Virginia and the State of Maryland. Allegheny provides retail electric service to customers in Maryland, West Virginia, and in all or part of thirteen counties in northwestern Virginia. Allegheny is incorporated in the State of Maryland with its headquarters located in Hagerstown, Maryland.

Allegheny Energy and its affiliated companies,¹ including Allegheny, are affiliated interests as defined under §56-76 of the Code of Virginia ("Code").

The Applicant requests that the Commission approve a Tax Allocation Agreement ("Tax Agreement"), dated July 31, 2003, with its parent Allegheny Energy and its affiliated companies that would replace the existing tax allocation agreement approved by the Commission on July 29, 1994, in Case No. PUE-1994-00013 (PUE940013), which replaced a tax allocation agreement dated June 13, 1963.

The Applicant represents that the Tax Agreement is filed consistent with and conforms to Section 12(b) of the Public Utility Holding Act of 1935 and the regulations promulgated therein. Further, that the Tax Agreement conforms to the requirements of Securities and Exchange ("SEC") Rule 45(c) and that it adopts SEC approved allocation procedures.

The proposed Tax Agreement specifies the mechanics of determining and paying the tax liabilities of Allegheny Energy and its affiliated companies, including Allegheny. Further, the Tax Agreement changes the method previously used to allocate losses within Allegheny Energy to one that more closely allocates tax losses to those entities within the system that are actually producing the losses. Pursuant to the Tax Agreement, Allegheny Energy's consolidated income taxes, including state and local income taxes, will be allocated among the affiliated companies in proportion to the separate return tax of each affiliate, provided that the amount of tax allocated to each affiliate will not exceed the tax it would be obligated to pay on a separate return basis.

The Tax Agreement does not provide for or contemplate the exchange of any goods or services among affiliates. The Tax Agreement does not contemplate that any administrative, general, labor, or other costs will arise that would result in any charges among affiliated companies.

The Company states that the Tax Agreement will produce a fair and reasonable allocation of income tax liability among the affiliated companies, will not provide undue advantage to any of the parties to the Tax Agreement, and will not adversely affect the public in Virginia. The Company further states that no other electric utility subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission will be affected by the Tax Agreement and that approval of the Tax Agreement is in the public interest.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application, representations of the Applicant, and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds the above described Tax Agreement is in the public interest and should be approved. Approval of the Tax Agreement should have no ratemaking implications. That is, in any future rate proceeding, the Staff may propose and the Commission may consider alternative ratemaking treatment of the income tax consequences.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to §56-77 of the Code, Allegheny is hereby granted approval to enter into the Tax Agreement, as described herein.
- 2) Any changes in the terms and conditions or any other amendment to the Tax Agreement shall require further Commission approval.
- 3) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications. The Commission reserves the right to reflect ratemaking adjustments to Allegheny's income taxes in the course of the Commission's review and analysis of Allegheny's cost of service in the future.
- 4) The approval granted herein shall not be deemed to include any approvals other than the specific Tax Agreement approved in ordering paragraph (1).

- 6) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein, whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 7) Allegheny shall include the Tax Agreement approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission.
- 8) If Annual Informational and/or General Rate Case Filings are not based on a calendar year, then Allegheny shall include the affiliate information contained in the Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions in such filings.

NOVEMBER 4, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.
UTILIQUEST, LLC,
Defendant

ORDER OF SETTLEMENT

Pursuant to § 56-265.30 of the Code of Virginia, the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") is charged with enforcing the provisions of the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Act, § 56-265.14 et seq. of the Code of Virginia. The Commission's Division of Utility and Railroad Safety ("Division"), charged with the investigation of probable violations of the Act, has completed investigations of certain incidents between July 16, 2002, and July 3, 2003, listed in Attachment A, involving Utiliquest, LLC ("Company"), the defendant, and alleges that:

- (1) The Company is a contract locator as that term is defined in § 56-265.15 of the Code of Virginia;
- (2) During the aforementioned period the Company has violated the Act by the following conduct:
 - (a) Failing on certain occasions to mark the approximate horizontal location of the underground utility lines on the ground to within two feet of either side of the underground utility lines, in violation of § 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (b) Failing on certain occasions to mark within the time prescribed in the Act, in violation of § 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.
 - (c) Failing on certain occasions to report to the notification center that lines had been marked or they were not in conflict with the proposed excavation, in violation of § 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.

As evidenced in the attached Admission and Consent document, the Company neither admits nor denies these allegations but admits the Commission's jurisdiction and authority to enter this Order.

As an offer to settle all matters before the Commission arising from the Division's allegations made herein, which includes all probable violations presented to the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Advisory Committee on August 5, 2003, and set out in Attachment A hereto, the Company represents and undertakes that it will pay a civil penalty to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $10,350 to be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order. This payment will be made by cashier's check or money order, payable to the Treasurer of Virginia and directed to the attention of the Director of the Division of Utility and Railroad Safety.

The Commission, being advised by the Staff and finding sufficient basis herein for the entry of this Order, hereby accepts this settlement.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to the authority granted the Commission by § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, the offer of settlement made by the Company be, and it hereby is, accepted.
- (2) The sum of $10,350 tendered contemporaneously with the entry of this Order is accepted.
- (3) This case is dismissed, and the papers herein shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

OCTOBER 31, 2003

PETITION AND APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

For a certificate to operate generating facilities pursuant to Virginia Code § 56-580 D, and such other approvals as may be necessary for the purchase of qualifying facility generating assets and for expedited consideration

FINAL ORDER

On August 8, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power" or "Company") filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") a petition and application ("Application") seeking the issuance of a certificate pursuant to § 56-580 D of the Code of Virginia ("Code") to operate an existing electrical power generation facility located in Gordonsville, Virginia ("Facility"), upon the Company's purchase of the Facility. The Application also requests such other approvals as may be necessary for the Company's purchase and operation of the Facility. The Application includes a request that the relief requested in the Application be granted on an expedited basis.

The Facility is currently owned by Gordonsville Energy L.P. ("GELP"), a Delaware partnership. The constituent partners of GELP are Rapidan Energy Company, a California corporation; Madison Energy Company, a California corporation; and Calpine Gordonsville, Inc., a Delaware corporation. Pursuant to a Purchase and Sale Agreement dated as of July 24, 2003, between the Company, GELP and its constituent partners, and Calpine Corporation and Edison Mission Energy as guarantors ("Purchase Agreement"), GELP has agreed to sell the Facility and all related assets to the Company. A copy of the Purchase Agreement was filed under seal with the Clerk of the Commission pursuant to Rule 170 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, 20 VAC 5-20-170.

Closing under the Purchase Agreement is expected to occur as soon as all necessary regulatory approvals, including those sought herein, have been obtained. Effective as of the closing date, GELP will transfer all Facility permits, licenses, and approvals, to the extent transferable, to the Company.

The Facility is a qualifying cogeneration facility ("QF") under the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978. It is comprised of two identical, dual-fuel combined-cycle units, and has a combined nominal capacity of approximately 240 MW. Each unit of the Facility consists of a General Electric 7EA combustion turbine generator, a supplementary fired heat recovery steam generator, an extraction/condensing steam turbine generator, a circuit breaker and a step-up transformer. The Facility includes a five-million gallon fuel-oil storage tank. The Facility is capable of operation on natural gas or No. 2 fuel oil.

Currently all of the Facility's electric generating capacity and energy is sold to the Company pursuant to the Second Amendment and Restatement of the Power Purchase and Operating Agreement, dated October 22, 1992 (Facility No. 1), and the Second Amendment and Restatement of the Power Purchase and Operating Agreement, dated October 23, 1992 (Facility No. 2) between GELP and the Company (the "PPOAs"). Unless terminated by the Company's purchase of the Facility, the PPOAs will remain in effect until May 2024. The Company states in the Application that the PPOAs will be terminated upon closing under the Purchase Agreement.

In its Application, the Company requests a waiver of any requirement to provide information related to the construction of the Facility. The Application also includes the Company's assertion that its purchase of the Facility is not subject to the rules establishing minimum criteria for any bidding program designed by an electric utility to purchase capacity or energy from other providers ("Bidding Rules"), which were adopted by the Commission by Order dated November 28, 1990, in Case No. PUE-1990-00029. The Company further contends in the Application that approval of its acquisition of the Facility is not required under the Utility Transfers Act ("Transfers Act"), Code § 56-88 et seq. However, the Company recognizes that the Commission has previously held that a transaction similar to that proposed herein is subject to the Transfers Act.¹ The Company asserts that if the Commission determines that Transfers Act approval is required, the Application, which includes a completed Transaction Summary, satisfies the requirements of the Transfers Act.

On August 8, 2003, the Company also filed a Motion for Protective Order. In its motion, the Company requested that a protective order be issued in order to assure confidential treatment of confidential and competitively sensitive information contained in the Purchase Agreement and information responsive to data requests submitted in this proceeding.

On September 9, 2003, the Commission entered an Order for Notice and Comment in which this matter was docketed; interested parties were invited to submit written comments or request that the Commission convene a hearing; Commission Staff ("Staff") was directed to file a report on its review of the Application; and the Company was directed to give customers and public officials within the Facility's service area notice of the Application.

On September 10, 2003, the Commission entered a Protective Order that sets forth the procedures by which confidential and competitively sensitive information is to be handled generally in this proceeding.

On September 30, 2003, the Department of Environmental Quality ("DEQ") submitted to Staff a statement summarizing the results of its review of the environmental effects of the proposed operation of the Facility by the Company. DEQ states that the Virginia Pollution Discharge Elimination System Permit currently held by GELP must be transferred to the Company, and the Company must work with the DEQ-Northern Regional Office regarding compliance with all air permitting requirements. DEQ states that it does not anticipate any adverse environmental impacts from the transfer of the Facility.

On October 6, 2003, the Company provided the Clerk of the Commission with proof of the newspaper publication and proof of service required by the September 9, 2003, Order for Notice and Comment.

No timely written comments or requests for a hearing have been filed in this matter.

On October 15, 2003, Staff filed a motion requesting leave to file its report out of time and no later than October 17, 2003. On October 16, 2003, the Commission entered an order granting the Staff's motion.

On October 17, 2003, Staff filed its report ("Report"). The Report addresses the Company's request for a certificate pursuant to § 56-580 D; the Company's request for a waiver of any requirement to provide information related to the construction of the Facility; the assertion that the Company's purchase of the Facility is not subject to the Bidding Rules; and the requirements under the Transfers Act regarding the Company's acquisition of the Facility.

In the Report, Staff concludes that the Company's ownership and operation of the Facility will have no material adverse effect upon reliability of electric service provided by any regulated public utility and is not otherwise contrary to the public interest, and recommends that the Commission grant the Company's request for a certificate to operate the Facility conditioned on meeting requirements specified by the DEQ.

Staff does not object to the Company's request for a waiver of any requirement to provide information under the Commission's Filing Requirements in Support of Applications for Authority to Construct and Operate an Electric Generating Facility ("Rules").

Staff concludes that the Bidding Rules should not apply in this case. The Bidding Rules were intended to provide electric utilities with an option to acquire needed capacity in a reasonable manner. The benefits to be derived from this transaction are specific to the purchase of the Facility and cannot be accommodated through the competitive bidding process.

With respect to the Transfers Act, Staff concludes that the proposed acquisition of the Facility will neither impair nor jeopardize the provision of adequate service to the public at just and reasonable rates. Therefore, the proposed transfer meets the test of the Transfers Act and should be approved.

On October 20, 2003, the Company submitted a letter stating that it has no comment on the Report and requested the Commission to issue an order, on an expedited basis, granting the requested certificate and approvals.

On October 28, 2003, Rapidan Service Authority ("RSA"), by counsel, served on counsel of record a motion for leave to file comments out of time ("RSA Motion"). The RSA Motion was later received by the Clerk and filed October 30, 2003. RSA asserts that GELP has operated the Facility based upon certain agreements and permits with RSA, and that RSA has not reached an agreement with GELP or the Company in regard to such agreements and permits.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Application, the Staff's Report, and the applicable law, is of the opinion and finds as follows.

As we have stated in previous orders,² the Code establishes six general areas of analysis that apply to the Commission's review of applications under § 56-580 D of the Code. These criteria are: (1) reliability;³ (2) competition;⁴ (3) rates;⁵ (4) environment;⁶ (5) economic development;⁷ and (6) public interest.⁸ We have evaluated the Application with regard to these six areas of analysis.

We find that the transfer of the Facility will have no material adverse effect upon reliability of electric service provided by any regulated public utility. Because the Facility is already interconnected to the Company system at the Company-owned South Anna NUG Substation, the Company's operation of the Facility will have no impact on the Company's transmission or distribution system.

We find that the transfer of the Facility will have no material adverse effect upon retail competition in Virginia. The Company's purchase of the facility will maintain the status quo in that the entire output of the Facility will remain available for use by the Company to serve its customers. Under Company ownership, the Facility will be available at lower cost to the Company and its customers than under the PPOAs.

We find that the transfer of the Facility will have no material adverse effect upon the Company's retail rates. Termination of the PPOAs eliminates above-market payments to GELP and provides the opportunity to lower the Facility's costs.

We have considered the effect of the proposed transfer of the Facility on the environment. Pursuant to §§ 56-580 D and 56-46.1 A of the Code, permits regulating environmental impact and the mitigation of adverse environmental impact shall be deemed to satisfy the requirements of such sections with respect to all matters that are governed by the permits. GELP has previously obtained and currently maintains all local, state and federal governmental licenses, permits, approvals, and authorizations necessary for the construction and operation of the Facility. The Application provides that the Company will continue to operate and maintain the Facility in accordance with such permits and all other applicable environmental requirements and restrictions. The Application further provides that the Company will obtain, at or before closing, an Acid Rain Permit for the Facility under Title IV of the Clean Air Act and 40 CFR Part 72 from the DEQ. DEQ has written that it does not anticipate any adverse environmental impacts from the proposed transfer. DEQ's September 30, 2003, letter, which is included as an attachment to the Report, states that the Virginia Pollution Discharge Elimination System Permit currently held by GELP must be transferred to the Company, and the Company must continue to work with the DEQ-Northern Regional Office regarding compliance with all air permitting requirements. We adopt the Staff's recommendation that the granting of the certificate be conditioned upon the Company's compliance with the requirements specified by DEQ.

We find that the transfer of the Facility will have no material adverse effect upon economic development.

We find that the issuance of a certificate to the Company to operate the Facility is not otherwise contrary to the public interest.

We find that it is appropriate to waive any requirement under the Rules that the Company provide information related to the construction of the Facility.

We find, for the reasons stated in the Report, that the Bidding Rules are not applicable to this proceeding.

As we previously held in Case PUE-2000-00745,⁹ we find that the Company needs this Commission's approval under the Transfers Act in order to acquire the generating assets of a QF. A "public utility" is defined in § 56-88 of the Transfers Act as including:

any company which owns or operates facilities within the Commonwealth for the generation, transmission or distribution of electric energy for sale; for the production, transmission or distribution, otherwise than in enclosed portable containers, of natural or manufactured gas for sale for heat, light or power, but excluding any company described in subdivision (b)(8) of § 56-265.1; or for the furnishing of sewerage facilities or water.

While Transfers Act approval of the transfer of the Facility to the Company is required, we find that such transfer will neither impair nor jeopardize the provision of adequate service to the public at just and reasonable rates, and, therefore, meets the requirements under the Transfers Act, and such approval should be granted.

Finally, we find that RSA's motion for leave to file comments out of time should not be granted. The motion does not allege that the Company failed to provide notice of this proceeding in a manner that was required by order of this Commission or by other applicable law. RSA's motion lists a number of agreements and permits that it has with GELP and states that it has not reached an agreement with GELP or the Company with regard to these agreements and permits. RSA does not allege that the public interest will be detrimentally affected by this Commission's granting of the certificate to the Company in this proceeding.¹⁰

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Pursuant to § 56-580 D of the Code of Virginia, in accordance with the record developed herein, the Company is hereby granted authority and a certificate to acquire and operate the Facility as described in this proceeding and this Order.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00400
NOVEMBER 21, 2003

PETITION OF PLANTATION PIPE LINE COMPANY

For relief from excessive charges by Rappahannock Electric Cooperative

FINAL ORDER

On August 8, 2003, Plantation Pipe Line Company ("Plantation" or "Company") filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") its Petition for Relief from Excessive Charges by Rappahannock Electric Cooperative ("Petition").

In its Petition, the Company states that it is a Virginia public service corporation; it owns and operates a refined petroleum products pipeline network that extends through Virginia and seven other states; it operates eight pumping stations in Virginia, one of which is located near Bowling Green in Caroline County and is within the service territory assigned by the Commission to Rappahannock Electric Cooperative ("REC"); and the electricity required to operate the Bowling Green pumping station is purchased by the Company from REC at rates and subject to terms and conditions of service approved by the Commission. REC bills the Company for electric service to the Bowling Green pumping station on Large Power Service Rate Schedule LP-1.

The Company further states that its Bowling Green pumping station adjoins the electric substation at which Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power") delivers electricity to REC for redelivery to the Company's pumping station. All of the electric energy delivered by Virginia Power to REC at the substation is immediately redelivered by REC to the Company. During 2002, the Company paid $392,694 to REC for electric service at the Bowling Green pumping station, at an average cost of 7.74 cents/kWh. The average price paid by the Company to other electricity providers for comparable service at its seven other pumping stations in Virginia is 4.79 cents/kWh. REC has refused to provide service to the Company at its Bowling Green pumping station on the same terms and conditions that it serves Bear Island Paper Company, LLC ("Bear Island"). Bear Island receives service from REC on a schedule that recognizes that REC provides only minimal facilities to redeliver to Bear Island the electricity received from Virginia Power at a substation serving Bear Island. These circumstances are claimed to be very similar to the circumstances at the Bowling Green pumping station. REC's charge for electric service to Bear Island is described as a "pass-through" of Virginia Power's charges to REC, plus an amount calculated to recover only the capital cost and related expenses of the specific facilities used by REC to redeliver to its customer the electricity it receives at that substation from Virginia Power.

The Company argues in its Petition that REC's charges for electric service at the Bowling Green pumping station are improper in three ways. First, the Company claims that REC's charges for electric service at the Bowling Green pumping station are unreasonable and unjust in violation of § 56-234¹ of the Code of Virginia ("Code"). The Company cites the fact that REC's per kilowatt hour charges in 2002 were approximately 60 percent higher than the average charge per kilowatt hour by the electrical suppliers for the Company's seven other pumping stations. Such a large discrepancy, according to the Company, cannot be explained or justified on the basis of recognized ratemaking principles.

Second, the Company claims that REC has discriminated against it by refusing to charge the Company for electric service in the same manner that it charges Bear Island for electric service under similar conditions, again in contravention of § 56-234.

Third, the Company claims that REC's rates are not based on "reasonable classifications of customers" as required by clause (2) of § 56-235.2 of the Code.² REC's Rate Schedule LP-1 states that it is applicable to all consumers along the lines of the Cooperative contracting for a load of 100 kW or more. The Company asserts that the rate schedule is designed to recover the costs incurred by REC in providing service to customers "along the lines of the Cooperative," but the Bowling Green pumping station is not located "along the lines of the Cooperative." This conclusion is based on several factors: the pumping station is located adjacent to a Virginia Power transmission line; the pumping station receives service from a substation isolated from REC's distribution system; and the point at which the pumping station receives electricity from REC is less than 100 feet from the point at which Virginia Power provides electricity to REC. Because there are no distribution lines in or near the substation, except for the facilities located between the Virginia Power facilities and the Company's facilities, none of the costs of REC's facilities should be allocated or assigned to, or recovered from, the Company. The Company alleges that in 2002 it paid to REC approximately $140,000 for receiving service through less than 100 feet of REC's facilities and its meter. A rate schedule that is similar to the schedule under which Bear Island receives service, which does not charge for facilities and services that the customer does not use, would eliminate excessive and discriminatory charges. The Company states that it wants REC to be required to make electric service available for the Bowling Green pumping station at a rate that is fair, reasonable, nondiscriminatory, and based on a reasonable customer classification.

It shall be the duty of every public utility to furnish reasonably adequate services and facilities at reasonable and just rates to any person, firm or corporation along its lines desiring same. It shall be their duty to charge uniformly therefor all persons, corporations, or municipal corporations using such service under like conditions.

² Virginia Code § 56-235.2 A provides:

Any rate, toll, charge or schedule of any public utility operating in this Commonwealth shall be considered to be just and reasonable only if: (1) the public utility has demonstrated that such rates, tolls, charges or schedules in the aggregate provide revenues not in excess of the aggregate actual costs incurred by the public utility in serving customers within the jurisdiction of the Commission, subject to such normalization for nonrecurring costs and adjustments for known future increases in costs as the Commission may deem reasonable, and a fair return on the public utility's rate base used to serve those jurisdictional customers; (1a) the investor-owned public electric utility has demonstrated that no part of such rates, tolls, charges or schedules includes costs for advertisement, except for advertisements either required by law or rule or regulation, or for advertisements which solely promote the public interest, conservation or more efficient use of energy; and (2) the public utility has demonstrated that such rates, tolls, charges or schedules contain reasonable classifications of customers.

On September 3, 2003, REC, by counsel, filed its Motion to Dismiss or, in the Alternative, Answer to Petition ("Motion"). In its Motion, REC states that the Petition fails to state any claim on which relief may be granted as a matter of law. In its Motion, REC argues that the claim that its rates are higher than those charged by other utilities providing electric service to the Company elsewhere in Virginia is improper. By this argument, the Company seeks to have the Commission engage in "comparative ratemaking" whereby the rates paid to REC would be based on a comparison with rates paid for allegedly similar services from other utilities. REC counters the claim of discrimination by noting that the schedule LP-2-U under which Bear Island receives service has been closed to new customers since 1981. Moreover, it was open only to industrial customers contracting for a load of 10,000 kilowatts or more, and the Company does not allege that it fits such criterion. REC also disputes the Company's argument that its rates are not based on a reasonable classification of customers because the Bowling Green pumping station is not "along the lines of the Cooperative." REC asserts that the length of distribution services necessary for service does not affect the fact that the Bowling Green pumping station is connected to REC's facilities. The Company receives services through those facilities, and thus, REC asserts, its pumping station is located "along the lines" of REC.

In support of its Motion, REC further argues that the Company in essence is seeking a reduction in its rates, and that such a reduction would contravene the provisions of the Virginia Electric Utility Restructuring Act, Chapter 23 (§ 56-576 et seq.) of Title 56 of the Code (the "Restructuring Act").

On September 17, 2003, the Company filed its Response to REC's Motion ("Response"), in which it asks that REC's Motion be denied and the Commission proceed with a full investigation to determine whether REC's rates violate §§ 56-234 and 56-235 of the Code.³ The Company contends that it is not seeking a change in an existing rate schedule, a discount, or comparative ratemaking, and is not seeking to receive service on the same schedule under which the Bear Island facility receives service. Rather, the Response characterizes the Company's Petition as seeking relief from charges that are unreasonable, unjust, discriminatory, preferential, and based on an unlawful customer classification. If REC has no schedule on which the Company can be served in accordance with §§ 56-234 and 56-235 of the Code, the Company contends that REC must make a new rate schedule available to the Company that is neither unreasonable, unjust, discriminatory, preferential, nor based on an unlawful customer classification.

By order dated September 29, 2003, the Commission extended the time for REC to file its reply to the Company's Response. On October 8, 2003, REC filed its Reply to the Company's Response ("Reply"), in which it again argued that the Petition be dismissed because it fails to state any ground upon which relief may be granted under Virginia law.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the pleadings and applicable law, is of the opinion and finds as follows.

REC's Motion raises the question of whether this Commission may grant the relief that appears to be the Company's objective: the institution of a new rate for Plantation that is calculated to recover only the cost of those isolated facilities that serve only the Bowling Green pumping station. The Company asserts that REC serves it and Bear Island "under like conditions" because both are served through facilities isolated from the REC distribution system and that serve only a single customer; that REC refuses to charge the Company on a rate specifically calculated to recover only the cost of those isolated facilities that serve only Plantation; and that by refusing to base its charges to the Company on the cost of facilities that serve the Company, REC is requiring the Company to subsidize other REC customers served on the Large Power Service Rate Schedule LP-1.⁴

The Company's pleadings make several points in support of its contention that this Commission should investigate whether the rates and charges paid by the Company are just, reasonable or unjustly discriminatory. The Company points to the Supreme Court's statement that:

[A]ny aggrieved ratepayer may at any time go before the Commission and make complaint that the schedule or rates of the Company are unjust and unreasonable. If it appears that the complaint is well founded, it will be the duty of the Commission to change, fix and order substituted for the filed schedule or rates such schedule or rates as shall be just and reasonable.⁵

The Company also observes that granting REC's Motion would prevent the Company from obtaining facts known only to REC by eliminating the ability to conduct discovery. Examples of the type of information that may be relevant to the Company's case but unavailable if this proceeding is dismissed include whether there are other customers served by REC through isolated facilities that serve only a single customer; whether such customers are charged only for the facilities that serve only them; to what extent revenue REC receives from the Company is used to subsidize other REC customers; and why REC's charges are so much higher than those for similar service by other utilities.

REC's Reply asks whether this Commission should conduct the requested investigation of REC's rates and charges if the relief sought by the Company is not available. The Cooperative observes that there is no purpose served in having the Commission entertain a petition in relation to which it cannot grant relief.⁶

³ Virginia Code § 56-235 provides in part:

If upon investigation the rates, tolls, charges, schedules, or joint rates of any public utility operating in this Commonwealth shall be found to be unjust, unreasonable, insufficient or unjustly discriminatory or to be preferential or otherwise in violation of any of the provisions of law, the State Corporation Commission shall have power to fix and order substituted therefor such rate or rates, tolls, charges or schedules as shall be just and reasonable.

The relief that the Company is seeking is characterized by REC as "a whole new rate schedule that will provide it with lower rates"⁷ and by the Company as "a rate specifically calculated to recover only the costs of those isolated facilities that serve only Plantation."⁸ However such relief is characterized, we will address whether this Commission may grant the relief requested.

The Company's assertion that it is entitled to relief under §§ 56-234 of the Code is based on the premise that REC does not uniformly charge the Company and Bear Island for service "under like conditions."⁹ Under this argument, while both customers are served through facilities that are isolated from the REC distribution system and serve only a single customer, Bear Island's charges are calculated to recover only the cost of those isolated facilities that serve only Bear Island while REC refuses to charge the Company on a rate that is specifically calculated to recover only the cost of those isolated facilities that serve only Plantation.

REC asserts that the Company and Bear Island are not served "under like conditions." While both Plantation and Bear Island share one like condition – receiving electric service through dedicated facilities – there are numerous other aspects of service, including load size, that distinguish the service provided to these two REC customers. This Commission has approved REC's rate schedule in order to permit it fairly and equitably to recover its costs of providing service to its customers. REC contends that no customer has a right to demand a custom rate schedule charging that customer only the costs of equipment directly used to connect with and serve that customer.¹⁰

REC's argument is supported by this Commission's decision regarding a proposal by Reynolds Metals Corporation ("Reynolds") for a rate class applicable only to it, which was premised on a theory that Reynolds should have a rate reflective of only those costs attributable to it.¹¹ Reynolds sought to support its position with testimony describing, among other things, the location and description of physical facilities used for services delivered to Reynolds and a purported demonstration that Reynolds is not part of the integrated local distribution system of the gas company. In that case, this Commission rejected Reynolds' proposal, noting that:

As a matter of policy, rates should not be designed predicated upon geographical location of a customer on a utility's system or the costs incurred for maintenance or construction of facilities connected to a particular customer. Such a policy, taken to its logical conclusion, would result in destruction of the concept of distribution of common costs to customers on that system. Indeed each customer, regardless of class, would be entitled to a separate rate class under Reynolds' approach.¹²

In rejecting Reynolds' request for a separate rate class, we stated our belief that "the proper approach to reconciling the public service obligation of the utilities and the competitive pressures on the utility and its industrial customers is to design rates for service which are cost based, reflect relative parity of return among classes and allow appropriate flexibility for utility and customer response to the realities of the marketplace and competition."¹³

REC describes the Company's proposal as "[a] scheme of ratemaking where each customer has a personal rate schedule charging only the costs that customer thinks it should pay," and contends that such approach "would be inefficient, impossible to manage and, quite frankly, unheard of." We agree. We find that the Company has not stated a claim of a violation of § 56-234 or § 56-235.2 of the Code.¹⁴

With respect to the claimed violation of § 56-234, we find that the Company has not validly claimed that REC is not uniformly charging customers that are using its service "under like conditions." The Company's assertion that both it and Bear Island are served through facilities that are isolated from the REC distribution system and serve a single customer does not constitute a claim that the Company and Bear Island are served under like conditions. As noted previously, several other factors distinguish the service that REC provides to the Company and Bear Island. For example, Bear Island receives service under a schedule that was available to industrial customers contracting for a load of 10,000 kilowatts or more,¹⁵ while the Company's demand in 2002 was 1,450 kW.¹⁶ The Company's assertion is similar to Reynolds' request for a separate rate class that reflected only those costs attributable to it. As we held in our denial of Reynolds' claim, the extent to which a customer is integrated into a utility's distribution system does not, by itself, entitle the customer to receive service under its own custom schedule.

We also find that the facts asserted in the Company's Petition do not describe an unreasonable classification of customers in violation of § 56-235.2. The Company's claim is based on its assertion that its pumping station is not located "along the lines of REC." The Company acknowledges that the REC facilities that have been inserted between the Virginia Power facilities and the Company's facilities are REC distribution lines.¹⁷ Though

REC's distribution facilities that connect the Company's facility to Virginia Power's transmission line are not lengthy, we find that the Company's pumping station is located "along the lines" of REC.

The Company's failure to state valid claims of violations of §§ 56-234 and 56-235.2 does not necessarily mean that a new rate schedule could not be adopted. The Company's Petition could prompt this Commission to conduct a review of the justness and reasonableness of REC's schedules and rates. The Commission addressed a similar request in Petition of Luck Stone Corporation for an Investigation of the rates and charges of Northern Virginia Electric Cooperative, Case No. PUE-1988-00065. In its petition, Luck Stone asked the Commission to hold a hearing on the reasonableness of the cooperative's rates and charges, and alleged that it is unreasonable for the cooperative's retail rates and charges to Luck Stone to substantially exceed the retail rates and charges for similar electric service provided by Virginia Power. In that case, this Commission denied Luck Stone's request for a temporary reduction in rates and observed that "it has not been this Commission's practice to establish just and reasonable rates through comparisons of one utility to another."¹⁸ The electric cooperative in that case was required to prepare and file a cost-of-service study and all schedules required by the Commission's rules for electric cooperative rate increases.

However, it appears that under the Restructuring Act the Commission does not have the authority to conduct a general review of the cooperative's rates and charges in this proceeding. Subsection D of § 56-582 provides that "[u]ntil the expiration or termination of capped rates as provided in this section, the incumbent electric utility . . . shall make electric service available at capped rates established under this section to any customer in the incumbent electric utility's service territory . . ." This section of the Restructuring Act provides that rates charged by Virginia's electric utilities are capped at the rates in effect for each incumbent utility as of the July 1, 1999, subject to certain specific exceptions not at issue in this proceeding.

We find that these provisions of the Restructuring Act appear to prevent this Commission from granting the Company the relief that it seeks. REC argues that the Company's charges are subject to the capped rate provisions of the Restructuring Act, and cannot be changed for any of the reasons stated in the Company's Petition. The capped rate provision of the Act further appears to prevent REC's other rates from being raised in compensation for the erosion in revenue that would be caused by the adjustment sought by the Company.

The Company's reliance on subdivision A 3 of § 56-582, which provides that capped rates shall include rates for new services, is misplaced. This provision applies only "where, subsequent to January 1, 2001, rate applications for any such rates are filed by incumbent electric utilities with the Commission and are thereafter approved by the Commission." In this case, the incumbent electric utility is REC, and REC has not filed a rate application for the service, whether new or not.

In reaching this conclusion, we observe that we have authorized special rates for customers of another electric cooperative subsequent to the passage of the Restructuring Act. Pursuant to § 56-582 A 3 of the Restructuring Act, Southside Electric Cooperative, Inc., filed an application for a general rate increase and for approval of a special rate and contract. This Commission's final order in that proceeding provided for a special rate for a customer.¹⁹ However, this proceeding involved a general rate case and was filed in conjunction with the cooperative's application for approval of a functional separation plan. In this general rate case contemplated by the provisions of the Restructuring Act, the effects of changes in Southside Electric Cooperative's rates and charges on all classes of consumers, as well as on the cooperative's revenues and TIER, could be addressed comprehensively. This Commission does not appear to have the same latitude in this proceeding. We do not know what effect a reduction in REC's revenue, resulting from a lower rate being paid by the Company, would have on REC's operations and on the allocation of costs among all classes of customers. While such an analysis could be conducted in the context of a rate case, the Restructuring Act appears to foreclose that option at the present time.

For the reasons discussed above, we find that the Company has failed to state a claim upon which relief can be granted as a matter of law by this Commission. We further find that the remedy sought by the Company would require the implementation of a new rate that is specifically tailored to the unique circumstances under which the Company receives electric service at the Bowling Green pumping station while leaving all other provisions of REC's tariff unchanged. Such relief appears to contravene the general principles of ratemaking mentioned in our preceding discussion of Reynolds' request for special treatment in the Commonwealth Gas Services case.²⁰ If the conditions under which the Company received service, including load factor and total demand, were identical with other customers that received service under a different rate schedule, then the Company may be entitled to a remedy that addresses the discrimination without contravening the restrictions of the Restructuring Act. However, given that we do not have a situation that validly states a violation of § 56-234 or § 56-235.2, and further given that the rate cap provisions of the Restructuring Act appear to prevent this Commission from undertaking an examination of REC's rates for electric service to its customers generally, the Company has not stated any ground upon which relief may be granted. Consequently, we will grant REC's motion to dismiss the Company's Petition.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The Motion of Rappahannock Electric Cooperative to dismiss Plantation Pipe Line Company's Petition is granted.
- (2) The Petition of Plantation Pipe Line Company for Relief from Excessive Charges by Rappahannock Electric Cooperative is dismissed.
- (3) There being nothing further to come before the Commission in this proceeding, this case shall be removed from the docket and the papers transferred to the file for ended causes.

SEPTEMBER 2, 2003

MECKLENBURG ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On August 25, 2003, Mecklenburg Electric Cooperative ("Applicant") filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to incur long-term debt. Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $250.

Applicant requests authority to borrow up to $2,428,351 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation ("CFC"). The proceeds will be used to retire existing debt issued to the Rural Utilities Services ("RUS"). The loan will be structured so that the debt matures in installments throughout the next 11 years. The interest rate on the debt will be determined at the time and will be fixed through June 1, 2006. Subsequent to June 1, 2006, the interest rate on the remaining balance of the loan will be re-priced at the then prevailing interest rate. The effective interest rate for the initial period will be less than 5.0%, the current rate on the existing RUS debt to be retired.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $2,428,351 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each advance of funds from CFC, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected, and the interest rate term.
- 3) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it is hereby dismissed.

MECKLENBURG ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to issue long-term debt

AMENDING ORDER

On August 25, 2003, Mecklenburg Electric Cooperative ("Mecklenburg" or "Applicant") filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to incur long-term debt. Mecklenburg requested authority to borrow up to $2,428,351 to retire existing debt issued to the Rural Utilities Services. According to Mecklenburg, the interest rate on the debt was to be determined at the time of drawdown and was to be fixed through June 1, 2006, with the remaining balance of debt re-priced subsequent to June 1, 2006.

By Order Granting Authority dated September 2, 2003, the Commission authorized Mecklenburg to borrow up to $2,428,351 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.

By letter dated September 4, 2003, to Joel H. Peck, Clerk of the Commission, Mecklenburg represents that the June 1, 2006, date was incorrectly provided to our Staff as the date that interest rates are determined at the time of re-pricing of the debt and that interest rates are fixed through June 1, 2006. According to Mecklenburg, the correct date in both of these instances should be January 1, 2006. As such, Mecklenburg requests that the second paragraph of our September 2, 2003, Order be amended to reflect the correct date.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of Mecklenburg's request, is of the opinion and finds that the second paragraph of our September 2, 2003, Order should be corrected to reflect the January 1, 2006, date.

Accordingly IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The second paragraph of our September 2, 2003, Order is amended to state the correct date of January 1, 2006, as the date that interest rates are determined at the time of repricing of the debt and that interest rates are fixed through that date.
- (2) All other provisions of our September 2, 2003, Order Granting Authority shall remain in full force and effect.

PRINCE GEORGE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On August 26, 2003, Prince George Electric Cooperative ("Applicant") filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to incur long-term debt. Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $250.

Applicant requests authority to borrow up to $1,203,634 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation ("CFC"). The proceeds will be used to retire existing debt issued to the Rural Utilities Services ("RUS"). The loan will be structured so that the debt matures in installments throughout the next 12 years. The interest rate on the debt will be determined at the time and will be fixed for the period ended January 1, 2010. After January 1, 2010, the interest rate on the remaining balance of approximately $459,122 will be re-priced at the then prevailing interest rate. The effective interest rate for the initial period will be less than 5.0%, the current rate on the existing RUS debt to be retired.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $1,204,634 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each advance of funds from CFC, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected, and the interest rate term.
- 3) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it is hereby dismissed.

APPLICATION OF
KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY d/b/a OLD DOMINION POWER COMPANY

For authority to issue securities under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia and to engage in an affiliate transaction under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia"

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On August 27, 2003, Kentucky Utilities Company, d/b/a/ Old Dominion Power Company ("Applicant" or the "Company"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting authority to issue securities under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") and to engage in an affiliate transaction under Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code. Applicant completed its application with information filed on September 15, 2003. Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

Applicant requests authority to issue up to $100,000,000 of fixed-rate long-term debt ("Proposed Debt") in a limited number of tranches through the 2004 calendar year. The Proposed Debt will be used to refund long-term debt, help finance portions of the Company's Pollution Control Program, and provide capital to replace the gap in funds that will occur upon expiration of the Company's program to sell its accounts receivable ("Accounts Receivable Program").

The Company intends to issue the Proposed Debt with a fixed rate of interest on maturities ranging between two to twelve years. Applicant states that the interest rate on the proposed debt will be based on market conditions at the time of issuance. However, the interest rate on all borrowings will be at the lowest of: i) E.ON's effective cost of capital; ii) Fidelity's effective cost of capital; and iii) the Company's effective cost of capital as determined by reference to the Company's cost of a direct borrowing from an independent third party for a comparable term loan (the "Best Rate Method"). Applicant further requests authority to enter into one or more interest rate hedging agreements ("Hedging Facility") designed to lock in the underlying interest rate on Proposed Debt in advance of closing on the loan.

Similar to authority requested and authorized in Case No. PUE-2003-00065, Applicant requests authority to issue the Proposed Debt in the form of secured loans to its affiliate, Fidelity Corporation ("Fidelity"). The Company and Fidelity are both wholly owned subsidiaries of E.ON AG ("E.ON"). Applicant affirms that it has received approval from the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") to issue the Proposed Debt on a secured basis to Fidelity. The Proposed Debt will be subordinated to all existing and future debt issued under the Company's first mortgage bond indenture. The Company further states that the Proposed Debt will be supported by a subordinated lien on Applicant's equipment, excluding collateral subject to a lien under the Company's Trust Indenture.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to issue up to $100,000,000 of fixed-rate long-term debt securities for the purposes as set forth in its application, through the period ending December 31, 2004.
- 2) Applicant shall submit a Preliminary Report of Action within ten (10) days after the issuance of any securities pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (1), to include the type of security, the issuance date, amount of the issue, the interest rate, the maturity date, a brief explanation of reasons for the choice of maturity and issuance date.
- 3) Within sixty (60) days after the end of each calendar quarter in which any of the Proposed Debt is issued pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (1), Applicant shall file with the Commission a detailed Report of Action with respect to all Proposed Debt issued during the calendar quarter to include:
 - (a) The issuance date, type of security, amount issued, interest rate, date of maturity, issuance expenses realized to date, net proceeds to Applicant, and an updated cost/benefit analysis that reflects the impact of any Hedging Facility for any Proposed Debt issued to refund other outstanding debt prior to maturity, if an update is applicable;
 - (b) A summary of the specific terms and conditions of each Hedging Facility and an explanation of how it functions to lock in the interest rate on an associated issuance of Proposed Debt;
 - (c) The cumulative principal amount of Proposed Debt issued under the authority granted herein and the amount remaining to be issued; and
 - (d) A balance sheet that reflects the capital structure following the issuance of the Proposed Debt.
- 4) Applicant shall file a final Report of Action on or before March 31, 2005, to include all information required in Ordering Paragraph (3) and a detailed account of all the actual expenses and fees paid to date for the Proposed Debt with an explanation of any variances from the estimated expenses contained in the Financing Summary attached to the application.
- 5) Approval of the application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 6) This matter shall be continued, subject to the continuing review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

JOINT APPLICATION OF BIG CANEY WATER CORPORATION
and
DICKENSON COUNTY PUBLIC SERVICE AUTHORITY

For authority to transfer assets

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On September 3, 2003, Big Caney Water Corporation ("Big Caney") and the Dickenson County Public Service Authority (the "PSA") (collectively, the "Applicants") filed a joint application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") requesting authority pursuant to Chapter 5 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code") to consummate a series of transactions through which the PSA would purchase all of Big Caney's operating assets and absorb Big Caney's employees into the operations of the PSA. More specifically, the entire private water system currently operated by Big Caney, including 18 tracts of real property and items of equipment and personal property, will be acquired by the PSA, and will be integrated immediately into the PSA's public water system.

Big Caney is a private, non-profit corporation which provides public water to a significant portion of Dickenson County, Virginia. Big Caney was incorporated on May 1, 1967, and provides water service to approximately 1,920 customers in McClure, Clinchco, Big Ridge, and Caney Ridge areas of Dickenson County, Virginia.

The Applicants represent that the terms of the asset sale were negotiated, through counsel, at arms' length. The proposed sales price of the assets is $94,000.00, as well as the assumption of certain liabilities associated with these assets totaling approximately $81,864.00. As of December 31, 2002, Big Caney's books reflected a net plant value of approximately $1,959,000.00, and a contribution in aid of construction balance of approximately $2,280,000.00, resulting in a negative net book value of the water system.

The Applicants provided copies of the press release that was issued in Dickenson County's local newspaper, the Dickenson Star/Cumberland Times, which provided notice of the proposed sale of Big Caney's assets to the PSA, as well as other notices to customers. The proposed transaction was approved by a vote of at least two-thirds of the shares of the common voting stock of Big Caney entitled to vote on June 28, 2003. No customers opposed the transfer.

The purpose of the proposed transactions is to ensure an adequate water service is available to Big Caney's current customers. The Applicants represent that Big Caney's financial problems are a direct result of operating and maintaining an ailing water distribution system and the inability as a private corporation to obtain grant funds. Big Caney's financial condition is such that, without significant funding, it will become insolvent and unable to continue. The Applicants further represent that the PSA is the only viable entity to continue to provide water to the current customers of Big Caney. The Applicants state that they do not anticipate any change in rates charged to current customers of Big Caney as a result of the transfer of assets.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the joint application and representations of the Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described transfer of assets will neither impair nor jeopardize the provision of adequate service to the public at just and reasonable rates and should, therefore, be approved.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to §§ 56-89 and 56-90 of the Code, the Applicants are hereby granted authority to consummate the transaction as described herein to allow the PSA to purchase Big Caney's assets.
- (2) Certificate No. W-4a authorizing Big Caney Water Corporation to provide water service to a certain area of Dickenson County, Virginia, is hereby cancelled upon transfer of the assets.
- (3) The authority granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications.
- (4) Big Caney Water Corporation shall file a report with the Commission within 30 days of the sale taking place, subject to administrative extension by the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting, providing the date of the sale and the actual sales price.
- (5) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

DECEMBER 16, 2003

NOTIFICATION OF
AMVEST OIL & GAS, INC.

To furnish natural gas service pursuant to § 56-265.4:5 of the Code of Virginia

ORDER DISMISSING PROCEEDING

On August 27, 2003, AMVEST Oil & Gas, Inc. ("AOG" or "Company") notified the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), pursuant to § 56-265.4:5 of the Code of Virginia of its plans to furnish natural gas services to Lowe's Home Centers, Inc. ("Lowe's") a North Carolina corporation that is building and intends to engage in the operation of its Lowe's Home Improvement Center located on Woodland Drive Road in Wise, Virginia.

On October 6, 2003, the Commission entered an Order docketing the proceeding and notifying all public utilities providing natural gas service in the Commonwealth of AOG's plans to furnish gas service to the car wash. The utilities were advised they could file an application with the Commission to provide natural gas service within the area identified in the Company's notification documents within sixty (60) days of the entry of the October 6, 2003, Order. The Commission found the Lowe's not to be located within a territory for which a certificate of public convenience and necessity had been granted; in addition, the facility was found not to be located within any area, territory, or jurisdiction served by a municipal corporation that provided gas distribution service as of January 1, 1992.

Sixty days now have elapsed since the entry of the October 6, 2003, Order, and no jurisdictional public utility has filed an application to provide natural gas service within the area identified in the captioned notification.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the foregoing, is of the opinion and finds that the Company has satisfied the requirements of §§ 56-265.1(b)(4) and 56-265.4:5 of the Code of Virginia, and that there being nothing further to be done herein, the matter should be dismissed.

Accordingly, IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED THAT this matter shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings, and the papers filed herein made a part of the Commission's file for ended causes.

SEPTEMBER 29, 2003

APPLICATION OF
APPALACHIAN POWER COMPANY

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On September 4, 2003, Appalachian Power Company ("the Company" or "Appalachian"), filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia for authority to issue long-term debt. The Company paid the requisite fee of $250.

In its application¹, the Company requests authority to issue: 1) secured or unsecured promissory notes ("Notes") in the aggregate principal amount equal to, on the date or dates of issuance, up to $1.2 billion, through December 31, 2005; 2) up to $17,500,000 in Russell County, Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds, Series I, on or before January 1, 2006; 3) up to $30,000,000 in Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series E, and up to $40,000,000 Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series F, on or before January 1, 2006.

The $1.2 billion in Notes may be issued in the form of either First Mortgage Bonds, Senior or Subordinated Debentures (including Junior Subordinated Debentures), Trust Preferred Securities (via one or more subsidiary financing entities) or other unsecured promissory notes. The Notes will mature in not less than nine months and not more than 50 years. The interest rate of the Notes may be fixed or variable. The initial interest rate on any variable rate note will not exceed 10% per annum. The Notes will be sold through either competitive bidding, through negotiation with underwriters or agents, or by direct placement with a commercial bank or other institutional investor.

The Company also requests authority to enter into Treasury Hedge Agreements ("Hedge Agreements") through December 31, 2005, to protect against future interest rate movements in conjunction with the issuance of the debt proposed in this application. Such Hedge Agreements may include, but are not limited to, treasury lock agreements, treasury put options or interest rate collar agreements. Each Hedge Agreement will correspond to one or more notes. The aggregate corresponding principal amounts of all Hedge Agreements will not exceed $1.2 billion. The term of any hedging agreement will not exceed 90 days.

The proceeds from the sale of the Notes, together with any other funds which may become available to Appalachian, will be used to redeem directly or indirectly long-term debt, to refund directly or indirectly preferred stock, to repay short-term debt at or prior to maturity, to reimburse the Company's treasury for expenditures incurred in connection with its construction program and for other corporate purposes.

The three series of pollution control bonds will be publicly issued. The proposed $17,500,000 in Russell County, Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds, Series I, will be used to refund Appalachian's outstanding Russell County, Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds, Series G. The proposed $30,000,000 in Putnam County, West Virginia, Series E, will be used to refund Appalachian's outstanding Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds, Series C. The proposed $40,000,000 in Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds, Series F, will be used to refund Appalachian's outstanding Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds Series D. The interest rate on the new pollution control bonds may be fixed or variable and will be established by competitive bidding or through negotiation with underwriters or agents. The initial interest rate on any variable rate pollution control bonds shall not exceed 8%. The maturity of the pollution control bonds may be up to 40 years, depending on market conditions at the time of issuance.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and the advice of its Staff is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest as conditioned below. Based on the amount of Notes proposed to be issued and the significant impact the issuance of the entire $1.2 billion in Notes in a short period of time may have on the Company's capital structure, we find that it is appropriate to place conditions on the Company's authority to issue the Notes.

As referenced in Staff's Action Brief filed in this case, the Company has regularly stated that its goal is to maintain a common equity ratio of 40%. Moreover, the Company committed to maintain a minimum 40% common equity ratio in a June, 20, 1997, letter to the Commission. It appears, however, that the Company has not consistently maintained the 40% common equity ratio during the last few years. The common equity ratio is an important measure used by the financial community to gauge the financial health of entities. Entities that become over-leveraged are considered more risky and therefore have more problems raising capital. Therefore, we direct the Company to seek further approval from the Commission to issue any of the proposed Notes if its equity ratio at that time is below 40%, or if issuing any Notes would cause its equity ratio to fall below 40%, except in circumstances where the Company is issuing Notes to retire outstanding debt.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

1) The Company is hereby authorized to issue debt securities in the following aggregate principal amounts: (a) up to $1.2 billion, through December 31, 2005; (b) up to $17,500,000 in Russell County, Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds, Series I, on or before January 1, 2006; (c) up to $30,000,000 in Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series E; and, (d) up to $40,000,000 Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series F, on or before January 1, 2006, all under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application, provided that the issuance of any notes for the purposes of refunding outstanding securities prior to maturity results in cost savings to the Company.

2) If issuing any of the Notes authorized in Ordering Paragraph (1), above, would cause the Company's equity ratio to fall below 40%, or if the Company's equity ratio at that time is below 40% prior to any issuance of Notes, the Company shall seek further authorization from the Commission to issue the Notes prior to such issuance, except in circumstances where the Company is issuing Notes to retire outstanding debt.

3) The Company is hereby authorized to enter into interest hedging agreements under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.

4) At the request of the Company, the proposed Interest Rate Management Agreements are deemed to be withdrawn and are no longer before the Commission.

5) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each issuance of notes or pollution control revenue bonds, the Company shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the types of securities issued, the date(s) issued, the amount of the issuance, the applicable interest rate, the maturity date, net proceeds to the Company, an itemized list of actual expenses to date associated with the securities issuances, and a balance sheet reflecting the actions taken. Such report shall also include a cost-benefit analysis for any securities issued for the purpose of refunding outstanding securities prior to maturity.

¹ The Company also proposed to enter into Interest Rate Management Agreements by using interest rate swaps, caps, collars, floors, options, etc. By letter filed September 26, 2003, the Company has withdrawn its request to enter into Interest Rate Management Agreements.

- 6) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 7) This matter shall remain open for the continued review, audit, and any further appropriate directive of the Commission.

OCTOBER 16, 2003

APPLICATION OF
APPALACHIAN POWER COMPANY

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING RECONSIDERATION

On September 4, 2003, Appalachian Power Company ("the Company" or "Appalachian"), filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia for authority to issue long-term debt.

On September 29, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Granting Authority that, among other things, authorizes the Company to issue debt securities in the following aggregate principal amounts: (1) up to $1.2 billion in promissory notes, through December 31, 2005; (2) up to $17,500,000 in Russell County, Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds, Series I, on or before January 1, 2006; (3) up to $30,000,000 in Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series E; and (4) up to $40,000,000 Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series F, on or before January 1, 2006, all under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application, provided that the issuance of any notes for the purposes of refunding outstanding securities prior to maturity results in cost savings to the Company.

In Ordering Paragraph (2) of the Order Granting Authority, we also required that if issuing any of the notes authorized above would cause the Company's equity ratio to fall below 40%, or if the Company's equity ratio at that time is below 40% prior to any such issuance, the Company shall seek further authorization from the Commission to issue the notes prior to such issuance, except in circumstances where the Company is issuing the notes to retire outstanding debt.

On October 14, 2003, Appalachian filed a Petition for Reconsideration ("Petition"). Appalachian requests that the Commission vacate Ordering Paragraph (2) of the Order Granting Authority. In the alternative, Appalachian requests that the Commission modify Ordering Paragraph (2) to read as follows:

If the Company determines to issue, prior to December 31, 2004, Notes authorized herein having a total principal amount of more than $500,000,000, the Company shall seek further prior authorization from the Commission to issue Notes above said principal amount.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the Petition, is of the opinion and finds as follows. We grant the Petition for the purpose of continuing our jurisdiction over this matter and considering such Petition.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) The Petition is hereby granted for the purpose of continuing our jurisdiction over this proceeding and considering such Petition.
- (2) This matter is continued pending further order of the Commission.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00407
DECEMBER 4, 2003

APPLICATION OF
APPALACHIAN POWER COMPANY

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

On September 4, 2003, Appalachian Power Company ("the Company" or "Appalachian"), filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia for authority to issue long-term debt.

On September 29, 2003, the Commission issued an Order Granting Authority that, among other things, authorizes the Company to issue debt securities in the following aggregate principal amounts: (1) up to $1.2 billion in promissory notes, through December 31, 2005; (2) up to $17,500,000 in Russell County, Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds, Series I, on or before January 1, 2006; (3) up to $30,000,000 in Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series E; and (4) up to $40,000,000 Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series F, on or before January 1, 2006, all under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application, provided that the issuance of any notes for the purposes of refunding outstanding securities prior to maturity results in cost savings to the Company.

In Ordering Paragraph (2) of the Order Granting Authority, we also required that if issuing any of the notes authorized above would cause the Company's equity ratio to fall below 40%, or if the Company's equity ratio at that time is below 40% prior to any such issuance, the Company shall seek further authorization from the Commission to issue the notes prior to such issuance, except in circumstances where the Company is issuing the notes to retire outstanding debt.

On October 14, 2003, Appalachian filed a Petition for Reconsideration ("Petition"). Appalachian requests that the Commission vacate Ordering Paragraph (2) of the Order Granting Authority. In the alternative, Appalachian requests that the Commission modify Ordering Paragraph (2) to read as follows:

If the Company determines to issue, prior to December 31, 2004, Notes authorized herein having a total principal amount of more than $500,000,000, the Company shall seek further prior authorization from the Commission to issue Notes above said principal amount.

On October 16, 2003, we issued an order granting the Petition for the purpose of continuing our jurisdiction over this matter and considering such Petition.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application, the Petition, and the advice of its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the issuance of $500,000,000 in promissory notes ("Notes") through December 31, 2004, by the Company will not be detrimental to the public interest provided that only $200,000,000 of the Notes represents new debt to the Company.

Based on the amount of Notes proposed to be issued and the significant impact the issuance of the entire $1.2 billion in Notes in a short period of time may have on the Company's capital structure, we find that it is appropriate to place conditions on the Company's authority to issue the Notes. Therefore, we will reduce the amount of debt authorized to be issued in this case from $1,287,500,000 to $587,500,000, of which, no more than a total principal value of $200,000,000 will be new issuances and not part of a refinancing of existing debt. Moreover, we will shorten the period of time in which the Notes may be issued from December 31, 2005, to December 31, 2004.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) The text of Ordering Paragraph (1) of the September 29, 2003 Order Granting Authority is hereby stricken and replaced with the following:

The Company is hereby authorized to issue debt securities in the following aggregate principal amounts: (a) up to $500,000,000 in promissory Notes, through December 31, 2004; (b) up to $17,500,000 in Russell County, Virginia Pollution Control Revenue Bonds, Series I, on or before January 1, 2006; (c) up to $30,000,000 in Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series E; and, (d) up to $40,000,000 Putnam County, West Virginia Pollution Control Bonds, Series F, on or before January 1, 2006, all under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application, provided that the issuance of any Notes for the purposes of refunding outstanding securities prior to maturity results in cost savings to the Company.

- 2) The text of Ordering Paragraph (2) of the September 29, 2003 Order Granting Authority is hereby stricken and replaced with the following:

If the Company determines to issue, prior to December 31, 2004, Notes authorized herein having a total principal amount of more than $500,000,000, of which, no more than a total principal value of $200,000,000 will be new issuances and not part of a refinancing of existing debt, the Company shall seek further authorization from the Commission to issue Notes above said principal amounts.

- 3) The text of Ordering Paragraph (3) of the September 29, 2003 Order Granting Authority is hereby stricken and replaced with the following:

The Company is hereby authorized to enter into interest hedging agreements in a notional principal amount not to exceed $500,000,000 and under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the original application.

- 4) This matter shall remain open for the continued review, audit, and any further appropriate directive of the Commission.

APPLICATION OF
ROANOKE GAS COMPANY

For an expedited increase in rates

ORDER FOR NOTICE AND HEARING

On September 16, 2003, Roanoke Gas Company ("Roanoke" or the "Company") filed a rate application, supporting testimony and exhibits with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") for an expedited increase in rates. Roanoke seeks to increase its annual revenues by $1,821,190, an increase of approximately 2.28%. The Company also proposes that it be allowed an incentive to continue and further develop its interstate pipeline capacity release program through its use of "asset management services". The Company receives credits for the assignment rights of the Company's interstate pipeline and storage capacity. Presently, the Company accounts for these credits as a reduction to gas expense resulting in the return of 100% of the capacity release credits to the Company's natural gas customers. The Company proposes that it be allowed to keep ten percent of the credits as a below-the-line revenue item.¹

Section B of the Commission's Rules Governing Utility Rate Increase Applications and Annual Informational Filings, 20 VAC 5-200-30, permits the rates of a public utility to take effect within 30 days after the application is filed, subject to refund, pending investigation, so long as the rate application complies with the rules and the utility has not experienced a substantial change in circumstances since its last rate case. In its application, the Company is not proposing any new accounting adjustments and is utilizing the same rate of return on equity as approved in the Company's last rate order, issued in Case No. PUE-2002-00373. On October 9, 2003, the Commission's Staff filed an interim report, in which it concluded that there is a reasonable probability that the proposed increase will be justified following a full investigation and hearing.

NOW UPON CONSIDERATION of the Company's application, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that this matter should be docketed, that a Hearing Examiner should be assigned to conduct all further proceedings on this matter on behalf of the Commission, and that a procedural schedule should be established as prescribed herein. Interested parties will also have the opportunity to comment on the Company's incentive rate proposal for its "asset management services".

¹ The Company received $1,647,886 in credits under the current Asset Management Agreement. Therefore, the incentive to the Company under its proposal would be $164,788 annually.

OCTOBER 27, 2003

APPLICATION OF
SOUTHWESTERN VIRGINIA GAS COMPANY

For approval of an increase in rates and to initiate a weather normalization adjustment

ORDER FOR NOTICE AND HEARING

On September 17, 2003, Southwestern Virginia Gas Company ("SWVG" or the "Company") filed a rate application, supporting testimony and exhibits with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") for an increase in rates. The Company requested an expedited increase in rates. SWVG seeks to increase its annual revenues by $260,152, an increase of approximately 2.5%. The primary reason that the Company is seeking the increase at this time is the loss of major industrial gas users that were responsible for approximately 26 percent of the Company's total throughput for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2003.¹ In addition, the Company also requests to include in its rates for the first time a Weather Normalization Adjustment ("WNA"). The Company requests that the increase in rates be allowed to go into effect for bills rendered on and after October 28, 2003.

On September 30, 2003, the Commission's Staff filed an Interim Report, in which it concluded that there is a reasonable probability that the proposed increase will be justified following a full investigation and hearing. In its Interim Report, the Staff also stated it had no objection to the Commission's consideration of SWVG's request to initiate a WNA in this proceeding.

In its application, SWVG also requests a waiver pursuant to 20 VAC 5-200-30 A 11 for reporting information for Southwestern Virginia Energy Industries, Ltd. (the "Parent"), and consolidated information of the Parent and the Company as required in Schedules 1, 2, 6, and 7. In support of its request, SWVG states that: (1) the Parent has historically never contributed to the raising of capital for the Company; (2) the Parent has historically never assisted the Company in raising capital either by guaranteeing debt or in any other manner securing the Company's obligations; (3) the Parent is a closely held corporation and not traded publicly; and (4) the Parent does not have financial statements prepared for public distribution.

The Company further requests a waiver of the requirement to prepare a jurisdictional cost of service study - Schedule 30. SWVG states that it serves very few governmental non-jurisdictional customers; in fact, the Company states that the only non-jurisdictional customers - governmental offices and schools - represent less than 1.1% of the Company's customers and 2.8% of its gas throughput. According to SWVG, these non-jurisdictional customers pay for service on the basis of Commission-approved rates; thus, the Company asserts that there is virtually no impact on the per customer cost of service and no economic justification to expend the money, time and effort to create a non-jurisdictional cost study.

NOW UPON CONSIDERATION of the Company's application, the Commission is of the opinion and finds that this matter should be docketed, that notice of the application should be given to the public, that a Hearing Examiner should be assigned to conduct all further proceedings on this matter on behalf of the Commission, and that a procedural schedule should be established as prescribed herein. Interested parties will also have the opportunity to comment on the Company's waiver requests.

We further find that the size and the circumstances surrounding the request represent significant changes to the Company. This fact, coupled with the Company's request to initiate a WNA leads us to conclude that the Company's request should be treated as a general rate application. We will, however, permit the rates to go into effect on October 28, 2003, on an interim basis and subject to refund.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) SWVG's application for approval of an increase in rates is accepted and will be considered as a general rate application and docketed and assigned Case No. PUE-2003-000426.

(2) SWVG may put its proposed rates into effect on an interim basis subject to refund on October 28, 2003.

(3) A public hearing shall be convened on February 24, 2004, at 10:00 a.m., in the Commission's Courtroom, Second Floor, Tyler Building, 1300 East Main Street, Richmond, Virginia, to receive comments from members of the public and to receive evidence on the captioned application. Any person not participating as a respondent as provided in ordering paragraph (11) below, may give oral testimony concerning the application as a public witness at the February 24, 2004, public hearing. Public witnesses desiring to make statements at the public hearing concerning this application need only appear in the Commission's second floor courtroom in the Tyler Building at the address set forth above prior to 9:45 a.m. on the day of the hearing and register a request to speak with the Commission's bailiff.

(4) As provided by § 12.1-31 of the Code of Virginia and Rule 5 VAC 5-20-120 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, a Hearing Examiner is appointed to conduct all further proceedings in this matter on behalf of the Commission and to issue a final report herein.

(5) Upon written request received by its counsel, the Company shall provide a copy of the application to the requesting party at no cost. If acceptable to the requesting individual, the Company may provide the application, with or without attachments, by electronic means. Written requests shall be made to Richard D. Gary, Esquire, Hunton & Williams, River Plaza, East Tower, 951 East Byrd Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219-4074. Interested persons may also review a copy of the application and the Commission's Order for Notice and Hearing in the Commission's Document Control Center, located on the First Floor of the Tyler Building, 1300 East Main Street, Monday through Friday.

(6) On or before November 25, 2003, SWVG shall complete publication of the following notice as display advertising (not classified) on one occasion in newspapers of general circulation throughout the Company's service territories within the Commonwealth of Virginia:

OCTOBER 28, 2003

SALTVILLE GAS STORAGE COMPANY L.L.C.
and
NUI ENERGY BROKERS, INC.

For approval of an agreement for firm gas storage service between affiliated entities pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia"

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On September 24, 2003, Saltville Gas Storage Company L.L.C. ("Saltville") and NUI Energy Brokers, Inc. ("NUIEB") (collectively the "Applicants"), filed an application with the State Corporation Commission (the "Commission") for approval of an agreement for firm gas storage service (the "Agreement") between affiliated entities pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 (the "Affiliates Act") of the Code of Virginia (the "Code").

Saltville, a Virginia limited liability company located in Abingdon, Virginia, has a certificate of public convenience and necessity ("CPCN") to construct, develop, own, operate and maintain an underground natural gas storage facility and attendant pipeline facilities in Saltville, Virginia. Saltville is jointly owned by Duke Energy Saltville Gas Storage, L.L.C., and by NUI Saltville Storage, Inc., which is a wholly owned subsidiary of NUI Corporation ("NUI"). On September 11, 2003, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ("FERC") issued an order revoking Saltville's Hinshaw exemption (104 FERC ¶ 61,273, Docket Nos. CPO2-430-001 and CPO2-430-002 (2003)), which will result in the transfer of jurisdiction over Saltville from the Commission to the FERC by the earlier of the FERC's acceptance of Saltville's blanket certificate application or March 1, 2004.

NUIEB is a multi-state company engaged in the business of wholesale natural gas trading and marketing and the management of natural gas storage, supplies, and transportation assets. NUIEB buys and sells gas in fifteen states, has about 110 active trading partners, and traded 700 billion cubic feet of gas in the year ended May 31, 2003. NUIEB currently has 33 employees operating out of Bedminster, New Jersey, and Houston, Texas. NUIEB is a wholly owned subsidiary of NUI.

NUI is an exempt public utility holding company domiciled in Bedminster, New Jersey, that owns four natural gas utilities serving more than 365,000 customers in New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, and Florida. NUI also owns subsidiaries that provide natural gas pipeline and storage service, wholesale energy portfolio management, retail energy sales, telecommunications services, and customer information and field operations systems services.

Since Saltville and NUIEB share the same senior parent company, NUI, the Applicants are considered affiliated interests under § 56-76 of the Code. As such, any contract or arrangement between the companies to provide or receive services must be approved by the Commission pursuant to the Affiliates Act.

Firm Agreement

The Applicants are seeking approval of an Agreement whereby Saltville provides firm natural gas storage service to NUIEB. Under the proposed Agreement, NUIEB will be able to inject up to 8,000 million British Thermal Units ("MMBtu") of natural gas per day, withdraw up to 20,000 MMBtu per day, and store a maximum of 200,000 MMBtu with Saltville. This is also known as 20-day injection/10-day withdrawal service ("20/10-day service"). Saltville will charge NUIEB a storage injection charge of $0.05 per MMBtu, a storage withdrawal charge of $0.05 per MMBtu, and a monthly storage charge of $3.45 per MMBtu times the 200,000 MMBtu Maximum Storage Quantity divided by 12. Any gas injected into or withdrawn from Saltville will be required to meet the minimum qualifications of East Tennessee Natural Gas Company's ("ETNG's") federal gas pipeline tariff.

The proposed firm storage rate of $3.45 is within Saltville's tariff range of $3.27 to $4.42 per MMBtu. The Applicants represent that the proposed rate is the result of arms' length bargaining between Saltville and NUIEB over a several month period. The Applicants further represent that the proposed rate is consistent with Saltville's pricing policy wherein customers like NUIEB that seek long-term, large volume storage service are more likely to receive lower quotes than short-term, small volume customers because Saltville incurs relatively lower administrative and operating costs from serving such customers. The Applicants represent that NUIEB chose Saltville over Virginia Gas Pipeline Company ("VGPC") and Virginia Gas Storage Company ("VGSC") because VGPC's and VGSC's storage facilities are fully contracted.

The Agreement was executed August 11, 2003, but does not take effect until the Applicant obtains regulatory approval. The initial term of the Agreement extends through September 30, 2023, at which time it automatically renews for successive one year terms unless cancelled by either party giving 180 days written notice prior to the end of a term. The Applicants represent that NUIEB seeks a 20-year term for the Agreement to match the term of the storage contract with the 20-year transportation contract that NUIEB has signed with ETNG.

The Agreement contains a clause that allows companies which succeed by purchase, merger, or consolidation of title to the properties of either NUIEB or Saltville to be entitled to the rights or subject to the obligations of its predecessor. The Applicants represent that the assignment clause in the Agreement is standard boilerplate language included in all of Saltville's storage service agreements and simply places NUIEB on an equal footing with other non-affiliated customers.

The Agreement also contains a "Conflicting Provisions" clause which states that should there be any conflicts between the provisions of the Agreement and Saltville's gas tariff, the provisions of the Agreement will govern.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and representations of Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the Agreement described above is in the public interest and should be approved subject to certain modifications we find necessary in this instance to protect the public interest.

We have several concerns with the proposed Agreement as presented. First, we do not believe a 20-year approval period is appropriate. It appears Saltville will be subject to the FERC's jurisdiction as a result of the revocation of Saltville's Hinshaw exemption. Also, Saltville has not been operating long enough for its cost of service to be determined. Finally, the proposed firm rate falls within a tariff range that is based on projections. Therefore, we find that the approval period for the Agreement should be two years from the date of the Order Granting Approval, which should allow Saltville sufficient time to generate cost of service data that can be used to confirm or revise the existing tariff rates.

Second, any changes in the ownership or control of utility operations that could trigger the Agreement's assignment clause will require further approval by the Commission pursuant to Chapter 5 of Title 56 of the Code (the "Utility Transfers Act"). Such ownership and control changes resulting in assignment of rights and obligations under the Agreement also represent changes in the terms and conditions of the Agreement, which require Affiliates Act approval.

Third, we find that the "Conflicting Provisions" clause in the Agreement to be illegal. In Commonwealth of Virginia, ex. rel. State Corporation Commission v. Roanoke Gas Company, Case No. PUE-1982-00015, 1982 S.C.C. Ann. Rep. 568, 571, we determined that approved tariffs are in the nature of, and have the effect of, law until changes occur via new tariffs approved by the Commission in the manner prescribed by statute. Further, in C&P Tel. Co. v. Bles, 218 Va. 1010, 1012 (1978), the Supreme Court of Virginia found that:

[a] public utility is prohibited by Code § 56-234 (Repl. Vol. 1974) from permitting any customer to receive preferential treatment as to cost of services.

Id., (Footnote omitted). In other words, a public service corporation has no authority by express contract or otherwise to change or vary the schedule of rates and charges approved by the State Corporation Commission. Id., 218 Va. at 1013.

Despite these concerns, the Commission does not wish to hinder Saltville from engaging in non-discriminatory, market-based transactions. NUIEB is a viable gas storage customer. The proposed firm rate is within a Commission-approved tariff range. Finally, Saltville can provide NUIEB with large volume firm service that its capacity-constrained sister affiliates, Virginia Gas Pipeline Company and Virginia Gas Storage Company, cannot.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code of Virginia, the firm gas storage agreement between Saltville Gas Storage Company L.L.C. and NUI Energy Brokers, Inc., is hereby approved under the terms and conditions and for the purposes described herein.
- 2) The approval granted herein shall commence on the date of this Order and shall continue for a period of two years, at which time, should Saltville remain under the Commission's jurisdiction and the Applicants wish to continue the Agreement, additional regulatory approval shall be required.
- 3) Commission approval shall be required for any changes in the terms and conditions of the Agreement approved by this Order, including any change in the successors or assigns under the subject Agreement.
- 4) Applicants shall file with the Commission, within thirty days from the date of this Order, which date may be extended administratively by the Director of Public Utility Accounting, a final executed copy of the Agreement which shall exclude the "Conflicting Provisions" clause.
- 5) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 6) The approval granted herein shall have no ratemaking implications for annual informational filings or future rate proceedings.
- 7) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 8) Saltville shall include the Agreement approved herein in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Commission's Director of Public Utility Accounting on or before May 1 of each year, which deadline may be extended administratively by the Director of Public Utility Accounting.
- 9) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

DECEMBER 23, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.
ATMOS ENERGY CORPORATION,
Defendant

ORDER OF SETTLEMENT

The Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act of 1968, as amended by the Accountable Pipeline Safety and Partnership Act of 1996, and as modified by the Pipeline Safety Improvement Act of 2002, 49 U.S.C. § 60101 et seq. ("Act"), requires the Secretary of Transportation ("Secretary") to establish minimum federal safety standards for the transportation of gas and pipeline facilities. The Secretary is further authorized to delegate to an appropriate state agency the authority to prescribe safety standards and enforce compliance with such standards over gas pipeline facilities used for intrastate transportation.

The Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") has been designated as the appropriate state agency for the Commonwealth of Virginia to prescribe and enforce compliance with standards for gas pipeline facilities used for intrastate transportation. In Case No. PUE-1989-00052, the Commission adopted Parts 191, 192, 193, and 199 of Title 49 of the Code of Federal Regulations to serve as minimum gas pipeline safety standards ("Safety Standards") in Virginia. The Commission is authorized to enforce the Safety Standards under § 56-5.1 of the Code of Virginia, which allows the Commission to impose the fines and penalties authorized therein.

The Commission's Division of Utility and Railroad Safety ("Division"), charged with the investigation of each jurisdictional gas company's compliance with the Safety Standards, has conducted various inspections of records, construction, operation, and maintenance activities involving Atmos Energy Corporation ("Atmos" or "Company"), the Defendant, and alleges that:

- (1) Atmos is a public service corporation as that term is defined in § 56-1 of the Code of Virginia and, specifically, a natural gas company within the meaning of § 56-5.1 of the Code of Virginia; and
- (2) The Company violated the Commission's Safety Standards by the following conduct:
 - a) 49 C.F.R. § 192.225 (a) - Failing to follow five (5) specific requirements of the Company's procedures when performing a weld;
 - b) 49 C.F.R. § 192.605 (a) - Failing to follow the Company's Construction Manual, Section 6.2.5 A 3 by not marking the squeeze-off location on the pipe;
 - c) 49 C.F.R. § 192.605 (b)(9) - Failing to have written procedures to take adequate precautions such as grounding of metallic tools, to minimize the danger of accidental ignition of gas;
 - d) 49 C.F.R. § 192.605 (b)(8) - Failing to have written procedures to periodically review the work done by Company personnel to determine the effectiveness and adequacy of the procedures used in normal operation and maintenance and modifying the procedures when deficiencies are found;
 - e) 49 C.F.R. § 192.751 - Failing to take steps to minimize the danger of accidental ignition; and,
 - f) 49 C.F.R. § 192.751 (a) - Failing to provide a fire extinguisher when a hazardous amount of gas could be introduced into open air.

The Company neither admits nor denies these allegations but admits the Commission's jurisdiction and authority to enter this Order.

Subsequent to the discovery of the probable violations listed above, Atmos took prompt actions to correct those probable violations that could be corrected. In addition to these prompt actions, and as an offer to settle all matters arising from the allegations made against it, Atmos represents and undertakes that:

- (1) The Company shall pay a fine to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $18,250, of which $6,750 shall be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order. The remaining $11,500 is due as outlined in paragraph (4), below, and may be suspended in whole, or in part, by the Commission, provided the Company tenders the requisite certification set out in Paragraph (3) that it has completed the remedial action set forth below in paragraph (2) on or before the scheduled date for completion of said remedial action. At the completion of the remedial action described below, and upon receipt of the requisite affidavit, the Commission may vacate any outstanding amounts. The initial payment, and any subsequent payments, will be made by check, payable to the Treasurer of Virginia, and directed to the attention of the Director of the Division of Utility and Railroad Safety, Post Office Box 1197, Richmond, VA 23218-1197.
- (2) The Company shall revise its operating and maintenance procedures, before January 15, 2004, to require that a fire extinguisher be readily available during tie-ins, squeeze-offs, tapping or purging operations, or if a hazardous amount of gas may be introduced into the area.
- (3) On or before February 2, 2004, Atmos shall tender to the Clerk of the Commission, with a copy to the Division of Utility and Railroad Safety, an affidavit certifying that the Company has completed the remedial actions set forth in Paragraph (2) above.
- (4) Upon timely receipt of said affidavit, the Commission may suspend up to $1 1,500 of the fine amount specified in paragraph (1) above. Should Atmos fail to tender said affidavit or take the action required by paragraph (2) by February 2, 2004, a payment of $11,500 shall become due. The Company shall immediately notify the Division of the reasons for its failure to accomplish the action required by paragraphs (2) and (3) on page 4, and upon investigation, if the Division determines that the reason for said failure justifies a payment lower than $11,500, it may recommend to the Commission a reduction in the amount due. The Commission shall determine the amount due. Upon the Commission's determination of the amount due, the Company shall immediately tender to the Commission that amount.

(5) Any fines paid in accordance with this Order shall not be recovered in the Company's rates as part of its cost of service. Any such fines and costs shall be booked in Uniform System of Account No. 426.3. The Company shall verify its booking by filing a copy of the trial balance showing this entry with the Commission's Division of Public Utility Accounting.

The Commission being fully advised in the premises and finding sufficient basis herein for the entry of this Order, and in reliance on the Defendant's representations and undertakings set forth above, is of the opinion and finds that Atmos has made a good faith effort to cooperate with the Staff during the investigation of this matter; and that the offer of compromise and settlement should be accepted.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Pursuant to the authority granted the Commission by § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, the offer of compromise and settlement made by Atmos be, and it hereby is, accepted.

(2) Pursuant to § 56-5.1 of the Code of Virginia, Atmos he, and it hereby is, fined in the amount of $18,250.

(3) The sum of $6,750 tendered contemporaneously with the entry of this Order is accepted. The remaining $11,500 is due as outlined herein and may be suspended and subsequently vacated, in whole or in part, provided the Company timely undertakes the action required in Paragraph (2) found on page 4 of this Order, and files the timely certification of the remedial action as outlined herein.

(4) The Commission shall retain jurisdiction over this matter for all purposes, and this case shall be continued, pending further orders of the Commission.

(3) On or before February 2, 2004, RGC shall tender to the Clerk of the Commission, with a copy to the Division of Utility and Railroad Safety, an affidavit executed by the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of RGC, certifying that the Company has completed the remedial actions set forth in Paragraph (2) above.

The Commission shall determine the amount due. Upon the Commission's determination of the amount due, the Company shall immediately tender to the Commission that amount.

(5) Any fines paid in accordance with this Order shall not be recovered in the Company's rates as part of RGC's cost of service. APPLICATION OF
SOUTHSIDE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to incur long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On November 4, 2003, Southside Electric Cooperative ("Applicant" or the "Cooperative"), filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia for authority to incur long-term debt with the Rural Utilities Service ("RUS"). Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

In its application, the Cooperative requests authority to borrow $10,500,000 in the form of a RUS Treasury Rate Loan. The proceeds will be used to fund a portion of Applicant's two-year construction work plan. The plan specifically includes capital expenditures for distribution facilities.

The loan will have a 35-year maturity. Applicant represents that the interest rate on the loan is established daily by the United States Treasury. Applicant intends to select the interest rate term for each advance of funds. Such interest terms can range from one year to 35 years.

DECEMBER 19, 2003

JOINT APPLICATION OF
and
DOMINION TELECOM, INC.

For approval of extension of existing affiliate agreement

ORDER GRANTING APPROVAL

On November 5, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion Virginia Power") and Dominion Telecom, Inc. ("Dominion Telecom") (collectively the "Applicants"), filed a joint application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting approval, pursuant to Chapter 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia ("Code"), of an extension of the currently effective Pole Attachment Agreement ("Agreement") for the period during which Dominion Resources, Inc. ("Dominion"), continues to have an interest in, and Dominion Virginia Power continues to be an affiliate of, Dominion Telecom, or one year, whichever is earlier.

Dominion Virginia Power is a Virginia public service corporation engaged in the provision of wholesale and retail electric service in Virginia and North Carolina. Dominion Virginia Power is a wholly owned subsidiary of Dominion, a registered public utility holding company pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (the "1935 Act").

Dominion Telecom is a Virginia public service company certificated to provide intrastate interexchange and local exchange telecommunications services throughout Virginia. Dominion Telecom currently provides intrastate interexchange telecommunications services to wholesale customers located from Northern Virginia to Norfolk. It also provides interstate interexchange telecommunications services in other jurisdictions. Dominion Telecom is an "exempt telecommunications company" for purposes of the 1935 Act. Dominion Telecom is a direct, wholly owned subsidiary of Dominion Fibers Ventures, LLC, and an indirect partially owned subsidiary of Dominion.¹ As a subsidiary of Dominion, Dominion Telecom is an affiliate of Dominion Virginia Power.

By Order dated January 31, 2001, in Case No. PUA-2000-00096, the Commission approved the Agreement between Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Telecom through December 31, 2003. The Agreement governs Dominion Telecom's use of Dominion Virginia Power's distribution poles for the attachment of cables, strand, and associated appliances to support Dominion Telecom's telecommunications business. The Order required that should Dominion Virginia Power "wish to continue operating under the Agreement beyond December 31, 2003, Commission approval shall be required."

Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Telecom request approval of an extension of the Agreement for the period during which Dominion continues to have an interest in, and Dominion Virginia Power continues to be an affiliate of, Dominion Telecom. Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Telecom request approval for a limited period because Dominion has announced its intention to sell Dominion Telecom. Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Telecom, therefore, request approval of an extension of the Agreement for a period of one year or the date upon which Dominion no longer has an ownership interest in Dominion Telecom, whichever occurs first. Dominion Telecom currently attaches to 109 of Dominion Virginia Power's poles.

Under the extension of the Agreement, Dominion Telecom intends to continue to pay Dominion Virginia Power the higher of fully distributed costs or market rates for pole attachments. As stated in the joint application for extension of the existing Agreement, Dominion Telecom would pay Dominion Virginia Power a fee of $40 per pole for the third year, 2003, of the Agreement. Under the extension, Dominion Telecom will continue to pay Dominion Virginia Power the $40 fee per pole. Dominion Virginia Power and Dominion Telecom state that, since the approval of the existing Agreement, Dominion Virginia Power has reduced the pole attachment rates for 90% of the unaffiliated telecommunications attachers on its poles. The reduced rates are calculated pursuant to § 224(e)(1) of the Communications Act of 1934. Dominion Virginia Power states that it plans to complete the transitions to the telecommunications attachment formula for all unaffiliated telecommunications attachers over the next several months.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the joint application and representations of the Applicants and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that the above-described extension of the existing Agreement is in the public interest. We will, therefore, approve the requested extension of the Agreement subject to the conditions detailed herein.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Pursuant to § 56-77 of the Code, the Applicants are hereby granted approval of the requested extension of the Pole Attachment Agreement through December 31, 2004, or the date upon which Dominion no longer has an ownership interest in Dominion Telecom, whichever occurs first. Approval shall be subject to the pricing provision detailed below.

(2) Prices charged to Dominion Telecom must be at the higher of fully distributed cost or the market rate for such pole attachments.

(3) Should Dominion Virginia Power wish to continue operating under the Agreement beyond December 31, 2004, Commission approval shall be required for such continuation.

(4) Dominion Virginia Power shall request approval of any joint use and sharing arrangements with its affiliate that involve Dominion Virginia Power's rights-of-way, conduits, and ducts that have not been specifically approved by the Commission.

(5) The approval granted herein shall not be deemed to include any approvals other than the extension of the currently effective Pole Attachment Agreement described herein.

(6) The approval granted herein, including approval of the proposed pole attachment rates, does not in any way indicate that the rate charged to Dominion Telecom must be charged to non-affiliates, who are free to negotiate a different rate.

(7) Dominion Virginia Power, if requested by non-affiliates, shall offer and provide service to its poles on terms and conditions that are at least as favorable as those offered or provided to Dominion Telecom. Dominion Virginia Power shall not discriminate in favor of Dominion Telecom in the application for such services or the implementation of any agreements.

(8) Dominion Virginia Power shall, for each application for pole attachment permits submitted by telecommunications companies in Virginia, including affiliates, continue to maintain in its records the following information to be provided to Staff upon request: (a) the date Dominion Virginia Power received the application; (b) the current status of the application; (c) the total amount and description of all application and processing fees; (d) the total amount and description of all engineering, surveying, and related charges to include calculations and number of attachments involved; (e) the total amount and description of all make-ready charges, the calculation of such charges, and the number of attachments involved; (f) the total amount and description of any other charges or costs to include calculations and number of attachments involved; (g) the date when Dominion Virginia Power accepted or denied the application or, if applicable, requested a new re-routed application; and (h) any other information requested by Staff regarding such applications.

(9) The approval granted herein shall have no rate making implications.

(10) The approval granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from exercising the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia.

(11) The Commission reserves the authority to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the approval granted herein whether or not the Commission regulates such affiliate.

(12) Dominion Virginia Power shall include the transactions covered by the extension of the Pole Attachment Agreement in its Annual Report of Affiliate Transactions submitted to the Director of Public Utility Accounting of the Commission.

(13) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it hereby is dismissed.

 - (c) Failing on certain occasions to report to the notification center that lines had been marked or they were not in conflict with the proposed excavation, in violation of §§ 56-265.19 A and D of the Code of Virginia.

As evidenced in the attached Admission and Consent document (Attachment B), the Company neither admits nor denies these allegations but admits the Commission's jurisdiction and authority to enter this Order.

As an offer to settle all matters before the Commission arising from the Division's allegations made herein, which includes all probable violations presented to the Underground Utility Damage Prevention Advisory Committee on November 4, 2003, and set out in Attachment A hereto, the Company represents and undertakes that it will pay a civil penalty to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $7,750 to be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order. This payment will be made by cashier's check or money order, payable to the Treasurer of Virginia and directed to the attention of the Director of the Division of Utility and Railroad Safety.

The Commission, being advised by the Staff and finding sufficient basis herein for the entry of this Order, hereby accepts this settlement.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Pursuant to the authority granted the Commission by § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, the offer of settlement made by the Company be, and it hereby is, accepted.
- (2) The sum of $7,750 tendered contemporaneously with the entry of this Order is accepted.
- (3) This case is dismissed, and the papers herein shall be placed in the file for ended causes.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00533
DECEMBER 23, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.
WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY,
Defendant

ORDER OF SETTLEMENT

The Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act of 1968, as amended by the Accountable Pipeline Safety and Partnership Act of 1996, and as modified by the Pipeline Safety Improvement Act of 2002, 49 U.S.C. § 60101 et seq. ("Act"), requires the Secretary of Transportation ("Secretary") to establish minimum federal safety standards for the transportation of gas and pipeline facilities. The Secretary is further authorized to delegate to an appropriate state agency the authority to prescribe safety standards and enforce compliance with such standards over gas pipeline facilities used for intrastate transportation.

The Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") has been designated as the appropriate state agency for the Commonwealth of Virginia to prescribe and enforce compliance with standards for gas pipeline facilities used for intrastate transportation. In Case No. PUE-1989-00052, the Commission adopted Parts 191, 192, 193, and 199 of Title 49 of the Code of Federal Regulations to serve as minimum gas pipeline safety standards ("Safety Standards") in Virginia. The Commission is authorized to enforce the Safety Standards under § 56-5.1 of the Code of Virginia, which allows the Commission to impose the fines and penalties authorized therein.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

The Commission's Division of Utility and Railroad Safety ("Division"), charged with the investigation of each jurisdictional gas company's compliance with Safety Standards, has conducted various inspections of records, construction, operation, and maintenance activities involving the Washington Gas Light Company ("WG" or "Company"), the Defendant, and alleges that:

(1) WG is a public service corporation as that term is defined in § 56-1 of the Code of Virginia and, specifically a natural gas company within the meaning of § 56-5.1 of the Code of Virginia; and

(2) The Company violated the Commission's Safety Standard 49 C.F.R. § 192.317 (a) by failing to take all practicable steps to protect each transmission line or main from unstable soil or other hazards that may cause the pipeline to move or to sustain abnormal loads.

The Company neither admits nor denies these allegations but admits the Commission's jurisdiction and authority to enter this Order.

As an offer to settle all matters arising from the allegations made against it, WG represents and undertakes that:

(1) The Company shall pay a fine to the Commonwealth of Virginia in the amount of $7,500.00, which shall be paid contemporaneously with the entry of this Order. The payment will be made by check, payable to the Treasurer of Virginia, and directed to the attention of the Director of the Division of Utility and Railroad Safety, Post Office Box 1197, Richmond, Virginia, 23218-1197.

(2) Any fines paid in accordance with this Order shall not be recovered in the Company's rates as part of WG's cost of service. Any such fines and costs shall be booked in Uniform System of Account No. 426.3. The Company shall verify its booking by filing a copy of the trial balance showing this entry with the Commission's Division of Public Utility Accounting.

The Commission being fully advised in the premises and finding sufficient basis herein for the entry of this Order, and in reliance on the Defendant's representations and undertakings set forth above, is of the opinion and finds that WG has made a good faith effort to cooperate with the Staff during the investigation of this matter; and that, the offer of compromise and settlement should be accepted.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) Pursuant to the authority granted the Commission by § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, the offer of compromise and settlement made by WG be, and it hereby is, accepted.

(2) Pursuant to § 56-5.1 of the Code of Virginia, WG be, and it hereby is, fined in the amount of $7,500.00.

(3) The sum of $7,500.00 tendered contemporaneously with the entry of this Order is accepted.

(4) This case is hereby dismissed, and the papers herein shall be placed in the Commission's file for ended causes.

DECEMBER 2, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

For authority to issue inter-company securities

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On November 14, 2003, Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Virginia Power" or "the Company") filed an application under Chapters 3 and 4 with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting authority to issue and sell up to $250 million inter-company securities to its corporate parent, Dominion Resources, Inc. ("DRI").

In its application Virginia Power states that with such authority it could potentially access the proceeds that DRI receives from recent or concurrent securities sold in the public finance markets.¹ In such an event, the cost to Virginia Power would match the effective cost to DRI of the related public offering. The Company further states that by utilizing DRI's financing capacity and receptivity in the financial markets to the limited extent requested herein may provide the Company with interest savings it would not otherwise be able to capture.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest provided that the terms and conditions and market transactions described in the Confidential Supplement to the application are strictly complied with by both Virginia Power and DRI.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

1) Virginia Power is authorized to issue to DRI up to $250 million in inter-company securities, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes as detailed in its application and Confidential Supplement, through December 31, 2005.

¹ In a confidential supplement submitted to our Staff ("Confidential Supplement") simultaneously with its application, the Company has indicated that DRI has a specific type of transaction it is contemplating to fund the inter-company securities. Details concerning that type of transaction are contained in the Confidential Supplement and will be held under seal by the Commission until such time as the transactions described therein are complete.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

- 2) Virginia Power shall submit a preliminary report of action within ten days after the issuance of any inter company securities pursuant to this Order to include the date of issuance, the amount of issuance, the applicable interest rate, the maturity date, and net proceeds to Applicant and other relevant details concerning the issuance by DRI that funded the inter-company securities.
- 3) Within 60 days of the end of the calendar quarter in which securities are issued, Applicant shall file a more detailed report to include the information required in Ordering Paragraph (2), as well as an itemized list of actual expenses to date associated with the securities issuances, both on a Virginia Power and DRI level, a comparison of the effective rate of Securities issued and any refunded securities, use of proceeds, and a balance sheet reflecting the actions taken.
- 4) On or before February 28, 2006, Applicant shall file a final report of action to include all information required in Ordering Paragraph (3) which incorporates then-current actual expenses and fees paid for the proposed securities issuances.
- 5) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 6) The authority granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from applying the provisions of § 56-78 and § 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 7) The Commission reserves the right, pursuant to § 56-79 of the Code of Virginia, to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein, whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 8) This matter shall remain under the continued review, audit and appropriate directive of the Commission.

DECEMBER 24, 2003

APPLICATION OF
ATMOS ENERGY CORPORATION

For authority to incur short-term indebtedness pursuant to Virginia Code §§ 56-60 and 56-65.1 and for approval of an affiliate arrangement pursuant to Virginia Code § 56-76 et seq.

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On December 4, 2003, Atmos Energy Corporation ("Atmos" or "Applicant") completed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapters 3 and 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (Va. Code §§ 56-55 and 56-76 et seq.) requesting authority to incur short-term indebtedness up to a maximum of $400,000,000 at any time between January 1, 2004, and December 31, 2004. The amount of short-term debt requested in the application is in excess of twelve percent (12%) of total capitalization as defined in § 56-65.1 of the Code of Virginia. Atmos also requests authority to lend short-term funds to affiliates in an amount not to exceed $100,000,000 at any one time. Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

Atmos proposes to borrow short-term indebtedness by making drawdowns under existing credit facilities or through the use of its commercial paper program. Under the credit facilities, the interest rate may be negotiated at the time of drawdown or based on the then prevailing London InterBank Offered Rate ("LIBOR). Under the commercial paper program, the interest rate is set daily based on market conditions. Applicant states that the funds will be used to maintain its construction budget, to acquire additional assets, to redeem maturing long-term debt securities, to provide working capital, to provide for maximum peak day gas purchases, and for other general corporate purposes. Atmos has in place three separate credit facilities totaling $393,000,000 of available credit.

Atmos also proposes to continue to lend to its wholly owned subsidiary, Atmos Energy Holdings, Inc. ("AEH"), through a $100,000,000 short-term credit facility ("Affiliate Facility") for fiscal year 2004. The interest rate on the proposed affiliate transactions will be based on LIBOR plus 275 basis points, 25 basis points higher than the LIBOR plus 250 basis points that Atmos Energy Marketing, LLC ("AEM"), another wholly owned subsidiary of Atmos, would pay to draw down funds from its uncommitted, secured revolving credit facility ("AEM Facility").

According to the application, AEH is a non-regulated natural gas marketing and trading subsidiary of Atmos. The requested loan to AEM is primarily to support the natural gas supply procurement efforts of AEM. AEM's gas procurement is substantially to meet the service requirements of Atmos' regulated sales to end use customers. Applicant also states that AEH is the guarantor of all amounts outstanding under the AEM Facility. The five financial institutions providing the AEM Facility have no recourse to Atmos' regulated utility assets. Applicant also suggests that the $100,000,000 Affiliate Facility will entail relatively modest risk to Atmos as to any impact on financial standing or as to any impact on Virginia operations.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest as conditioned below. Since Atmos has only $393,000,000 in executed credit facilities, it is appropriate to grant approval for the lower amount of existing credit facilities of $393,000,000.

Moreover, according to our Staff's Action Brief filed in this case, as of September 30, 2003, Atmos had an equity investment in AEH of $133,586,000. If Atmos were to lend AEH $100,000,000, its investment in the unregulated subsidiaries would increase to $233,583,000. This amount represents almost 13% of Atmos' consolidated capitalization. The Commission notes that the non-regulated affiliates of Atmos have less certain revenues and more business risk than its rate-regulated operations. Such risks increase the likelihood of bankruptcy by those affiliates. Indeed, the poor financial health of the energy marketing and trading industry is well documented and the industry continues to struggle since Enron filed for bankruptcy in December of 2001. Many corporations that acquired or expanded into energy marketing and trading operations have cut back significantly or divested their businesses because of poor profitability and loss of access to credit. Clearly, Atmos' investment in AEH comes with a higher risk than rate-regulated utility investment, and if AEH were to falter or fail, Atmos' financial health could also suffer. For example, if AEH were to fail, a significant loss would result in a lower common equity ratio, which could result in a loss of investor confidence in Atmos and likely higher capital costs. Based on the potential for these increased costs, we find that it is appropriate to place conditions on the Affiliated Facility portion of the application. In imposing these conditions, we note that due to Atmos' organizational structure, Atmos, the entity seeking authority to lend to its unregulated subsidiaries, is a gas distribution company that provides regulated service in a certificated service area in Virginia. This organizational structure affords no effective fence around the utility operations which results in the Virginia ratepayers being exposed to the risks of non-regulated operations. In light of Atmos' increasing investment in its unregulated operations, we will grant this year's request for approval of the Affiliate Facility, however, we strongly urge Atmos to establish an alternative $100,000,000 credit facility for the non-regulated operations that are non recourse to its utility operations.

Our Staff also notes in its Action Brief that the Affiliate Facility is subordinate to the AEM Facility. Further, Staff has indicated that AEM intends to increase the amount available under the AEM Facility. As currently proposed, the Affiliate Facility would remain subordinate to any expansion of the AEM Facility. Staff suggested that the public interest is not served by this continuing subordination. We agree with our Staff and in order to limit the additional risk exposure from non-regulated operations, we will require that the Affiliate Facility be superior to any increase in the AEM Facility obtained after the date of this Order.

Regarding the pricing of the loans from Atmos to AEH, while Atmos proposes to charge its subsidiary an additional 25 basis points above the AEM Facility, Staff questions whether this rate reflects the actual market cost of a $100,000,000 credit facility subordinated to the $210,000,000 credit facility. It has been Commission policy that when a utility provides services to an affiliate, it should be priced at the higher of cost or market. Therefore, we direct Atmos to provide evidence to our Staff regarding the market cost of a $100,000,000 credit facility, subordinated to the $210,000,000 facility.

Lastly, our Staff points out in the Action Brief that interest paid from AEH to Atmos is currently booked "below the line" for ratemaking purposes, meaning that even though Atmos and its ratepayers are bearing the risks (and potentially higher debt costs) associated with lending to AEH, base rates do not reflect the higher interest income being received from AEH. Rather it appears that only shareholders stand to benefit from the interest income. We direct our Staff to examine the benefits and risks to both ratepayers and shareholders resulting from the loans to the non-regulated subsidiaries of Atmos and provide recommendations to the Commission as to how best to balance these risks and benefits between ratepayers and shareholders¹ in Applicant's next rate case.

ACCORDINGLY, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to incur short-term indebtedness in excess of twelve percent (12%) of total capitalization, provided that such debt does not exceed $393,000,000 at any one time between January 1, 2004, and December 31, 2004. Such authority is granted subject to the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Applicant is hereby authorized to lend to AEH short-term funds up to an aggregate amount of $100,000,000 between January 1, 2004, and December 31, 2004, for the purposes set forth in the application, provided the Affiliate Facility will be superior to any increase in the AEM Facility obtained after the date of this Order.
- 3) Applicant shall file with the Commission quarterly reports of action no later than May 15, 2004, August 15, 2004, and November 15, 2004, reporting on its short-term debt activities during the previous calendar quarter. Such reports shall include a monthly schedule of daily short-term borrowings of the utilities separate from AEH borrowings, the average monthly balance, the average monthly interest rate, and the monthly maximum amount of short-term debt outstanding.
- 4) Applicant shall submit to the Commission a final report of action on or before February 28, 2005, providing the information required in ordering paragraph (3) above for the fourth calendar quarter of 2004. The final report of action shall also include a summary schedule of fees paid by Atmos in 2004 for each line of credit, credit facility, or bank facility or loan, with dates of origination and maturity for each facility in effect during 2004.
- 5) Applicant shall provide to the Divisions of Economics and Finance and Public Utility Accounting the quarterly financial reports for AEH that are provided to its lenders at the same time such reports are provided to the lenders.
- 6) Commission approval shall be required for any subsequent changes in the terms and conditions of the Affiliate Facility.
- 7) The authority granted herein shall not preclude the Commission from applying to Applicant the provisions of §§ 56-78 and 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.
- 8) The Commission reserves the right to examine the books and records of any affiliate of Applicant in connection with the authority granted herein, whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.
- 9) Approval of this application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 10) Should Applicant wish to obtain authority beyond calendar year 2004, it shall file an application requesting such authority no later than November 1, 2004. Such application shall also include a summary of its actions taken to separate non-regulated financing from dependence on Atmos' utility operations and a detailed description of the progress made during 2004 to obtain fully independent financing for AEH and its subsidiaries.
- 11) This matter shall remain under the continued review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

¹ If the Staff decides to recognize that there should be compensation for any risks to Atmos' ratepayers, such ratemaking recommendations may include, but are not limited to, imputing the interest income on the $100,000,000 Affiliate Facility above the line, the use of a hypothetical cost of debt, the use of a hypothetical capital structure, and the imputation of a credit support payment to ratepayers.

DECEMBER 16, 2003

PRINCE GEORGE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to incur long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On December 3, 2003, Prince George Electric Cooperative ("Applicant" or the "Cooperative"), filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia for authority to incur long-term debt with the Rural Utilities Service ("RUS"). Applicant paid the requisite fee of $25.

In its application, the Cooperative requests authority to borrow $11,000,000 in the form of a RUS Treasury Rate Loan. The proceeds will be used to fund construction of distribution facilities. The plan specifically includes construction expenditures for a new 115 KV substation and other distribution construction projects.

The loan will have a 35-year maturity. Applicant represents that the interest rate on the loan is established daily by the United States Treasury. Applicant intends to select the interest rate term for each advance of funds. Such interest terms can range from one year to 35 years.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and the advice of its Staff is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $11,000,000 from the RUS, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each advance of funds from RUS, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected and the interest rate term.
- 3) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it is hereby dismissed.

DECEMBER 23, 2003

APPLICATION OF
VIRGINIA NATURAL GAS, INC.,
AGL RESOURCES INC.,
and
AGL SERVICES COMPANY

For authority to issue short-term debt, long-term debt, and common stock to an affiliate

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On December 8, 2003, Virginia Natural Gas, Inc. ("VNG), AGL Resources Inc., ("AGLR), and AGL Services Company ("AGL Services") (collectively, "Applicants"), filed an application under Chapters 3 and 4 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority for VNG to participate in an AGLR Money Pool, to issue and sell common stock, and to issue long-term debt to an affiliate. The amount of short-term debt proposed in the application exceeds twelve percent of capitalization as defined in § 56-65.1 of the Code of Virginia. Applicants paid the requisite fee of $250.

On December 22, 2003, Applicants amended their application to indicate that AGLR will have a separate Money Pool for regulated utility subsidiaries ("Utility Money Pool") and another for non-utility subsidiaries ("Non-utility Money Pool"). The separate Utility and Non-utility Money Pools constitute a change to the terms and conditions of the combined Money Pool Agreement that was initially approved by the Commission's Order Granting Authority in Case No. PUF-2000-00025. As found in documents provided by Applicants, some of the terms and conditions of the Utility Money Pool agreement are similar, if not the same, as previously authorized.

VNG, AGLR, and AGL Services request authorization for VNG to: 1) issue short-term debt up to an aggregate balance of $100,000,000 through participation in the AGLR Utility Money Pool administered by AGL Services; 2) issue long-term debt to AGLR in an amount not to exceed $250,000,000; and 3) issue and sell common stock to AGLR in an amount not to exceed $300,000,000, all through December 31, 2004.

Applicants note that the requested level of authority to issue short-term debt, long-term debt, and common stock in this case is identical to the limits previously authorized in Case Nos. PUF-2001-00019 and PUE-2002-00515.

Terms of significance to these various issuances follow. With respect to the Utility Money Pool, loans to participants will be made in the form of open account advances for periods of less than 12 months. Borrowings will be payable on demand together with all interest accrued thereon. Interest on borrowings will accrue daily at a rate that will be determined based on the source of funds available in the Utility Money Pool.

If Utility Money Pool borrowings in a given month solely consist of surplus funds from participants ("Internal Funds"), the daily interest rate will be equal to the high-grade unsecured 30 day commercial paper of major corporations sold through dealers as quoted in The Wall Street Journal. If Utility Money Pool borrowings in a given month solely consist of proceeds from bank borrowings or the issuance commercial paper ("External Funds"), the daily rate will reflect the weighted average cost of External Funds. In months when borrowings are supported by Internal and External Funds, the rate will reflect a composite rate, equal to the weighted average cost of Internal and External Funds.

The cost of compensating balances and fees paid to banks to maintain credit lines that support the availability of External Funds to the Utility Money Pool will be allocated to borrowing parties in proportion to their respective daily outstanding borrowing of External Funds. Borrowing parties will borrow pro rata from each fund source in the same proportion that the respective funds from each source bear to the total amount of funds available to the Utility Money Pool.

The terms and conditions of long-term debt issued by VNG will mirror the terms and conditions of debt issued by AGLR. If AGLR does not issue long-term debt within one year from the date of the proposed financings, the rate of interest will be determined utilizing Lehman Brothers Long Treasury Bond rate as quoted in The Wall Street Journal dated nearest to the time of the loan drawn, plus the appropriate credit spread for AGLRs existing long term debt rating. However, such rate will be adjusted to match AGLR's cost of borrowing if AGLR subsequently issues long-term debt within one year after the loan is drawn.

For common stock, VNG requests authority to issue up to 4,727 shares of common stock without par value to AGLR. If all additional shares of common stock are issued pursuant to this request, the total number of common shares outstanding will be 10,000 shares. This is equal to the total number of shares authorized. The common stock will be sold at the book value of VNG's common equity as of its most recent balance sheet date immediately prior to the sale date.

Applicants state that the proposed issuance of long-term debt and common equity will be used to reduce short-term debt, to recapitalize VNG in connection with its acquisition by AGLR, to refinance maturing long-term debt, and to permanently fund capital projects.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest. Additionally, the Commission is aware of the on-going debate over the possible repeal or amendment of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("PUHCA"). Therefore, the authority granted herein is conditioned upon PUHCA remaining materially unaltered, as detailed below.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) VNG is authorized to participate in the AGLR Utility Money Pool and to incur short-term indebtedness in excess of twelve percent of capitalization not to exceed $100,000,000, for the period January 1, 2004, through December 31, 2004, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application, as amended.

(2) VNG is hereby authorized to issue long-term debt to AGLR in an amount not to exceed $250,000,000 and to issue and sell common stock to AGLR in an amount not to exceed $300,000,000, through December 31, 2004, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.

(3) Within thirty (30) days after PUHCA is repealed or materially amended, Applicants shall file an application seeking to continue the authority granted in this proceeding.

(4) The authority granted in this proceeding shall expire ninety (90) days after PUHCA is repealed or materially amended, unless otherwise ordered by the Commission.

(5) Should Applicants seek to extend the authority for VNG to participate in the Utility Money Pool beyond December 31, 2004, Applicants shall file an application requesting such authority no later than November 15, 2004.

(6) Approval of this application shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.

(7) Approval of this application does not preclude the Commission from applying the provisions of § 56-78 and § 56-80 of the Code of Virginia hereafter.

(8) The Commission reserves the right pursuant to examine the books and records of any affiliate in connection with the authority granted herein, whether or not such affiliate is regulated by this Commission.

(9) Applicants shall file quarterly reports of action within 60 days of the end of each calendar quarter following the date of this order, to include:

- a) a monthly schedule of Utility Money Pool borrowings, segmented by borrower (whether VNG or affiliate); and
- b) monthly schedules that separately reflect interest expenses, each type of allocated fee, and an explanation of how both the interest rate and allocated fee have been calculated.

(10) Applicants shall within ten (10) days after the issuance of any common stock or long-term debt pursuant to the authority granted herein submit a preliminary report. Such report shall include the date of issuance, type of security, amount issued, and the respective interest rate, date of maturity, and other terms and conditions of any issuance.

(11) Applicants shall within sixty (60) days of the end of each calendar quarter in which common stock or long-term debt securities are issued pursuant to the authority granted herein submit a more detailed report. Such report shall include a summary of the information noted in Ordering

Paragraph (9), the cumulative amount of securities issued to date for each type of security and the amount of authority remaining, a general statement concerning the purposes for which the securities were issued, and a balance sheet reflecting the actions taken.

(12) Applicants shall file their final report of action on or before March 1, 2005, to include all of the information outlined in Ordering Paragraph (9), summarizing the financings entered into pursuant to Ordering Paragraph (2) during the fourth calendar quarter of 2004.

(13) This matter shall be continued subject to the continuing review, audit, and appropriate directive of the Commission.

DECEMBER 31, 2003

APPLICATION OF
ATMOS ENERGY CORPORATION

For authority to issue common stock

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On December 11, 2003, Atmos Energy Corporation ("Atmos" or "Applicant") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia (Va. Code §§ 56-55.3 et seq.) requesting authority to issue additional shares of common stock through the Atmos Energy Corporation Retirement Savings Plan ("RSP") and to issue common stock pursuant to its Direct Stock Purchase Plan ("DSPP"). Applicant paid the requisite fee of $250.

Atmos requests authority to issue common stock up to 1,000,000 additional shares of common stock through its RSP, formerly known as the Employee Stock Ownership Plan and Trust. Under the RSP, Atmos will match every dollar invested by an employee in the RSP up to a maximum of 4% of the employee's annual salary. Each employee may invest up to a maximum of 21% of his or her salary into the RSP, providing a means for additional investment in Atmos and strengthening each employee's direct interest in the financial success of Applicant.

Atmos also proposes to issue up to 2,000,000 additional shares of common stock from time to time through its existing DSPP. Under the DSPP, investors can purchase shares of Atmos' common stock and reinvest all or a portion of their cash dividends in additional shares of common stock. Stock purchases through the DSPP are priced at a three percent discount from the market price of the stock. Applicant indicates that funds from the stock issuances will be used for general corporate purposes. Applicant also asserts that issuance of shares under the RSP and DSPP will ultimately strengthen Atmos' equity ratio, will provide financing flexibility, and may lower its cost of capital.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to issue and sell up to an additional 1,000,000 shares of common stock through and pursuant to the Atmos Energy Corporation Retirement Saving Plan, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Applicant is hereby authorized issue and sell up to an additional 2,000,000 shares of common stock under Atmos' Direct Stock Purchase Plan, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 3) There being nothing further to be done, this matter is hereby closed.

APPLICATION OF
BLUEFIELD VALLEY WATER WORKS COMPANY

For an increase in rates, fees, and charges pursuant to the Small Water or Sewer Public Utility Act

PRELIMINARY ORDER

By notice dated October 10, 2003, pursuant to the Small Water or Sewer Public Utility Act (§ 56-265.13:1 et seq. of the Code of Virginia ("Code")), Bluefield Valley Water Works Company ("Company") notified its customers and the State Corporation Commission's Division of Energy Regulation ("Division") of its intent to increase its rates and fees effective for service rendered on and after November 24, 2003. The Company placed its proposed rates and fees into effect for water service provided on and after December 5, 2003. The short delay in implementing the proposed rates was necessary to allow the Company to file revised tariff sheets with the Division reflecting its proposed increase in rates.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

On December 8, 2003, the Division received a letter from the Town of Bluefield, Virginia ("Town of Bluefield") objecting to the proposed rate increase.¹ On December 10, 2003, the Division received two petitions signed by 39 of the Company's customers opposing the proposed rate increase. The Town of Bluefield and the Company's customers requested a full review of the proposed rate increase by the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"). The number of customers objecting to the proposed rate increase represents approximately 36% of the Company's total customers.

NOW THE COMMISSION, having considered the matter, is of the opinion that, pursuant to § 56-265.13:6 of the Code of Virginia, a hearing should be scheduled on the Company's proposed rate increase, and that the proposed rates and fees should be declared interim and subject to refund from the date of this Order until such time as the Commission renders its final decision in this proceeding. We further find that the Company should file certain financial documents for its operations on or before January 20, 2004. A procedural schedule establishing, among other things, the date of the hearing will be by separate Order of the Commission.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) This matter shall be docketed and assigned Case No. PUE-2003-00595.

(2) Pursuant to § 56-265.13:6 of the Code of Virginia, the Company's proposed rates are declared to be interim rates effective immediately, and subject to refund with interest, until such time as the Commission renders its final decision in this proceeding.

(3) On or before January 20, 2004, the Company shall submit certain financial information to the Commission's Division of Public Utility Accounting. Such information, based on the Company's proposed test year, shall include, at a minimum, an income statement, balance sheet, customer consumption by month, cash flow statement, the Company's most recent federal income tax return, and a rate of return statement, with work papers supporting all proposed adjustments to book amounts, which support the Company's proposed rate increase as required by the Commission's Rules Implementing the Small Water or Sewer Public Utility Act (20 VAC 5-200-40 et seq.).

(4) This matter shall be continued subject to further order of the Commission.

¹ The original letter from the Town of Bluefield was dated November 11, 2003, but was never received by the Division. A second letter from the Town of Bluefield dated December 5, 2003, was received by the Division on December 8, 2003. The second letter also enclosed Bluefield's original November 11, 2003, letter.

CASE NO. PUE-2003-00601
DECEMBER 31, 2003

APPLICATION OF
ATMOS ENERGY CORPORATION

For an Annual Informational Filing

ORDER ON MOTION

On December 12, 2003, Atmos Energy Corporation ("Atmos" or the "Company") filed a "Motion for Waiver of Annual Informational Filing" with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"). In its Motion, Atmos alleged that it had notified¹ the Commission on November 6, 2003, that the Company planned to file a general rate case no sooner than 60 days from the date of the notice. Atmos advised that it planned to file its general rate application with the Commission on or before February 27, 2004. Atmos advised that it plans to use operating and financial data for the twelve months ending September 30, 2003, in its general rate filing.

Atmos explained that pursuant to 20 VAC 5-200-30 A 9 of the Rules governing utility rate increase applications and annual informational filings ("Rate Case Rules"), the Company is required to file its Annual Informational Filing ("AIF") for the test year ended September 30, 2003, within 120 days from the end of the test year or by January 30, 2004. Atmos represents that to avoid a duplication of effort, a waiver of the requirement to file its AIF on January 31, 2004, would be appropriate. The Company notes that the data that would be included in its AIF filing will be made a part of its rate case filing. Atmos requested that the Commission waive the requirement that the Company file its AIF on January 31, 2004.

NOW THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the Company's request, is of the opinion and finds that good cause has been shown for a waiver of the Rate Case Rule requiring Atmos to file an AIF by January 30, 2004; that Atmos' Motion should be granted; that Atmos' general rate application should be filed in Case No. PUE-2003-00507, on or before February 27, 2004, as represented by the Company in its Motion; that in the event Atmos determines not to file a general rate case, it shall, on or before February 27, 2004, file its AIF for the test period ending September 30, 2003, in the proceeding docketed as Case No. PUE-2003-00507; and that this case should be dismissed.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

(1) This matter is hereby docketed and assigned Case No. PUE-2003-00601.

(2) Atmos' December 12, 2003, Motion is hereby granted.

(3) Atmos need not file an AIF, using the twelve months ending September 30, 2003, as its test year by January 30, 2004.

¹ Atmos' notice for its general rate case application has been docketed as Case No. PUE-2003-00507.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

(4) Atmos shall, consistent with the representations made in its Motion, file with the Commission a general rate application for the twelve months ending September 30, 2003, on or before February 27, 2004, in the proceeding docketed as Case No. PUE-2003-00507.

(5) In the event Atmos fails to file a general rate application on or around February 27, 2004, it shall file with the Commission on or before February 27, 2004, an AIF, employing as the test period the twelve months ending September 30, 2003, in the proceeding docketed as Case No. PUE-2003-00507.

(6) There being nothing further to be done in this proceeding, this case shall be dismissed from the Commission's docket of active proceedings, and the papers filed herein made a part of the Commission's files for ended causes.

APPLICATION OF
CRAIG-BOTETOURT ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

For authority to issue long-term debt

ORDER GRANTING AUTHORITY

On December 22, 2003, Craig-Botetourt Electric Cooperative ("Applicant") filed an application with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission") under Chapter 3 of Title 56 of the Code of Virginia requesting authority to incur long-term debt. Applicant has paid the requisite fee of $250.

Applicant requests authority to borrow up to $424,624 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation ("CFC"). The proceeds will be used to retire existing debt issued to the Rural Utilities Services ("RUS"). The loan will be structured so that the debt matures in installments throughout the next 8 years. The interest rate on the debt will be determined at the time of advance of funds. The effective interest rate on the CFC debt will be less than 5.0%, the current rate on the existing RUS debt to be retired.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of the application and having been advised by its Staff, is of the opinion and finds that approval of the application will not be detrimental to the public interest.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- 1) Applicant is hereby authorized to borrow up to $424,624 from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Financing Corporation, under the terms and conditions and for the purposes set forth in the application.
- 2) Within thirty (30) days of the date of each advance of funds from CFC, Applicant shall file with the Commission's Division of Economics and Finance a Report of Action which shall include the amount of the advance, the interest rate selected, and the interest rate term.
- 3) The authority granted herein shall have no implications for ratemaking purposes.
- 4) There appearing nothing further to be done in this matter, it is hereby dismissed.

CASE NO. SEC-2000-00061 AUGUST 6, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.
STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION
DONALD H. SPITZLI,
Defendant

ORDER

On August 9, 2002, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") issued a Rule to Show Cause in the above captioned proceeding ordering Donald H. Spitzli ("Defendant") to appear before the Commission for failure to comply with a Commission Settlement Order ("Settlement Order") dated November 22, 2000. A hearing was scheduled for April 15, 2003.

On April 14, 2003, the Commission's Division of Securities and Retail Franchising ("Staff"), by counsel, filed a Motion to Dismiss Rule to Show Cause. In support of its application, Staff asserted that: (i) on April 14, 2003, Defendant complied fully with the requirements of the above-mentioned Settlement Order; and (ii) there was no further need to convene a hearing on this matter.

On April 14, 2003, Deborah V. Ellenberger, Chief Hearing Examiner, filed a report in this proceeding. Therein, she recommended that Staff's Motion to Dismiss Rule to Show Cause should be granted.

Upon consideration of the filings submitted and the recommendation of the Chief Hearing Examiner, the Commission is of the opinion and so finds that Motion to Dismiss Rule to Show Cause should be granted.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Staff's Motion to Dismiss Rule to Show Cause issued herein on April 14, 2003, be, and the same is hereby, GRANTED.
- (2) The Rule to Show Cause issued herein on August 9, 2002, against Donald H. Spitzli, be, and the same is hereby, DISMISSED.

CASE NO. SEC-2001-00008 AUGUST 14, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.
v.
DAVID R. TANNER,
Defendant

ORDER

In Tanner, et al. v. State Corporation Commission¹ ("Tanner I") the Supreme Court of Virginia, among other things, affirmed and reversed certain judgments issued by the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") against the defendants² and remanded the matter to the Commission for reconsideration of penalties. On rehearing³ ("Tanner II"), the Court modified its original opinion.⁴ We now address the penalties assessed against David R. Tanner ("Defendant") in light of those rulings.

¹ Tanner et al. v. State Corporation Commission, 265 Va. 148, 158 (2003).

³ Tanner, et al. v. State Corporation Commission, 266 Va. 170 (2003).

⁴ The Court reaffirmed that Kennsington's Accounts Receivable Purchase and Sales Agreement ("Kennsington Agreements") were not unregistered securities. Additionally, the Court reversed its original position in Tanner I and found that the Postmistress General and Postal Flyers Notes ("Promissory Notes") were not covered securities and, as a result, must be registered.

The Defendant was ordered to appear before the Commission to show cause⁵ why he should not be penalized pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Virginia Securities Act⁶ ("Act") and permanently enjoined from transacting business as a securities agent in the Commonwealth pursuant to § 13.1-519 of the Act for certain alleged violations.

After the hearing conducted on April 23 and 24, 2001, the Commission accepted the penalties recommended by the Hearing Examiner, and issued a judgment⁷ on December 21, 2001, wherein the Defendant was penalized $1,000 for violation of § 13.1-504 A of the Act; the sum of $11,000 for twenty-two (22) violations⁸ of § 13.1-507 of the Act; $ 1,000 for one violation of § 13.1-502 (2) of the Act; and that he be permanently enjoined from transacting business as a securities agent in Virginia.

Thereafter, the Defendant⁹ appealed the Commission's judgment to the Supreme Court of Virginia ("Court"). In Tanner I, the Court, among other things, reversed the Commission judgment as to the Defendant as it related to the Kennington Accounts Receivable Agreements ("Kennington Agreements"). This position was reaffirmed in Tanner II.

The Commissioner found that the Defendant sold three (3) of the Kennington Agreements. Base upon the Court's order of June 6, 2003, the Defendant's overall penalty is reduced by $1,500, decreasing the penalty from $13,000 to $11,500. The Court affirmed the rest of the Commission's judgment to the Defendant.

Upon consideration of filings submitted, the applicable law, the report of the Hearing Examiner, and the opinions of the Supreme Court of Virginia, referred to above, the Commission is of the opinion and so finds that the penalties imposed upon the Defendant in its judgment are reduced as they relate to the sale of the Kennington Agreements.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

- (1) Defendant is penalized, pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Act, $1,000 for one violation of § 13.1-504 A of the Act.
- (2) Defendant is penalized, pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Act, the sum of $11,500 for nineteen violations of § 13.1-507 of the Act.
- (3) Defendant is penalized, pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Act, $1,000 for one violation of § 13.1-502 (2) of the Act.
- (4) Defendant is permanently enjoined, pursuant to § 13.1-519 of the Act, from transacting business as a securities agent in the Commonwealth.
- (5) This case is dismissed from the docket, and the papers herein shall be passed to the file for ended causes.

⁶ 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia.

⁸ $500 per violation.

DAVID R. TANNER,

AMENDING ORDER

On August 14, 2003, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") entered an Order ("Order") in the above-captioned matter.

It has come to the attention of the Commission that Ordering Paragraph (2) of the Order is defective in that it erroneously penalizes the Defendant $11,500 instead of $9,500 for nineteen (19) violations¹ of §13.1-507 of the Virginia Securities Act ("Act").²

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED THAT Ordering Paragraph (2) of the Order of August 14, 2003, be, and the same is hereby, AMENDED to read as follows:

- (1) Defendant is penalized, pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Act, the sum of $9,500 for nineteen (19) violations of §13.1-507 of the Act.
- (2) The case is dismissed, and the papers herein are passed to the file for ended causes.

Thereafter, the Defendant⁹ appealed the Commission's judgment to the Supreme Court of Virginia ("Court"). In Tanner I, the Court, among other things, reversed the Commission judgment as to the Defendant relating to the Kennington Accounts Receivable Agreements ("Kennington Agreements"). The Defendant did not sell any Kennington Agreements. Based upon the Court's order of June 6, 2003, the penalties imposed against the Defendant by the Commission would not be reduced, but would remain at $12,000. The Court affirmed the rest of the Commission's judgment as to the Defendant.

Upon consideration of filings submitted, the applicable law, the report of the Hearing Examiner, and the opinions of the Supreme Court of Virginia, referred to above, the Commission is of the opinion and so finds that the penalties imposed upon the Defendant in its judgment should remain as indicated.

APRIL 29, 2003

APPLICATION OF THE GUILFORD COMPANY

For an official interpretation pursuant to the Virginia Securities Act § 13.1-525

OFFICIAL INTERPRETATION

THIS MATTER came before the Commission for consideration upon the letter-application of the Guilford Company ("Applicant") dated February 19, 2003, filed under § 13.1-525 of the Virginia Securities Act, § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia ("Act"), by its counsel and upon payment of the requisite fee. Applicant has requested a determination as to whether or not the Guilford Company, and its present and future officers and employees must register pursuant to § 13.1-504A (ii) of the Act, as investment advisors or investment advisor representatives. The pertinent information contained in the application is summarized as follows:

Applicant is a "family advisor" organized by the Kirby family for the purpose of providing certain financial services exclusively to the members of the family. Applicant does not, and does not intend to, hold itself out publicly as providing investment advisory services and has no clients outside the Kirby family. Currently there are four individual clients, several family trusts, and a family charitable foundation as the Applicant's clients. Some clients are Virginia residents.

The Applicant represents that it does not engage in broker/dealer activities and does not maintain custody of client funds or securities. Rather, several banks perform custodial duties on behalf of the Kirby family. In addition to investment advice, the Applicant reviews and reconciles all monthly statements for dividends, interest payments and other transactions for the family members individually as well as for the family trusts, and provides a bill paying service for one member of the Kirby family.

The Applicant represents that it is wholly owned by two members of the Kirby family, and it is anticipated that future stock ownership will remain within the Kirby family.

Applicant further represents that all Applicant's clients support the Applicant's application for relief from the regulatory requirements of the Act and that they do not seek the protections afforded by these requirements.

THE COMMISSION, upon consideration of and in reliance upon the information supplied by Applicant, is of the opinion and finds that the Applicant, whose activities are performed as described above, as well as its officers and employees, are not within the intent of the Act's definition of investment advisor and investment advisor representative as defined by § 13.1-501 of the Act. The Commission's opinion is based solely upon the information provided by Applicant and any deviation therefrom will be subject to further Commission determination.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED THAT the Applicant, whose activities are performed as described above, and its present and future officers and employees are excluded from the definitions of investment advisor and investment advisor representative and therefore are not required to register as an investment advisor and investment advisor representatives pursuant to § 13.1-504A (ii) of the Act.

v.
BEAR, STEARNS & CO., LLC,
Defendant

CONSENT ORDER

Bear, Stearns & Co. LLC, ("Bear Stearns" or the "Firm") is a broker-dealer registered in the Commonwealth of Virginia; and Coordinated investigations into Bear Stearns' activities in connection with certain conflicts of interest that research analysts were subject to during the period of July 1, 1999 through June 30, 2001 have been conducted by a multi-state task force and a joint task force of the U. S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the New York Stock Exchange, and the National Association of Securities Dealers (collectively, the "regulators"); and

Bear Stearns has cooperated with regulators conducting the investigations by responding to inquiries, providing documentary evidence and other materials, and providing regulators with access to facts relating to the investigations; and

Bear Stearns has advised regulators of its agreement to resolve the investigations relating to its research practices; and

Bear Stearns agrees to implement certain changes with respect to its research and banking practices, and to make certain payments; and

Bear Stearns elects to permanently waive any right to a hearing and appeal under § 12.1-39 of the Code of Virginia with respect to this Consent Order (the "Order");

NOW, THEREFORE, the State Corporation Commission, as administrator of the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia, hereby enters this Order:

I. JURISDICTION/CONSENT

Bear Stearns admits the jurisdiction of State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), neither admits nor denies the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law contained in this Order, and consents to the entry of this Order.

II. FINDINGS OF FACT

A. Background and Jurisdiction

1. Bear Stearns, a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in New York, New York, is a subsidiary of The Bear Stearns Companies, Inc. Bear Stearns provides equity research, sales, and trading services; merger and acquisition advisory services; venture capital services; and underwriting services on a global basis.

2. Bear Stearns is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission"), is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, Inc. ("Exchange") and the NASD, Inc. ("NASD") and is licensed to conduct securities business on a nationwide basis.

3. Bear Stearns is currently registered with the Commonwealth of Virginia as a broker-dealer, and has been so registered since March 19, 1981.

4. This action concerns the time period of July 1, 1999 to June 30, 2001 (the "relevant period"). During that time, Bear Stearns engaged in both research and investment banking ("IB") activities

B. Overview

1. During the relevant period, the Firm sought and did IB business with many companies covered by its research. Research analysts were encouraged to participate in IB activities, and that was a factor considered in the analysts' compensation system. In addition, the decision to initiate and maintain research coverage of certain companies was in some cases coordinated with the IB Department and influenced by IB interests.
2. As a result of the foregoing, certain research analysts at the Firm were subjected to IB influences and conflicts of interest between supporting the IB business at the Firm and publishing objective research.
3. The Firm had knowledge of these IB influences and conflicts of interest yet failed to establish and maintain adequate policies, systems and procedures that were reasonably designed to detect and prevent the influences and manage the conflicts.

C. Research Analyst Participation in Investment Banking Activities

1. Research analysts were responsible for providing analysis of the financial outlook of particular companies in the context of the business sectors in which those companies operated and the securities market as a whole.
2. Research analysts evaluated companies by, among other things, examining financial information contained in public filings, questioning company management, investigating customer and supplier relationships, evaluating companies' business plans and the products or services offered, building financial models and analyzing competitive trends.
3. After synthesizing and analyzing this information, analysts produced research in the form of full reports and more abbreviated formats that typically contained a recommendation, a price target, and a summary and analysis of the factors relied upon by the analyst.
4. The Firm distributed its analysts' research internally to various departments at the Firm and externally to the Firm's retail and institutional investing clients. In addition, the Firm sold some of its research directly to non-clients, disseminated it through distribution agreements with other broker dealers, made it available to third party subscription services such as First Call, and offered it for sale via market websites such as MultexInvestor.
5. In addition to performing research functions, certain research analysts participated or assisted in IB activities. These IB activities included identifying companies as prospects for IB services, participating in "pitches"¹ of IB services to companies, attending "road shows"² associated with underwriting transactions, and speaking to investors to generate interest in underwriting transactions.
6. In preparation for each "pitch" the bankers, with the analyst's input, prepared a "pitch book" which was distributed at the meeting and contained a summary of the Firm's presentation.
7. The pitch books, in some instances, identified the covering analyst by name, provided information about that analyst's background and reputation, sometimes characterizing the analyst as the "ax" in his or her coverage sector, and highlighted the success of Bear Stearns' underwritten IPOs covered by the analyst. The pitch books also highlighted such factors as the number of lead and co-managed IPOs that the Firm currently had under research coverage. This information was intended to convey to the issuer that such treatment would be accorded to it if Bear Stearns received the mandate for the IB transaction.
8. The analyst's reputation played a role in pitching the Firm's IB services to potential clients. Issuers often chose an investment bank because of the reputation of the analyst that would cover the company's stock.
9. The pitch to an issuer by the research analyst contributed to Bear Stearns' ability to win investment banking deals and receive investment banking fees from that and subsequent investment banking relationships.
10. The investment banking division at Bear Stearns advised corporate clients and helped them execute various financial transactions, including the issuance of stock and other securities. Bear Stearns frequently served as the lead or as a co-lead underwriter in initial public offerings ("IPOs") -- the first public issuance of stock of a company that has not previously been publicly traded -- and follow-on offering of securities.
11. During the relevant period, investment banking was an important source of revenues and profits for Bear Stearns. In 2000, investment banking generated more than $965 million in net revenues, or approximately eighteen percent of Bear Stearns' total net revenues.
12. The IB activities in which analysts participated also included participating in commitment committee³ and due diligence activities in connection with underwriting transactions and from time to time assisting the IB Department in providing merger and acquisition ("M&A") and other advisory services to companies.
13. The Firm encouraged research analysts to support the IB and other businesses of the Firm. With regard to IB, research analysts were encouraged to work in partnership with the IB Department by participating in the foregoing IB activities, and the level of certain research analysts' participation in these IB activities was sometimes significant.

² A "road show" is a series of presentations made to potential investors in conjunction with the marketing of an upcoming underwriting.

³ The "commitment committee" was responsible for, among other things, evaluating and determining the Firm's participation in IPOs and other IB transactions.

- a. On September 23, 1999, the Head of Research provided research analysts with guidelines to follow in drafting their business plans. The guidelines stated they were "designed to help [the research analysts] focus on executing and delivering [their] goals, improving [their] overall contribution to the firm and enhancing [their] relationships with [their] partners throughout the firm." These guidelines requested the research analysts to describe their contributions to nine separate areas of the Firm's business. With respect to the area identified as "Banking," the guidelines stated: "After your business plan meeting with your bankers please discuss any ideas you have generated for deal origination and timing of coverage for existing or proposed corporate relationships. Include or attach to your business plan a list of stocks you and your corporate finance team have agreed upon as priorities. Include plans to help market transactions or to introduce M&A activity. Discuss any plans to drop coverage where there is no longer a strategic fit."
- b. In her 1997/1998 business plan, an analyst stated, "If I were any more aggressive in the banking area, my office would be on the third floor [location of IB offices of the Firm]."

14. In connection with their participation in IB activities, certain research analysts and investment bankers ("bankers") communicated, in various frequency and extent, through meetings and via telephone and electronic mail ("e-mail").

15. The IB department at the Firm was organized into industry groups that corresponded to certain research sectors. Research analysts were aware that, in certain circumstances, their positive and continued coverage of particular companies was an important factor for the generation of investment banking business. Thus, some research analysts and bankers coordinated the initiation and maintenance of research coverage, based upon, among other things, investment-banking considerations.

On February 9, 2000, two bankers and an analyst submitted a joint business plan to the co-heads of the IB technology group. The stated purpose of the memorandum was to "describe a strategy for investment banking and research coverage and coordination of companies which provide Internet enabling technologies. The near-term goal is to establish an organized and prioritized calling effort with an emphasis on cultivating fewer and deeper, lead managed relationships." [Emphasis in original.]

D. Participation in Investment Banking Activities was a Factor in Evaluating and Compensating Research Analysts

1. The compensation system at the Firm provided an incentive for research analysts to contribute to all areas of the Firm's business, including participating in IB activities and assisting in generating IB business for the Firm. Research analysts' participation in IB activities was one of several factors considered in determining their compensation. Notes of staff meetings reflect the following statements by the Head of Research to analysts:

- a. "I'd like to remind everyone how you get paid at Bear Stearns. It is based on your contribution to your team and your contribution to the firm . . . Notice that being a partner with banking is part of the analyst job description. You are not compared or matrixed or in any way paid on a formula. Working on transactions is not incremental to your compensation, it is an expected part of it."
- b. "I need to remind you that investment banking revenues are not incremental to your bonus. Being a partner to banking is part of your job. You are paid on performance and based on your contribution to the firm."

2. The performance of research analysts was evaluated through an annual review process. Where not set by contract, the research analyst's salary and annual bonus were also determined through this process.

3. Information on the analyst's job performance was gathered through annual self-evaluations, analyst's business plans, surveys of management, and trading and institutional sales department personnel, e-mail and oral feedback from employees in the IB and other departments at the Firm, and the Firm's institutional clients.

4. The research analysts' annual business plans contained, among other things, their contributions to various areas of the Firm, including IB, for the past year, and their plans for improving their contribution to these areas of the Firm, including IB, in the coming year.

5. In their self-evaluations, which were used to communicate their accomplishments to and petition management for increased compensation, analysts discussed such areas as their rankings in independent research polls, the scope of their research coverage, their participation in industry conferences, and the Firm's Autex rankings in stocks they covered. Certain research analysts provided extensive information regarding their assistance to IB, including accomplishments, goals, and participation in lead- and co-managed underwritings, and sometimes also including the revenues to the Firm associated with the IB transactions on which the analyst worked. In addition, analysts were occasionally requested to inform research management of fees generated by the IB transactions on which they worked.

- a. In an October 24, 2000 e-mail to the Head of Research, a senior analyst summarized his 9 key accomplishments during fiscal year 2000. The first and largest point, which dealt with his contributions to IB, stated as follows:

"*Corporate finance: generated over $23 million in fees to the firm in nine separate transactions: *Storage networking: identified a new financial opportunity for the firm, which resulted in six transactions ...I should be designated as a finder for Ancor [Ancor Communications], JNI [JNI Corp.] and Vixel [Vixel Corp.]. *iAppliances: identified a new industry category ...which was a source of two IPOs... *Agilent [Agilent Technologies]: I should be designated as a finder -- or at least a save for Agilent. BS pitched the business and lost. I went in and re-won the business, generated fees of around $2.5 million to the firm." The e-mail to the Head of Research included a spreadsheet listing the IB transactions on which he had worked and the associated revenues to the Firm. The Head of Research praised the format of the summary and suggested she might have all research analysts submit theirs in the same form.

- b. In a June 21, 2001 e-mail from a member of the research management staff, the research analysts were requested to submit information regarding all banking transactions that had closed or that were pending in their sectors during the prior 6-month period.

6. Certain research analysts perceived that the amount of their bonus would be influenced by their contribution to and impact on the firm's IB business, and the fees generated by IB transactions on which they worked.

7. Research analysts were encouraged to support and assist all areas of the Firm and to participate in IB activities and activities that enhanced the reputation of the Firm's IB business. Based upon statements by research management indicating that partnership with banking was part of their job as research analysts, the inclusion of a "Banking" section in their annual business plans, information regarding IB transactions in their self-evaluations, and requests from research management for specific information regarding IB transactions in their coverage sectors, certain research analysts believed that the revenues generated by their participation in IB activities was an important factor in their evaluations and compensation. Accordingly, some research analysts were encouraged to participate in IB activities, increase IB revenues, and enhance the reputation of the Firm, including its IB business.

8. Research Analysts' salaries and bonuses were determined by a multiple factor-based approach. Among other things, analysts were judged for compensation purposes based on the performance of their stock picks, their impact on the buy-side accounts as measured by votes, the Firm's market share in trading volume in the stocks they covered, their participation in IB activities, and the fees and secondary trading commissions generated from those activities were considered.

E. Investment Banking Interests Influenced the Firm's Decisions to Initiate and Maintain Research Coverage

1. In general, the Firm determined whether to initiate and maintain research coverage based upon institutional investors' interest in the company, and the company's importance to the sector or IB considerations, such as attracting companies to the Firm to generate IB business or maintaining a positive relationship with existing IB clients.

2. The nature and duration of research coverage were important criteria for a company's choice of a broker dealer for IB services. The pitch books typically contained information stating, among other things, that: "an important element to successfully executing an IPO is having an assurance that the Firm will provide research coverage to the IPO candidate in the offering and in the aftermarket."

3. The Firm generally initiated coverage on companies that engaged the Firm in an IB transaction. In pitching for IB business, the Firm sometimes represented to the company the frequency with which reports would be issued.

4. The Firm's ratings system, which was intended to reflect the long-term prospects of a rated stock, allowed research analysts to assign one of five ratings to a stock: (1) "Buy" - Expected to outperform the local market by 20% in the next 12 months. Strong conviction and typically accompanied by an identifiable catalyst; (2) "Attractive" - Expected to outperform the local market by 10% or more, it is usually more difficult to identify the catalyst; (3) "Neutral" - Expected to perform in line with the local market; (4) "Unattractive" - Expected to underperform the local market; and (5) "Sell" - Avoid the stock.

5. During the relevant period, there was a sharp downturn in the stock market and stocks in certain sectors performed poorly. During this period, the Firm did not issue ratings of "Unattractive" or "Sell" in connection with any covered companies in these sectors.

6. Research management communicated with IB management to ensure that research opportunities were appropriately aligned with identified IB opportunities.

7. The Stock Selection Committee was ultimately responsible for making the determination to initiate coverage of a given company. The Head of Research was ultimately responsible for making the determination to maintain research coverage. Nonetheless, IB considerations sometimes influenced the decision to initiate and maintain coverage.

8. Some research analysts and bankers actively coordinated the initiation and maintenance of research coverage based upon, among other things, IB considerations. This coordination consisted of meetings and communications by telephone and e-mail.

9. In some circumstances, research coverage was initiated based on IB considerations.

In an April 19, 2000 e-mail from a member of his staff, the head of the IB Technology Group communicated the following to the Heads of Research and IB as well as numerous analysts and bankers: "[Analyst A] and [Analyst B] agree that [Analyst B] will be the analyst covering CacheFlo [Cacheflow]. [Banker] and [Analyst B] will discuss with CacheFlo what the planned timing of their offering will be so as to insure that if we initiate coverage in advance of the transaction we will not be prohibited from being an underwriter. [Analyst B] and [Banker] will also stress to the company that if we initiate coverage we expect our position in the company's future financing and strategy actions to be materially improved."

10. Given that research analysts participated in determining in which IB transactions in their sectors the Firm would participate, if the Firm determined to participate in an equity offering for a company, it was expected the company would qualify for an initial "Buy" rating.

11. An analyst who anticipated initiating coverage of such a company with less than a "Buy" rating informed IB in advance as follows.

- a. In a February 8, 2000 e-mail to bankers and the Head of Research, this analyst stated: "Just wanted to be sure that everyone knows that we will be using an Attractive rating on go.com. If anyone has any comments or issues, please let me know."
 - b. In a March 17, 2000 e-mail to research analysts, an associate analyst stated: "I talked to [the liaison between research and IB] and we have the go ahead to initiate on IPET [Pets.com] with an Attractive rating. According to [the liaison] we should explain somewhere in the text, why our opinion about the company's prospects have changed from the time we initiated coverage."⁴
 - c. In his annual evaluation, this analyst was criticized as follows: "Has been working poorly w/bankers - in changing opinions after the firm has committed to co. mgmts". The analyst testified that he believed the statement related to his communicating his opinions regarding companies to bankers in a timely manner, and that if his opinion regarding a company changed from a more positive opinion to a more negative opinion about a company after a banker had already made some sort of commitment to a company, it made life difficult for the banker and was not ideal from his standpoint. He went on to testify that, particularly in his highly volatile sector, companies often changed a lot between the time of the first organizational meeting and the date of the IPO.
12. In some circumstances, the determination to maintain research was influenced by IB considerations.
- a. Due to IB influences, a supervisory analyst perceived and communicated to others that IB approval was required before coverage could be dropped. In response to an inquiry by an associate analyst regarding dropping coverage of 2 companies, a supervisory analyst stated in an April 19, 2002 e-mail: "[The Head of Research] says before dropping coverage, you need to get permission from both: 1. the market makers on the trading desk, 2. the bankers."
 - b. In an April 3, 2000 e-mail to the Heads of Research and IB as well as numerous members of both departments, a banker discussed a company's decision to exclude the Firm from a follow-on offering. He stated: "I expressed significant disappointment with the fact that they neglected to discuss this issue with us prior to this time and that they left us no choice but to drop research coverage and trading, since they obviously did not value our support to date. [Analyst] - As we discussed, feel free to drop at any time. I told the CFO that you would likely put out a note, but did not know when." In a follow-up e-mail the Head of Research stated that she agreed with the decision to drop coverage. The analyst ultimately determined not to drop coverage.

F. Research Analysts Were Visible on Stocks to Generate Investment Banking Business

1. Issuers also considered investment banks' aftermarket trading support as a factor in selecting an investment bank. The Firm's trading volume and trading rank were factors it promoted to IB clients in pitch presentations.
2. The Firm distributed to sales and trading personnel and research analysts the "Trading Focus List," which contained stocks of companies from which the Firm was seeking or with which the Firm had IB business.
3. A research analyst actively marketed companies on the Trading Focus List in order to obtain IB business.
 - a. In a December 10, 1999 e-mail, an analyst wrote the following to Equity Trading copied to the Heads of Research and IB: "Subject: Pls make the trading of Packeteer a top priority. I spent two days with Packeteer ('PKTR') management this week visiting investors. Management are extremely happy with our research coverage and banking services. But they have repeatedly indicated to me that our trading stat. is not satisfactory...CEO hinted to me many times that we have a chance for the books for the secondary if we improve the trading...They are likely to do a secondary in Q1 - mostly likely late January/early February; could be as much as $200 MM deal. Please help us in improving our trading immediately. We will do whatever it takes from the research side."
 - b. In a September 14, 2000 e-mail to Equity Trading, the same analyst wrote the following regarding banking client SonicWall ("SNWL"): "We need help in boosting our trading stat for SNWL. Both management and their VC called me yesterday complaining about our trading - #2 in August and #3 so far in September. More importantly, they argued that we are not supporting the stock when it is weak...I made a positive call on Monday but am not getting much support. Pls help us here since this important technology client indicated to me that if we do not improve, it will hurt our banking relationship with the company."
 - c. In a March 8, 2001 e-mail, the same analyst again wrote to Equity Trading regarding two IB clients he covered: "Subject: MUSE [Micromuse] and ISSX [Internet Security Systems] autex - both on focus list. On MUSE - we dropped from #3 or 4 in 2000 to #10 in Feb and March to date. I just called the trader to see what we can do. I have been extremely active on the name- took management to Boston, Denver, Minneapolis and KC in February alone. Do not quite understand. Pls follow up. ISSX - we dropped from #2 or #3...to #11 in March. I am very active on ISSX also. Thanks for your help on this." Equity Trading responded: "What do you want me to do? Get some orders on the stock yourself. Generate some order flow!" The analyst replied: "I am trying...but are the traders on these two stocks good?"

⁴ In fact, Bear Stearns had not yet initiated coverage on IPET at the time this e-mail was sent.

4. In order to raise or maintain the Firm's visibility on stocks with which the Firm wanted to do IB business, certain research analysts nominated companies to participate at Firm sponsored conferences, took company managements on non-deal road shows, hosted field trips for institutional investors to companies' headquarters and arranged other meetings between institutional investor clients and companies.

5. Research analysts were visible on stocks of companies with which the Firm wanted to do IB business in order to generate IB business.

G. Research Analysts Were Subject to Pressure by Covered Companies

1. Certain research analysts communicated regularly with employees of the companies that they covered, including executive and senior management of those companies. These communications occurred through telephone and e-mail exchanges, company-sponsored events, and analyst calls.

2. Research analysts were sometimes subject to pressure from companies they covered to issue better ratings and recommendations. Research analysts understood that negative ratings and recommendations could adversely affect the Firm's ability to attract and retain IB business from those companies.

On November 2, 2000, in his 2000 self-evaluation an analyst wrote in a section entitled "Areas to Improve: We want our banking clients to know that our research is objective and independent but always sensitive to their best interests. There have been instances in my career where certain banking clients felt that our research and public comments weren't sensitive to their interests. This is a very important issue for us and we take it most seriously. We will continue to make every effort to be sensitive to our clients and our banking partners."

3. When research analysts downgraded or issued a negative comment on a banking client, they sometimes received direct feedback from high-ranking company officials.

In an August 24, 2000 e-mail, a banking client responding to a downgrade of his company wrote: "Your earnings estimates are on track, however, given the downgrade, I sure would have liked to see you give us a lower bar on revenue...[W]hile we affirmed the revenue estimate, they were definitely a stretch. Seems a shame to waste a downgrade by not buying the opportunity for us both to over-perform going forward..."

H. In Certain Instances, the Firm Published Exaggerated or Unwarranted Research

1. On several occasions, the conflicts of interest discussed above resulted in analysts publishing recommendations and/or ratings that were exaggerated or unwarranted, and/or contained opinions for which there was no reasonable basis. The following are examples of how these conflicts affected the research.

- a. Bear Stearns lead managed the IPO and secondary offerings for SonicWall in November 1999 and March 2000 respectively. An analyst rated the stock a "Buy" from the IPO until April 2002. In January 25, 2001 while they were participating in a SonicWall conference call the analyst stated to his associate: "I am trying to make them look good...on the dso and the growth etc." A few minutes later he added: "we got paid for this...and I am going to Cancun tomorrow b/c of them!"
- b. Bear Stearns initiated coverage of MUSE with an "Attractive" rating in September 1999, raised the rating to a "Buy" in January 2000 and maintained a "Buy" rating on the stock until July 2002. While listening to a MUSE analyst call on July 18, 2001, an analyst suggested to his associate that he was going to downgrade his rating on the stock to "Attractive". The associate disagreed with the suggestion and the analyst responded that the stock was "dead money!" However, the analyst did not downgrade his rating on the stock, instead issuing research the same day maintaining his "Buy" rating.
- c. Bear Stearns lead managed the IPO for CAIS Internet, Inc. in May 1999. The analyst rated the stock a "Buy" from the IPO through his last report on the company in November 2000. On January 24, 2001, in response to an e-mail reporting extensive service failures at CAIS the analyst stated: "Any other scoop on this piece of shit?" A few days later, in response to an institutional client's request for his thoughts on CAIS' 4th quarter, the analyst stated: "It's up a lot year to date...don't overstay your welcome on this one."
- d. Bear Stearns co-managed the IPO and secondary offerings for Digital River in August and December 1998 respectively. The Firm, via three successive analysts, rated the stock a "Buy" from the IPO until April 2002. In an April 1, 2002 e-mail to his IB counterpart an analyst stated: "I have to tell you, I feel a bit compromised today. I have told every client on the phone that they should avoid or short the stock over the last few months. I have been fairly hands-off on DRIV [Digital River, a stock under his coverage], primarily because of the banking prospect that you and [Another Banker] have noted. Today, clearly the stock is down a lot. The artificial Buy rating on the stock, while artificial, still makes me look bad. In the future, I'd like to have more leeway with the ratings, even for companies like Digital River, where we have a relationship on the banking side. I trust it would benefit all of us."

I. The Firm Made A Payment for Research

1. In August 2000, as part of an offering that took place in May 2000, the Firm made a payment of $102,750 to another broker-dealer in connection with research coverage it provided for Andrx Corp. ("ADRX"), a Bear Stearns' investment banking client in connection with an underwriting transaction for which Bear Stearns was a lead manager.

2. Bear Stearns did not take steps to ensure that this broker-dealer disclosed in its research that it had been paid to issue research on ADRX. Further Bear Stearns did not disclose or cause to be disclosed the details of this payment.

J. Bear Stearns Failed to Adequately Supervise Its Research and Investment Banking Departments

1. While the role of the research analysts was to produce objective research, the Firm also encouraged them to participate in IB activities. As a result of the foregoing, research analysts were subject to IB influences and conflicts of interest between supporting the IB business at the Firm and publishing objective research.

2. The Firm had knowledge of these IB influences and conflicts of interest yet failed to manage them adequately to protect the objectivity of its published research.

3. Bear Stearns failed to establish and maintain adequate policies, systems and procedures reasonably designed to ensure the objectivity of its published research. Although Bear Stearns had some policies governing research analyst activities during the relevant period, these policies were inadequate and did not address the conflicts of interest that existed.

III. CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The Commission has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia.
2. The Commission finds the following relief appropriate and in the public interest.
3. The Commission finds that:
 - a. Bear Stearns failed to ensure that analysts who issued research were adequately insulated from pressures and influences from covered companies and investment banking. This conduct was a dishonest and unethical practice under 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12.
 - b. Bear Stearns failed to reasonably supervise its employees to ensure that its analysts who issued research were adequately insulated from pressures and influences from covered companies and investment banking as required by 21 VAC 5-20-260.

IV. ORDER

8. For any person or entity not a party to this Order, this Order does not limit or create any private rights or remedies against Bear Stearns including, without limitation, the use of any e-mails or other documents of Bear Stearns or of others regarding research practices or limit or create liability of Bear Stearns or limit or create defenses of Bear Stearns to any claims.

9. Nothing herein shall preclude the Commonwealth of Virginia, its departments, agencies, boards, commissions, authorities, political subdivisions and corporations, other than the Commission and only to the extent set forth in paragraph 1 above, (collectively, "State Entities") and the officers, agents or employees of State Entities from asserting any claims, causes of action, or applications for compensatory, nominal and/or punitive damages, administrative, civil, criminal, or injunctive relief against Bear Stearns in connection with certain research and/or banking practices at Bear Stearns.

V. MONETARY SANCTIONS

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED that:

As a result of the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law contained in this Order, Bear Stearns shall pay a total amount of $80,000,000.00. This total amount shall be paid as specified in the SEC Final Judgment as follows:

$25,000,000 to the states (50 states, plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico) (Bear Stearns' offer to the state securities regulators hereinafter shall be called the "state settlement offer"). Upon execution of this Order, Bear Stearns shall pay the sum of $545,408 of this amount to the Treasurer, Commonwealth of Virginia, as a civil monetary penalty pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Act. The total amount to be paid by Bear Stearns to state securities regulators pursuant to the state settlement offer may be reduced due to the decision of any state securities regulator not to accept the state settlement offer. In the event another state securities regulator determines not to accept Bear Stearns' state settlement offer, the total amount of the Virginia payment shall not be affected, and shall remain at $545,408;

$25,000,000 as disgorgement of commissions, fees and other monies as specified in the SEC Final Judgment;

$25,000,000, to be used for the procurement of independent research, as described in the SEC Final Judgment;

$5,000,000, to be used for investor education, as described in Addendum A, incorporated by reference herein.

Bear Stearns agrees that it shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification, including, but not limited to payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to all penalty amounts that Bear Stearns shall pay pursuant to this Order or Section II of the SEC Final Judgment, regardless of whether such penalty amounts or any part thereof are added to the Distribution Fund Account referred to in the SEC Final Judgment or otherwise used for the benefit of investors. Bear Stearns further agrees that it shall not claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax for any penalty amounts that Bear Stearns shall pay pursuant to this Order or Section II of the SEC Final Judgment, regardless of whether such penalty amounts or any part thereof are added to the Distribution Fund Account referred to in the SEC Final Judgment or otherwise used for the benefit of investors. Bear Stearns understands and acknowledges that these provisions are not intended to imply that the Commonwealth of Virginia would agree that any other amounts Bear Stearns shall pay pursuant to the SEC Final Judgment may be reimbursed or indemnified (whether pursuant to an insurance policy or otherwise) under applicable law or may be the basis for any tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax.

CASE NO. SEC-2003-00015 NOVEMBER 4, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.
CREDIT SUISSE FIRST BOSTON LLC,
Defendant

CONSENT ORDER

Credit Suisse First Boston LLC, f/k/a Credit Suisse First Boston Corporation ("CSFB"), is a broker-dealer registered in the Commonwealth of Virginia; and Coordinated investigations into CSFB's activities in connection with certain of its equity research and IPO stock allocation practices during the period of 1998 through 2001 have been conducted by a multi-state task force and a joint task force of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the New York Stock Exchange, and the National Association of Securities Dealers (collectively, the "regulators"); and

CSFB has advised regulators of its agreement to resolve the investigations relating to its research and stock allocation practices; and

CSFB agrees to implement certain changes with respect to its research and stock allocation practices, and to make certain payments; and

CSFB elects to permanently waive any right to a hearing and appeal under § 12.1-39 of the Code of Virginia with respect to this Consent Order (the "Order");

NOW, THEREFORE, the State Corporation Commission as administrator of the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia, hereby enters this Order:

I.

FINDINGS OF FACT

CSFB admits the jurisdiction of the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), neither admits nor denies the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law contained in this Order, and consents to the entry of this Order by the Commission.

1. Summary

From July 1998 through December 2001 (the "relevant period"), CSFB used its equity research analysts to help solicit and conduct investment banking business. By providing incentives for equity research analysts to assist in the generation of investment banking revenues, CSFB created and fostered an environment with conflicts of interest that, in some circumstances, undermined the independence of research analysts and affected the objectivity of the reports they issued.

The conflicts of interest and pressure on equity research analysts to contribute to investment banking revenue were particularly present in CSFB's Technology Group, headed by Frank Quattrone, where research analysts' supervision and compensation were closely aligned with investment banking. CSFB's investment banking revenue, driven mostly by technology stocks, steadily and significantly increased, from $1.79 billion in 1998, to $2.32 billion in 1999, and to $3.68 billion in 2000. The sphere of influence and authority that Quattrone exercised at CSFB remained significant throughout the technology boom.

CSFB's efforts to attract potential and continued investment banking business created pressure on equity research analysts to initiate and maintain favorable coverage on investment banking clients. This pressure at times undermined equity research analyst objectivity and independence. CSFB's marketing, or "pitch," materials in some instances implicitly promised that a company would receive favorable research if it agreed to use CSFB for its investment banking business. In addition, companies, in some instances pressured analysts to continue coverage or maintain a certain rating or else risk losing the company as an investment-banking client. In certain instances, these factors compromised the independence of equity research analysts and impaired the objectivity of research reports.

The independence of some of CSFB's equity research analysts was also impaired by the fact that they were evaluated, in part, by investment banking professionals and that their compensation was influenced by their contribution to investment banking revenues. Indeed, the vast majority of their overall compensation, in the form of bonuses, was based on the investment banking revenues generated by the firm. In many instances, bonuses for non-technology equity research analysts' were directly linked to revenue generated by the firm on specific investment banking transactions. The fact that an equity research analyst's bonus was in part related to revenue from investment banking business created pressure on analysts to help generate more investment banking revenue.

The undue and improper influence imposed by CSFB's investment bankers on the firm's technology research analysts caused CSFB to issue fraudulent research reports on two companies: Digital Impact, Inc. ("Digital Impact") and Synopsys, Inc. ("Synopsys"). The reports were fraudulent in that they expressed positive views of the companies' stocks that were contrary to the analysts' true, privately held beliefs. In these instances, investment bankers pressured research analysts to initiate or maintain positive research coverage to obtain or retain investment banking business, and the analysts were pressured or compelled to compromise their own professional opinions regarding the companies at the direction of the firm's investment bankers. In addition, as to Numerical Technologies, Inc. ("Numerical Technologies"), Agilent Technologies, Inc. ("Agilent"), and Winstar Communications, Inc. ("Winstar") - the pressure on analysts resulted in the issuance of research reports that lacked a reasonable basis, failed to provide a balanced presentation of the relevant facts, made exaggerated or unwarranted claims, or failed to disclose material facts; as to NewPower Holdings, Inc. ("NPW"), CSFB issued research reports which, at times, failed to disclose that CSFB and the research analysts covering NPW had proprietary interests in NPW.

CSFB also engaged in improper IPO "spinning" activities. From 1999 until April 2001, CSFB, through its Technology Private Client Services Group, a department within the Technology Group, allocated shares in CSFB's lead-managed technology IPOs to executive officers of its investment banking clients who were in a position to provide investment banking business to CSFB. This group engaged in such spinning with the belief and expectation that the executives would steer investment banking business for their companies to CSFB. CSFB opened discretionary trading accounts on behalf of these executives. Since most of the IPOs offered by CSFB were "hot" (i.e., they began trading in the aftermarket at a premium), and since portions of the allocations were typically "flipped" out (i.e., sold almost immediately) once the aftermarket opened, the spinning produced large, instantaneous profits for those executives who participated in these arrangements. By having CSFB brokers control trading in these accounts, the executives who owned some of these accounts were able to realize profits in excess of $1 million through this IPO activity.

2. CSFB's Structure and Procedures Created Conflicts of Interest for Equity Research Analysts and, in Certain Circumstances, Undermined Their Independence and Affected the Objectivity of Their Reports

a. Overview of CSFB

CSFB LLC ("CSFB"), or a predecessor firm thereof, has been a NASD member since 1936. CSFB, headquartered in New York, is part of the Credit Suisse First Boston business unit, a global investment bank whose businesses include securities underwriting, sales and trading, investment banking, private equity, financial advisory services, investment research, and asset management. The Credit Suisse First Boston business unit is a subsidiary of Credit Suisse Group, which is headquartered in Switzerland. On November 3, 2000, Credit Suisse Group acquired Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corporation ("DLJ"), another NASD member firm. As of December 31, 2002, the Credit Suisse First Boston business unit had approximately 23,400 employees worldwide.

b. The Supervisory Structure of CSFB's Technology Group Created Conflicts of Interest for Equity Research Analysts and Lacked Sufficient Supervision of the Technology PCS Group Until June 1998, all of CSFB's equity research was issued through research analysts who worked in the Equity Research Department and who reported to the Director of Equity Research. Until that time, no equity research analysts were supervised by or had any reporting obligations to anyone in any investment banking department.

In June 1998, CSFB recruited Frank Quattrone, who was then in a senior position at Deutsche Bank Securities (also known as Deutsche Morgan Grenfell Inc. or "DMG") to head a distinct unit the Technology Group at CSFB that would provide an array of services to technology companies. Quattrone became the Managing Director of the CSFB Technology Group's Investment Banking Division, and negotiated a contract with CSFB to maintain the Technology Group as a semi-autonomous, "firm-within-a-firm" unit within CSFB through December 2001.

Quattrone established separate departments within the Technology Group for corporate finance (investment banking), mergers and acquisitions, equity research, and a department devoted to private client services ("PCS"), each of which reported to him. One of the purposes of the PCS department was to provide personal brokerage services to officers of investment banking clients of the Technology Group. The directors of the Technology Group Research Department and PCS Department had dual reporting obligations to Quattrone and to department directors in the firm's Equities Division, but as a practical matter, the principal reporting line was to Quattrone until a change in procedures instituted in June 2001.

CSFB hired individuals who had worked closely with Quattrone at DMG to fill many senior level positions, including each of the department directors, within the Technology Group. Many of the people whom CSFB hired to work in the Technology Group had worked together previously at DMG. In fact, many of the equity research analysts and investment bankers whom CSFB employed from July 1998 through 2001 were recruited or merged into CSFB from other firms. The first infusion of those professionals came in July and August 1998, when the directors and others from DMG formed the Technology Group at CSFB. Given the wholesale move of the personnel, including senior management in research and investment banking, the reporting structure, work ethic, and future expectations of their roles likewise carried over to their new positions at CSFB.

As a result of the structure set forth above, Quattrone exercised his authority to apply an overall Technology Group strategy in his supervision of the Group's research analysts. He used that authority for "resource allocation" to influence the determination of those sectors, and in some cases the particular companies on which Technology Group research would initiate or maintain coverage. As a consequence of Quattrone's influence, Technology Group investment bankers were, at times, able to influence the sectors, and in some cases the particular companies, for which CSFB technology research analysts initiated or maintained coverage. At times, this determination was based on the level of CSFB's actual or anticipated investment banking business with a particular company.

c. Investment Banking Revenue Was a Major Source of Revenue and Influence at CSFB

From 1998 to 2000, CSFB's income from investment banking rose dramatically, fueled primarily by the technology sector offerings completed under Quattrone's leadership. In 1998, driven in large part from the revenue generated by the newly formed Technology Group, CSFB's investment banking revenue increased from approximately $1.47 billion to approximately $1.79 billion or 21 percent. In 1999, the importance of investment banking as a major source of revenue continued to grow, as did its revenue and number of employees. That year, revenue from investment banking grew to approximately $2.318 billion, a 22 percent increase over 1998. Also in 1999, largely through the efforts of the Technology Group, CSFB managed more domestic IPOs than any other investment banking firm. By 2000, CSFB's investment banking revenue had mushroomed to approximately $3.681 billion, a full 59 percent increase over the previous year. Investment banking revenue in 2000 represented the largest percent increase in revenue for CSFB, constituting its second largest revenue source behind equity trading and sales and accounting for 30 percent of the firm's total revenues.

d. CSFB's Equity Research Analysts' Bonuses Were Determined, in Part, by the Degree to Which They Assisted Investment Banking, Thereby Compromising Research Independence

Non-Technology Research

From July 1998 until May 2001, equity research analysts in non-technology sectors at CSFB received bonuses that were directly and indirectly based on the amount of investment banking revenue they helped generate. This created a conflict of interest for research analysts who had an incentive to help win investment banking deals for CSFB while they were also expected to issue objective research regarding those companies.

Specifically, equity research analysts were paid up to three percent of the net revenue generated by an investment banking deal, with a maximum bonus of $250,000 per deal. Some equity research analysts were also guaranteed a minimum bonus of either $15,000 or $20,000 for the investment banking deals on which they worked, depending on whether CSFB was lead or co-manager of the deal. This compensation was not part of the annual bonus, but was pursuant to employment contracts, paid on a quarterly basis. This program was initiated to provide an incentive for research analysts to assist in winning investment banking business. According to the Director of Equity Research:

the head of equity capital markets and investment banking, felt that they needed some help in '98 in generating additional ... help on investment banking transactions or at least ... having analysts feel that it was somewhat part of their compensation.

The actual amount paid to a research analyst was based on the level of contribution that the research analyst made in connection with investment banking deals, as decided with input from the investment bankers. The conflict was evident in the reviews performed by investment bankers as well as self-reviews prepared by research analysts.

In evaluating the performance of equity research analysts to determine their compensation, investment bankers used a form that judged the analyst by origination of the deal, execution of the deal, and follow-through. Each section allowed for handwritten comments and called for the investment banker to rank the research analyst from one to three.

In one such evaluation, an investment banker wrote that the research analyst's "input and track record was critical to winning this business.... [The analyst] performed at her normal high level making a lot of investor calls.... [The analyst's] initiation of research coverage was timely and insightful. She has been a supporter of the stock despite difficult Internet environment."

Technology Group Research

From July 1998 until December 2001, equity research analysts employed in the Technology Group were compensated, in part, based on their contribution to investment banking deals. The vast majority of equity research analysts' compensation was derived from the bonus received rather than the base salary. At CSFB, it was not uncommon for a more senior level Technology Group research analyst to have a salary of $100,000 - $250,000, and also receive a bonus of $5,000,000 - $10,000,000 or higher. The Technology Group bonus pool was funded by fifty percent of technology-related investment banking revenues minus select expenses (including mergers and acquisitions) as well as a percentage of revenue generated by secondary sales and trading in technology stocks, and a percentage of Technology PCS revenues. In determining the allocation for each analyst, the Director of Technology Research stated that he would review revenue generated with respect to each company followed by the analyst, including revenues relating to banking, sales, trading, derivatives, high yield, private placements, and specialty gains on the desk. That amount of revenue formed the "starting point" of determining an individual's bonus, after which additional factors such as the analysts' rating in polls were considered. The Director of Technology Research made an initial recommendation regarding the bonus component of a research analyst's compensation. The final decision was made by three people: Quattrone, and the heads of the Technology Group Mergers and Acquisitions and Corporate Finance departments.

The influence of investment banking revenue to the bonus is evidenced in an e-mail from Quattrone to Technology Group officers, including officers in the research department. The subject line of the e-mail included "Please submit your revenue sheets if you want the highest bonus possible." In the e-mail, Quattrone wrote in part, "Your trusty management team is meeting ... to determine compensation for the group...." The message then urged all the officers to submit a list of the banking deals they participated in so as to ensure a complete list for determining compensation. The emphasis on a research analyst's contribution to investment banking revenues, along with the influence of Quattrone and other department head in determining compensation, created a conflict of interest for analysts who were charged with the responsibility of preparing and issuing objective research reports.

e. Investment Bankers Evaluated Research Analysts' Performance, Thereby Influencing Their Bonuses and Compromising Research Analysts' Independence

From July 1998 through 2001, investment bankers who worked with equity research analysts on investment banking deals, in both the Equity and Technology Groups, participated in the analysts' annual performance evaluations, which in turn affected analysts' bonuses. This input from investment bankers provided a further incentive to equity research analysts to satisfy the needs of investment bankers and their clients, and placed additional pressure on research analyst to compromise their independence.

In 2000, CSFB investment bankers used a specific form in order to evaluate equity research analysts, entitled "Evaluation By Banking and Equity Capital Markets Professionals." On the form, investment bankers reviewed the work of specific research analysts under different categories and provided an overall ranking for the analyst.

As an example, in one section called "Business Leadership," an investment banker wrote of a research analyst: "Coordinates ideas in support of Banking Business; good commercial instinct. Develops and utilizes relationships with client Senior Management, including CEO's, in pursuing business. Represents firm well."

The conflict between conducting objective research and attracting and retaining investment banking clients was also evidenced in analysts' self-reviews. For example, one analyst wrote in his self-evaluation: "Trying to manage the research/banking balance. Particularly challenging for me given the amount of banking we do and our dominant banking franchise that has deep roots at CSFB."

f. CSFB's Technology Research Analysts Played a Key Role at Investment Banking "Pitches" to Help CSFB Win Investment Banking Deals – Including at Times the Implicit Promise of Favorable Research

Between July 1998 and 2001, Technology Group research analysts played a key role in helping to win investment banking business for CSFB. Once CSFB's technology bankers – with the assistance of the technology research analysts – determined that a company was a strong candidate for an offering, a technology research analyst assisted in CSFB's sales "pitch" to the company, in which CSFB would explain why it should be chosen as the lead managing underwriter for the offering. Quattrone described the relationship between the technology research analysts and investment bankers as follows: "[I]n many of the things that we did with our clients, both groups [Technology Banking and Technology Research] were involved. And the clients experienced CSFB, and in some sense both bankers and analysts worked together in a collaborative fashion to deliver service to a client."

As part of the sales pitch, technology research analysts prepared selling points regarding their research to be included in the pitch books presented to the company. They also routinely appeared with investment bankers at the pitches to help sell CSFB to the potential client. The Director of Research for the Technology Group, described the technology research analyst as the "star of the show" at pitches. CSFB pitch books to potential clients included representations about the role the technology research analyst would play if CSFB obtained the business. The analyst's written and oral presentations, and the presence of a research analyst at the pitch, strongly implied and at times implicitly promised that CSFB would provide positive research if awarded the investment banking business.

For example, in the pitch book for Numerical Technologies, the discussion regarding research coverage headlined "Easy Decision...Strong Buy," implicitly promising that CSFB would issue a "strong buy" rating upon initiation of coverage. In another example, in a Fall 1999 pitch to a different technology company, CSFB's pitch book stated that the particular CSFB technology research analyst who would cover the company "[g]ets it," would "pound the table" for the company, and would be the company's "strongest advocate." In addition, the pitch book stated that research analyst would engage in "pre-marketing one-on-one meetings [with potential investors] prior to launch."

In describing the "Role of Research," the pitch book provided a roadmap for the amount and type of coverage that the equity research department would issue in the first year after initiating research, including some research issued at least monthly, and inclusion of the company's stock as a "focus stock." The pitch book noted that CSFB's equity research department would also provide (a) "[s]ignificant 'front-end' effort to position the company's story in a prospectus and at roadshows"; (b) a "[s]ales force 'teach-in' to begin communicating the [company's] opportunity to investors"; (c) "active involvement on roadshow"; (d) "[d]irect follow-up with key investors after one-on-one meetings"; and (e) "standalone" company reports.

In another pitchbook, CSFB highlighted that it maintained the highest post-IPO trading volume in a company whose public offering it led while noting that other investment banks did not maintain similar trading volume for their banking clients. At the same time, CSFB highlighted that its research analysts maintained a "strong buy" rating even though the company announced results below estimates. In the pitchbook, CSFB distinguished itself from other deal managers who were shown to have reduced their ratings based upon that financial information. CSFB implied through this pitchbook that the firm would maintain positive research for companies that have entered into investment banking deals with CSFB.

g. Equity Research Analysts Were at Times Pressured by Investment Bankers to Initiate or Maintain Positive Research Coverage

CSFB investment bankers, including senior bankers, at times pressured research analysts to initiate or maintain coverage on companies to further ongoing or potential investment banking relationships. Bankers at times applied undue pressure on equity research analysts to initiate research on companies they otherwise would not have covered, maintain ratings they otherwise would have lowered, and maintain coverage of companies they otherwise would have dropped, but for the investment banking relationship.

In June 1999, CSFB's Technology Group investment bankers learned from a corporate official at Gemstar-TV Guide International, Inc. ("Gemstar") that the company was interested in conducting a secondary offering of its stock. Company officials informed the CSFB investment bankers that publication of research by CSFB was a prerequisite to CSFB being named the investment banker for the planned offering. A Technology Group investment banker informed the company official that CSFB would initiate coverage by July. The investment banker then informed the analyst of the potential investment banking business and noted that it was conditioned on CSFB initiating research for the company. When the research analyst informed the investment banker that other obligations, including administrative responsibilities, would keep him from conducting the necessary research in the time frame mentioned by the banker, Quattrone challenged the research analyst's priorities and directed that he conduct the review of the company on a more aggressive schedule.

On June 15, 1999, an investment banker in the Technology Group wrote an e-mail to the research analyst with a copy to Quattrone, stating that one of Gemstar's representatives had:

adamantly stated that there will be no [investment banking] transaction without prior research. As you know [another Gemstar representative] has also expressed this same sentiment with regards to working on CSFB. We informed [the Gemstar representative] that you intend to initiate coverage by July, which would facilitate a September offering. ... The main takeaway from the meeting was that there is an opportunity for a very large secondary offering in the second half of this year. We need research for this to happen.

Later that day, the research analyst e-mailed the investment banker, with a copy to Quattrone, stating that he could not even look at the matter for almost another three weeks, given his need to study for an examination. In response to that e-mail, Quattrone instructed the research analyst by e-mail to "take a day off from your test prep and go down this week or next." Quattrone then e-mailed the chain of messages to the heads of other Technology Group departments and another individual, noting that Quattrone was "trying to shame" the research analyst into conducting the due diligence and ultimately initiating research coverage of the company without delay.

Another example of this kind of conduct relates to Allaire Corp. ("Allaire"), which develops and supports software for a variety of web applications. In January 1999, CSFB acted as the lead manager for Allaire's IPO, earning more than $3.5 million from the offering. CSFB was also the lead manager of a secondary offering for Allaire in September 1999. The total fees for that offering exceeded $10 million. On February 19, 1999, CSFB initiated coverage of Allaire with a "buy" rating. CSFB continued to cover and issue research on Allaire until the research analyst covering the company left CSFB in April 2000. At the time of his departure when the stock was trading at approximately $130 per share, the research analyst had a buy rating on the company. Another research analyst was tapped to assume coverage of Allaire at that time.

The new research analyst's assumption of coverage was delayed and, as of early July 2000, the analyst assigned to cover Allaire had issued no new research on the company. In a July 17, 2000 e-mail to Quattrone, the Head of Technology Research, and others, a CSFB investment banker insisted that "[w]e need to do everything in our power to ensure that" the new research analyst "initiates coverage on Allaire." In that e-mail, the investment banker noted, among other things, that CSFB had received favorable fees and splits in connection with its underwriting services for the IPO, the secondary and another transaction and that Allaire's CEO was unhappy with CSFB's research sponsorship of Allaire since late 1999. In a responsive e-mail, Quattrone stated: "We need to make this happen asap." On August 14, 2000, a new research analyst assumed coverage of Allaire, maintaining the previous analyst's a buy rating while the stock was trading between $30 - $35 per share. A month later, on September 18, 2000, once the stock had dropped below $10 per share, the research analyst downgraded the stock to a "hold" rating.

On one occasion, Quattrone urged certain bankers and research analysts to threaten to drop coverage of a company in an effort to obtain the lead manager position for an investment banking offering. In January 2000, CSFB was attempting to obtain a lead manager position for Aether Systems, Inc. ("Aether"). When Quattrone was informed that Aether had offered CSFB only the co-manager role, and not the bookrunner position for the offering, Quattrone attempted to use his authority by stating in a January 29, 2000 e-mail to investment bankers and research analysts:

[N]o ... way do we accept this proposal. [P]lease discuss with me [and others] first thing in the morning. [W]e have agreed on the script, which is books or walk and drop coverage.

h. CSFB Technology Group's Practice of Allowing Equity Research Analysts to Discuss a Proposed Rating with Company Executives in Advance of Publishing the Rating Caused Undue Pressure to Initiate or Maintain Positive Research Coverage, and at Times Compromised Equity Research Analyst Independence

CSFB Technology Group allowed its research analysts to provide executives of companies for whom they were about to issue research, with copies of analyses and proposed ratings of their reports for editorial comment prior to dissemination. Technology Group research analysts provided this information, in part, in an attempt to maintain their good standing with the company. This type of direct interaction between analysts and issuers provided additional pressure on the equity research analysts and at times compromised the independence of the research analysts.

For example, on October 29, 1999, while preparing to re-initiate coverage for Razorfish, Inc. ("RAZF"), a Technology Group research analyst wrote to the RAZF CEO:

With icube about to close, we need to think about resuming coverage of the fish. I want your opinion on rating. We would have taken you to a strong buy but given the recent stock run, does it make sense for us to now keep the upgrade in our back pocket in case we need it? Either way, I don't care. You guys deserve it, I just don't want to waste it.

The CEO of RAZF responded to the research analyst, stating: "I think we should re-initiate with a buy and a higher price target and keep the upgrade for a little while.... Although its [sic] getting hard to justify the valuations."

In this case, the research analyst re-initiated coverage on November 3, 1999 with a strong buy rating when the stock was trading at $34. He reiterated and maintained that strong buy from January 12, 2000, when the stock was trading at $39 per share, until October 27, 2000, when he finally lowered his rating to a buy rating when the stock was trading at $4. The research analyst maintained that buy rating until May 4, 2001, when RAZF was trading at just $ 1.14. At that time, he once again downgraded to a hold rating.

3. CSFB Issued Fraudulent Equity Research Reports on Two Companies in the Technology Sector: Digital Impact and Synopsys. Those Reports Were Unduly Influenced by Investment Banking Considerations

The undue, improper influence that investment banking exerted over research analysts caused technology research analysts to issue fraudulent research reports on two companies, Digital Impact and Synopsys. Specifically, investment bankers pressured research analysts to initiate or maintain positive research coverage of these two companies in order to obtain or retain investment banking business. The analysts were pressured or compelled to compromise their own professional opinions regarding companies at the direction of the firm's investment bankers.

a. Digital Impact, Inc.

Digital Impact, Inc. ("DIGI") is a company involved in online direct marketing. CSFB acted as the lead manager for the DIGI IPO in November 1999, earning more than $5 million from the offering. Following the IPO, a CSFB technology research analyst initiated coverage with a "buy" rating. At that time, DIGI traded for just under $50 per share. Between January 2000 and April 2001, as the stock price declined to less than $2 per share, CSFB maintained either a "buy" or a "strong buy" rating on the stock.

In May 2001, after the original analyst had left CSFB, a senior research analyst in the Technology Group was assigned coverage of DIGI. At that time, DIGI was trading for less than $2 per share. CSFB assumed coverage and "buy" ratings in June and July 2001. Thereafter, the senior research analyst then met with the company and determined that he wanted to drop coverage of DIGI, noting that DIGI's "market opportunity was just very competitive ... and ... they were going to have ... a difficult time thriving in that environment."

The senior research analyst attempted to drop coverage of DIGI on two occasions. On both attempts, the senior research analyst acceded to requests from an investment banker in the Technology Group that he not drop coverage. In a September 4, 2001 e-mail, the senior research analyst informed two investment bankers of his continued desire to drop coverage of DIGI. That day, one of the investment bankers responded:

I think [the other investment bankers] will ask for continued cov'g on DIGI given ongoing relationship, good [venture capitalists] and CSFB led IPO.

Despite his own desire to drop coverage of the stock, the research analyst acceded to the desires of the investment banker and did not drop coverage on DIGI. The research analyst maintained coverage, and left the "buy" rating unchanged until October 2, 2001, when CSFB downgraded DIGI to a "hold" rating.

b. Synopsys, Inc.

Internal e-mail correspondence among research analysts regarding Synopsys shows that the pressure imposed by investment bankers on research analysts to initiate or maintain favorable coverage was not an isolated problem at CSFB. In May 2001, a technology research analyst wrote an e-mail to the Head of Technology Research, complaining of:

Unwritten Rules for Tech Research: Based on the following set of specific situations that have arisen in the past, I have 'learned' to adapt to a set of rules that have been imposed by Tech Group banking so as to keep our corporate clients appeased. I believe that these unwritten rules have clearly hindered my ability to be an effective analyst in my various coverage sectors.

The research analyst wrote that, after downgrading a company in 1998, his investment banking counterpart "informed [him] of unwritten rule number one: that 'if you can't say something positive, don't say anything at all.'" Regarding a second company about which he had reported in 1999, the analyst wrote that he:

issued some cautionary comments in the Tech Daily. ... CEO completely lost his composure and swore to the banker, ... that [second company] would never do any business with CSFB (another GS client we were trying to court). At the time, [the investment banker] informed me of unwritten rule number two: 'why couldn't you just go with the flow of the other analysts, rather than try to be a contrarian?'

The technology research analyst applied these "unwritten rules" to Synopsys, which he had rated as a "strong buy" from July 1999 through June 2000. Specifically, the technology research analyst wrote that he:

[s]uspected a down-tick in guidance coming and wanted to moderate rating from strong buy to buy. However, banking felt this might impact CSFB's ability to potentially do business with the company downstream. ... By following rules 1 & 2, I had successfully managed not to annoy the company, or banking.

Based on these incidents, the analyst concluded that he was "not naïve enough to lack a sense of appreciation of the role of investment banking (and banking fees) for the franchise."

4. CSFB Issued Research on Four Companies that Lacked a Reasonable Basis, Made Exaggerated or Unwarranted Claims, was Imbalanced, or Lacked Full and Accurate Disclosures

As to four companies, CSFB's equity research analysts issued research that lacked a reasonable basis for the claims made, made exaggerated or unwarranted claims, failed to provide a balanced presentation of the relevant facts, and/or failed to disclose important information about the company or CSFB's and its research analyst's relationship to the company.

a. Numerical Technologies, Inc.

In April 2000, CSFB acted as lead manager on the IPO of Numerical Technologies for which it received a fee of more than $5.4 million. Following the IPO, a Technology Group research analyst informed a company official that he planned to initiate coverage with a "buy" rating. The official complained about the proposed rating to an investment banker at CSFB. According to the analyst, the investment banker successfully urged the analyst, "against [the analyst's] better judgment," to initiate coverage with a "strong buy" rating.

b. Agilent Technologies, Inc.

In certain instances, CSFB equity research analysts maintained positive ratings in published research reports, while conveying a more negative outlook regarding the stock to their institutional customers within the text of the written research reports. In describing the ratings used from July 1998 through 2001 and beyond, research analysts did not use the same description of the rating as CSFB's published description. According to one senior research analyst:

Different analysts have different ways they would interpret a hold rating ... And I think it's probably fair to say that for a number of analysts, particularly because of the fear of backlash that we get from a company ... or ... that we get from institutional investors, there would be a hesitancy to use the "sell" rating. So analysts did have a tendency to somehow use a hold with more of a negative slant to it.

[T]he monthly review and comment we would verbally describe what we meant by each of the four ratings that I mentioned before. But there was a lot of latitude left to the individual analyst to kind of use the rating I don't want to say in a custom tailored way, but certainly there would be some judgment applied by the analyst in terms of how they would use this specific rating to their sector.

This approach manifested itself with regard to Agilent Technologies, Inc. CSFB was the co-manager for the November 17, 1999 IPO, earning more than $5.7 million in fees. A technology research analyst initiated coverage of the company with a "buy" rating on December 13, 1999. On July 21, 2000, the analyst reiterated his "buy" rating, while also describing in his research report that the company had announced that its healthcare business was likely to have an operating loss at least as wide as the previous quarter's loss of $30 million. The report reiterating the "buy" rating also disclosed in the body of the report that the company announced that third quarter earnings would be 18-22 cents per share, compared to the 35 cents average estimate of analysts polled.

The report also indicated that:

Agilent is rated Buy, only in the most generous sense, though in the short term we would only buy it on extreme weakness, with a 12-24 month time horizon. Our near-term concern is that problems are not typically resolved in one or two quarters.

CSFB maintained its "buy" rating until February 2001 when it finally downgraded to "hold." This came only after Agilent preannounced second quarter revenues and suspended earnings guidance for the remainder of the year, citing a "dramatic slowdown in customer demand." CSFB's positive rating of Agilent for an extended period of time despite negative news was cited by a research analyst in CSFB as an example of maintaining a positive rating while signaling negative news to large institutional clients.

Following the July 21, 2000 report on Agilent, a CSFB technology research analyst cited the coverage of Agilent to another CSFB research analyst who was facing some "tough decisions" on rating two companies that CSFB had helped take public. The first analyst noted that he wanted to give one of the companies a neutral rating but was "wondering how to approach this based on banking sensitivities." The other analyst responded suggesting that the analyst "ask [the analyst who covered Agilent for the July 21, 2000 report] about the 'Agilent Two-Step'. That's where in writing you have a buy rating (like we do on [the other company], and thank God it's not a strong buy) but verbally everyone knows your position."

c. Winstar

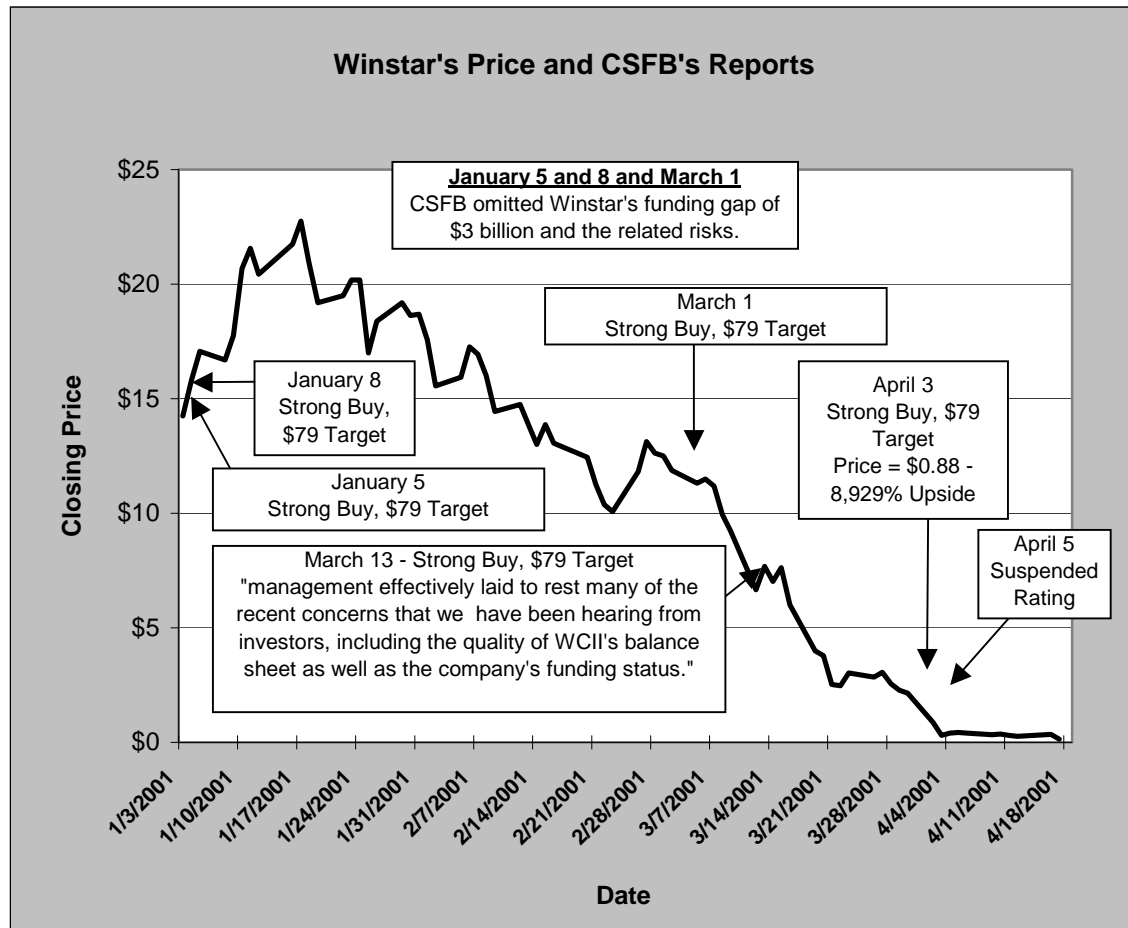

Winstar Communications, Inc. ("Winstar"), a provider of broadband telecommunications services, traded on the Nasdaq National Market using the symbol WCII. Winstar competed in the capital-intensive competitive local exchange carrier, ("CLEC"), industry with much larger, established regional Bell operating companies to provide "last-mile" networks to businesses.

Winstar never operated at a profit, suffered significant losses, and needed large amounts of capital to survive. As of September 30, 2000, it had more than $2 billion in accumulated deficits. For the year ended December 31, 2000, Winstar had revenue of $759.3 million, a net loss of $894.2 million, and ($9.67) in earnings per share. Net loss to common stockholders totaled more than $1 billion. On April 5, 2001, Winstar announced a scaled-back business plan and the layoff of 2,000 employees - 44 percent of its work force. On April 18, 2001, Winstar filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

CSFB, acting through two research analysts in its Equity Research Department, wrote and issued research reports during 2001 that lacked a reasonable basis for its target price and failed adequately to disclose risks of investing in Winstar. Indeed, CSFB's reports during this period did not indicate that investing in Winstar was risky. The firm had initiated equity research coverage of Winstar in May 2000, with a "strong buy" rating and a 12-month target price of $79. CSFB retained the $79 target price from January 5, 2001, through April 3, 2001, even as the stock plummeted from approximately $17 to $0.31 per share and the market capitalization collapsed more than 99%, from $1.6 billion to $30 million.

The following graph demonstrates how CSFB maintained a "strong buy" rating while Winstar's stock price fell:

CSFB Lacked a Reasonable Basis for the $79 Target Price

In three reports between March 1, 2001 and April 5, 2001, when CSFB suspended its rating for Winstar, CSFB's $79 target price for the company was not reasonable. The target price failed to reflect Winstar's deteriorating stock price, extensive funding needs, likely changes in fundamentals, and over-leveraged balance sheet, as well as the bleak capital markets environment. The target price of $79 per share represented unreasonably high returns:

- 3/01/01 -- actual price: $12.5000 % Upside: 632%
- 3/13/01 -- actual price: $ 7.6875 % Upside: 1028%
- 4/03/01 -- actual price: $ 0.3125 % Upside: 25,280%

From March 1, 2001 forward, CSFB's target price was more than 50 percent higher than the target price of any other firm covering Winstar.

Reports issued in 2001 also failed to disclose that the terms "target price," "price objective," or "percentage upside" did not represent the price at which CSFB believed Winstar stock would be trading in 12 months. Instead, CSFB used those terms to reflect the theoretical value of Winstar's worth in 12 months if a buyer valued Winstar using CSFB's valuation methodology. CSFB, however, failed to disclose that it was using the terms in this manner.

CSFB Failed Adequately to Disclose Significant Risks of Investing in Winstar

The January 5, 2001, January 8, 2001, and March 1, 2001 reports failed adequately to disclose the risks of investing in Winstar, particularly the risks related to funding, including Winstar's need to raise more than $3 billion to fund its business plan to reach a free cash flow positive status and the risk that Winstar might not be able to raise the necessary funds.

In a March 13, 2001 research report, CSFB again failed adequately to disclose the risks of investing in Winstar. While disclosing for the first time that Winstar needed to raise more than $3 billion, the report significantly downplayed the risk that Winstar might not be able to do so:

[W]e maintain our forecast that WCII is funded into 1Q02 While we currently forecast that WCII needs over $3B of additional capital to reach a free cash flow positive status, WCII management effectively laid to rest many of the recent concerns that we have been hearing from investors, including the quality of WCII's balance sheet as well as the company's funding status.

While CSFB research reports identified certain issues relating to funding, those reports did not adequately disclose funding risks or other concerns regarding funding that CSFB equity analysts discussed in internal e-mails. On February 8, 2001, a CSFB equity analyst sent an e-mail with a chart showing Winstar's cash flows. The e-mail stated:

this is FYI ... I worked this up to convince myself that wcii was indeed funded through FY01... I've included everything I know about for them over the next year, and it looks like they have $185M left at the end of the year.

Such analysis should have been included in CSFB's disseminated research in order to present a balanced picture of the risks of investing in Winstar.

On March 22, 2001, CSFB's senior Winstar equity research analyst e-mailed a customer, who had raised questions about investor concerns and funding in the CLEC sector. The analyst acknowledged in his e-mail that there were funding concerns.

On April 5, 2001 when Winstar's price closed at $0.44, CSFB issued a report suspending its rating. In the report, CSFB explained that the suspension was:

following the announcement of a major scale back in the firm's expansion plans but without any positive developments on the much anticipated drive to secure additional sources of funding – both equity and network capacity sales. Given WCII's lack of balance sheet flexibility due to approximately $360M of cash interest obligations in FY01 (growing to over $400M in FY02) and the current bleak capital markets environment, we believe that a significant balance sheet restructuring is one of the only situation under which the company can avoid more draconian scenarios.

CSFB had not adequately disclosed in earlier reports the concerns mentioned in the April 5, 2001 report.

d. NPW

CSFB at times had a proprietary interest in NPW that was not disclosed in research reports issued by the firm. Further, CSFB research analysts covering NPW also had personal proprietary interests in the company but the firm failed to disclose those interests in the published reports. The ownership interests of the firm and the research analysts created a conflict of interest that should have been disclosed.

NPW was incorporated in November 1999 as EMW Energy Services Corporation, a division of Enron Energy Services (a division of Enron Corporation ("Enron")). Until January 6, 2000, Enron held all issued and outstanding shares of NPW. NPW's business was to provide natural gas and electricity to retail customers in newly deregulated state markets while obtaining the gas and electricity wholesale from Enron. In January and July 2000, DLJ assisted with two private placements for NPW and received approximately $1 million in investment banking revenues. DLJ invested $42.5 million in the two private placements through its affiliated partnerships, known as the "DLJ Merchant Banking Partnerships," in return for approximately 9.7 percent of NPW.

On October 5, 2000, NPW conducted an IPO and offered 24 million shares at $21 per share. DLJ and CSFB were the joint lead underwriters and earned approximately $15.7 million in fees. After the IPO, CSFB, through its acquisition of DLJ, owned 7.9 percent of NPW, while Enron owned 44 percent of the company. In 2000, CSFB and DLJ combined received approximately more than $12.4 million in investment banking revenues from Enron. In 2001, CSFB received approximately $21.6 million in investment banking revenues from Enron. From October 2000 to November 2001, CSFB issued 18 "Buy" or "Strong Buy" research reports on NPW. CSFB failed to disclose its proprietary interest in NPW in four of these research reports issued to the public during that period.

Also during that period, the senior research analyst covering NPW held undisclosed investments in NPW. The senior analyst invested approximately $21,000 of his own money, which was leveraged 5:1 by CSFB, in NPW through DLJ partnerships that owned NPW shares. In addition, an associate research analyst who assisted in preparing the reports, and whose name appeared on the reports, held 200 shares of NPW from November 7, 2000, to June 14, 2001. From October 2000 to November 2001, CSFB did not disclose either of the research analysts' financial interests in NPW in the 18 NPW research reports issued to the public.

6. CSFB's Technology PCS Group Engaged In Improper IPO "Spinning" Allocations to Corporate Executives of Investment Banking Clients

Quattrone established the Technology PCS (Private Client Services) Group to be part of the Technology Group. The Director of Technology PCS had a primary and direct reporting responsibility to Quattrone with a secondary "dotted-line" reporting responsibility to the Director of CSFB's PCS Department. Technology PCS focused exclusively on the technology sector. Technology PCS operated independently of CSFB's other PCS brokers. The Technology PCS client base consisted, almost exclusively, of officers of investment banking clients of the Technology Group.

From approximately March 1999 through April 2001, Technology PCS improperly allocated "hot" IPO stock to executives of investment banking clients and improperly managed the purchase and sale of that stock through discretionary trading accounts. CSFB's Technology Group gave improper preferential treatment to these company executives with the belief and expectation that the executives would steer investment banking business for their companies to CSFB.

These executives profited from their allocations of "hot" IPO stock. During this time period, the share value of the technology-related IPOs in which CSFB served as bookrunning manager increased dramatically, with the average share price increase in the immediate aftermarket exceeding 99 percent. In some instances, the aftermarket trading was significantly higher. On December 9, 1999, for example, IPO shares of VA Linux Systems stock, which had a public offering price ("POP") of $30 per share, closed after the first day of aftermarket trading at $239.25 per share, representing a 698 percent increase over the offering price. Technology PCS began selling its clients' VA Linux IPO shares on a discretionary basis when the stock was at $227 per share. Technology PCS allocated 92,000 VA Linux IPO shares to 110 discretionary accounts. Within one day of the offering, the Technology PCS brokers sold 41,400 shares (representing approximately 45 percent of the Technology PCS allocation) out of the discretionary accounts, resulting in one-day realized profits of almost $6.4 million.

a. Discretionary Accounts were Established for "Strategic" Executive Officers of Issuers

Pitchbooks used by the Technology Group to win an issuer's investment banking business referenced the discretionary accounts. Consistent with those references and representations made at "pitches," an issuer had to award CSFB its investment banking mandate before the issuer's officers were afforded the opportunity to open discretionary accounts and given access to IPO shares by CSFB. Likewise, CSFB considered ways to reduce or eliminate IPO allocations to executives who changed employment and were no longer affiliated with those companies.

Once Technology Group received a mandate, Technology PCS established discretionary accounts for executives who were considered to be "strategic." "Strategic" was commonly understood by Quattrone and Technology PCS managers to refer to the overall business relationship CSFB had with the issuer, including potential future investment banking business. The head of Technology PCS defined "strategic" as "senior decision makers" at existing or prospective investment banking clients of the Technology Group who could influence their companies' choice of investment banker. The accounts were ranked based on the executive's perceived influence in this regard, and "hot" IPO shares were allocated based on the ranking. Allocations ranged from 1200 shares for accounts ranked one, to 300 shares for accounts ranked 4.

Technology PCS did not apply standard CSFB qualification standards (i.e. assets under management, trading revenue production, length of the brokerage relationship, etc.) for the opening of these discretionary accounts. Instead, the decision was based largely on the executive's position and influence at the company. Technology PCS established a minimum funding level of $100,000 that was subsequently raised to $250,000. Technology PCS also set $250,000 as the maximum level of funds with which customers could fund the discretionary accounts. These discretionary accounts were limited to the purchase and sale of stock purchased through CSFB IPOs. The account holders were not permitted to buy or sell other securities in these accounts, as a result of which Technology PCS turned away millions of dollars of potential customer investments. The number of discretionary accounts serviced by Technology PCS reached a peak in 2000 of approximately 285.

b. Technology PCS Allocated Shares in Every IPO to the Discretionary Accounts and "Flipped" Stock out of the Accounts, Generating Large Trading Profits for the favored Executives

The Technology PCS Group allocated shares to the discretionary accounts in every IPO in which the Technology Group was involved. Senior Technology Group managers participated in determining allocations to discretionary accounts and deciding for whom such accounts were to be opened. The overwhelming majority of those IPOs were "hot." Technology PCS personnel decided when and how many IPO shares to sell from the discretionary accounts. In some cases, all the shares allocated to discretionary accounts were sold for a profit on the IPO's first day of trading in the secondary market. In other cases, half the shares were sold within one or two days of the offering and the remaining half sold sometime later. In virtually all instances, the "flipping" of IPO shares out of the discretionary accounts resulted in the account holders receiving substantial profits with no individual effort and minimal market risk.

The table below provides examples of the extraordinary gains realized in these discretionary accounts and correlates them with the investment banking fees paid to CSFB by the companies with which the account holders were associated:

Acct #	Company	Position	Rank	Life of Acct. (in years)	Total Gain	Internal Rate of Return	IB fees to CSFB
RD1210	Egreetings	CFO	3	1.4	$585,000	335.98%	$4,678,000
RD1260	El Sitio	Co-founder	1	1.31	$1,015,000	950.24%	$4,911,000
RD1660	Next Level Comm.	CFO	2	1.25	$710,000	470.45%	$9,860,000
RD1930	Phone.com	Chairman & CEO	1	1.0	$1,285,000	268.71%	$80,720,000
RD2040	iPrint.com	CEO	2	1.15	$353,000	240.46%	$1,297,000

c. Unofficial "Performance Reports" were Developed and Distributed by Technology PCS Group Personnel to the Account Holders

Technology PCS prepared unofficial "Performance Reports" measuring the extraordinary performance of these discretionary accounts and furnished the reports to the discretionary account holders. These reports, distributed monthly, showed, among other things, the length of time the account had been open, the amount of contributions to the account, the total gain in the account (before fees) and the account's rate of return. These unofficial reports were meant to ensure that the discretionary account holders were aware of the extraordinary gains being generated for them through the flipping of IPO shares. Some show total gains over the life of the account exceeding $1 million. One report shows that in little more than a year and a half (September 19, 1999 to June 8, 2001), the account had a rate of return in excess of 3,800%.

Goldman Sachs has cooperated with regulators conducting the investigations by responding to inquiries, providing documentary evidence and other materials, and providing regulators with access to facts relating to the investigations; and

Goldman Sachs has advised regulators of its agreement to resolve the investigations relating to its research practices; and

Goldman Sachs agrees to implement certain changes with respect to its research practices, and to make certain payments; and

Goldman Sachs elects permanently to waive any right to a hearing and appeal pursuant to the State Corporation Commission's ("Commission") Rules of Practice and Procedure 5 VAC 5-20-10 et seq. with respect to this Consent Order ("Order").

I.

JURISDICTION

Goldman Sachs, neither admits nor denies the findings of fact and conclusions of law contained in this Order, but admits to the jurisdiction of the Commission and authority to enter this Order.

II.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. As set forth in greater detail herein, in general, during the Relevant Period, certain of the procedures and processes in place to insulate Goldman Sachs's equity research analysts (hereafter "analysts" or "research analysts") from pressures and influences from covered companies or investment banking were not sufficient. Also, in general, during the Relevant Period, in some respects Goldman Sachs failed to exercise reasonable supervision so as to ensure that, in the context of the procedures and processes in place, its research analysts were sufficiently insulated from pressures and influences from covered companies or investment banking.

2. Goldman Sachs is a leading global investment banking and securities firm that, among other things, offers underwriting services to companies seeking to sell their securities to the public. In addition to its prominent investment banking operations, Goldman Sachs also offers extensive services to its institutional investor clients and its private wealth management clients (principally high net worth individuals), has an active securities sales and trading business, and maintains a separate division to perform research on equity securities.

3. For the companies for which Goldman Sachs provides equity research coverage, Goldman Sachs analysts issue periodic reports and make investment recommendations. During the Relevant Period, Goldman Sachs's equity research ratings included four investment ratings:

Recommended List - expected to provide price gains of at least 10 percentage points greater than the market over the next 6-18 months;

Market Outperformer - expected to provide price gains of at least 5-10 percentage points greater than the market over the next 6-18 months;

Market Performer - expected to provide price gains similar to the market over the next 6-18 months; and Market Underperformer - expected to provide price gains of at least 5 percentage points less than the market over the next 6-18 months.

In addition, Goldman Sachs had one shorter-term rating:

Trading Buy - expected to provide price gains of at least 20 percentage points sometime in the next 6-9 months.

4. In addition to ratings, the research reports generally contained Goldman Sachs's analysis of the covered company's financial prospects.

A. INVESTMENT BANKING DIVISION'S RELATIONSHIP TO AND INFLUENCE ON RESEARCH DIVISION.Portrayal of Research

5. Goldman Sachs held itself out as generating and providing research reports that were the product of objective research and the opinions of the firm's research division. During the Relevant Period, Goldman Sachs disclosed various conflicts of interest-related disclaimers in its research reports, including investment banking relationships with covered companies.

6. The research reports and ratings of companies covered by Goldman Sachs analysts as well as Goldman Sachs's list of recommended stocks were made available to Goldman Sachs's institutional investor clients and its private wealth management clients, principally high net worth individuals. On occasion, the substance of Goldman Sachs's research reports, in whole or in part also was reported in the U.S. financial news media.

7. Goldman Sachs's equity research included formal, so-called "blue-stripe" reports, notes, and comments.

8. Goldman Sachs's research or the content of its research was disseminated by various means, including: by mail, via facsimile, distributions at client meetings, via e-mail, via Goldman Sachs's research Website for clients, telephone conversations by analysts and salespersons, and as part of analysts' appearances on television, at seminars, and at industry conferences.

9. The 2002 mission statement by Goldman Sachs's U.S. research department was: "Regain our pre-eminent status through independent, high-quality, differentiated product and service."

Research analyst assistance to investment banking.

10. During the Relevant Period, research coverage by analysts (including at Goldman Sachs) was a factor many issuers took into account in awarding investment banking business. The reputation of Goldman Sachs's analysts was sometimes a factor in winning investment banking business from certain issuers. Goldman Sachs's use of its research analysts for investment banking business went beyond simply relying on the reputation of its analysts; Goldman Sachs's research analysts assisted in evaluating and marketing certain investment banking business.

11. Frank Governali, co-head of Goldman Sachs's research for the telecommunications sector, joined Goldman Sachs in mid-1999. In January 2000, he e-mailed a former colleague at another investment bank: "It's been a good first 6 months, and its [sic] been very busy. There has not been a day when we're not involved with some deal, so I'm learning a lot more about that side of the business than I experienced at [the other investment bank]."

"Research alignment" process

12. In connection with making coverage decisions in the context of limited resources, Goldman Sachs implemented a Research Alignment process whereby the Investment Banking Division, the Equities Division, and the Research Division "work collaboratively to insure a strategic alignment of [Goldman Sachs's] business - that the biggest opportunities for investment banking and equities were being covered, that [Goldman Sachs] had the right Research resources in the right places, and that [Goldman Sachs's] Research reputation for independent and thoughtful analysis was sustained if not enhanced." In the context of Investment Banking, Research Alignment "insur[es] that companies of strategic and/or commercial importance to both IBD and Research are covered by an analyst and a banking team. . . . [I]deal candidates for coverage are those that are franchise defining, and/or those that offer a meaningful opportunity for significant revenue in the relatively near term."

13. Sector captains were appointed within investment banking to "coordinate all banker requests for Research coverage; work with IBD teams and ECM [Equity Capital Markets] to establish priority rankings within the sector and reach consensus with Research counterparts."

14. A January 2001 research retreat reminded analysts that investment banking sector captains were to "[w]ork directly with Research counterparts to agree on names and timing" of companies to be covered and to "[d]etermine IBD priority ranking of each company needing Research, including rationale and timing."

15. Representatives of investment banking and research met periodically to review companies that were candidates for research coverage. In May 2000, the heads of research reported: "Of the 63 companies highlighted which offered equity opportunities over the next 12 months or which were SuperLeague targets, 40 are now considered no longer active, 9 have been picked up by Research, and 14 still need coverage, based on recent banker input"

16. The Research Alignment process was designed to ensure that the various interested areas of the firm (including Investment Banking and Equities) had effective input into which issuers to cover and when to initiate coverage. Goldman Sachs states that the research alignment did not dictate the substance of research.

Goldman Sachs's compensation structure and employee performance review system

17. As with all professional employees of the firm, analyst compensation consisted of a salary and a discretionary bonus. Analyst compensation at Goldman Sachs was based on many factors, including, among other things, the level of compensation that analysts could command in the market for their particular industry or sector specialty - which might be impacted by the level of investment banking activity in that sector - whether an analyst was ranked in broker polls, Greenwich Survey, Institutional Investor, and performance reviews - which, as discussed below, often made reference to contributions to investment banking. Analysts received no formulaic or other compensation with respect to specific investment banking projects. Comments in some employee evaluations indicated that some analysts were involved in many aspects of investment banking-related activities and reflected certain employees' beliefs that participating or assisting in investment banking activities was a factor in measuring the analyst's performance.

18. Goldman Sachs introduced a new program in June 2000 to strengthen "firmwide marketing . . . including how we leverage our brand, advertise, and in particular, cross-sell" Strengthening cross-selling efforts was defined as a "top strategic priority for 2000." A $50,000 award was created to recognize individuals across all divisions of the firm who "cross-sell or help deliver a significant mandate to another business unit or division."

19. Goldman Sachs explored and took steps toward the development of a potential "Analyst Scorecard" in 2001, to measure the success of analysts' work, including "client contact and revenue generation," and "the analyst's involvement with IBD transactions, and associated fees [to be earned by Goldman Sachs]." In connection with this process, Goldman Sachs created spreadsheets, for each analyst, listing the number of investment transactions in which the analyst was involved and the total value of investment banking fees involved in those transactions. Goldman Sachs determined not to implement the Analyst Scorecard. Had Goldman Sachs decided to implement the Analyst Scorecard, the investment banking deals with the largest estimated revenues to Goldman Sachs would have resulted in higher scores on the Analyst Scorecard.

20. In February 2002, Goldman Sachs introduced its Research Pentathlon. There were five areas being measured: polls, stock picking, commercial, reviews, and culture. As part of the commercial measurement: "analysts [were] measured according to their banking and trading activity." Each analyst was required to identify those "announced or closed banking transactions in your sector that took place" during the prior period. For example, in a February 15, 2002, e-mail, an analyst was told to indicate whether he had "Introduced Senior Management to GS Banking," "Attended Pitch," or "Led Sales Call," and to "rate the scale of your overall involvement" ranging from minimal to critical.

21. All Goldman Sachs employees, including analysts, were evaluated as part of the firmwide "360 degree" review process. During the Relevant Period, analysts, like all other employees at the firm, were evaluated not only by supervisors, peers, and subordinates in the research division, but also by employees in other divisions and departments of the firm with whom the analyst had worked, including to varying extents investment banking and equity sales and trading. The evaluations that employees submitted during the 360 degree review process generally were anonymous. In most cases, even the analyst's supervisor who orally delivered the year-end review to the analyst did not know the identities of the employees who made comments about the analyst. The specific comments in the 360 degree reviews were not shown to analysts but certain comments may have been discussed or described in some cases. Rather, after reading all of the 360 degree reviews, reviewing other indicators of performance and taking into account his or her own assessment of the analyst's performance, the analyst's supervisor would provide an overall assessment of the analyst's performance.

Comments about analysts in the 360 degree review

22. Some employee evaluations referred to investment banking revenues on transactions in which the analyst had a role and to the fact that analysts might be involved in many aspects of investment banking.

- a. For example, one employee commented that an analyst was: "Very hard working, focused and eager to do a good job and win business." He said the analyst was "Becoming much more proactive about sharing info with banking. A good team player and very cooperative. Well focused on banking issues and GS [Goldman Sachs] business overall." Another evaluation of the same analyst commented that: "He is a great help to the Banking franchise. Always willing to impart his expertise and seems happy to take the time to explain complex strategic and positioning issues." A different evaluation of this analyst stated: "[Analyst] takes a high level of pride in his analysis and work, and has put out a number of carefully researched and well-written pieces which are definitely value-added to clients."
- b. An evaluation of another analyst stated: "She did a super job with the IB client as well as investors on the Coinstar CSO. . . . She became more comfortable over time that IB fee-paying potential should be a consideration in her list [of companies to cover]. Though [analyst] worked closely with IB putting her initial list together, [analyst] is fairly (sometimes fiercely) independent. I strongly suggest that she use the resources that IB offers as she works evaluating companies (e.g. when changing her [financial] model, please inform/consult the IB team)."
- c. A comment about one analyst stated: "Hard to say how much of poor investment decisions have been because banking drove the outcome." Another comment about the same analyst said: "[Analyst] has a very high integrity in her work."
- d. An evaluation of Frank Governali stated: "Frank is swamped and needs help. The demands placed upon him by his banking duties threatens the very franchise that has allowed him to become such a powerful banking asset. Frank is a very good analyst who is thoughtful, user friendly, creative and totally inaccessible." Another evaluation of Governali stated "his overall integrity is a strong feature."
- e. An evaluation of another analyst stated: "There are still times when [analyst] does not think commercially about a client. There have been times when [analyst] is going to see an important CEO target and no one from banking is even aware that he has the meeting." Another comment about the same analyst said: "His analysis is considered very objective and is widely used by clients."

Performance evaluations influenced compensation

23. Training for new analysts taught that their performance evaluation criteria included "Revenue production . . . [and] 360° feedback from IBD bankers."

Analyst business plans

24. During the Relevant Period, analysts were required to develop business plans that discussed a broad range of areas such as what the analyst's plans were for Global Research with respect to both products and services, what major investment themes the analyst would develop relating to his or her coverage universe, and what investor conferences the analyst had planned. One of the many such categories covered by the business plans was how the analyst planned to assist the investment banking efforts of the firm. As noted below, the business plans included questions that implied that the research analysts' contribution to the firm's investment banking business plan was part of their job. Business plan forms asked analysts to explain, among other things:

- a. "How much of your time will be devoted to IBD?"
- b. "Are you using/managing IBD effectively? How can you work more effectively with IBD to exploit the opportunities available to the firm? What specific opportunities do you see? Do you have alignment - do you have counterparts in IBD you work with to approach business in an integrated fashion? How can IBD help you in conferences, client meetings, etc?"

- c. "What stocks do you plan to add at current team size? . . . Have you discussed this coverage with relevant IBD, Equities and other users?"
 - d. "With which corporates do you have a better relationship with senior management than IBD does? How will you use that to enhance GS business opportunities?"
25. Analyst responses included:
- a. In response to the question: "What are the three most important goals for you in 2000?" one analyst replied: "1. Get more investment banking revenue. 2. Get more investment banking revenue. 3. Get more investment banking revenue."
 - b. Another analyst commented: "My two most important company specific research reports in 2000 will likely be the initiation of coverage reports of the two Latin American e-Finance companies that we may IPO this year." [An IPO is an initial public offering.]
 - c. An analyst expressed the view that "flexible/opportunistic research can be a big business driver for GS." In discussing "Lessons Learned," the analyst also stated that: "Reputational issues surrounding this business demand that we properly manage it" including "Independence of Research."
 - d. In response to the question of which firms present the toughest competition to an analyst and what the competition does better, one analyst remarked about the firm Sanford Bernstein: "Bernstein also gives us a run because they have equivalent manpower to what we have, but they cover only about half as many stocks and don[']t have any banking business. We just have an incredibly difficult time beating the thought leadership these guys are able to put back on the table as a result of that focus."

Analysts' assistance to investment banking

26. An August 2001 presentation to managers of the research division on Research Alignment states: "The individual company coverage provided by Global Investment Research helps drive the majority of the firm's largest businesses, from winning financing deals and advisory business to obtaining orders in the secondary market." The presentation also states: "the Research Alignment process was developed with the goal of quantifying, at the individual company, industry and sector levels, the available revenue opportunities to Goldman Sachs on both the Equities (trading) and IBD (equity issuance, high yield issuance and M&A) sides of the business." On the investment banking side, this assistance included, among other things, identifying potential investment banking opportunities, assisting in pitching investment banking business, and assisting in selling securities being underwritten by Goldman Sachs.

27. Analysts assisted investment banking at the firm by using their knowledge of particular industry sectors and companies within those sectors to identify potential investment banking opportunities.

28. An analyst wrote to an investment banker, wanting to "harmonize with you strategically" to pursue an investment banking opportunity with one of the companies in the technology sector that the Research Division wanted to cover. The analyst suggested offering research coverage of the issuer to be in a position to obtain investment banking business.

29. A widely distributed 2001 e-mail discussed "an Internal Use Only report for Investment Banking in the Americas highlighting Research views on potential investment banking activity in each sector." The "report will provide our bankers with a record of our ideas, and credit when our prescience leads to a transaction."

30. In October 1999, an analyst sent an e-mail thanking equity salespeople and private wealth management representatives at Goldman Sachs for arranging investors for a non-deal roadshow for company management to present a potential share repurchase to potential investors. The day after the roadshow was completed, the company awarded Goldman Sachs a mandate to repurchase 5% of the company's outstanding stock. The analyst told the salespeople and private wealth management representatives: "your efforts have already borne positive fruit" because "Goldman Sachs received the mandate for [this share repurchase] as a direct reward for the work you all did."

Assistance in making pitches

31. In an April 20, 2000, e-mail, an investment banker told two analysts at the firm that in preparation for an investment banking pitch to a potential issuer [Loudcloud], that the company suggested that the analysts "come prepared to SELL." The banker proposed that part of the pitch include a draft research report on the potential issuer so that Goldman Sachs could say "we are so excited about the story that we have already begun writing the report." The analyst predicted to the investment bankers: "WE WILL WIN THIS MANDATE!!!"

32. Frank Governali was credited by a Goldman Sachs banker as the determining factor in winning an early 2000 IPO for a foreign issuer: "Frank was fully involved in pitching this and thanks to him, we received a sole-book mandate with Joint lead of [another investment bank]." Moreover, the banker told other analysts "your input will be critical to the success of this IPO."

Assistance in explaining and marketing IPOs to institutional investor clients

33. Analysts often assisted in marketing the securities to be sold in an IPO. One issuer's "Lead Banker Selection Criteria" stated: "Need to understand commitment of senior analysts that they will be the 'lead' research analyst on the deal and in the aftermarket." This "commitment" was understood to include the following with respect to analysts:

- a. "Spending time personally with the CFO to refine the financial model and define appropriate IPO and ongoing business metrics."
- b. Assisting with the roadshow presentation.

c. "They personally will pro-actively market [the issuer] to the institutional community and be available on a regular basis to respond to institutional investor questions."

34. A March 2001 pitchbook stated: "Leverage the role of research in marketing the [issuer's] story."

35. An analyst commented about an issuer: "I have been out aggressively telling the story, and the volume has picked up noticeably." The issuer's stock had moved from $50 on August 2, 2000, to over $60 on August 25, 2000, the day of this e-mail.

36. Responding to complaints by a potential issuer about a downgrade of the sector, an analyst told the potential issuer: "Both [analyst] and I continue to view the [potential issuer] offering in these difficult markets [as] our highest priority, and remain committed to doing everything we can to get us to a successful outcome over the coming days and beyond. . . . We continue to use every opportunity including client discussions of the macro environment to highlight [potential issuer's] short and long-term differentiation against a lot of the public models." The analyst closed by saying: "Again, I want to stress that both [analyst] and I remain committed to the short and long-term success of [potential issuer]."

The time and effort expended by analysts to assist investment banking efforts varied

37. In self-reported time estimates for 2000, one analyst estimated he spent 40% of his time on investment banking-related activities while another analyst estimated his investment banking-related activities consumed 55% of his time.

38. Business plans prepared by analysts included an estimate of how much of the analyst's time not devoted to Research would be devoted to each of four divisions of the firm, including Investment Banking and Equities. In 1999, different analysts estimated they would spend between 5% and 75% of their non-Research time on Investment Banking, which included all merger and acquisition and financing activities (dividing 100% of their non-Research time among the four divisions listed in the question).

Research alignment effectiveness

39. Goldman Sachs's "Global Investment Research IBD Alignment Process" was summarized as follows in 2000: "US Investment Research appears to be on the right track with our IBD alignment initiative."

- a. "[R]esearch analysts, on 429 different occasions, solicited 328 transactions in the first 5 ½ months of this fiscal year."
- b. "Research was involved in 82% of all 'won business' solicitations."
- c. "Research was involved in 49% of 'lost business' solicitations."
- d. "Only 4.3% of all IBD 'lost business' was attributed to lack of research coverage."
- e. "IR [Investment Research] was involved in 31 mergers amounting to $56 billion."
- f. "IR was involved in 209 financing transactions not reported in MarketView amounting to $83 billion."
- g. "In addition to financings, US IR was involved in a significant number of merger advisories, solicitations, and other transactions which have either not yet closed or were not captured [in the] database."

Influences of investment banking personnel on research and the timing of research coverage

40. In at least some instances, analysts sent drafts of research reports to investment banking before publicizing them. An advance copy of changes to a research report was sent to two employees in the investment banking division for their comments "to speed up the approval process."

41. One analyst stated in a business plan: "Since our banking ties are so close to each one of the companies mentioned above along with the fact that these companies are direct competitors with each other, it is incredibly difficult to voice strong opinions in these sectors."

42. In early 2000, Goldman Sachs investment banking client "Ask Jeeves" expressed concern that Goldman Sachs had yet to initiate research coverage on the issuer. The issuer e-mailed Goldman Sachs's investment banker saying its stock was "dropping like a rock," and stating: "Our hopes were that a buy coverage from our lead banker might help stabilize the stock." Goldman Sachs's investment bankers complained to analysts who stated that "[w]ith research commitment committee approval and an improvement in the market, research coverage is imminent."

Discussion of research capabilities in Goldman Sachs pitchbooks

43. Some Goldman Sachs investment banking pitches included a discussion of the benefits the issuers would receive from Goldman Sachs research. In some cases, this included reference to Goldman Sachs research ratings for other companies covered by Goldman Sachs analysts.

Examples of pitches featuring the roles of analysts

44. An October 2000 pitchbook for GeneProt explained the "[r]ole of investment research analyst," as "creating the story . . . marketing the story . . . [and] following the story." A pitchbook for MFS Investment Management included a list of the various ratings provided by the analyst on the companies he covered, stated a "[g]lobal sales effort led by analysts," and contained a diagram of the role of analysts in an initial public offering.

45. A July 2000 pitchbook to Crown Castle said "Goldman Sachs has been a constant bull on the tower sector" and stated the fact that "Goldman Sachs has placed Crown Castle on our Recommended List, our Firm's highest investment rating."

46. Another pitchbook said: "[Goldman Sachs analyst] has sold more stock than any research analyst in the sector." The pitchbook provided a list of other companies covered by the analyst - none had a "Market Underperformer" rating, eight had Market Performer ratings, four were listed as Market Outperformers, and five were on the firm's Recommended List.

Goldman Sachs's investment bankers had input into research coverage decisions

47. Investment banking and equities personnel had input into decisions regarding the initiation and termination of research coverage for certain issuers.

48. On July 12, 2000, Goldman Sachs assigned a Market Outperformer rating for RSL Communications. By October 11, 2000, the stock had dropped below $1.50 so the analyst sent an e-mail to Frank Governali asking when Goldman Sachs could drop coverage of RSLC. Governali responded: "Good que[s]tion. I'll Call the bankers soon and ask their view."

49. An investment banker informed an analyst in 2000 that the head of research had approved "dropping coverage of Olympic Steel (ZEUS) and Birmingham Steel (BIR)."

50. In September 1999, an investment banker sent an e-mail to an analyst stating: "Our list for you to publish on from the IBD front is (in order): . . ." Five issuers were then listed (four of which were investment banking prospects).

51. A 360 degree review of one analyst stated: "Initiated coverage of . . . [two examples cited] promptly after being co-manager on the initial public offering. NOT picking up coverage of [another company] as the company stiff-armed IBD when selecting underwriters."

52. In another 360 degree review of an analyst, an investment banker stated: "we have probably pushed her into research on companies where maybe she shouldn't have been or we did not have the client firmly commit[ed] enough on business before she covered them."

53. In 2001 an investment banker attempted "to squeeze [an analyst] about accelerating the time frame for picking up [coverage on Time Warner Telecom]."

Analyst discussions about research

54. In March 2001, an analyst told her supervisor [Governali]: "I don't feel comfortable going on the call and pounding the table when I just can't come up with a way to justify the fact that [MFNX is] trading at 13 times 2001 revenue and I can't think of any catalysts except that it's fundamentally one of the best positioned companies out there and it's reaffirmed [its earnings] guidance." Governali responded to the analyst: "If you can't recommend it now, when it is trading at nearly all time lows, t]hen it should be pulled from the recommended list." The supervisor then listed multiple things the analyst could use to say good things about the issuer, concluding "while this stock may not soar in the next couple of months, it will probably bounce back a little, and over the next 12 months, significantly outperform. I'll call you in a bit." In the end, MFNX remained on Goldman Sachs's Recommended List until July - when the stock had dropped to $1.60 a share.

55. On July 21, 2000, Goldman Sachs was preparing to begin research coverage on Storage Networks. The analyst preparing the report said: "The [Discounted Cash Flow] tab of [the financial model] shows these revenues applied, and I cannot by any stretch of a variable come up with a stock price much if at all above the current levels." He asked his supervisor: "What do we want to do? assign a share scarcity premium? . . . Or do we just pick it up without a price target and an M[arket] O[utperformer]?" Four days later, Goldman Sachs initiated coverage with a Market Outperformer rating.

56. In August 2000, James Golob, the co-head of global telecommunications services, wrote Frank Governali, the other co-head, about the "anomalous situation where our sector has been tanking for 3-4 months and we globally still have a majority of stocks as R[ecommended] L[ist]s as that is all the salesmen and clients care about". Golob suggested that Governali at least consider the approach he had taken: "In Europe, we have found that honour is preserved if we have a stock as an M[arket] O[utperformer] and the companies can't complain because [it's] better than an M[arket] P[erformer]." Governali agreed, saying he planned "to re-rate most of the CLECs, which is where the problem is most egregious. The ratings were a residual from [a departed analyst], and I never changed them, not wanting to disrupt things too much. But, its ridiculous. I've already met with the bankers, and plan to move most of the companies down to M[arket] O[utperformer], from R[ecommended] L[ist] before [another analyst] takes over completely in September. . . . I don't think I would end up leaving only 7.5% as R[ecommended] L[ist], but the present 68% is ridiculous."

57. An analyst asked Governali in April 2001 whether she should adjust the "rating and price target" for 360 Networks since "it is clear that TSIX is worth 0." Governali suggested that rather than change the rating, they might "eliminate the price target." He expressed concern that: "Changing the ratings now is probably not a good idea, because from an outsiders perspective, who doesn't know anything, it may look like a belated ratings change . . ." Governali was concerned that CNBC might "[make] fun of [the analyst] on the air."

58. In August 2000, the issuer Mpower was included in Goldman Sachs's Recommended List. At that time, Mpower's stock price was dropping rapidly. The analysts described the stock drop as "a death spiral." One analyst questioned whether the drop was due to investor concern over management at the company. The analyst covering Mpower, responded that the price drop was "just the stench of reality wafting through the air." The other analyst felt some vindication over the price drop, commenting that Goldman Sachs's investment bankers had maligned him "for lowering the [price] target from stupid heights to the merely absurd."

59. In May 2001, WorldCom had Goldman Sachs's highest rating. Governali told his counterpart in Europe that he "would have loved to have cut ratings long ago. Unfortunately, we can't cut [AT&T], because we're essentially restricted there. And without cutting [AT&T], there is no consistency in cutting WCOM."

60. Also in May 2001, Governali told his counterpart in Europe: "2001 estimates among sell side analysts, and company guidance, are still to[o] high for most companies, and long term growth rate assumptions are too high." He said: "As analyst and company expectations fall, we can get more positive again."

61. In May 2001, Governali apprised an investment banker that an analyst at another firm had just downgraded LVL [Level 3 Communications]. Governali said he "share[s] many of the same concerns that this analyst has." At this time, and for another six weeks afterwards, Goldman Sachs maintained LVL at its highest rating - Recommended List.

62. In a March 26, 2000, e-mail with the heading "GBLX [Global Crossing] - I think they are bullshitting us," an analyst stated that the company's revenue guidance "does not make any sense. . . . I think the answer is they wanted to obscure something sucking cash flow out of the company. . . . They are hiding behind the complexity of their accounting." The issuer remained on Goldman Sachs's Recommended List.

63. One analyst's self-evaluation in a 360 degree review stated: "Has subordinated personal preferences on recommendations [citing two examples] for 'commercial' reasons."

Research ratings

64. The percentage of issuers being assigned one of the top two investment ratings (Recommended List or Market Outperformer) ranged from 72% in the first quarter of 1999 to 50% in the last quarter of 2001. The percentage of companies assigned a Market Underperformer rating never rose above 1.1% during this time.

In some instances Goldman Sachs terminated research coverage on issuers without first having reduced its research ratings

65. The number of companies for which Goldman Sachs ceased providing research coverage increased from one in early 1999 to 280 at the end of 2001. Some of these companies may have declared bankruptcy or ceased to exist during this period, while others were dropped because the covering analyst left Goldman Sachs. In some cases, Goldman Sachs ceased covering the company without first having downgraded its rating. A Goldman Sachs analyst asked whether this was the "proper protocol with respect to a bankrupt company."

Comments to institutional investors, internal observations

66. Between July 1999 and July 2001, WorldCom had Goldman Sachs's highest investment rating - inclusion on the firm's "Recommended List." As noted above, the Recommended List rating means "expected to provide price gains of at least 10 percentage points greater than the market over the next 6-18 months." In April 2001, a hedge fund customer that had a short-term investment horizon asked Governali: "wcom . . . buy sell or hold here at [$]20"? Governali responded saying: "sell." Three months later, Goldman Sachs downgraded the stock one-step to a Market Outperformer rating.

67. In February 2002, a Goldman Sachs analyst rated Time Warner Telecom as a Market Performer at a price of $11.75. Again, this rating relates to a time outlook of 6-18 months. On February 21, 2002, the analyst was asked by another hedge fund that had a short-term investment horizon at what price he would then buy Time Warner Telecom, the analyst responded: "$0.25," prompting a "wow" from the investor.

68. On June 21, 2001, the covering analyst downgraded the stock Exodus from a Recommended List rating to Market Outperformer. Both ratings have a time horizon of the next 6-18 months. Shortly before the downgrade, the analyst met with at least two institutional investors who e-mailed the analyst after their meetings:

- a. An institutional investor wrote the analyst on June 21, 2001: "I wanted to write a quick email to you to THANK you for your candor when you came into our offices and gave me your teach-in on the company. You gave me the unbiased view, told me the negatives I needed to know - - and basically gave me the ammo I needed to prevent my PM from buying the stock [Exodus]."
- b. Another institutional investor wrote the analyst the same day: "I really appreciate your straight forward comments on EXDS during our conversation last week. Looks like our worst concerns were realized yesterday. Fortunately, we were able to get out of our last piece at around $5 and avoid the recent carnage in the shares. Still painful, but it could have been a lot worse. . . thanks"

69. A comment about one analyst in a sales force survey said: "His investment recommendations have been abysmal and while I understand he communicates what he really thinks to a sele[c]t few, his public ratings have been an embarrassment to the firm."

70. In the 2002 analyst review process, an investment banking vice president gave this evaluation of an analyst: "He also understands how to shade his comments to minimize the impact of negative comments." Another commenter said about this analyst: "highly commercial yet maintains research integrity."

Draft research reports and expected research ratings were shared by analysts with issuers and Goldman Sachs's investment bankers

71. Goldman Sachs's policy permitted management of covered companies to review draft research reports "as long as any response is limited to correction of factual inaccuracies or general indications as to the accuracy of projections." Analysts were instructed that "the analyst's recommendation paragraph, investment summary, as well as any references to other companies included in the report must be deleted prior to distribution to company management."

72. Goldman Sachs's policy further permitted analysts to give investment bankers and covered companies a "heads up" on the rating to be assigned to a company after the market closed the day before a report was to issue. "You may convey the conclusions of [pending research] to IBD/Companies outside trading hours. For example, you can alert bankers and companies just before the Morning Call that you are about to make a meaningful change."

73. In February 2000, an issuer whose securities were being underwritten by Goldman Sachs [Net 2000] was engaged in roadshow presentations to potential investors. During the roadshow period, an analyst sent Net2000 a draft financial model for the company. The issuer then complained to Goldman Sachs's investment bankers that the analyst "did not build a separate model for GS in support of our roadshow . . . [and n]ow our concern is that while GS's current estimates fit within our forecast, there is very little room for error. Specifically, I am requesting that GS estimate a $60M negative EBITDA instead of the current $57M. Our proposed estimate results in only a 10% cushion. I think this will ensure that everyone's interest and credibility is protected." The analyst changed the model to increase the negative EBITDA, but not as much as requested by the issuer.

74. In March 2001, one of Goldman Sachs's Hong Kong-based research analysts was preparing to issue a sector report on the global underwater communications lines industry - predicting price erosion for companies in that business. An investment banker suggested that the Research Division get input from certain issuers "BEFORE this piece is published." Governali responded: "we wouldn't think of publishing this without direct input from the company and their review of the report."

75. In September 2000, following news of a possible merger between two large telecommunications providers, Governali wrote a research report on one of the companies. Because that company was on a list of companies for which Goldman Sachs was then providing advisory services (which could raise regulatory and other issues), he first "had to talk to our bankers and [a]wyers before it went out."

76. Goldman Sachs initiated research coverage of Amazon.com on November 11, 1999. The previous day, an analyst sent to Amazon a "nearly final draft" of the initial research report. The draft did not include the rating to be assigned by Goldman Sachs, but did include the analyst's evaluative comments and his financial models about the company. Amazon responded with requests that the analyst change some phrases. Most of these comments were incorporated by the analyst before submitting the research report to the firm's compliance department.

77. Goldman Sachs initiated research coverage of Internet equipment provider Equinix on August 17, 2000. A draft of the research call note that omitted the price target and omitted the Market Outperformer rating in all places except one was sent to the company by the analyst on August 16 for comments before it was publicly released.

78. In an August 22, 2000, e-mail, copied to an analyst, an investment banker writes: "[analysts] had a meeting with [WebEx] yesterday (which I attended part of). We discussed initiation strategy and decided that likely to initiate (probably MO, no price target) shortly with a note to be followed with a report by end of next week (given additional info from yesterday's meeting and desire to iterate a bit with the company). [WebEx] was more than happy with that approach as felt be beneficial to stock price to stagger good news."

79. On January 19, 2001, WebEx management wrote to the analyst: "As discussed, I want NO mention of any funding issues in this written report. I told you if people called and asked why your plan shows a need for modest funding, you can verbally tell them that management believes they have adequate funding and it is probably because managem[en]t has a less conservative plan than you do." The analyst responded, with an attached revised report: "The webx [sic] funding issues is a key area of investor concern, as such will remove any mention from the top section of the note, but will address it in a manner this [sic] is consistent with your recommendation for verbal responses to client inquiries in a later section. To exclude it completely detracts from the intention of the note, which is to address key investor concerns upfront and then give them a reason to buy the stock." WebEx management responded: "Thank you. This is much better. The other note said the company has a funding problem, but we think it isn't very big. This says that the company believes it has enough funds, but there could be a problem; and if there is it will be minor. Thanks again for the change." The research report was issued on January 22, 2001.

80. In April 2001, an analyst sent a draft research report to Global Crossing Ltd. in advance of public release of the report. She received "extensive comments" from company officials. The analyst wrote Governali that she had "included [the issuer's] extensive comments. . . I also said we had slightly smoothed the negative edge (emphasis section up front and text) from when they saw the report." Moreover, the analyst said she "promised them I'd re-email the final report tonight so they could see our changes." Despite all this, the issuer's officers were still concerned and wanted to talk to Governali "so that 'such an important industry report which is going to have profound implications' will be to their liking."

Goldman Sachs's investment banking division had input into the hiring of Goldman Sachs's analysts

81. Recruitment of analysts involved input from investment banking among others.

82. In January 2000, an analyst and an investment banker stated that because Goldman Sachs's research resources were inadequate in a particular sector, they needed to "[h]elp prevent Goldman, Sachs & Co. from turning away substantial revenue business." They proposed that a European analyst be reassigned temporarily to cover the U.S. sector until a permanent analyst in the U.S. was hired.

83. In March 2000, Goldman Sachs was considering hiring an analyst from a competing firm. The day the candidate came to Goldman Sachs to interview, his first interview of the day was with an investment banker.

84. An undated Goldman Sachs chart listed analyst openings in each of the firm's research sectors. For each vacancy, the chart lists a corresponding "IBD Action Step." For the PC Hardware sector, research was ready to hire a candidate, but had to "[c]heck with IBD team . . . comfort level with proposed analyst experience." In the CommTech sector, there was "[c]oncern whether IBD will be comfortable with 'development time period' (i.e., bringing up to speed an internal hire and resulting suspension of coverage)." In Wireless Services, one offer had been extended but, because the offeree also wanted to bring with him to Goldman Sachs two associates and one assistant, "IBD approval [was] required for the junior team hire. Equities is OK." In the publishing sector, a targeted replacement had been identified, but "IBD approval required/confirm with [investment banker.]" For Taipei Head and CommTech, a written offer required "IBD approval."

B. GOLDMAN SACHS SUPERVISORY PROCEDURES

Some supervisory procedures were in place, but contacts between investment banking and research were not adequately monitored

85. Goldman Sachs's policy permitted analysts to "respond to generic requests for company or industry information from members of the Investment Banking Division. For all other requests, the analyst should ask the banker whether the request has been cleared by Research Management. If the request has not been cleared by Research Management, the analyst must wait until the banker has the appropriate clearance before responding to the request."

86. In general, during the Relevant Period, Goldman Sachs failed to adopt sufficient procedures and processes to ensure that the interaction between research analysts and investment bankers or covered companies did not expose analysts to pressures or influences from investment banking or covered companies.

87. While one role of research analysts was to produce objective research, Goldman Sachs also encouraged some analysts to participate in investment banking-related activities. As a result of their participation in investment banking-related activities, those analysts were subject to pressures or influences from investment banking and covered companies. Goldman Sachs had knowledge of these pressures or influences yet failed adequately to manage them to protect the objectivity of the firm's published research.

88. Goldman Sachs's policies during the Relevant Period prohibited "convey[ing] the conclusion of pending research to anyone who does not need to know" (including bankers and covered companies), required that analysts only "disseminate material research . . . via a written product through the regular channels," and proscribed discussing "'material' pending research" which "could include initiations of coverage and changes in ratings, estimates, or price targets" with anyone outside the firm or investment bankers. On certain occasions, these policies were not consistently followed by analysts at the firm.

Some supervisory procedures were not adequate

89. The procedures or mechanisms in place to monitor or supervise communications (including e-mails) between investment bankers and research analysts were not adequate. Similarly, the procedures or mechanisms to monitor or supervise communications between analysts and covered companies were not adequate. Additionally, there were inadequate procedures or mechanisms to restrict, monitor, or supervise e-mail communications sent by analysts from their home e-mail addresses.

C. SUMMARY

90. Goldman Sachs portrayed its research as objective.

91. At the same time, the reputation and involvement of its analysts in investment banking activities was, at times, a factor used to solicit investment banking business. Analysts assisted in evaluating and marketing certain investment banking business. Goldman Sachs implemented a variety of programs that resulted in close cooperation between research analysts and investment bankers in certain aspects of their work. These included the research alignment initiative, consideration of investment banking comments in performance evaluations of analysts, development of business plans, a firmwide award for cross-selling, and analyst-created lists of investment banking transactions in their sectors. At times, analysts assisted investment banking by identifying potential investment banking opportunities, assisted in pitching investment banking business, and assisted in marketing securities being underwritten by Goldman Sachs.

92. Goldman Sachs research was subject to pressures or influences by investment bankers. At times, bankers were allowed to review and comment on research reports and pressured analysts about the timing to initiate coverage on specific issuers. At least one analyst felt it was sometimes difficult to voice strong opinions. Some pitchbooks to issuers described how analysts assisted investment banking efforts of the firm in preparing for an underwriting and assisting in marketing IPO securities. Issuers sometimes were told which analysts would be assigned to cover their companies and a list of that analyst's ratings for other companies.

93. Investment bankers had input into decisions regarding the initiation and termination of research coverage on particular issuers. At times, Research sought approval from investment bankers before dropping coverage and investment bankers suggested certain issuers that Research should be covering. In some instances, analysts dropped coverage of issuers without first having downgraded the rating.

94. Draft research reports and expected ratings sometimes were shared by analysts with investment bankers and issuers. In some cases, analysts made changes to draft research reports after getting feedback from issuers. Investment bankers also had input into the hiring of Goldman Sachs analysts.

95. Goldman Sachs did not adequately monitor contacts between research and investment banking. In some cases, the supervisory procedures were not adequate. The procedures in place to monitor communications between analysts and investment bankers or covered companies were not adequate.

III.

CASE NO. SEC-2003-00017
DECEMBER 4, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.

J.P. MORGAN SECURITIES, INC.,
Defendant

CONSENT ORDER

J. P. Morgan Securities, Inc. ("JPMSI") is a broker-dealer registered in the Commonwealth of Virginia; and Coordinated investigations into JPMSI's activities in connection with certain of its equity research practices during the period of approximately July 1999 through June 2001, have been conducted by a multi-state task force and a joint task force of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE"), and the NASD, Inc. ("NASD") (collectively, the "regulators"); and

JPMSI has cooperated with regulators conducting the investigations by responding to inquiries, providing documentary evidence and other materials, and providing regulators with access to facts relating to the investigations; and

JPMSI has advised regulators of its agreement to resolve the investigations relating to its research practices; and

JPMSI agrees to implement certain changes with respect to its research practices, and to make certain payments; and

JPMSI elects to permanently waive any right to a hearing and appeal under § 12.1-39 of the Code of Virginia with respect to this Consent Order (the "Order");

NOW, THEREFORE, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), as administrator of the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia, hereby enters this Order:

I.

FINDINGS OF FACT

A. Background

1. This action concerns the period of July 1, 1999 to June 30, 2001 (the "relevant period"). During that time, several JPMSI predecessor entities engaged in both research and investment banking ("IB") activities.

2. JPMSI is a subsidiary of J. P. Morgan Chase & Co. ("JPMC"), a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in New York, New York. Respondent JPMSI provides equity research, sales, and trading services; merger and acquisition advisory services; private banking services; and underwriting services.

3. Hambrecht & Quist LLC ("H&Q") engaged in research and IB activities until it was acquired by The Chase Manhattan Corporation ("Chase") in December 1999. H&Q was merged into Chase Securities Inc. ("CSI"), a subsidiary of Chase, and the merged entity engaged in research and IB activities under the name CSI and the trade name Chase H&Q. CSI did not publish equity research prior to the acquisition of H&Q by Chase.

4. In 1999, JPMSI engaged in both research and IB activities as a subsidiary of J. P. Morgan & Co. Incorporated ("JPM"). In December 2000, Chase acquired JPM, creating the combined entity JPMC. In May 2001, CSI and JPMSI merged, and CSI assumed the name JPMSI. Since then, JPMSI has engaged in equity research under the name JPMSI and the trade names J. P. Morgan and J. P. Morgan H&Q.

5. JPMSI is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission"), is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and NASD, and is licensed to conduct securities business on a nationwide basis.

6. For purposes of this Consent, the JPMSI predecessor entities that engaged in both research and investment banking activities—H&Q, CSI, and JPMSI—shall be referred to, collectively, individually, or in any combination, as the "Firm."

B. Overview

1. During the relevant period, the Firm sought to do and did IB business with many companies covered by its Research Department. Research analysts were encouraged to participate in IB activities, and this participation was a factor used by the Firm to evaluate analysts and determine their compensation. In addition, the decision to initiate and maintain research coverage on certain companies was coordinated with the IB Department and influenced by IB interests.

2. As a result of the foregoing, certain research analysts were subject to IB influences and conflicts of interest between supporting the Firm's IB business and publishing objective research.

3. The Firm had knowledge of these IB influences and conflicts of interest yet failed to establish and maintain adequate policies, systems, and procedures reasonably designed to detect and prevent the influences or manage the conflicts.

C. Research Analyst Participation in Investment Banking Activities

1. Research analysts were responsible for providing analyses of the financial outlook of particular companies in the context of the business sectors in which those companies operated and the securities market as a whole.

2. Research analysts evaluated companies by, among other things, examining financial and other information contained in public filings; questioning company management; investigating customer and supplier relationships; evaluating companies' business plans and the products or services offered; building financial models; and analyzing competitive trends.

3. After synthesizing and analyzing this information, research analysts drafted research reports and more abbreviated "notes" that typically contained a recommendation, a price target, and a summary and analysis of the factors upon which the analyst relied in issuing the price target and recommendation.

4. The Firm published research on publicly traded companies, and this research was distributed to the Firm's institutional and private equity customers. Published research was made available through mailing lists, the Firm's website, and subscription services provided by First Call. In addition, the research was made available to some retail customers of another broker dealer and offered via websites offering brokerage and investment services.

5. In addition to performing these research functions, certain research analysts participated in IB activities.

6. These IB activities included identifying and/or vetting companies as prospects for IB services, participating in pitches of IB services to companies, participating in "roadshows" associated with underwriting transactions, and speaking to investors to generate interest in underwriting transactions.¹ These IB activities also included participating in commitment committee and due diligence activities in connection with underwriting transactions and assisting the IB Department in providing merger and acquisition ("M&A") and other advisory services to companies.²

7. The Firm encouraged all research analysts to support its businesses, including the Firm's IB business, and in some cases, research analysts were expected to participate in the foregoing IB activities. The level of analyst participation in these IB activities was sometimes significant.

8. For example, in an e-mail dated May 23, 2000, and sent by a research analyst to the Head of Research at RESPONDENT JPMSI, the analyst requested approval to hire another junior analyst. The analyst stated: "I'd like to get yet another junior. The deals are really dragging me down, and I'm not spending nearly enough time with buy-side clients. Even though the market is crap, we continue to process deals in hopes of market recovery. I am trying to remove myself from the day-to-day production of research. I actually like doing it, but it's not what you pay me for." (Emphasis in the original.)

9. IB business was an important source of revenue for the Firm. In 2000, the combined operating revenues for JPM and Chase totaled $32.793 billion, and the combined revenues for the Equity Capital Markets ("ECM") and the M&A Departments at JPM and Chase totaled $1.687 billion.

D. Participation in Investment Banking Activities Was a Factor in Evaluating and Compensating Research Analysts

1. The compensation system at the Firm provided an incentive for research analysts to participate in IB activities and to assist in generating IB business for the Firm.

2. The performance of research analysts was evaluated by the Head of Research through an annual review process and, where not set by contract in advance, the research analyst's bonus was determined through this process.

3. The Head of Research evaluated the research analysts' job performance through responses to self-evaluation forms; surveys of the sales force; input from the IB, Sales, and Trading departments; consideration of market factors and rankings by investor publications; and, in some cases, written "team reviews" submitted by individual investment bankers.

4. The self-evaluation forms contained questions on areas constituting the major allocations of research analysts' time, including questions relating to participation in IB activities.

5. In response to questions relating to participation in IB activities, research analysts reported one or more of the following: their IB activities, accomplishments, and goals; their participation in lead- and co-managed underwritings; and the fees associated with IB transactions on which the analyst worked.

6. For example, the "Investment Banking Activities" section of a 1999 self-evaluation form queried: "In what way have you assisted in discovering or executing banking transactions (i.e., due diligence sessions, pitches)? Be specific." In response, a research analyst stated: "Helped put together and develop pitch books for KV Pharma and King Pharmaceuticals;" "Helping to come up with creative ideas and contributing to brainstorming sessions with bankers – ad hoc and in biweekly Monday meetings;" "Have a good handle on which companies will need financing in the near future and stepping up research efforts to ensure a place for H&Q on the cover;" and "Increasing responsibility in the office allows [another research analyst] to travel and be more active in pitching and winning deals with new companies."

¹ A "roadshow" is a series of presentations made to potential investors in conjunction with the marketing of an upcoming underwriting.

² The "commitment committee" was responsible for, among other things, evaluating and then either approving or rejecting the Firm's participation in initial public offerings ("IPOs") and other IB transactions.

7. In another example, a research analyst stated the following in response to IB questions contained in his year 2000 self-evaluation form: "Completed 21 investment banking deals, including 11 lead-managed deals. Biotechnology new issues have generated $70 million in primary fees in fiscal year 2000 YTD. In 2000 we were ranked #1 in healthcare common equity offerings by U.S. Issuers, raising $3.9 billion and capturing 21.9% market share." In addition, the analyst listed all deals on which he worked that were "Lead-Managed," "Co-managed," "Pitched," and "Pending."

8. The self-evaluation forms conveyed to research analysts some of the criteria used to evaluate their performance. As reflected in the IB questions contained in the forms, contribution to the Firm's IB business was an important part of the analyst's job.

9. In some circumstances, research analysts requested that individual investment bankers complete a written "team review" of the analyst, which was then submitted to the Head of Research. In these reviews, the investment banker described his or her contact with the analyst and the analyst's participation in IB activities, including pitch and underwriting activities.

10. For example, in a 1999 review of a research analyst by an investment banker, the banker stated the following: "I have worked extensively with [this research analyst] over the past year. I probably speak to her everyday [sic] on topics ranging from executing live transactions, evaluating potential business opportunities, drafting 'pitch' presentations, coordinating scheduling and marketing efforts across IB, and strategizing about the Internet practice. I consider [her] to be a partner in our building of the firm's Internet franchise and, as a result, probably work more closely with her than anyone in IB."

11. Research analysts sometimes provided reviews of investment bankers in conjunction with the banker's performance review. In these reviews, analysts described their contact with the banker and referenced participation in specific IB activities.

12. For example, in an e-mail dated Dec. 14, 2000, a research analyst provided a review of an investment banker. The analyst stated: "I've probably had more opportunity to work with [this investment banker] and observe him in action than anybody else in the bank. [The banker and I] have been in sync about where the quality banking prospects are so that I don't have to fend off garbage banking deals. • Built semiconductor banking practice from nothing: . . . [The banker and I] have built a profitable semiconductor banking practice, starting from literally zero four years ago. In 1999, we posted a couple of successes. With a touch more luck, we could have doubled the revenue potential this year. We are still banking the semiconductor sector pretty much the way we did three years ago, which means going after a dozen or so key prospects (split evenly between existing public companies and quality IPO candidates) and then doing everything else opportunistically rather than strategically. The message here is that we have not developed the semiconductor banking machine that our strongest dozen competitors have, and that makes it hard to gain market share." (Emphasis in the original.)

13. Based upon comments in the self-evaluations completed by research analysts and the reviews completed by both analysts and investment bankers, the two groups worked closely on IB transactions and shared a common goal of building the Firm's IB business.

14. The Head of Research reviewed the self-evaluations and team reviews and provided a verbal and/or written evaluation of the research analyst. The written evaluations provided feedback on the analyst's performance during the year and in certain cases highlighted the analyst's participation in IB activities, including the revenues generated by IB transactions on which the analyst worked.

15. For example, the Head of Research at JPMSI stated the following in the first paragraph of his year 2000 evaluation of a research analyst: "By every measure, [the research analyst] had an outstanding year in 2000. Most importantly, [he] led the charge in establishing J.P. Morgan as the #1 biotech shop with a resounding 21.9% share of the underwriting wallet in his sector. [He] supported 21 transactions this year, 11 of which were as the lead underwriter. The revenue attributable to these transactions is over $70 mm." Later in the evaluation, the Head of Research stated that the analyst's contribution to the Firm's "corporate underwriting business" was "enormous."

16. Comments by the Head of Research conveyed to research analysts the performance areas that were important to research management and the Firm. Based upon these comments, certain analysts were encouraged to participate in IB activities, increase IB revenues, and enhance the reputation of the Firm's IB franchise.

17. Research analyst bonuses were determined by the Head of Research in his discretion after considering several factors that contributed to the analyst's market value.

18. The research analyst's contribution to and impact on the Firm's IB business, and the fees generated by IB transactions on which the analyst worked, were some of the factors used to determine the analyst's bonus. If the analyst did not disclose in the self-evaluation form the fees generated by the IB transactions on which he or she worked, the Head of Research requested this information from the ECM Department at the Firm.

E. Investment Banking Interests Influenced the Firm's Decision to Initiate and Maintain Research Coverage

1. In general, the Firm determined whether to initiate and maintain research coverage based upon institutional investors' interest in the company and/or based upon IB considerations, such as attracting companies to generate IB business or maintaining a positive relationship with existing IB clients.

2. Regarding companies for which the Firm lead- or co-managed an underwriting transaction, research coverage was typically initiated and maintained for a period of time beyond the transaction.

3. The Head of Research was responsible for approval of the determination to issue, maintain, and drop research coverage. The Head of Research solicited input from other departments, including the IB Department, to determine the coverage preferences of those departments. IB considerations sometimes played a role in the decision to initiate and maintain research coverage.

4. For example, after the merger of JPM and Chase, the Director of U.S. Equity Research at JPMSI sent an e-mail entitled: "U.S. Equity Research Organizational Announcement." Attached was an internal memorandum "outlining Investment Banking Coordination Responsibilities," which stated: "One of the important duties of the Director of Research is to work closely with Investment Banking to ensure that research resources are appropriately aligned with identified investment banking opportunities."

5. In addition, the Head of Research requested that research analysts obtain from investment bankers lists of companies that the bankers wanted under coverage.

6. For example, an e-mail dated November 4, 1999, from the Head of Research to all equity research analysts, stated: "[T]alk to your counterparts in IB and prepare a list of the companies that they would like you to cover. Please be sure to have a conversation with the appropriate bankers before you submit your list."

7. Some research analysts and investment bankers actively coordinated the initiation and maintenance of research coverage based upon, among other things, IB considerations. This coordination consisted of meetings and communications by telephone and e-mail.

8. For example, a research analyst sent an e-mail, dated March 9, 2001, to the Director of U.S. Equity Research at JPMSI which stated: "[Another research analyst] and I have prioritized the coverage area in coordination with banking, and we are moving to a more targeted (no pun intended) investor marketing plan which leverages our combined coverage. We are clearly focused on building both the brokerage and banking businesses. We are actively discussing trimming a couple of the less relevant of these companies and replacing them with larger market capitalization firms which we can bank. In total, I would look to us to initiate on two non-deal related stocks this year, keeping the total names under coverage around the current level. In addition to two non-deal initiations, we have mapped out the year and have planned original theme pieces and other value-added activities for investors including non-deal related road shows. Banking: We already did KPMG, for which I believe we were paid $12.5 M. And we have been mandated as a senior co-manager on Accenture, another large transaction. Beyond these, a likely opportunity later in the year is Technology Partners International, an outsourcing consultant. We are well positioned to lead this company's IPO. [An investment banker] leads the coordinated banking effort covering the sector, and we are working closely with [him] and the other coverage bankers to bank existing companies and to identify quality early stage firms." (Emphasis in the original.)

9. In another example, an investment banker sent an e-mail, dated May 17, 2001, to a group of biotechnology analysts and bankers to arrange a meeting to discuss "coverage strategy." The e-mail stated: "On the heels of [a research analyst and a banker] leaving, we probably need to discuss coverage strategy. Also would be a good time to talk about where we might shake loose some business. . . . M&A ideas to pitch, IPOs coming in next wave etc."

10. In another example, a research analyst sent an e-mail, dated March 1, 2001, to biotechnology analysts and the Head of U.S. Equity Research that contained the following subject line: "bankers wish list for biotech research." The e-mail stated: Attached is the culmination of the survey of bankers – as a reminder, I asked them for 3 groups of names. 1. Companies we 'owe' research to since they paid us in 2000 and are not covered by research today. Most of these are from analysts who have left (on the H&Q side) and we haven't even had research take a formal look at some of these, which is obviously the first step for deciding on what to do. 2. Public companies where bankers have a good relationship and think we can get banking business if research is on board. The goal here is to have research evaluate the story as soon as possible, so we can either go full bore on getting the business, or re-assign bankers elsewhere if research is negative. 3. Private companies that are focus names—we'll commit to have research spend time with these companies as much as possible before the IPO to put us in the best position possible to win the books. Also, research is going to add their own names if some of their favorites were not mentioned by any of the bankers."

11. The following e-mails reflect the IB influences in the initiation and maintenance of research coverage as perceived by an individual research analyst.

12. In an e-mail dated November 2, 2000, a research analyst provided a team review of an investment banker that stated the following: "I have worked with [the banker] on the International Rectifier (IRF) account since around mid-1998 and he lobbied me very actively to pick up coverage so that JPM could go after the banking business, especially equities but also potentially debt, M&A, etc. My attitude initially was that IRF is a low-grade semiconductor company that would be hard to sell to buy-side clients, but [he] kept pushing the banking potential. Finally, I picked up coverage in December 1998. Then, IRF threw sand in our eyes by giving the lead to Morgan Stanley. We picked up coverage when they needed us most at the bottom of the semiconductor cycle and supported the stock enormously. When the plum banking assignment came up that would pay us back for our support, IRF handed the deal to MS, which had zero history with the company."

13. In an e-mail dated August 8, 2000, the same research analyst stated: "Given how thoroughly we just got screwed on IRF, [the Head of Research of JPMSI] is not interested in hearing stories about how if we initiate coverage, then we will be considered for banking business. He wants to hear that the banking business is locked up. We've been screwed too many times. [O]ur not covering IFX [Infineon Technologies] is a direct result of being offered money-losing table scraps in the IPO. I guess I'm still in the same old place. Initiating coverage of IFX some time in the next six months is no problem, especially as [a research analyst] is going to have to cover it eventually anyway. It doesn't make sense to have a European semiconductor analyst that does not cover Infineon." (Emphasis in the original.)

14. In addition, consideration of "investment banking sensitivities" was included in a discussion of the Firm's "Long Term Buy" ("LTB") research rating.

15. An e-mail dated December 29, 2000, which was sent to all Chase H&Q research analysts, including the Head of Research at Chase H&Q, described the stock rating system to be used after the merger of JPM and Chase.

16. The e-mail's subject line stated: "Public dissemination of coverage and Re-Rating your stocks—IMPORTANT." The e-mail stated: The guidelines for determining the rating are below. . . . Long-Term Buy: 0-10% outperformance of the relevant benchmark target within a twelve to eighteen month time frame. Shorter-term catalysts to explain the 'longer-term' nature of the recommendation, or in certain circumstances investment banking sensitivities, are appropriate for this designation." (Emphasis in the original.)

F. The Firm Provided Certain Companies With an Informal "Warranty" of Research Coverage in Conjunction With Investment Banking Transactions

1. The Firm typically initiated research coverage on companies that engaged the Firm in an IB transaction.

2. H&Q and Chase H&Q had an informal policy of providing certain companies with a "warranty" of research coverage in conjunction with IB transactions.

3. For example, in an e-mail dated November 22, 2000, and sent by the Head of eBusiness at Chase H&Q to the Head of Research at Chase H&Q and others, the Head of eBusiness stated the following: "I think that it is important to guaranty [sic] some level of consistent coverage for our fee paying IB clients. In terms of a 'warranty period,' I think that a period of 18 months would be a fair and appropriate coverage period, as well as a reasonable timeframe for a company to show progress and perhaps 'earn' an extension of coverage. During this transition period...we could offer more of a general, maintenance-only, 'no name' research coverage...[that] could be done by a 'team' of junior associates from both the IB and research side of the house as part of the 'pod' approach to a sector. This coverage would allow the pod to continue to maintain a relationship with the company, generating additional income from the account."

4. The Firm verbally promoted this warranty research coverage in conjunction with pitches of IB business to companies, and research coverage would be maintained on certain companies subject to the warranty.

5. For example, in an e-mail dated October 20, 1999, an investment banker sent an e-mail to senior executives at H&Q that contained the following subject line: "Follow Up on a Pitch Please." The e-mail stated: [Head of IB :] Please call...[the] Chairman of CCC Info. Services...Script: You know that [a team of investment bankers] presented to the board yesterday and that we are very excited about the prospect of serving as agent for a private round with financial and strategic parties and as lead manager on their IPO in early 00. Our pitch is...4. Best aftermarket 'warranty.'"

6. Also, in an e-mail dated December 19, 2000, from an investment banker to a member of the board of directors of Epicor Software Corporation ("Epicor"), the banker stated: "Just a heads up that the extended warranty provided for Epicor is running out." In an e-mail dated December 22, 2000, the board member replied: "not a surprise. thanks for sticking to the deal."

G. The Firm's Pitch Materials Contained Discussions of Research Coverage

1. During the relevant period, companies considered research coverage to be an important factor in selecting a firm for an underwriting transaction.

2. In certain pitch materials, the Research Department, and research analysts in particular, were described to implicitly suggest that the Firm would provide favorable research coverage after the IB transaction.³ The research analyst's reputation and industry ranking, statistics regarding the percentage of lead- and co-managed IPOs currently under coverage, and the Firm's "aftermarket support" were promoted in pitch materials. In addition, the Firm utilized "case studies" of companies under coverage that included charts comparing the dates of positive published research to the company's stock price. The case studies showed the stock price increases following the analyst's positive recommendation and/or placement on the analyst's or the Firm's "Focus Lists."

3. For example, in an e-mail dated February 23, 2000, an investment banker forwarded pitch materials to an employee of Participate.com to persuade the company to employ the Firm as an underwriter for an upcoming IPO and private offering. The pitch materials identified the research analyst who would cover the company after the IB transaction. In pages captioned "[Research analyst's name]: Authoritative Voice in the Marketplace," "case studies" were presented on the analyst's past coverage of two companies: Wireless Facilities and AppNet.

4. The case studies contained charts that showed the stock price increases following placement of the stocks on the analyst's and Firm's focus lists. The "Wireless Facilities Case Study" stated the following: "Chase H&Q adds WFI to Focus List: WFI gains 11.7% (1/27/00)." The "AppNet Case Study" stated the following: "Chase H&Q adds AppNet to Focus List: AppNet gains 7.5% (8/2/99)...While on [the research analyst's] Focus List, AppNet appreciates 309% (8/2/99-10/26/99)."

5. Also presented were excerpts of positive commentary by the research analyst that accompanied the Buy ratings and/or placement on the focus lists.

H. Research Analysts Were Visible on Stocks to Generate Investment Banking Business

1. Research analysts were encouraged to increase their visibility, or level of communication, on certain stocks to generate IB business.

2. Lists of stocks were distributed to various departments at the Firm, including the Research Department.

3. The "ECM [Equity Capital Markets] target list" contained stocks of companies from which the Firm was seeking IB business during the next eighteen (18) months.

4. The "trading focus list" contained stocks of companies from which the Firm was seeking IB or underwriting business during the next three months.

5. The Research Department and other departments were at times encouraged to increase the trading volume of the stocks on the lists for IB purposes.

6. The following e-mail, dated May 11, 2001, and sent from an investment banker to individuals on the "IB ebusiness" distribution list, explains the rationale for the two lists: "The criteria for being on the [ECM target] list is...potential equity business over the next 18 months where we would like to target the resources of the firm to win the books. Our objective is to make sure we are being as proactive as possible from an equity perspective, and focusing the equity resources of the firm on these targets to help you win the books for these transactions. The criteria for being placed on the trading focus list is an investment banking event with [sic] the NEXT THREE MONTHS. This investment banking list could be an m&a event or an equity event. In cases where the investment banking event will occur far in advance, our first approach is to work with the traders, analysts and sales traders to increase our trading activity naturally, before we start spending the firm's capital." (Emphasis in the original.)

³ "Pitch materials" are the written materials provided to the management of an issuer in conjunction with the Firm's pitch or presentation of its strengths and capabilities in conducting an upcoming IPO or other IB transaction.

7. Trading rank was important to a company's choice of a firm for IB transactions, and the Firm's trading rank was often promoted in pitch materials provided to potential IB clients.

8. For example, pitch materials provided in conjunction with the AppNet IPO contained a section entitled, "Commitment to Corporate Clients Delivers Institutional Credibility and Trading Strength." There, H&Q's Autex trading rank is identified as "#1," "#2," "#3," and "#4" in the stocks of specific companies that engaged H&Q for an IPO.

9. Certain research analysts were encouraged to increase their visibility, or level of communication, on stocks contained in the lists.

10. For example, in an e-mail dated September 27, 2000, from an investment banker, to a research analyst and others, the banker forwarded September's focus list and stated: "The list is okay but we are falling way short on a few names. Vicinity we are not AT [sic] the goal, we are below the goal for the past two months. This is a problem. On Intertrust and Mypoints, we are not even close to our targets. Less critical, but we need to do a better job. Concord EFS paid us $5 MM last year and we are the #18 trader of that stock. Also disappointing...[Y]ou [research analyst] need to get more visible on these names with the salespeople so that trading doesn't have that excuse to hide behind."

I. Payments for Research

1. During the relevant period, H&Q and Chase H&Q made seven payments totaling $1,312,500 for research issued in conjunction with five underwriting transactions in which the Firm was a lead- or co-manager.

2. H&Q and Chase H&Q made these payments for research without disclosing or ensuring their disclosure in offering documents or elsewhere.

J. The Firm Failed to Adequately Supervise Its Research and Investment Banking Departments

1. While the role of research analysts was to produce objective research, the Firm also encouraged them to participate in IB activities.

2. In addition, the Research and IB Departments had a formal connection within the Firm's organizational structure. From February to December 2000 at JPMSI, the Head of Research had a dual reporting line to both the Head of Equities and the Head of Investment Banking.

3. Also, in 2000 at Chase H&Q, research analysts were organized and placed into "Analyst Sub-pods" for purposes of managing and monitoring their IB activities. Research analysts reported to "Sub-pod Managers," who were investment bankers and were responsible for the day-to-day coordination of the research analysts' IB activities.

4. The Analyst Sub-pod system for Chase H&Q "Internet Research and Banking" is explained in a May 2000 Chase H&Q interoffice memorandum which contained a "coordination chart." In the chart, the Analyst Sub-pods had a direct reporting line to the Sub-pod Managers. The memorandum stated the following: "The 'Analyst Sub-pod' is the organizational engine for all that we do." Sub-pod Managers, who were investment bankers, were responsible for the "pipeline management and...the day-to-day coordination of the particular analyst as it relates to investment banking activity. The Sub-pod Manager is not responsible for executing all of that particular analyst's transactions, but is responsible for ensuring that appropriate resources are allocated. As such, the Sub-pod Manager should expect to spend a majority of his time banking the Sub-pod Analyst with the balance of his time spent banking other analysts as the demands of the business require it." (Emphasis in the original.)

5. The Analyst Sub-pod system was created to provide "enhanced coordination between Banking and Research."

6. As a result of the foregoing, research analysts were subject to IB influences and conflicts of interest between supporting the Firm's IB business and publishing objective research. The Firm had knowledge of these IB influences and conflicts of interest yet failed to manage them adequately to protect the objectivity of published research.

7. The Firm failed to establish and maintain adequate policies, systems, and procedures reasonably designed to ensure the objectivity of its published research. Although the Firm had some policies governing research analysts' activities during the relevant period, these policies were inadequate and did not address the IB influences and conflicts of interest that existed.

II.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The State Corporation Commission ("Commission") has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia.

2. The Commission finds that JPMSI failed to establish and enforce written supervisory procedures reasonably designed to ensure that analysts were not unduly influenced by investment banking concerns in violation of Securities Rule ("Rule") 21 VAC 5-20-260.

3. The Commission finds that JPMSI engaged in acts and practices that created or maintained inappropriate influence by the IB Department over research analysts, therefore imposing conflicts of interest on its research analysts, and failing to manage these conflicts in an adequate or appropriate manner in violation of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12.

4. The Commission finds that JPMSI made payments for research to other broker-dealers not involved in an underwriting transaction when the Firm knew that these payments were made, at least in part, for research coverage, and by failing to disclose or cause to be disclosed in offering documents or elsewhere the fact of such payments constituted a violation of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12.

5. The Commission finds the following relief appropriate and in the public interest.

III.

ORDER

On the basis of the Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law, and JPMSI's consent to the entry of this Order, for the sole purpose of settling this matter, prior to a hearing and without admitting the Findings of Facts or Conclusions of Law;

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

This Order concludes the investigation by the Commission's Division of Securities and Retail Franchising ("Division") and any other action that the Division could commence under applicable law on behalf of the Commonwealth of Virginia as it relates to JPMSI, relating to certain research practices at JPMSI.

2. JPMSI will refrain from violating Rule 21 VAC 5-20-260 and 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12 in connection with the research practices referenced in this Order and will comply with Rule 21 VAC 5-20-260 and 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12 in connection with the research practices referenced in this Order.

3. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that:

As a result of the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law contained in this Order, JPMSI shall pay a total amount of $80,000,000.00. This total amount shall be paid as specified in the SEC Final Judgment as follows:

$25,000,000 to the states (50 states, plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico). Upon execution of this Order, JPMSI shall pay the sum of $545,408.00 of this amount to the Treasurer of the Commonwealth as a civil monetary penalty pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Act. The total amount to be paid by JPMSI to state securities regulators pursuant to the state settlement offer may be reduced due to the decision of any state securities regulator not to accept the state settlement offer. In the event another state securities regulator determines not to accept JPMSI's state settlement offer, the total amount of the Virginia payment shall not be affected, and shall remain at $545,408.00;

$25,000,000 as disgorgement of commissions, fees and other monies as specified in the SEC Final Judgment;

$25,000,000, to be used for the procurement of independent research, as described in the SEC Final Judgment;

$5,000,000, to be used for investor education, as described in Addendum A, incorporated by reference herein.

JPMSI agrees that it shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification, including, but not limited to payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to all penalty amounts that JPMSI shall pay pursuant to this Order or Section II of the SEC Final Judgment, regardless of whether such penalty amounts or any part thereof are added to the Distribution Fund Account referred to in the SEC Final Judgment or otherwise used for the benefit of investors. JPMSI further agrees that it shall not claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax for any penalty amounts that JPMSI shall pay pursuant to this Order or Section II of the SEC Final Judgment, regardless of whether such penalty amounts or any part thereof are added to the Distribution Fund Account referred to in the SEC Final Judgment or otherwise used for the benefit of investors. JPMSI understands and acknowledges that these provisions are not intended to imply that Virginia would agree that any other amounts JPMSI shall pay pursuant to the SEC Final Judgment may be reimbursed or indemnified (whether pursuant to an insurance policy or otherwise) under applicable law or may be the basis for any tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax.

JPMSI shall comply with the undertakings of Addendum A, incorporated herein by reference.

If payment is not made by JPMSI or if JPMSI defaults in any of its obligations set forth in this Order, the Commission may vacate this Order, at its sole discretion, upon 10 days written notice to JPMSI and without opportunity for administrative hearing.

4. This Order is not intended by the Commission to subject any Covered Person to any disqualifications under the laws of any state, the District of Columbia or Puerto Rico (collectively, "State"), including, without limitation, any disqualifications from relying upon the State registration exemptions or State safe harbor provisions. "Covered Person" means JPMSI, or any of its officers, directors, affiliates, current or former employees, or other persons that would otherwise be disqualified as a result of the Orders (as defined below).

5. This Order constitutes and includes a waiver by the Commission of any and all limitations and disqualifications that may ensue from the entry of this Order that would otherwise affect, restrict or limit the business of JPMSI and its predecessors, subsidiaries and affiliates or their ability to participate in offerings or avail themselves of exemptions, including, without limitation, the Uniform Limited Offering Exemption, as and to the extent now or hereafter adopted by the Commission.

6. This Order is not intended to prohibit JPMSI from acting as an underwriter, broker, dealer, investment adviser, municipal securities dealer, transfer agent, or entity of person required to be registered under the Commodity Exchange Act, or as an affiliated person of any investment company, bank, insurance company, or entity or person required to be registered under the Commodity Exchange Act, or from engaging in or continuing any conduct or practice in connection with any such activity or in connection with the purchase or sale of any security.

7. The SEC Final Judgment, the NYSE Stipulation and Consent, the NASD Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent, this Order and the order of any other State in related proceedings against JPMSI (collectively, the "Orders") shall not disqualify any Covered Person from any business that they otherwise are qualified, licensed or permitted to perform under applicable law of Virginia and any disqualifications from relying upon this state's registration exemptions or safe harbor provisions that arise from the Orders are hereby waived.

8. For any person or entity not a party to this Order, this Order does not limit or create any private rights or remedies against JPMSI including, without limitation, the use of any e-mails or other documents of JPMSI or of others regarding research practices, or limit or create liability of JPMSI or limit or create defenses of JPMSI to any claims.

9. Nothing herein shall preclude the Commonwealth of Virginia, its departments, agencies, boards, commissions, authorities, political subdivisions and corporations, other than the Commission and only to the extent set forth in paragraph 1 above (collectively, "State Entities") and the officers, agents or employees of State Entities from asserting any claims, causes of action, or applications for compensatory, nominal and/or punitive damages, or administrative, civil, criminal, or injunctive relief, against JPMSI in connection with certain research practices at JPMSI.

DECEMBER 11, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.

DEFENDANTS

1. Defendant has been a broker-dealer registered with the Commission's Division of Securities and Retail Franchising since October 1, 1964. It is a wholly owned subsidiary of Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc., a Delaware corporation. The firm is a member of all principal securities and commodity exchanges, as well as the NASD. Lehman's principal offices are located at 745 Seventh Avenue, New York, New York. Lehman provides the full range of services offered by a multi-purpose investment bank, including equity and fixed income sales, trading and research, investment banking, private equity and private client sales.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

I. BACKGROUND

A. The Investment Banking Function at Lehman

2. Lehman is a global investment bank providing financial advisory, capital markets, and underwriting services, among other services, to its clients. From at least July 1999, through at least June 2001, Lehman's investment banking department ("Investment Banking"), among other activities, engaged in securities offerings, including initial public offerings ("IPOs"), secondary offerings and debt financings, and provided merger and acquisition and other advisory services for its clients.

3. From at least July 1999 through at least June 2001, Lehman competed vigorously with other investment banks to be selected as the lead manager for securities offerings, in part because of the financial rewards associated with that role. In addition, Lehman hoped to gain ongoing transactional and advisory work from existing and potential clients, including secondary offerings and financial advisory arrangements. In 2001, Lehman served as lead manager for sixty-six equity deals, and earned approximately $1.3 billion from underwriting services.

B. Lehman's Global Equity Research Department

4. During 1999 and 2000, Lehman's Equity Research Department ("Research") employed approximately 400 people and expanded to 600 employees in 2001, including approximately 100 senior research analysts and 200 junior research analysts. During 2001, Research covered approximately 80 industries and approximately 900 U.S. companies. Senior research analysts in the United States reported to the Director of U.S. Equity Research, who reported to the Managing Director of Global Equity Research.

5. Research analysts collect financial and other information about a company and its industry, analyze that information, and develop recommendations and ratings regarding a company's securities. In addition, research analysts also examine the financial condition of selected publicly traded companies that are believed to be of potential investment value. Lehman analysts also make evaluations of companies' expected earnings, revenue and cash flow, operating and financial strengths and weaknesses, and long term viability and dividend potential. Lehman analysts produced written research materials including research reports and First Call notes regarding companies and industry sectors.

6. Lehman's research was distributed to both institutional clients and retail investors. Lehman distributed its research product directly to its own client base, comprised of institutional investors and high net worth individual retail investors. In June 1999, Lehman entered into a "strategic alliance" with Fidelity Investments. Among other things, the "strategic alliance" provided Fidelity's retail customers with access to Lehman's research, along with other independent research. Lehman also sold its research product to other broker-dealers that in turn provided the research to their retail customers. Lehman also made its research available to the public through services such as Thomson Financial/First Call and Multex.com, Inc. Ratings of Lehman's analysts were freely and publicly available to retail clients through a number of media outlets.

7. At the top of its research reports that were devoted to specific stocks, Lehman assigned to the stock a "rank" according to a 5-point scale reflecting how the analyst believed the stock would perform relative to the market generally. During the period June 1999, through December 2000, Research used the following ratings: 1-Buy (expected to outperform the market by 15 or more percentage points), 2-Outperform (expected to outperform the market by 5-15 percentage points), 3-Neutral (expected to perform in line with the market, plus or minus 5 percentage points), 4-Underperform (expected to underperform the market by 5 –15 percentage points), 5 – Sell (expected to underperform the market by 15 or more percentage points). In January 2001, Lehman changed the names of these ratings to 1-Strong Buy, 2-Buy, 3-Market Perform, 4-Market Underperform and -Sell. The definitions remained the same. The definitions for the ratings were provided to Lehman clients on a monthly basis. Commencing in March 2001, the definitions appeared on all of Lehman's research reports.

8. Although Lehman purported to rank stocks according to a 5-point scale, in fact, during the relevant period Lehman analysts never assigned a 5-Sell rating to a domestic company and almost never assigned a 4-Underperform to a stock.

9. Lehman's research reports also assigned to the stock a price target designed to reflect the price at which the analyst believed the stock would trade within a time period that was identified in some reports and unidentified in others. Commencing in March 2001, the relevant time period for the price target appeared in Lehman's research reports.

II. LEHMAN'S RESEARCH ANALYSTS WERE SUBJECTED TO CONFLICTS OF INTEREST ARISING FROM LEHMAN'S USE OF RESEARCH TO OBTAIN INVESTMENT BANKING BUSINESS

10. Lehman held out its research analysts as providing independent recommendations and analysis of companies and stocks upon which investors could rely in reaching investment decisions. Lehman promoted its research for the "quality and timeliness of its investment recommendations."

11. In fact, Lehman's research analysts were, at times, subjected to conflicts of interest arising from the close relationship between Research and Investment Banking. Such conflicts of interest, at times, adversely impacted the independence of Lehman's public stock recommendations.

A. Lehman Used Research To Obtain Investment Banking Business

12. Analysts worked closely with members of Investment Banking and other departments to generate business for Lehman. Analysts often worked with Investment Banking to identify corporate finance opportunities and to win corporate finance business for Lehman, including identifying private companies appropriate for an IPO, as well as identifying possible transactions, such as secondary offerings or debt financings, once a company had completed an IPO. To this end, analysts were expected to have yearly target and alignment meetings with their Investment Banking counterparts.

13. Lehman aligned its analysts with an Investment Banking team. Analysts' responsibilities included providing research to their Investment Banking counterparts so that the bankers could leverage the research product into a full service relationship with a company.

14. Recognizing the strategic importance of this alignment, on August 5, 1999, Lehman's Managing Director of Global Equity Research circulated a memorandum to Global Research Directors (the "August 5 Memorandum"), which detailed key areas of "strategic importance." The memorandum concluded that in order for Lehman to be more profitable, Investment Banking and Research should work together to increase Lehman's number of equity originations stating:

Investment Banking Partnership – This is a key challenge for not only research but the entire global equities business. Increasing our equity origination will be one of the most important accomplishments of the firm. One of the most significant ways we will increase the equity division's total revenue to more than $2 billion is by substantially increasing origination.

15. The August 5 Memorandum also set forth a "new paradigm" for Lehman's investment banking relationships stating:

the analyst is THE key driver of the firm relationship with its corporate client base. Analysts need to accept responsibility and use it to expand the franchise and DRIVE PROFITABILITY EVERY DAY BUT IN A WAY THAT IS CONSISTENT WITH BUILDING A LONG TERM FRANCHISE. (Emphasis in original.)

16. The August 5 Memorandum emphasized the research analyst's role in identifying potential banking business for Lehman stating: "global research must drive the banking targeting efforts, consistent with the 'new paradigm.'" The August 5 Memorandum stated further: "to ensure we have proper recognition of analysts' impact on banking, we have to closely track every dollar of IBD revenue (equity, M&A, and debt) by analyst."

17. On September 14, 1999, the Managing Director of Global Equity Research again emphasized the importance of the Investment Banking/Research partnership in a memo directed to "Coverage Analysts." "Coverage Analysts" were provided with an attachment dated September 13, 1999, entitled "1 + 1 = $" (the "September 13 Attachment") that advised them that the successful partnership of Research and Investment Banking was a key to Lehman's growth as a firm. The first page of the September 13 Attachment contained a chart reflecting that an "enhanced Banking/Research partnership" would strengthen brand perception, increase origination fee share and ultimately lead to a higher Lehman stock price.

18. The September 13 Attachment explained numerous ways in which Lehman Research and Investment Banking could be beneficial to each other and stated that "seamless Banking/Research coverage" was critical to all Investment Banking products. The attachment also contained a chart captioned "Secret to Success -- Lehman Wins Business When Banking And Research Are Aligned." The September 13 Attachment explained that the Research/Investment Banking partnership at Lehman would be institutionalized through executive committee support, targeting and alignment, full partnership accountability between bankers and research analysts, and reinforced through compensation.

19. The September 13 Attachment also instructed that bankers and research analysts would be required to complete performance reviews of their counterparts. Research analysts would be evaluated on, among other things, "the extent to which the analyst places origination as [a] priority," and "adds value in building banking business," and the analyst's "effectiveness in [the] pitching process."

20. Finally, the September 13 Attachment explained that Lehman would reinforce the partnership of Research and Banking through compensation. Analyst compensation would be "impacted by contribution to banking" and "reviewed with appropriate banking group heads." The primary criterion in evaluating analyst compensation would be Investment Banking Revenue.

21. As part of the relationship between Investment Banking and Research, analysts often communicated with their Investment Banking counterparts several times a week, or even daily. These communications included identifying banking opportunities for Lehman. For example, on July 7, 2000, one senior analyst wrote the following email to members of Investment Banking:

FYI, I have recently come across several great companies in the wireless data services industry, an incredibly hot sector for most technology investors. . . . In my view, we as a firm (tech & telecom) should get all over this sector . . . I think we should be very coordinated in attacking this banking windfall.

22. In another instance, on September 21, 2000, that same analyst wrote an email to a company to offer research coverage in exchange for naming Lehman as a co-manager on a deal stating:

since the announcement of the Chase/JPM merger, I'm sure you've come to the same realization that the merger would result in just one firm covering your stock . . . If . . . the loss of one analyst is of concern, was wondering if the opportunity is available to add a jnr (sic) co-manager to ensure same number of coverage analysts.

23. Investment bankers at times suggested that analysts issue positive research coverage on a company to help the bankers win business. Investment bankers would sometimes recommend potential banking clients to Lehman's research analysts. Lehman's investment bankers understood that if Lehman's research department would cover a potential banking client, this could strengthen Lehman's chances to obtain banking business from that client. For example, on October 4, 2000, a banker sent the following email to an analyst:

Spoke with [a Worlstor employee] over at Worlstor. Here's the scoop and what we need to do. They are meeting with other bankers over the next 4 days . . . They like [Salomon] because of their research report. Action plan for us includes: . . . We need to say [Lehman's analyst] is publishing a big storage ssp report and we would like to make Worlstor the feature of the report like Solly did MSI and StoraGenetworks. [Analyst] you need to call (the CEO) and the CFO at least 3 times between now and the Board meeting . . . The message is we luv you and have been waiting for you. [Analyst] your call and enthusiasm is key.

24. Another banker wrote the following email to investment bankers and analysts on June 29, 2000:

Our competition on the CPQ debt deal is likely the following . . . Given their stock price action after today's downgrade by [SSB], we are the highest equity recommendation. The bottom line is that they need a very strong story around their credit and we, with [analyst] are in the best position to deliver.

25. Investment bankers also routinely reviewed drafts of analysts' research reports before publication for several purposes including to insure that the reports were consistent with generating investment banking revenue from the covered company.

B. Lehman Gave Its Analysts Financial Incentives To Use Research To Generate Investment Banking Revenue

26. Lehman tied the compensation of senior research analysts to the amount of Investment Banking revenue the analyst helped to generate. Lehman analysts typically received relatively small base salaries and considerably larger bonuses. Bonuses were determined by, among other factors, the amount of Investment Banking revenue generated by companies the analysts covered. The bonuses Lehman paid to analysts dwarfed their base salaries and gave the analysts a strong personal financial incentive to obtain Investment Banking business. This compensation structure, which in part linked analyst compensation to Investment Banking business, created conflicts of interest.

1. Certain Analyst Employment Contracts Tied Bonuses Directly To Investment Banking Revenue

27. Six of Lehman's approximately 100 senior research analysts had employment contracts that linked their bonuses directly to Investment Banking revenue generated by companies they covered. Depending on the contract, the analyst's entire bonus or an additional Investment Banking Department ("IBD") bonus was paid based on the aggregate IBD net revenues and fees generated by companies covered by the analyst or by companies where the analyst significantly contributed to the Investment Banking business.

28. For example, one analyst's contract provided for an annual salary of $200,000, and a minimum bonus of $4.8 million. The minimum bonus could increase in $1 million increments, based on the Aggregate IBD Net Revenues and Fees for the performance year as follows:

Minimum Bonus	Aggregate IBD Net Revenues and Fees
$4.8 million	Less than $50 million
$5.8 million	At least $50 million but less than $75 million
$6.8 million	At least $75 million but less than $100 million
$7.8 million	At least $100 million but less than $125 million
$8.8 million	$125 million or more

Aggregate IBD Net Revenues and Fees were defined as revenues and fees booked or received by Lehman from companies covered by the analyst or from companies whose award of business to Lehman was attributable to the analyst's "significant contribution."

29. Another analyst's contract provided for the payment of a yearly salary of $200,000, a minimum bonus of $3.3 million and an additional bonus equal to 5% of Investment Banking revenues and fees generated by companies covered by the analyst or companies where the analyst substantially contributed to the award of Investment Banking business.

2. Lehman Compensated Other Analysts Based In Part On Their Contribution To Investment Banking Revenue

30. Analysts who did not have specific clauses in their contracts related to Investment Banking revenue were nevertheless compensated financially if companies they covered generated Investment Banking revenue.

31. The Director of U.S. Equity Research applauded analysts for generating Investment Banking business. In an email dated January 21, 2001, an analyst described that he had arranged a meeting between Lehman analysts and investment bankers and a large blue chip company. The analyst explained that his relationship with the company resulted in Investment Banking receiving ten potential projects for the company. The Director of U.S. Equity Research congratulated the analyst in an email dated January 22, 2001, stating "well done, we need senior bankers to see who (the analysts) have the real relationships with the big companies. This is how we justify big comp. packages."

32. Lehman also monitored the Investment Banking revenue that analysts generated. For example, Lehman maintained a document titled "Performance Review" that, among other information, kept track of the Investment Banking and trading revenue attributable to each senior analyst. Senior analysts were shown the Performance Review during their reviews.

33. For each analyst, Investment Banking also generated a spreadsheet known as a "Project Review" that identified Investment Banking projects with revenue booked for the year and projects expected to generate revenue in the next year. The Director of U.S. Equity Research used the Project Reviews in conducting both mid-year and year-end evaluations for senior analysts.

34. Senior analysts also frequently provided lists of the Investment Banking deals they had worked on during the year to the Director of U.S. Equity Research in connection with consideration of their year-end bonuses. For example, in December 1999, one senior analyst (who did not have an Investment Banking revenue clause in his contract) wrote in an email to the Director of U.S. Equity Research that his research accomplishments and banking revenue were relevant to his compensation. In describing his research accomplishments, the analyst noted that he had written frequently on a company and the company had raised $430 million in equity and high yield financing through Lehman. The analyst also noted that he had written frequently about another company and, as a result, Lehman was going to appear "out of order" on the cover of a convertible deal and had a "good shot" at leading an upcoming equity deal. With respect to banking revenue, the analyst wrote:

I believe the revenues generated by my universe generated at least as much as other research universes, excluding the Delta Three IPO (which RSL's CEO will tell I (sic) was a key part of why LB won the books [Delta Three was covered by another analyst] and for which I believe I should get credit.

35. One Senior analyst sent an email on February 9, 2000, to Lehman's Managing Director of Global Research and the Director of U.S. Equity Research requesting a promotion to vice president. In support of this request, the analyst wrote, among other things, that the analyst's estimated Investment Banking revenue for the year 2000 was greater than $5 million and added "1999 Banking Revenue $1.2M solely due to research relationship."

36. In addition, senior analysts were required to complete business plans each year. The business plans included an entire section devoted to banking and asked analysts to identify the transactions they are working on or foresee for the coming year. The business plans asked senior analysts to report:

- their plan to add stocks to coverage for either sales and trading and/or banking;
- whether Research/Banking target and alignment discussions were reflected in the business plan; and
- whether analysts had completed the selection of "franchise and super league clients" with their bankers.

37. Investment bankers participated in analyst evaluations by providing written comments on a form titled "Year End Performance Review for Analysts (to be completed by Bankers)" to the heads of Research. Bankers were asked to evaluate:

- Whether the analyst places origination as a priority;
- The analyst's contribution toward building relationships with clients in the sector;
- The analyst's effectiveness in the pitching process;

- The quality of the analyst's reputation with banking clients; and
- The analyst's level of initiative in providing the banker with value-added ideas for banking clients.

38. The bankers' comments were relayed to analysts during their reviews. For example, one senior analyst's review stated the analyst "cares a great deal about competing for business and winning." Another senior analyst's review stated "strong originator/rainmaker," "strong pitchman" and "very supportive of banking effort; coordinate with banking team on targeting major clients."

39. Analysts were also criticized, at times, if they failed to work closely with Investment Banking. For example, in one instance, a senior analyst was encouraged to have more frequent contact with her Investment Banking counterpart.

40. One analyst sent a memorandum dated December 22, 1999, to the Managing Director of Global Equity Research and the Director of U.S. Equity Research stating that he was "surprised" by the review he received from an investment banker (the "December 22 Memorandum"). As a result, the analyst met with the Investment Banker in order to receive feedback and "improve the relationship between research and Investment Banking."

41. The analyst described his meeting with the banker in the December 22 Memorandum stating:

[banker] has concluded, after seeing me for 2-3 months (based on two pitches and other feedback) that I may not have the capabilities to be a "banking analyst"; i.e., telling companies what they want to hear and not what I think!" . . .

Both parties acknowledge that the Ansell pitch was ineffectual. I should not have been there to start with – despite the potential fee! I was told that the bankers working on the pitch were "upset" that I would not present their material . . . Ansell had an inherent growth rate of 0-2% as compared to Merrill's forecast of 10% per annum. A major fee was "lost."

42. The analyst also commented that the bankers told him "that the analysts need to be available at extremely short notice to assist in pitch meetings." The analyst defended himself, in part, by commenting that he spent an "inordinate" amount of time on other banking prospects.

43. Finally, the analyst listed several steps for the future to improve his relationship with Investment Banking and stated:

during my one year tenure at [another bank], we tripled our M&A business. I created a fundamental research 'halo effect' for 'banking-oriented' analysts. I believe banking could further leverage our sector research into the VC community (and elsewhere).

C. Lehman Used The Promise Of Future Research Coverage To Obtain Investment Banking Business

44. Lehman used the promise of future research coverage to obtain Investment Banking business. Implicit in Lehman's marketing efforts was the assurance that Lehman's research would be favorable and that Lehman research would raise the price of the issuer's stock.

45. Lehman competed with other investment banks for selection as lead underwriter for securities offerings, including IPOs, secondary offerings and debt offerings. As part of this competition, Lehman met with companies to present its qualifications. Research analysts sometimes attended these meetings, often referred to as "pitch" meetings, with members of Investment Banking in an effort to win Investment Banking business for Lehman. Lehman research analysts typically advised companies how best to position and market the company's story to investors.

46. At such meetings, Lehman often presented companies with marketing materials known as pitchbooks that touted Lehman's underwriting qualifications. The pitchbooks typically featured the Lehman analyst who would be covering the company after a banking transaction and stated that the analyst would issue research on the company as soon as the "quiet period"(a period of time after an offering during which the underwriting firms cannot publish research) ended. The pitchbooks on occasion provided examples of how coverage by the analyst had been viewed favorably by the market and had a positive impact on a company's stock price.

47. For example, a pitchbook for the Zymogenetics potential IPO promised that the analyst would issue a comprehensive report on the company twenty-five days after pricing (at the end of the quiet period), would regularly educate investors on the company's story and would publish reports and notes on the company on a timely basis. The pitchbook also promised that Lehman would provide "pricing, trading and aftermarket support" by, among other things, providing on-going research coverage. Under the heading "Preliminary Terms and Marketing Conditions," the pitchbook stated that the analyst would provide "high quality research support critical to a strong aftermarket."

48. A pitchbook for a Dyax PIPE offering described Lehman's prior research support of the company following its IPO, noting that Lehman had issued "8 notes and one extremely comprehensive report on [company], as compared to 5 notes and 1 report by [co-manager], and 2 notes and 1 report by [co-manager]." The pitchbook also noted that "Lehman's Equity Analysts . . . have been strong supporters of the stock," adding that since the analysts published their research report the stock had increased twenty percent.

49. The pitchbooks often noted the analyst's role in marketing the offering. Some pitchbooks listed research as a term of the underwriting and stated that the "[analyst] will lead a powerful marketing campaign." The Zymogenetics pitchbook described the analyst as the "preeminent force" in the biotechnology sector and stated that the analyst has "outsold other analysts in previous equity offerings," and "outsold the other co-managers." Other pitchbooks described the analyst as the "axe" in the industry and provided numerous examples of how the analyst's positive coverage had positively impacted a company's stock price.

50. For example, a pitchbook for Yadayada dated November 10, 2000, contained a section entitled "[Analyst] Moves Markets" and contained graphs for two companies, Triton and Alamosa, covered by the analyst. The graph subtitled "[Analyst] Moves Triton" demonstrated a decrease in stock price following the analyst's downgrade of Triton and an increase in the stock price following an upgrade by the analyst. Similarly, the graph subtitled "[Analyst] Upgrades Alamosa" shows an increase in Alamosa's stock price following a voicemail blast by the analyst to clients reiterating the analyst's buy recommendation.

51. Similarly, a pitchbook for Texas Instruments dated June 2000, included a graph of Micron Technology's stock price demonstrating that the stock price increased after the analyst re-initiated coverage and rose again when the analyst raised earnings per share ("EPS") targets. The pitchbook also contained a graph of Intel's stock reflecting price increases after the analyst re-initiated coverage and again when the analyst raised the EPS target. Other pitchbooks contained similar statements about the manner in which the market received Lehman's research.

52. The decision whether Lehman would initiate research coverage of a company was often tied to the opportunity for Lehman to earn Investment Banking fees from the covered company. For example, in February 2000, Lehman bankers questioned a delay in Lehman initiating research on Curagen Corporation following Lehman's participation in a convertible bond offering by Curagen. The analyst had explained he needed more time and more meetings with the company before issuing a report. The bankers then questioned the delay in an email to the Director of U.S. Equity Research who responded that the analyst was doing a great job given his many responsibilities, and asked the bankers:

[W]hen did we decide to promise equity research for a small convertible bond deal. What were the economics & how much did we make.

One of the bankers responded to the question stating:

We made $1.5m in banking and Lehman made $12m as of last Thursday. The real question is could we just put a note out that would satisfy the company and get us in the next deal.

53. On another occasion, the Director of U.S. Equity Research received inquiries from Lehman employees on behalf of officers of public companies seeking to have Lehman initiate research coverage of their company. The Director of U.S. Equity Research responded by directing such inquiries to Investment Banking. For example, in February 2000, the Director of U.S. Equity Research advised a Lehman employee in an email:

the proper process is to introduce the principals to someone in investment banking. If we have the resources and there appears to be significant revenue potential, banking will request research.

54. Similarly, in October 1999, the Director of U.S. Equity Research advised another Lehman employee in an email:

doing business is not enough, we need to do a lot of business to commit resources. Finally, you should find a contact in banking to channel these requests as well.

55. In another email in March 2000, an analyst explained to his product manager his reason for initiating coverage on a stock listed only in Mexico that will be of "little interest to our US institutional salesforce." The analyst wrote:

The reason for coverage is there is a potential banking deal (big $$$) we're trying to get later this year. The bankers just want the report out. They don't care about promoting the stock and realize it is of little interest to my client base.

III. CONFLICTS OF INTEREST, AT TIMES, RESULTED IN THE PUBLICATION OF EXAGGERATED OR UNWARRANTED RESEARCH

56. The relationship between Investment Banking and Research as alleged herein at times created conflicts of interest for Lehman's research analysts. At times, the financial incentives and pressure on analysts to assist in obtaining investment banking deals and to maintain banking relationships adversely affected the integrity of the analysts' ratings, price targets, and research reports. As the following examples demonstrate, these conflicts of interest caused analysts, at times, to issue more positive research reports or ratings, and to avoid downgrades or negative reports regarding companies that were investment banking clients.

A. Razorfish, Inc.

57. Lehman co-managed the IPO for Razorfish, Inc. ("Razorfish") in April 1999. The Razorfish IPO was priced on April 26, 1999, at $16 per share and opened for trading on April 27, 1999, at $56 per share but ended the day at $35 per share. On May 3, 1999, with Razorfish trading at $37 per share, the Lehman analyst confided to an institutional investor in emails that he was not sure of the rating and price to assign to the company when he initiated coverage. The institutional investor replied:

unless you anticipate Lehman getting I-business from them, I would rate them neutral with a price target of $20 (especially if you read the last half of the WSJ article on them last week, which pointed out that their business lacks any real depth)

The analyst responded:

Well, I they are a banking client so I expect a 2 rating with a price target just a shade above the trading price

58. The institutional investor and the analyst discussed the effect of the conflict of interest on the analyst's research in the following exchange:

Institutional Investor: I understand – business is business. But I feel bad for those naïve investors who assume that sell-side analysts are objective! I wish some buy-side institutions would get together to establish an independent equity research consortium with analysts paid for on a subscription basis or something . . .

Analyst: well, ratings and price targets are fairly meaningless anyway, buy-side generally ignores, commentary is what matters and I'll be a 3-Neutral in my comments . . . but, yes, the "little guy" who isn't smart about the nuances may get misled, such is the nature of my business.

59. On May 24, 1999, with Razorfish trading at $36, Lehman initiated coverage of Razorfish with a 2-Buy rating and a price target of $48.

B. RSL Communications, Inc.

60. Lehman had a substantial Investment Banking relationship with RSL Communications, Inc. ("RSL"). Lehman was a joint lead underwriter in a high yield note placement by RSL in December 1998, provided advisory services in October 1999, was the lead underwriter when RSL spun off Delta Three Communications, Inc. in an IPO in November 1999, and co-managed two debt offerings for RSL in February 2000. On at least three occasions during 1999-2000, the Lehman analyst covering RSL was "held off" from downgrading his analysis of RSL for "banking reasons." One of these instances occurred in February 2000.

61. On November 1, 1999, with RSL trading at $21 5/16, the Lehman analyst covering RSL had rated RSL a 1-Buy with a price target of $40. In February 2000, with RSL trading at $17, the analyst drafted a new report in which he lowered his revenue projections for RSL and lowered the price target to $35. The first sentence of the text of the draft report read "we are revising our Revenue and EBITDA estimates for RSL to reflect declining revenue from U.S. prepaid and wholesale and a more moderate ramp in European retail revenue." Based on his prior experience, the analyst knew that his attempt to express his more negative view of RSL would be resisted by Investment Banking within Lehman. On February 24, 2000, the analyst sent an email to his supervisor captioned "RSL Note – Bankers are going to resist" in which he enclosed his draft report and stated:

Below is a draft of a note lowering our numbers on RSL (maintaining our 1 rating) Recall we were a co. in their recent convert deal. I've wanted to lower numbers for several months now, but have held back as 1) we led the DeltaThree IPO (was owned by RSL) and more recently were on the cover of the convert. . . . I've given our coverage banker the courtesy of seeing this and preparing the company. I know they are going to resist. I've been quiet on this too long, and I plan on going ahead anyway. [Emphasis in original]

62. The Lehman investment banker for RSL prevailed on the analyst not to issue the report and instead to meet with RSL management and to reconsider his analysis. As a result, on March 2, 2000, the analyst issued a report that maintained the $40 price target. The first sentence of the text of the report touted that "RSL's European unit posted strong sequential revenue growth in Q4 . . ." The analyst issued additional reports on RSL on March 9 and March 10, 2000, in which he raised the price target to $50.

63. On March 16, 2000, the investment banker for RSL sent an email to the analyst's supervisor praising the analyst's "open-mindedness" and crediting the analyst with raising RSL's stock price stating:

I just wanted to drop you a note to let you know of [analyst's] recent helpfulness in a touchy situation with RSL Communications. RSL is a telecom company . . . and is the parent company of Delta 3 for which we recently led an IPO. Following RSL's recent convertible notes issue (for which we were a co), [analyst] was inclined negatively toward the Company's prospects; however, he agreed to hold off on a downgrade (which would have harmed an important banking relationship) at the request of banking until he could hear out management. [Analyst] met with the Company's CEO and was convinced positively, he issued a positive report and was the axe behind significant positive momentum to the stock. The CEO praised [analyst's] open-mindedness and has indicated we will be included in the underwritings of their coming spin-offs. Thus, [analyst] has helped our banking relationship with the client significantly.

The supervisor forwarded the email to the analyst and wrote "good job & congratulations."

64. In May 2000, the analyst issued another report reiterating the 1-Buy rating on the stock and retaining the $50 price target despite the fact that the stock price had declined to $15.50 per share and the company had missed its revenue estimates.

65. By August 14, 2000, RSL's stock price had declined to approximately $4. In an August 14, 2000, email, the analyst candidly complained to his supervisor about the influence Investment Banking had exerted over his research during the preceding year:

Enough is enough. It's hard enough to be right about stocks, it's even harder to build customer relationships when all your companies blow up, you knew they were going to, and you couldn't say anything. Every single one of my companies has blown up in some fashion (or will – GBLX) and with the exception of PGEX, I haven't been able to speak my mind. I think I've been a team player, and I believe it is now imperative for the franchise that I be able to take action on bad situations

66. The analyst voiced particular concerns about RSL stating "for the record, I have attempted to downgrade RSLC THREE times over the last year, but have been held off for banking reasons each time." (Emphasis in original)

67. Even after this complaint, the analyst did not downgrade RSL but rather simply was permitted to drop coverage in September 2000, devoting a few short sentences to the company in a sector report.

C. DDi Corporation

68. A pitchbook for the DDi Corporation ("DDi") IPO offering described Lehman's highly regarded research team, listed the analysts' combined years of experience and strong research qualifications and promised research coverage for DDi after the IPO.

69. The pitchbook contained an example of the mock research report that the two Lehman analysts who covered DDi's industry sector would write for DDi, including a graphic of the research report's cover page with a 1-Buy rating.

70. DDi opened for trading on April 10, 2000. On June 28, 2000, the analyst whose name appeared on the mock research report sent an email to the Director of U.S. Equity Research stating that Lehman was a "co" on the DDi IPO and that the analyst should have initiated coverage when the company went public in April but did not due to other demands on his time including the need to cover two banking deals where Lehman was the lead. The analyst complained that both DDi and Lehman bankers were pushing the analyst to initiate coverage with a 1-Buy rating. The analyst wrote:

Now company DDi and parent (Bain Capital), and bankers are obviously pushing for coverage and unhappy. Problem is that the shares IPOed at $14 are at $28 today. Bankers want a 1-Buy and are pushing hard. I am concerned that given the current expectations, the shares could sell off after the quarter is reported in July and could easily drop to $20. I am ready with initiation a FC [First Call] note and could go out this week, but am not sure how best to deal with this situation. Bankers are not really satisfied with a 2.

71. Despite his misgivings, the analyst initiated coverage of DDi on June 30, 2000, with a 1-Buy rating and a price target of $36. DDi closed on June 30, 2000, at $28 1/2. On July 31, 2000, DDi closed at $22.

D. RealNetworks, Inc.

72. In June 1999, Lehman served as a co-managing underwriter for a secondary offering of common stock by RealNetworks, Inc. Lehman maintained a 1-Strong Buy rating on the stock from July 1999 through June 2001, despite the fact that the stock lost approximately 90% of its value, falling from a high of $78.59 per share in February 2000, to a low of $7.06 in April 2001.

73. In the first few days of July 2000, RealNetworks' stock price dropped from $52 per share on July 3, 2000, to $38 per share on July 11, 2000. Lehman issued a research report on July 11, 2000, responding to what the report described as a weakness in the stock price caused by investor concern over RealNetworks' exposure to online advertising revenue. The report sought to calm investors' fears by stating that online advertising figures would have "minimal" impact on RealNetworks overall revenue. The report reiterated the 1-Buy rating assigned to the stock and maintained the $150 price target. The report further advised investors that the price weakness presented a buying opportunity and that Lehman remained "bullish" on the stock.

74. By July 18, 2000, the stock price had climbed to $56 per share. The analyst issued another research report that again advised investors to ignore concerns about RealNetworks' exposure to online advertising revenue stating "we believe recent articles about reductions in online spending is (sic) completely over-hyped – in terms of its overall impact on RealNetworks." The report also reiterated the 1-Buy rating assigned to the stock and maintained the $150 price target for the stock.

75. On July 19, 2000, the analyst issued a third report commenting on RealNetworks' second quarter earnings release. The report described the second quarter results as "stellar" and reiterated the 1-Buy rating assigned to the stock and maintained the $150 price target for the stock.

76. Despite the analyst's support for RealNetworks, on July 18, 2000, the analyst advised an institutional investor to short the stock stating "RNWK has to be a short big time." The next morning the institutional investor emailed the analyst "nice call on rnwk . . . I mean all the upside from crappy ad business . . . why aren't people jumping up and down and saying this sucked??? . . . nice call on your part anyhow."

77. The analyst replied: "we bank these guys so I always have to cut the benefit of the doubt."

78. RealNetworks' stock price continued to fall throughout July 2000 and its price continued to drop through the end of 2000. By December 2000, RealNetworks had fallen to approximately $12 per share having fallen from its February 2000, high of $78 per share.

79. In January 2001, that same analyst wrote to an institutional investor "if it's in my group it's a short" despite the fact that the analyst maintained 1-Strong Buy ratings on all of his stocks.

E. Broadwing, Inc.

80. In January 2001, an analyst was about to initiate coverage of Broadwing, Inc. ("Broadwing"). On January 24, 2001, an investment banker sent an email to the analyst asking him if Broadwing's numbers were good. The analyst responded that the numbers were "very much in line." The banker asked the analyst to raise the price target. When the analyst questioned the rationale, the banker explained that the increase was necessary to help Lehman win investment banking business.

Banker: any chance of nudging up that price target?

Analyst: isn't it better for your cause to start conservative, and move up targets, rather than start high and use up dry powder?

Banker: if they are doing a financing and a few points on a price target puts us in line with our competition and, hopefully, helps us get into a financing, it may be worth considering Analyst: I'm already at $40, I can add a buck or two.

Banker: that would be great – MSDW is at 44, CSFB at 46, Mer at 50.

Analyst: Done.

The next day the analyst issued a research report initiating coverage of Broadwing with a $42 price target.

IV. LEHMAN FAILED TO ADEQUATELY SUPERVISE RESEARCH ANALYSTS OR ESTABLISH POLICIES AND PROCEDURES TO ENSURE THEIR PROPER CONDUCT

81. Lehman failed to supervise sufficiently research analysts or establish adequate policies and procedures to ensure their proper conduct at all times. Lehman had insufficient written procedures to protect the independence of its research analysts and failed to fully enforce the written procedures it did have.

82. Research did not review the propriety of the ratings issued by analysts. For example, Lehman purportedly vetted most of the written research produced by analysts through the Investment Policy Committee ("IPC") comprised of six people including the Director of U.S. Equity Research. Written procedures required that an IPC meeting be held to review initiation of coverage or change of a rating. In fact, at times reports were reviewed by a single IPC member, who received reports shortly before a meeting.

83. Lehman also had inadequate procedures to protect analysts from the pressures and conflicts of interest resulting from the interaction between research analysts and investment bankers. As alleged above, Lehman permitted pre-publication review of draft research reports by Investment Banking and by the companies covered in the reports. The Chairman of the IPC and other senior managers in Research also encouraged analysts to check with banking before changing ratings, downgrading or dropping coverage of a stock.

V. CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

84. Defendant, during the period from July 1999, through June 2001, failed to exercise diligent supervision over all the securities activities of its associated persons and failed to establish, maintain or enforce written procedures, a copy of which should be kept in each business office, which set forth the procedures adopted by the dealer, issuer or investment adviser to comply with the listed duties imposed in violation of Securities Rule ("Rule") 21 VAC 5-20-260.

85. Defendant, during the period from July 1999, through June 2001, engaged in acts or practices that created or maintained inappropriate influences by Investment Banking over Research Analysts, imposed conflicts of interest on its Research Analysts, and failed to manage these conflicts in an adequate or appropriate manner in violation of just and equitable principles of trade and in violation of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12).

The NASD and NYSE have both established rules governing ethical practices and conduct. The standards established by the NASD and the NYSE are recognized by the Commission as minimum standards of ethical conduct for the purposes of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12), relating generally to dishonest or unethical practices in the securities business. During the relevant period, Lehman engaged in acts and practices violative of:

- (a) NASD Conduct Rule 2110 requiring members to observe high standards of commercial honor and just and equitable principles of trade;
- (b) NYSE Rule 401 requiring that broker dealers shall at all times adhere to the principles of good business practice and the conduct of his or its business affairs;
- (c) NYSE Rule 476(a)6 prohibiting the engagement in practices of conduct inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade;
- (d) NASD Conduct Rule 2210(d)1 and 2210(d)2 prohibiting exaggerated or unwarranted claims in public communications and requiring a reasonable basis for all recommendations made in advertisements and sales literature; and
- (e) NYSE Rule 472 prohibiting the issuance of communications that contain exaggerated or unwarranted claims or opinions that lack a reasonable basis. By engaging in the acts and practices described above that created and/or maintained inappropriate influence by Investment Banking over Research Analysts and therefore imposed conflicts of interest on its Research Analysts, Lehman failed to manage these conflicts in an adequate or appropriate manner, in violation of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12).

86. Defendant, during the period from July 1999 through June 2001, issued research reports, including those for Razorfish, Inc., RSL Communications, Inc., DDI Corp., RealNetworks, Inc., and Broadwing, Inc., that were not based on principles of fair dealing and good faith, did not provide sound basis for evaluating facts, were not properly balanced, and/or contained exaggerated or unwarranted claims and opinions of which there was no reasonable basis, in violation of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12).

On the basis of the Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law, and Lehman Brothers Inc.'s consent to the entry of this Order, for the sole purpose of settling this matter, prior to a hearing and without admitting or denying any of the allegations, Findings of Fact or Conclusions of Law.

ACCORDINGLY, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

1. This Order concludes the investigation by the Commission and any other action that the Commission could commence under applicable state law on behalf of the Commonwealth of Virginia as it relates to Lehman Brothers Inc., relating to certain research or banking practices at Lehman Brothers Inc.
2. Pursuant to § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, Lehman Brothers Inc. will refrain from violating 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12) and 21 VAC 5-20-260 in connection with the research practices referenced in this Order and will comply with the Act and Regulations in connection with the research practices referenced in this Order and will comply with the undertakings of Addendum A, incorporated herein by reference.
3. If payment is not made by Lehman Brothers Inc. or if Lehman Brothers Inc. defaults in any of its obligations set forth in this Order, the Commission may vacate this Order, at its sole discretion, upon 10 days notice to Lehman Brothers Inc. and without opportunity for administrative hearing.
4. This Order is not intended by the Commission's Division of Securities and Retail Franchising ("Division") to subject any Covered Person to any disqualifications under the laws of any state, District of Columbia, or Puerto Rico (collectively, "State") including without limitation, any disqualifications from relying upon the registration exemptions or safe harbor provisions. "Covered Person" means Lehman Brothers Inc., or any of its officers, directors, affiliates, current or former employees, or other persons that would otherwise be disqualified as a result of the Orders (as defined below).
5. It is further ordered that this Order constitutes and includes a waiver by the Commission of any and all limitations and disqualifications that may ensue from the entry of this Order or the SEC Orders that would otherwise affect, restrict or limit the business of Lehman Brothers Inc. and its predecessors, subsidiaries and affiliates or their ability to participate in offerings or avail themselves of exemptions, including, without limitation, the Uniform Limited Offering Exemption, as and to the extent now or hereafter adopted by the Commission.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSION

6. It is further ordered that this Order is not intended to prohibit Lehman Brothers Inc. from acting as an underwriter, broker, dealer, investment adviser, municipal securities dealer, transfer agent, or entity or person required to be registered under the Commodity Exchange Act, or as an affiliated person of any investment company, bank, insurance company, or entity or person required to be registered under the Commodity Exchange Act, or from engaging in or continuing any conduct or practice in connection with any such activity or in connection with the purchase or sale of any security.
7. The SEC Final Judgment, the NYSE Stipulation and Consent, the NASD Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent, this Order and the order of any other State in related proceedings against Lehman Brothers Inc. (collectively, the "Orders") shall not disqualify any Covered Person from any business that they otherwise are qualified, licensed or permitted to perform under applicable law of the Commonwealth of Virginia and any disqualifications from relying upon this state's registration exemptions or safe harbor provisions that arise from the Orders are hereby waived.
8. For any person or entity not a party to this Order, this Order does not limit or create any private rights or remedies against Lehman Brothers Inc. including, without limitation, the use of any emails or other documents of Lehman Brothers Inc. or of others regarding research practices, or limit or create liability of Lehman Brothers Inc. or limit or create defenses of Lehman Brothers Inc. to any claims.
9. Nothing herein shall preclude the Commonwealth of Virginia, its departments, agencies, boards, commissions, authorities, political subdivisions and corporations, other than the State Corporation Commission and only to the extent set forth in paragraph 1 above, (collectively, "State Entities") and the officers, agents or employees of State Entities from asserting any claims, causes of action, or applications for compensatory, nominal and/or punitive damages, administrative, civil, criminal, or injunctive relief against Lehman Brothers Inc. in connection with certain research and/or banking practices at Lehman Brothers Inc.

As a result of the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law contained in this Order, Lehman Brothers Inc. shall pay a total amount of $80,000,000. This total amount shall be paid as specified in the SEC Final Judgment as follows:

$25,000,000 to the states (50 states, plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico) (Lehman Brothers Inc.'s offer to the state securities regulators hereinafter shall be called the "state settlement offer"). Upon execution of this Order, Lehman Brothers Inc. shall pay the sum of $545,408 of this amount to the Treasurer, Commonwealth of Virginia as a civil monetary penalty pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Act. The total amount to be paid by Lehman Brothers Inc. to state securities regulators pursuant to the state settlement offer may be reduced due to the decision of any state securities regulator not to accept the state settlement offer. In the event another state securities regulator determines not to accept Lehman Brothers Inc.'s state settlement offer, the total amount of the Virginia payment shall not be affected, and shall remain at $545,408;

$25,000,000 as disgorgement of commissions, fees and other monies as specified in the SEC Final Judgment;

$25,000,000, to be used for the procurement of independent research, as described in the SEC Final Judgment;

$5,000,000, to be used for investor education, as described in Addendum A, incorporated by reference herein.

Lehman Brothers Inc. agrees that it shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification, including, but not limited to payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to all penalty amounts that Lehman Brothers Inc. shall pay pursuant to this Order or Section II of the SEC Final Judgment, regardless of whether such penalty amounts or any part thereof are added to the Distribution Fund Account referred to in the SEC Final Judgment or otherwise used for the benefit of investors. Lehman Brothers Inc. further agrees that it shall not claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax for any penalty amounts that Lehman Brothers Inc. shall pay pursuant to this Order or Section II of the SEC Final Judgment, regardless of whether such penalty amounts or any part thereof are added to the Distribution Fund Account referred to in the SEC Final Judgment or otherwise used for the benefit of investors. Lehman Brothers Inc. understands and acknowledges that these provisions are not intended to imply that Virginia would agree that any other amounts Lehman Brothers Inc. shall pay pursuant to the SEC Final Judgment may be reimbursed or indemnified (whether pursuant to an insurance policy or otherwise) under applicable law or may be the basis for any tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax.

CASE NO. SEC-2003-00019
DECEMBER 18, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED,
Defendant

CONSENT ORDER

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") is a broker-dealer registered in the Commonwealth of Virginia; and Coordinated investigations into Morgan Stanley's practices, procedures and conduct respecting the preparation and issuance by Morgan Stanley's U.S. equity research analysts ("research analysts") of research, analysis, ratings, recommendations and communications concerning common stocks of publicly traded companies covered by such analysts ("research coverage"), during the period 1999 through 2001, including without limitation, commencement and discontinuance of research coverage, actual or potential conflicts of interests affecting research coverage, research analysts or termination of research analysts, and statements, opinions, representations or non-disclosure of material facts in research coverage (the "investigations") have been conducted by a multi-state task force and a joint task force of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the New York Stock Exchange, and the National Association of Securities Dealers (collectively, the "regulators"); and

Morgan Stanley has cooperated with regulators conducting the investigations by responding to inquiries, providing documentary evidence and other materials, and providing regulators with access to facts relating to the investigations; and

Morgan Stanley has advised regulators of its agreement to resolve the investigations; and

Morgan Stanley agrees to implement certain changes with respect to its research practices and stock allocation, and to make certain payments; and

Morgan Stanley elects to permanently waive any right to a hearing and appeal under §12.1-39 of the Code of Virginia with respect to this Consent Order (the "Order");

NOW, THEREFORE, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), as administrator of the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia, hereby enters this Order:

I.

Morgan Stanley admits the jurisdiction of the Commission, neither admits nor denies the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law contained in this Order, and consents to the entry of this Order by the Commission.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Morgan Stanley is, and was at all relevant times, a Delaware corporation and a registered broker-dealer with its principal place of business located at 1585 Broadway, New York, New York 10036. Morgan Stanley is, and has been at all relevant times, an international financial services firm that provides investment banking services to businesses, engages in retail and institutional sales to its customers, and publishes research reports and ratings on stocks. In mid-2002, Morgan Stanley had about 58,000 employees with 700 offices in twenty-eight countries. It had approximately $450 billion in assets under management as of May 31, 2002.

2. The Commission has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to the Act.

3. From at least July 1999 through 2001, Morgan Stanley engaged in acts and practices that created conflicts of interest for its research analysts with respect to investment banking activities and considerations. Morgan Stanley failed to manage those conflicts in an adequate or appropriate manner. Some conflicts resulted from the fact that Morgan Stanley compensated its research analysts, in part, based on the degree to which they helped generate investment banking business for Morgan Stanley. Morgan Stanley also offered research coverage by its analysts as a marketing tool to gain investment banking business. As a result, Morgan Stanley research analysts were faced with a conflict of interest between helping generate investment banking business for Morgan Stanley and their responsibilities to publish objective research reports that, if unfavorable to actual or potential banking clients, could prevent Morgan Stanley from winning that banking business.

4. As lead underwriter in various stock offerings, Morgan Stanley also complied with the issuers' directives to pay portions of the underwriting fees to other broker-dealers that served as underwriters or syndicate members to publish research reports on the issuer. Morgan Stanley did not take steps to ensure that these broker-dealers disclosed these payments in their research reports. Further, Morgan Stanley did not cause the payments to be disclosed in the offering documents or elsewhere as being for research.

5. Morgan Stanley also failed to reasonably supervise its analysts regarding the content of their research reports.

I. 1. BACKGROUND

A. The Investment Banking Function at Morgan Stanley

6. The investment banking division at Morgan Stanley advised corporate clients and helped them execute various financial transactions, including the issuance of stock and other securities. Morgan Stanley frequently served as the lead underwriter in initial public offerings ("IPOs") -- the first public issuance of stock of a company that has not previously been publicly traded -- and follow-on offerings of securities.

7. During the relevant period, investment banking was an important source of revenues and profits for Morgan Stanley. In 2000, investment banking generated more than $4.8 billion in revenues, or approximately twenty-four percent of Morgan Stanley's total net revenues.

B. The Role of Research Analysts at Morgan Stanley

8. Research analysts at Morgan Stanley covered a broad range of industry sectors and published periodic reports on certain companies within those sectors. Analysts typically reviewed the performance of their covered companies, evaluated their business prospects, and provided analysis and projections concerning whether they presented good investment opportunities. Through 2001, Morgan Stanley's equity research department had a system calling for rating covered companies, from most to least positive, as "Strong Buy," "Outperform," "Neutral," or "Underperform." Analyst reports were disseminated to Morgan Stanley clients by mail and facsimile and by financial advisors. Certain research reports were made available to retail clients who set up accounts on Morgan Stanley's web site and, similarly, institutional clients were able to access Morgan Stanley's research reports via accounts on Morgan Stanley's web site. In addition, certain industry reports were available on Morgan Stanley's public web site. Certain institutional clients of Morgan Stanley could also access research reports through the First Call subscription service. The financial news media on occasion also reported Morgan Stanley analysts' ratings.

9. Morgan Stanley analysts also played an important role in assessing potential investment banking transactions, in particular IPOs. Morgan Stanley's stated objective was to "take public" as lead underwriter the leading companies in their respective industry sectors and to have its research analysts serve as gatekeepers to the IPO process by investigating whether companies were appropriate IPO candidates. Research analysts who endorsed an IPO candidate typically participated in the competition to obtain the investment banking business and, if Morgan Stanley was selected as lead underwriter, helped market the IPO to institutional investors, explained the IPO to the firm's institutional and retail sales forces, and then issued research on the company.

10. Senior analysts at Morgan Stanley published individual research reports without pre-publication review by research department supervisors. While reports were reviewed for grammatical errors and for compliance with certain legal requirements, there was no system for reviewing the recommendations or price targets included in the reports of senior analysts prior to their publication.

I. 2. THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN INVESTMENT BANKING AND RESEARCH CREATED CONFLICTS OF INTEREST FOR MORGAN STANLEY RESEARCH ANALYSTS

11. Certain practices at Morgan Stanley created or maintained conflicts of interest for the firm's research analysts with respect to investment banking considerations. These conflicts arose from the inherent tension between the analysts' involvement in helping to win investment banking business for Morgan Stanley and their responsibilities to publish objective research that, if negative as to prospective banking clients, could prevent the firm from winning the banking business.

A. Morgan Stanley Marketed Research Coverage, Including, at Times, Implicitly Favorable Coverage, in Competing for Investment Banking Business

12. Morgan Stanley typically competed with other investment banks for selection as the lead underwriter, or "bookrunner," for securities offerings, including IPOs and follow-on offerings. Significant financial rewards were at stake in these competitions. Sole or joint bookrunners generally received the largest portion of underwriting fees, which were typically divided among the participating investment banks. The bookrunner also established the allocation of shares in an offering and typically retained the greatest number of shares for itself. The typical IPO generated millions of dollars in investment banking fees for the bookrunner.

13. The process of selecting the lead underwriter typically culminated in a series of presentations by competing investment banks called a "bakeoff," in which investment banks competing for the business in a particular offering met with the issuer to present their qualifications and offer investment banking and other services. As part of these presentations, investment banks often provided issuers with a "pitchbook," which typically described the investment bank's credentials and services. In selecting the lead underwriters, issuers assessed a host of factors, including the strength and quality of the bankers' research coverage. Issuers sought research coverage of their stocks, believing such coverage would enhance the credibility of their businesses, potentially lead to higher stock prices, and increase their exposure to the investing public.

14. Between 1999 and 2001, as part of the package of services it offered to issuers to win investment banking business from certain issuers, Morgan Stanley typically committed that its analysts would initiate (or continue) research coverage of the issuer if Morgan Stanley won the banking competition. In so doing, Morgan Stanley used its analysts as a marketing tool to help secure banking business. The promise of future research coverage was often a critical selling point that enabled Morgan Stanley to obtain millions of dollars in investment banking fees. Research coverage was part of a package of services for which Morgan Stanley was compensated in those investment banking deals.

15. Analysts played an important role in Morgan Stanley's pitches for banking business. Along with investment bankers and others, analysts were typically presented as part of the Morgan Stanley "team" that would consummate the transaction. The pitchbooks typically identified the analysts on the team and dedicated several pages to the analysts' experience, credentials, and specific role in the contemplated transaction. Analysts drafted portions of the pitchbook and almost always attended the presentations for IPO business. The pitchbooks typically compared Morgan Stanley analysts favorably to their counterparts at competing firms, citing their rankings in analyst polls and other measures.

16. Morgan Stanley typically identified its analysts as a favorable factor that issuers should consider in selecting Morgan Stanley for investment banking business. For example, in describing one reason Loudcloud, Inc., should name Morgan Stanley as bookrunner for its 1999 IPO, the pitchbook referred to two senior analysts as a "dream team" who would "articulate Loudcloud's story to investors in a way that no other investment bank can match." Another pitchbook described two senior analysts as "the most powerful combination in the extended enterprise space . . . ever."

17. In its pitches to obtain investment banking business, Morgan Stanley typically promised future research coverage as among the package of services it would provide. For example, in a pitchbook provided to iBeam Broadcasting Corp. to obtain its IPO business, Morgan Stanley said it would "provide ongoing research coverage and aftermarket trading" and, in another instance, said "coverage would be initiated immediately after the quiet period. Additional research reports will follow on a regular basis thereafter." Morgan Stanley won the iBeam IPO business and received investment banking fees of approximately $3.8 million. Another pitchbook, in a chronology of how the IPO would unfold, stated: "Research coverage initiated on day 26," which was the day research coverage could be initiated by an underwriter following an IPO. Morgan Stanley made comparable commitments to other prospective banking clients. Another Morgan Stanley pitchbook, provided to Transmeta Corp. in July 2000 in connection with its IPO, said "we view research as an ongoing commitment," and offered to "continue regular publication of research reports." Morgan Stanley won the Transmeta IPO business and received investment banking fees of approximately $9.5 million. In other pitchbooks, Morgan Stanley emphasized its "aftermarket support" services, which it expressly described as including future research coverage. For example, a pitchbook presented to AT&T Latin America said Morgan Stanley "is committed to bolstering an IPO's performance in the aftermarket through extensive equity research and active market-making." (Emphasis added.) Morgan Stanley pitchbooks often identified the specific number of reports its analysts published on other companies, giving implicit guidance on how many reports issuers could expect to receive if they selected Morgan Stanley as lead banker.

18. Further, Morgan Stanley at times implicitly suggested that analysts would provide favorable research coverage, pending completion of due diligence, by noting analysts' past favorable coverage and/or emphasizing its enthusiastic support for the issuer. For example, when Morgan Stanley sought investment banking business from Convergys Corp., the company already had been covered for two years by a senior Morgan Stanley analyst who, as the pitchbook mentioned four times, considered Convergys to have been the analyst's "#1 stock pick" over those years. (During that time period, the stock price had appreciated 98%.) The May 2001 pitchbook then described the analyst as the "voice of the issuing company," who would work "in tandem" with Convergys management to position its story to investors. In the following month, June 2001, the senior analyst downgraded Convergys from Strong Buy to Outperform, still a favorable rating, then later upgraded Convergys back to Strong Buy in December 2001.

19. In other instances, Morgan Stanley pitchbooks identified a particular analyst's history of issuing Strong Buy or Outperform ratings on other companies. Some pitchbooks also identified instances in which other stocks covered by Morgan Stanley analysts increased in price following their IPOs. For example, the Morgan Stanley pitchbook provided to Transmeta Corp. in July 2000 emphasized how one analyst's "support" of eight semiconductor IPOs since 1997 had "resulted in unparalleled performance in the public market," and included a line graph showing a dramatic increase in the stocks' price from 1998 through March 2000.

20. In another instance, after Loudcloud management informed Morgan Stanley in 1999 that research coverage was a key factor in its selection of the bookrunner for its IPO, Morgan Stanley's head of worldwide investment banking informed the issuer in an e-mail that the firm had "developed a successful model which combines the best of technology and telecom research at Morgan Stanley to properly position Loudcloud in the capital markets; specifically, enthusiastic sponsorship" by two research analysts who covered Loudcloud's sector. He added: "I commit to putting the entire franchise behind Loudcloud to achieve the best valuation and after market performance, as well as unmatched strategic advice post-IPO." Morgan Stanley won the Loudcloud IPO business and received investment banking fees of approximately $4.7 million.

21. In addition to pitchbooks, Morgan Stanley occasionally provided draft or "mock" research reports to issuers to provide an example of how analysts might describe the issuer to investors. The draft or mock reports described the issuers in favorable terms without including ratings or price targets.

22. Morgan Stanley's commitments to provide research coverage were not limited to pitches for IPO business. Morgan Stanley obtained investment banking business for follow-on offerings of companies that its analysts did not cover in part by promising to initiate future coverage.

23. Morgan Stanley consistently honored its commitments to provide research coverage, initiating or maintaining coverage when it won the investment banking business.

24. In Morgan Stanley's annual performance evaluation process, some analysts and bankers noted their success in obtaining banking fees by promising future research coverage. For example, in a November 3, 1999 e-mail, an investment banker listed several banking transactions that he said Morgan Stanley had won because it committed that a particular highly-rated analyst would initiate research coverage. Specifically, the banker wrote that Morgan Stanley had won two transactions totaling $13.4 million in fees from Veritas Software Corp. "just for promising that [the senior analyst] would pick up coverage after the deals." The banker observed that this had "enraged" competing firms, which said it was "unprecedented" to give an underwriter with no previous research coverage such a high share of the fees. The banker added: "The response from the CEO to those firms -- 'you don't have [the senior analyst].'" Other analyst evaluations as well as other internal Morgan Stanley documents identified additional instances in which it was stated that Morgan Stanley won investment banking business in large part because its analysts committed to initiate coverage.

B. Investment Banking Concerns Influenced Morgan Stanley's Decisions Whether to Initiate or Continue Research Coverage

25. The decision to initiate or continue research coverage of certain companies was influenced, at least in part, by whether those companies were actual or prospective investment banking clients of Morgan Stanley.

26. In one instance, in May 2001, the liaison between the research and investment banking divisions was advised that a poultry company, Pilgrim's Pride, was seeking equity research coverage in connection with a prospective high-yield offering. The liaison made clear that Morgan Stanley should not commit to providing coverage until it received a certain amount of investment banking fees from the company:

Be careful with this one. Under no circumstances should we commit unless we get the books and at least $3-5mm in fees, with the money in the bank before we pick up coverage. We can tell them it will go in the queue and we cannot promise them a rating. It costs about $1 mm to pick up coverage of a stock and there are also meaningful ongoing expenses to maintain.

27. Morgan Stanley analysts on occasion also declined to cover some companies that refused to award investment banking business to Morgan Stanley. One senior analyst wrote in a 2000 self-evaluation that the analyst had declined Sabre Group's requests for research coverage for four years and that the analyst had "insisted that we first be mandated on a large investment banking transaction." Generally, analysts select which of the many companies in a sector they will cover. This senior analyst did not consider Sabre to be one the analyst needed to cover, unless Morgan Stanley were to be mandated on an investment banking transaction. When Sabre provided Morgan Stanley with banking business in connection with its spin-off from AMR Corp., the analyst initiated coverage of Sabre with an Outperform rating in March 2000.

28. Morgan Stanley also declined to initiate coverage of Concord/EFS, Inc. Concord initially retained Morgan Stanley as bookrunner for a 1999 secondary offering, but then hired a different bank as bookrunner after Morgan Stanley declined Concord's request that it commit to initiating coverage with a "Strong Buy" rating. Though Concord continued to offer part of that investment banking business to Morgan Stanley, Morgan Stanley withdrew, and it did not initiate research coverage of Concord at that time. In the fall of 2000, Morgan Stanley sought investment banking business from Concord in connection with another secondary offering. Concord's management told Morgan Stanley's senior analyst that it wanted an advance view of the analyst's initial rating. After completing two to three months of preliminary due diligence, the analyst told Concord that, if coverage were to be initiated at that time, the analyst tentatively would issue a "Strong Buy" up to a certain valuation level. Morgan Stanley also provided Concord with a draft research report, which, according to an e-mail written by an investment banker, was part of Morgan Stanley's "marketing efforts." When Morgan Stanley was not awarded the 2000 investment banking business, its analyst did not initiate coverage at that time, despite the analyst's initial view that Concord had emerged as a leader in its industry that preliminarily merited a "Strong Buy."

29. Morgan Stanley also initiated coverage of eBay, Inc., in part with the hope of obtaining investment banking business. After Morgan Stanley initially lost the IPO business for eBay in 1998, a senior Morgan Stanley analyst met with eBay's chief executive officer and provided a draft research report on the company. After Morgan Stanley nevertheless lost the IPO business, the analyst initiated coverage on eBay on its first day of trading with an Outperform rating. The analyst was the only one covering eBay, since firms in the underwriting syndicate were prohibited from initiating coverage until after the 25-day "quiet period" had expired. It is the only time that the senior analyst initiated coverage of a company on its first day of trading. Later, in 1999 and again in 2001, eBay awarded two banking transactions to Morgan Stanley, with total fees of approximately $1.2 million. In the senior analyst's self-evaluation for 2000, the analyst stated, as part of the analyst's "philosophy" for Morgan Stanley's "Internet banking efforts," that "when we miss a winning IPO, we should work like crazy (with tons of ideas) to secure a spot as M&A advisor (USWeb/CKS) or book running manager on follow-on offerings (eBay)."

C. Morgan Stanley Research Analysts Performed Investment Banking Functions

30. Morgan Stanley research analysts performed a number of investment banking-related functions. They identified potential IPO and merger and acquisition transaction candidates for the investment banking department, participated in soliciting investment banking business for the firm, and participated in road shows and other efforts to sell Morgan Stanley-underwritten IPOs and secondary offerings to institutional investors. At times, analysts also had discussions about business strategy with investment banking clients directly, and one senior analyst was described as a relationship manager with certain investment banking clients.

31. Morgan Stanley kept a record of each analyst's contribution to investment banking revenues. Each year, a "Revenue Share Analysis" was prepared that listed every investment banking transaction in which each analyst had participated, the revenues from each transaction, a rating on a scale of 1 to 5 (5 being "critical" to the deal) of the analyst's contribution to the transaction, and a calculation of the analyst's "share" of the credit for the revenues secured from the transaction. The Revenue Share Analysis also recorded investment gains on Morgan Stanley investments in companies covered by the analyst.

32. One senior analyst's involvement in investment banking activities was such that several investment bankers at the firm regarded the analyst as tantamount to an investment banker. One banker wrote that the analyst was the most committed and focused banker with whom he had ever worked. Another wrote that the analyst was a "commercial animal" who would do anything appropriate to win underwriting mandates. The analyst's supervisor wrote in 1999 that the analyst's focus was primarily on banking and that, notwithstanding the growing demand for the analyst's time on investment banking matters, the analyst needed to devote more attention to institutional investors and the firm's institutional sales force.

33. The analyst's own self-evaluation prominently mentioned the analyst's assistance to investment banking in selecting and generating investment banking business and large fees, stating: "Bottom line, my highest and best use is to help MSDW win the best Internet IPO mandates (and to ensure that we have the appropriate analysts and bankers to serve the companies well). . . ." (emphasis in original). It also prominently listed the deals and revenues from the analyst's investment-banking connected efforts:

Internet Investment Banking, a Record Year with $205MM+ YTD Revenue, [20+] Pending Financings, Co-Coverage (Leverage) in 85% of Cases, 6 of 6 Tech IBD Revenue Generating Clients, Internet Category was #1 Revenue Generator in Tech IBD ($505MM YTD Tech Revenue). . . . (Emphasis in original.)

OK, the numbers (see Attachment A): Forty investment banking transactions ($143MM in fees) . . .

It's notable that 96% of the $205MM in revenue was derived from clients new to the firm since 1995! Exceptions were America Online, Compaq, Hearst and Sotheby's. And I have been very involved in this business. (Emphasis added.)

D. Investment Banking Was an Important Factor in Determining Research Analysts' Compensation

34. From 1999 through 2001, participation in investment banking activities was a factor in determining the total compensation awarded to Morgan Stanley research analysts. These analysts thus faced a conflict of interest between helping win investment banking business for Morgan Stanley and publishing negative research that could prevent Morgan Stanley from winning that banking business.

35. The annual salaries paid to senior Morgan Stanley analysts and other senior Morgan Stanley personnel typically were comparatively small components of their total annual compensation. The majority of their total annual compensation was paid in the form of a bonus. In 2000, one senior analyst received a year-end bonus that was 90 times greater than the analyst's base salary.

36. The total compensation paid to analysts was based in part on Morgan Stanley's total revenues for a particular year, including the investment banking fees that Morgan Stanley received. Thus, the success or failure of the investment banking division determined, in part, the total amount of funds available to pay employee compensation in any given year, including analyst compensation.

1. Analysts Rated Their Contributions to Investment Banking

37. The level of contribution to investment banking transactions was an important factor in the annual evaluations of Morgan Stanley's analysts and compensation decisions.

38. As part of the annual performance evaluation process, analysts were asked to submit self-evaluations that, among other things, discussed their contributions to Morgan Stanley. Analysts often included in their self-evaluations a discussion of their involvement in investment banking, including a description of specific transactions, the fees generated, and the role the analyst played in each deal. For example, one-quarter of the 1999 self-evaluation of one analyst was dedicated to the analyst's role in investment banking activities, and identified forty transactions that year that had generated a total of $143 million in fees.

39. As part of the evaluation process, the analysts also provided a rating of their contributions to specific banking transactions. Analysts were instructed to complete a Transaction Summary Worksheet ("TSW") in which they graded their roles in specific deals on a scale of 1-5. Instructions provided to each analyst described the rating system as follows:

5 = critical to deal
4 = important to development and execution
3 = solid contribution

- 2 = limited contribution
1 = contribution limited to providing research coverage

40. Analysts were also instructed to comment on important aspects of any transaction, including, for example, whether the "promise of coverage was critical to winning" the mandate. The instructions informed analysts that supplying the information called for in the TSWs was an "important part" of their annual evaluation process.

2. Investment Bankers Evaluated Analysts' Performance

41. Morgan Stanley also solicited and received the investment bankers' assessment of the analysts' performance on the same transactions. Morgan Stanley's liaison between the research and investment banking divisions compiled and summarized the bankers' evaluations of the analysts' role in each deal and then prepared a final TSW listing for each transaction that provided a joint evaluation of the analysts' contributions to each deal.

42. Finally, as part of Morgan Stanley's "360 degree" review process, in which employees confidentially reviewed one another, investment bankers submitted written opinions of analysts with whom they worked.

43. Investment bankers thus played a role in the annual evaluation of research analysts by providing substantive information that was considered in the year-end evaluation process and input into the determination of the analysts' compensation for that year. The investment bankers' role in the evaluation process created a conflict of interest for analysts, who hoped for positive evaluations from investment bankers at the same time that they were charged with issuing objective research reports that, if negative, could have impeded Morgan Stanley's ability to win future investment banking business from the covered companies.

3. Investment Banking Was the Factor Accorded the Greatest Weight by Management in Reviewing Management's Initial Determination of Proposed Analysts' Compensation

44. In 1999 and 2000, analyst compensation was set primarily by a managing director in the equity research division. The managing director made an initial determination of proposed compensation for all analysts and ranked the analysts based on that determination. The managing director then ranked the analysts based on their composite scores in nine categories. The managing director then compared the two rankings before forwarding the compensation recommendations to superiors.

45. The nine categories used to rank the analysts included the amount of investment banking revenues attributed to analysts based on their involvement in transactions (relative weight of 33%) and eight other categories related to core research activities, including: (1) poll rankings from the Institutional Investor and other sources (19%); (2) poll ranking from institutional equity division sales (12%); (3) firm activities and ability to be a team player (11%); (4) the "hit ratio" in vote gathering from institutional clients (7%); (5) rank in vote gathering from institutional clients (7%); (6) stock picking (active portfolio vs. passive portfolio) (6%); (7) stock picking (active portfolio vs. index portfolio) (3%); and (8) poll ranking from retail sales (2%). Thus, the managing director assigned a one-third weight to investment banking revenues -- the highest weight given to any single category.

46. The impact that an analyst's contribution to investment banking revenues could have on the determination of the analyst's compensation is shown by the compensation of one Morgan Stanley senior analyst in 1999 and 2000. In 1999, the analyst who received the highest compensation among Morgan Stanley research analysts had a composite score that ranked only 11th overall, but ranked first in investment banking revenues.

47. In 2000, the same analyst continued to rank first in investment banking revenues: the total investment banking revenues that the analyst helped Morgan Stanley obtain more than doubled. In most other categories, however, the analyst's performance declined from 1999, and the analyst's composite score dropped to 19th overall. In 2000, the analyst ranked only 70th out of 111 analysts in stock picking, and the analyst's self-evaluation conceded that 2000 had been the analyst's worst stock-picking year in fifteen years. Nevertheless, this analyst's total salary and bonus for 2000 increased by approximately $8.7 million as compared to 1999, again ranking first among all Morgan Stanley analysts.

I. 3. MORGAN STANLEY DID NOT DISCLOSE THAT IT PAID $2.7 MILLION OF UNDERWRITING FEES AT ISSUERS' DIRECTION TO OTHER INVESTMENT BANKS TO PROVIDE RESEARCH COVERAGE

48. In at least twelve stock offerings in which it was selected as lead underwriter from 1999 through 2001, Morgan Stanley paid $2.7 million of the underwriting fees to approximately twenty-five investment banks. Internal Morgan Stanley documents described these payments as "research guarantees" or "guaranteed economics for research." Other internal Morgan Stanley documents noted instances in which the bank receiving the payment "will write." Morgan Stanley made these payments from the offering proceeds at the direction of the issuers.

49. These "research guarantee" payments included more than $670,000 paid to three investment banks in connection with an offering by Veritas Software Corp. in December 1999; more than $816,000 paid to seven banks in connection with an Agile Software Corp. offering in December 1999; and more than $440,000 paid to five banks in connection with an offering by Atmel Corp. in February 2000. The individual disbursements ranged from two payments of just over $6,000 each to three payments of more than $225,000 each.

50. The issuers' registration statements and other offering documents identified the other banks as part of the underwriting syndicates and as receiving payments, but did not specifically disclose the payments as being for research. Morgan Stanley did not take steps to ensure that these banks disclosed these payments in their research reports. Morgan Stanley also did not cause the payments to be disclosed in offering documents or elsewhere as having been for research.

I. 4. MORGAN STANLEY FAILED REASONABLY TO SUPERVISE ITS SENIOR RESEARCH ANALYSTS

A. Morgan Stanley Had No System for Reviewing the Ratings Issued by Its Senior Analysts

51. Morgan Stanley failed reasonably to supervise its senior research analysts. The firm required only non-officer-level analysts to submit their initial ratings and proposed changes in ratings for review by the Stock Selection Committee. Senior analysts -- principals and managing directors -- were not subject to this requirement. In addition, Morgan Stanley had no effective system in place for reviewing the ratings of its senior analysts against changed conditions.

52. Morgan Stanley's lack of an effective review system allowed some principal and managing director analysts to maintain Outperform ratings unchanged on declining stocks without any review by management. For example, in 2000 and 2001, four senior analysts maintained Outperform ratings unchanged on 13 stocks as the prices of the stocks declined by over 74 percent. The names of the stocks, their percentage declines, and the number of months without a change in the Outperform rating are shown on the following chart:

Company	Percent Price Drop While Rated Outperform	Months Without Change in Outperform Rating
Chemdex (Ventro)	96.2	8.5
Drugstore.com	95.4	30
Priceline.com	92.0	30
Ask Jeeves	90.9	16
Marimba	88.9	8.5
Homestore.com	88.7	10
Vignette	87.1	7.5
VeriSign	83.3	19.5
Akamai	82.8	10
Women.com	80.3	8.5
CNET	77.7	16.5
Inktomi	76.9	15
FreeMarkets	74.3	23

53. Not until late 2001, after complaints from Institutional Sales persons made as part of the year-end evaluation process, did management state to one of the analysts: "Don't let your ratings get stale; change them ahead of expected price action."

B. Morgan Stanley's Analysts Virtually Never Used the Lowest Rating in the Firm's Stock Rating System

54. From 1995 to March 2002, Morgan Stanley publicly stated that it had a four-category rating system: Strong Buy; Outperform; Neutral; and Underperform. "Underperform" was defined as follows: "Given the current price, these securities are not expected to perform as well as other stocks in the universe covered by the analyst." Although Morgan Stanley stated that it had a four-category system, its analysts virtually never used the "Underperform" rating and, in effect, used a three-category system. From 1999 through 2001, the firm published research on approximately 1,000 North American company stocks. No more than three of the 1033 stocks covered over the course of 1999 were given an Underperform rating; no more than five of the 1058 stocks covered over the course of 2000 received that rating; and no more than six of the 1030 stocks covered over the course of 2001 were rated Underperform. Morgan Stanley management was aware that analysts were not using the "Underperform" rating, but did not correct the problem until March 2002, when a new rating system was instituted.

II.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The State Corporation Commission ("Commission") has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia.
2. The Commission finds that Morgan Stanley violated Securities Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12 and 21 VAC 5-20-260 in that:
 - a) The relationship between investment banking and research created conflicts of interest for Morgan Stanley research analysts;
 - b) Morgan Stanley did not disclose that it paid $2.7 million of underwriting fees at issuers' direction to other investment banks to provide research coverage; and
 - c) Morgan Stanley failed reasonably to supervise its senior research analysts.
3. The Commission finds the following relief appropriate and in the public interest.

III.

The total amount to be paid by Morgan Stanley to state securities regulators pursuant to the state settlement offer may be reduced due to the decision of any state securities regulator not to accept the state settlement offer. In the event another state securities regulator determines not to accept Morgan Stanley's state settlement offer, the total amount of the Virginia payment shall not be affected, and shall remain at $545,408;

Morgan Stanley understands and acknowledges that these provisions are not intended to imply that the Commission would agree that any other amounts Morgan Stanley shall pay pursuant to the SEC Final Judgment may be reimbursed or indemnified (whether pursuant to an insurance policy or otherwise) under applicable law or may be the basis for any tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax.

10. The Orders shall not disqualify any Covered Person from any business that they otherwise are qualified, licensed or permitted to perform under applicable state law.
11. For any person or entity not a party to this Order, this Order does not limit or create any private rights or remedies against Morgan Stanley including, without limitation, the use of any e-mails or other documents of Morgan Stanley or of others regarding research practices, or limit or create liability of Morgan Stanley, or limit or create defenses of Morgan Stanley to any claims.

NOVEMBER 25, 2003

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.

CITIGROUP GLOBAL MARKETS, INC. (formerly known as Salomon Smith Barney, Inc.),
Defendant

SSB now known as Citigroup Global Markets, Inc. is a broker-dealer registered in the state of Commonwealth of Virginia; and

An investigation into the practices, procedures and conduct of Salomon Smith Barney, Inc. ("SSB")¹ respecting: (a) the preparation and issuance by SSB's U.S. equity research analysts ("Research Analysts") of research, analysis, ratings, recommendations and communications concerning common stocks of publicly traded companies covered by such analysts ("Research Coverage"), during the period 1999 through June 2002, including without limitation, commencement and discontinuance of Research Coverage, actual or potential conflicts of interests affecting Research Coverage, Research Analysts or termination of Research Analysts, and misleading statements, opinions, representations or non-disclosure of material facts in Research Coverage; (b) the allocation by SSB and its predecessor Salomon Brothers, Inc. of stock from initial public offerings that traded at a premium in the secondary market when trading in the secondary market begins and spinning by SSB (i.e., allocating such offerings as preferential treatment to officers and directors of companies having or potentially having investment banking business with SSB), during the period 1996 through 2001 ("IPO Allocations") and; (c) any other conduct referred to in the Findings of Fact set forth below in paragraphs 3 through 153 has been conducted by a multi-state task force of which Virginia was a part (the "Investigation").

The New York AG and Citigroup Global have previously entered into an Assurance of Discontinuance, dated April 24, 2003 (the "New York Assurance of Discontinuance"), a copy of which has been provided to the State Corporation Commission concerning the practices, policies and procedures of SSB which were the subject of the Investigation; and

NOW, THEREFORE, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), as administrator of the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia, hereby enters this Order:

I.

FINDINGS OF FACT

A. Summary and Jurisdiction

1. Citigroup Global is, and under its former name SSB was, at all relevant times, a registered broker-dealer with its principal place of business located at 388 Greenwich Street, New York, New York 10013. SSB has engaged and Citigroup Global continues to be engaged, in a full-service securities business, including institutional and retail sales, investment banking services, trading and research.

2. The Commission has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to the Act.

3. In 1999, 2000, and 2001 (the "relevant period"), as described below, SSB issued research reports on two telecommunications ("telecom") companies that were fraudulent and issued research reports on several telecom companies that were misleading.

4. During the relevant period, SSB employed business practices that required research analysts to promote SSB's investment banking efforts. Research alone did not generate substantial profits for SSB; investment banking did, and it needed the services of research analysts to do so. Research analysts were expected to vet prospective investment banking deals, promote SSB's investment banking business to issuers during pitches, and market investment banking deals to SSB's customers. When SSB secured investment-banking business, research analysts were expected to provide favorable coverage of SSB's investment banking clients. Important factors in evaluating an analyst's performance and determining an analyst's compensation at SSB were investment banker evaluations and investment banking revenues generated in an analyst's sector. These business practices created a culture in which investment bankers could and did pressure research analysts to maintain coverage or favorable ratings for investment banking clients and created the incentive for analysts to use research to obtain, retain and increase revenue from investment banking deals. SSB failed to manage the conflicts created by its practices.

5. Jack Grubman was the linchpin for SSB's investment banking efforts in the telecom sector. He was the preeminent telecom analyst in the industry, and telecom was of critical importance to SSB. His approval and favorable view were important for SSB to obtain investment-banking business from telecom companies in his sector. In total, SSB earned more than $790 million in investment banking revenue during the relevant period from telecom companies Grubman covered. Given Grubman's key role in SSB's investment banking success in the telecom sector, SSB compensated him handsomely. During the relevant period, Grubman was one of the most highly paid research analysts at SSB and on Wall Street. Between 1999 and August 2002, when he left the firm, Grubman's total compensation exceeded $67.5 million, including his multi-million dollar severance package.

6. During the relevant period, SSB and Grubman published fraudulent research reports on Focal Communications and Metromedia Fiber Networks, as set forth below. These reports were contrary to the true views Grubman and another analyst on his team privately expressed, presented an optimistic picture that overlooked and minimized the risk of investing in these companies, predicted substantial growth in the companies' revenues and earnings without a reasonable basis, did not disclose material facts about these companies, and contained material misstatements about the companies.

7. Moreover, SSB and Grubman also published certain research reports that were misleading. In April 2001, Grubman expressed a need to downgrade six telecom companies (Level 3 Communications, Williams Communications Group, XO Communications, Focal, Adelphia Business Solutions, and RCN Communications). Investment bankers pressured Grubman not to downgrade these companies and Grubman did not. He continued to advise investors to buy these stocks, and did not disclose the influence of investment bankers on his ratings. In addition, a research report on Williams Communications lacked a reasonable basis because it did not disclose the true views Grubman and others on his team privately expressed at the same time about the company and certain research reports on Focal failed to disclose facts as described below.

8. In November 1999, Grubman upgraded AT&T from a Neutral (3) – his longtime rating on the stock -- to a Buy (1). SSB and Grubman did not disclose in the report that Grubman had a conflict of interest relating to his evaluation of AT&T. Prior to the upgrade, Sanford I. Weill ("Weill"), the co-CEO and Chairman of Citigroup (and a member of the AT&T board of directors), had asked Grubman to take a "fresh look" at AT&T, and Grubman had asked Weill for assistance in gaining admission for his children to the selective 92nd Street Y preschool in New York City at the same time Grubman was conducting his "fresh look" at the company. Subsequently, Grubman stated privately that he had upgraded AT&T to help his children get into the 92nd Street Y preschool. After Grubman upgraded AT&T and his children were admitted to the preschool, Weill arranged a pledge of $1 million payable in equal amounts over five years from Citigroup to the 92nd Street Y.

9. Grubman's upgrade of AT&T also helped SSB gain investment banking business from AT&T. In late fall 1999, AT&T determined to make an initial public offering ("IPO") of a tracking stock for its wireless unit – the largest equity offering in the United States. In February 2000, AT&T named SSB as one of the lead underwriters and joint book-runners for the IPO, in large part because of Grubman's "strong buy" rating of, and "strong support" for, AT&T. SSB earned $63 million in investment banking fees from this engagement.

10. During the period 1996 through 2000, SSB engaged in improper spinning practices by allocating hot IPO shares² to executives of current or potential investment banking clients and providing special treatment for these executives. The executives profited significantly from selling IPO stock allocated to them. The investment banking business generated by the firms for which these executives worked represented a substantial portion of SSB's revenues during this period.

11. Additionally, SSB failed to maintain books and records sufficient to determine whether or not the distribution of IPO shares had been completed prior to the initiation of secondary market trading. Further, SSB failed to administer Issuer Directed Share Programs appropriately and failed to establish and maintain written supervisory procedures for the appropriate management of such programs.

B. SSB Failed to Manage Conflicts of Interest Between Research and Investment Banking

12. SSB's business practices intertwined research with investment banking, thus creating the vehicle for investment banking to exert inappropriate influence over research analysts. SSB failed to manage the resulting conflicts of interest in an adequate or appropriate manner.

1. SSB's Business Practices Required Research Analysts to Support Investment Bankers

13. Companies paid SSB's investment bankers to assist them with (a) capital raising activities such as IPOs, "follow on" offerings (subsequent offerings of stock to the public), and private placements of stock, and (b) other corporate transactions, such as mergers and acquisitions. During the relevant period, investment banking was an important source of revenue for SSB; revenues from investment banking grew from approximately $3.0 billion in 1999, to approximately $3.6 billion in 2000, and to approximately $3.9 billion in 2001. Investment banking fees comprised over 21% of SSB's revenue in 1999, over 22% in 2000, and over 25% in 2001.

14. SSB's equity research analysts provided SSB's investing clients and the public with research reports on certain public companies. SSB held out its research analysts as providing independent, objective and unbiased information, reports, ratings, and recommendations upon which investors could rely in reaching investment decisions. SSB distributed its analysts' reports to its clients directly and by placing the reports on its website.

15. At SSB, research was a cost center. In contrast, investment banking generated substantial profits for SSB. To leverage its research, SSB required research analysts to serve, among others, investment banking. Accordingly,

- SSB expected research analysts to prepare business plans each year that, among other things, highlighted what the research analysts had done and would do to help SSB's investment bankers;
- SSB's research analysts were encouraged to develop investment banking business from issuers and private companies in their sectors;

² A "hot IPO" is one that trades at a premium in the secondary market whenever trading in the secondary market begins.

- SSB's research analysts were expected to support investment banking by pitching business to prospective clients and marketing investment banking deals to institutional customers through roadshows;
- Investment banking concerns sometimes affected research analysts' decisions to initiate coverage, rate companies, and drop coverage. SSB's research analysts were generally expected to initiate coverage of SSB's investment banking clients with favorable ratings;
- Investment bankers reviewed the performance of the principal research analysts in their sector as part of the analysts' annual review; and
- Investment banking revenue generated in an analyst's sector and attributable to an analyst was an important factor SSB used to evaluate an analyst's performance and determine an analyst's compensation.

16. This integration of research analysts with investment banking was an SSB objective. In a January 1998 presentation to senior management at Travelers Corporation, then the parent of SSB, the head of SSB wrote: "There is a continuing shift in the realization that an analyst is the key element in banking success." Underscoring the same theme two years later, on December 8, 2000, the head of SSB's Global Equity Research wrote to the CEO of SSB that one of his goals since becoming global head of research was "to better integrate our research product with the business development plans of our constituencies, particularly investment banking"

17. In reviewing his performance for 2000, the head of SSB's Global Equity Research stated:

We have become much more closely linked to investment banking this year as a result of participating in their much-improved franchise review process this year. There has been a yearend [sic] cross review of senior analysts and bankers particularly in the U. S. and Europe and with the development of the Platinum Program in the investment bank, the analyst's understanding of the relative importance of clients for IB [investment banking] and GRB [global relationship bank] is much improved.

18. In January 2000, SSB held a "Best Practices Seminar" for research analysts that was hosted by the head of U. S. Equity Research Management. At that seminar, a senior member of Research Management stated:

[W]hen you look at the market share gap between us and the three competitors who are trying to close. When I just eyeballed it, it looked like to me there is something like roughly a billion dollars of, maybe not Equity Capital Markets but Investment Banking revenues, on the table for this firm. And that's a lot of money. And its clear...that Research is driving a lot of this increasingly. And therefore, as a [research] department our goal has to be, to be a really effective partner in terms of helping drive initiation, execution and everything else. Because there is a lot of money on the table for this company. And we'll all benefit from it.

2. SSB Analysts Helped Investment Bankers Identify and Obtain Business

19. Research analysts at SSB helped investment banking by identifying prospective clients and mandates and by participating in sales "pitches" for investment banking business. SSB bankers would not pitch for investment banking business unless they knew the SSB analyst who would cover the company was going to support the proposed deal.

20. SSB's pitchbooks to potential investment banking clients routinely highlighted the experience and qualifications of the lead analyst in the company's sector and how the analyst would help market the proposed deal. During the "pitch" process, SSB conveyed that its research analysts would cover the company if the company gave it investment banking business, and analysts frequently attended the "pitch" sessions. Once a company selected SSB as the underwriter, SSB analysts worked together with investment bankers to (among other things) perform due diligence on the deal and take the company executives out on "roadshows" to market the potential transaction to institutional investors.

21. During the relevant period, all parties involved – the analyst, the firm, and the issuer – understood that the analyst would initiate coverage of the company if SSB was given investment banking business and would initially rate the company favorably.

3. SSB's Research Analysts Supported Investment Banking Through Their Ratings and Coverage

22. SSB encouraged analysts to support SSB's investment banking business through their ratings. Each research report SSB issued included an investment rating that purportedly reflected the analyst's objective opinion of the relative attractiveness of the company to the investors.

23. During the relevant time period, SSB advised its customers that it utilized the following five-point investment rating system:

- 1 - Buy
- 2 - Outperform
- 3 - Neutral
- 4 - Underperform
- 5 - Sell

24. In addition, SSB during the relevant period included in each research report a risk rating of L (low risk), M (moderate risk), H (high risk), S (Speculative), or V (Venture). Each of the research reports and call notes discussed below, other than those on AT&T, rated the company S (Speculative).

25. In practice during the relevant period, SSB's research analysts rarely rated companies a 4 (Underperform) and never a 5 (Sell) in part to avoid antagonizing issuers in a way that would harm SSB's investment banking business. As a Director who provided Research Management Support stated in a March 30, 2001 e-mail:

[W]e in U. S. Research currently have no "4" (Underperform) or "5" (Sell) ratings. We use neutral rating as a statement that we are not at all enthusiastic about a stock. That effectively conveys the message that customers should not be in the stock. If we were to use 4 or 5 ratings that approach would be perceived as highly antagonistic to buy side accounts . . . [and] company management teams.

26. In a later e-mail, the same person suggested that the common terms SSB used to rate stocks did not mean what they said: "various people in research and media relations are very easy targets for irate phone calls from clients, reporters, etc. who make a very literal reading of the rating . . . [I]f someone wants to read the ratings system for exactly what it says they have a perfect right to do that."

27. The head of SSB's Global Equity Research raised the issue of research integrity directly with the head of SSB in a memorandum entitled "2000 Performance Review," when he expressed a "legitimate concern about the objectivity of our analysts which we must allay in 2001." The head of Global Equity Research also addressed the nature of the research ratings at an SSB equities management meeting. He made a presentation regarding the SSB "Stock Recommendations as of 1/29/01," which showed that, out of a total of 1179 stock ratings, there were no Sell ratings and only one Underperform rating. In handwritten notes attached to this presentation, he described these ratings in the U. S. as the "worst" and "ridiculous on face." He observed that there was a "rising issue of research integrity" and a "basic inherent conflict between IB [investment banking], equities and retail." In a February 22, 2001 memo, the head of Global Equity Research told the managing directors in the U. S. equity research division that the global head of SSB's private client (i.e., retail) division said SSB's "research was basically worthless" and threatened to terminate his division's contribution to the research budget.

28. SSB did not change its rating system, however, and the de facto three-category rating system remained in place throughout 2001. As of the end of 2001, SSB covered over 1000 U.S. stocks but had no Sell ratings and only 15 Underperform ratings (1.4%).

4. Investment Banking Influenced SSB's Evaluation and Compensation of Research Analysts

29. SSB established a compensation structure that linked research analysts with investment banking. Research analysts were requested to draft business plans that discussed, among other things, their steps to support investment-banking business in the past year and their plans to support investment banking in the upcoming year.

30. In addition, investment bankers among others evaluated the performance of research analysts. Bonuses for research analysts – comprising most of their compensation – were tied to several factors, one of the most important of which was the investment banking revenue SSB attributed to the research analyst.

C. Grubman Supported SSB's Investment-Banking Business in the Telecom Sector

31. During the relevant period, Grubman was one of the most prominent analysts on Wall Street. He was a Managing Director of SSB, and the preeminent research analyst at SSB. He managed a team of analysts who issued research reports ("Reports") and call notes ("Notes") on telecom companies. Grubman was principally responsible for each Report and Note SSB issued on these companies.

1. Grubman Helped Obtain Investment Banking Clients for SSB

32. Grubman helped to obtain and maintain business for SSB's investment bankers from telecom companies in his sector. Grubman also vetted proposed transactions involving telecom companies and vetoed those he could not view favorably. Once he determined he could support a proposed transaction, he and other telecom analysts who reported to him often participated in pitching the potential client to award SSB investment banking business and in roadshows that marketed offerings to investors.

2. Grubman's Ratings Assisted SSB's Investment Banking Business

33. During the relevant period, SSB was the lead underwriter on 6 IPOs for telecom companies. For each company, Grubman initiated coverage with a 1 (Buy) recommendation. In virtually every instance, Grubman also issued favorable research reports on telecom companies for which SSB acted as lead or co-manager of a secondary offering of equity stock offering. In fact, Grubman and his group, with only one exception, did not rate a stock a 4 during the relevant period and never rated a stock a 5. Rather, he and the research personnel who reported to him would drop coverage altogether rather than rate a stock at less than a Neutral.

3. Grubman Helped Generate Substantial Revenue for SSB's Investment Banking Department and Was Highly Compensated

34. Grubman's efforts contributed to the telecom sector generating substantial investment banking revenue for SSB. During the relevant period, as reflected in documents prepared in connection with Grubman's evaluation and compensation, SSB earned more than $790 million in total gross investment banking fees from telecom companies covered by Grubman: approximately $359 million in 1999, $331 million in 2000, and $101 million in 2001.

35. Grubman was well paid for his efforts. During the relevant period, he was one of the most highly compensated research analysts at SSB. His total compensation (including deferred compensation) from 1999-2001 exceeded $48 million: over $22 million in 1999, over $20.2 million in 2000, and over $6.5 million in 2001. In light of the importance investment banking played in SSB's annual evaluations, Grubman and two of his assistants in their 2001 performance evaluation highlighted the investment banking deals for which they had been responsible.

36. As was true of other research analysts, Grubman was evaluated by investment bankers, institutional sales, and retail sales. Grubman received high scores and evaluations from investment bankers in 2000 and 2001 that reflected his importance to investment banking. Investment bankers rated analysts on a scale from 1 (lowest) to 5 (highest). For 2000, Grubman received a 5 rating overall from investment bankers, who ranked him first among all analysts. His ratings and rankings in specific investment banking categories, such as pre-marketing, marketing, and follow-up were also at the top levels. For 2001, Grubman's average score (the only score presented that year) from investment bankers was 4.382, ranking him 23rd among the 98 analysts reviewed.

37. SSB's institutional sales force rated Grubman 16th out of 113 analysts in 2000 and 46th out of 115 analysts in 2001.

38. Retail brokers ranked analysts on a scale from -1 (lowest) to 2 (highest). For 1999, the retail sales force gave Grubman an average score of 1.59, ranking him 4th out of 159 analysts evaluated. In contrast, for 2000 and 2001, Grubman's evaluations from retail were dramatically lower and well below his scores from investment bankers and the institutional sales force in both years. In 2000, retail ranked Grubman last among all analysts with a score of -0.64. The same was true for 2001 -- the retail force ranked Grubman last among all analysts reviewed, and his score fell to -0.906.

39. Moreover, Grubman received scathing written evaluations from the retail sales force in 2000 and 2001. Hundreds of retail sales people sent negative written evaluations of Grubman in both years.

- Many claimed Grubman had a conflict of interest between his role as an analyst and his role assisting investment banking:
 - "poster child for conspicuous conflicts of interest";
 - "I hope Smith Barney enjoyed the investment banking fees he generated, because they come at the expense of the retail clients";
 - "Let him be a banker, not a research analyst";
 - "His opinions are completely tainted by 'investment banking' relationships (padding his business)";
 - "Investment banker, or research analyst? He should be fired";
 - "Grubman has made a fortune for himself personally and for the investment banking division. However, his investment recommendations have impoverished the portfolio of my clients and I have had to spend endless hours with my clients discussing the losses Grubman has caused them."
- Many criticized his support of companies that were SSB investment banking clients:
 - "Grubman's analysis and recommendations to buy (I Ranking) WCOM [Worldcom], GX [Global Crossing], Q [Qwest] is/was careless";
 - "His ridiculously bullish calls on WCOM and GX cost our clients a lot of money";
 - "How can an analyst be so wrong and still keep his job? RTHM [Rhythm NetConnections], WCOM, etc., etc.";
 - "Downgrading a stock at $1/sh is useless to us.";
 - "How many bombs do we tolerate before we totally lose credibility with clients?"

40. The evaluations and comments from retail did not appear to affect Grubman. In a January 2001 e-mail, he stated:

I never much worry about review. For example, this year I was rated last by retail (actually had a negative score) thanks to T [T&T] and carnage in new names. As the global head of research was haranguing me about this I asked him if he thought Sandy [Weill] liked $300 million in trading commission and $400 million (only my direct credit not counting things like NTT [Nippon Telecom] or KPN [KPN Qwest] our total telecom was over $600 million) in banking revenues. So, grin and bear it. . . .

41. When Grubman left SSB in August 2002, he signed a separation agreement that included compensation worth approximately $19.5 million plus approximately $13 million in deferred compensation previously accrued in 1999, 2000, and 2001.

D. Investment Bankers Successfully Pressured Grubman to Maintain Positive Ratings on Stocks

42. Investment bankers pressured Grubman to maintain positive ratings on companies in part to avoid angering the covered companies and causing them to take their investment banking business elsewhere.

43. On April 18, 2001, one of the companies Grubman covered, Winstar Communications, Inc. (a Competitive Local Exchange Carrier or CLEC), declared bankruptcy. In the aftermath of the Winstar bankruptcy, an SSB investment banker suggested that SSB's telecom investment bankers and research analysts have a conference call followed by a meeting to consider the prospects of other CLECs and similar telecom companies. Grubman agreed, but made clear that the Winstar bankruptcy had convinced him of the need to downgrade other CLECs and telecom companies, all of which he rated a Buy (1) at the time:

Also to be blunt we in research have to downgrade stocks lest our retail force (which Sandy cares about a lot which I know to [sic] well) end up having buy rated stocks that go under. So part of this call will be our view that LVL [Level 3], WCG [Williams Communication Group], XOXO [XO Communications], FCOM [Focal], ABIZ [Adelphia Business Solutions], RCN [RCN Communications] must not remain buys.

44. Thereafter, the then-head of investment banking for SSB and the head of telecom investment banking called Grubman separately. The head of investment banking told him not to downgrade the stocks because doing so would anger these companies and hurt SSB's investment banking business. The head of telecom investment banking told him that they should discuss his proposed downgrades because some of the names were more sensitive than others. SSB and Grubman did not downgrade these stocks until months thereafter, continued to advise investors to buy these stocks and, in the weeks and months following, merely lowered the target prices for each of these companies.

45. Grubman acknowledged that investment banking influenced his publicly expressed views about the companies he covered. He stated in a May 2001 e-mail to an analyst who reported to him:

... If anything the record shows we support our banking clients too well and for too long.

46. The analyst agreed and stated that Grubman had helped SSB's investment banking business by using his influence to sell securities for questionable companies:

... I told [an investment banker] that you get the good and the bad with you [Grubman] and to look at all the bad deals we sold for them in the past. He agreed.

47. On May 31, 2001, Merrill Lynch downgraded XO, one of the stocks Grubman had wanted to downgrade in April. Merrill's actions caused Grubman to consider again whether he should have downgraded XO:

Another one. I hope we were not wrong in not downgrading. Try to talk to folks to see what they think of these downgrades. Maybe we should have done like I wanted to. Now it's too late. (Emphasis added.)

48. A research analyst who reported to Grubman responded to this e-mail by reiterating a negative view of XO and Level 3:

... XOXO is a lost cause, its [sic] never too late to do the call, we could downgrade XO, LVLTL, etc.

49. Later the same day, the same analyst e-mailed Grubman, warning him that an institutional investor thought downgrading XO would:

definitely get the Lame-O award on CNBC & wouldn't help anyone out, it would just call attention to our negligence on not downgrading sooner.

50. A few weeks later, Grubman was invited to a dinner with the head of U. S. Equity Research and two senior investment bankers. Grubman anticipated discussing banking's displeasure with his commentary on telecom stocks. Grubman e-mailed one of his research colleagues:

... I have dinner with [a senior investment banker and the head of U. S. Equity Research] I bet to discuss banking's displeasure with our commentary on some names. Screw [the investment bankers]. We should have put a Sell on everything a year ago. (Emphasis added.)

51. The next day, Grubman e-mailed the head of U. S. Equity Research, stating that the pressure from investment banking had caused him not to downgrade stocks he covered:

See you at dinner. If [a senior investment banker] starts up I will lace into him. ... most of our banking clients are going to zero and you know I wanted to downgrade them months ago but got huge pushback from banking.

52. SSB and Grubman maintained Buy ratings on Level 3, WCG, XO, RCN, Adelphia, and Focal for months after April 2001. SSB and Grubman did not downgrade Level 3 until June 18, 2001; RCN until August 2, 2001; Focal and Adelphia until August 13, 2001; and WCG and XO until November 1, 2001. In each instance, SSB downgraded these stocks to a 3 (Neutral). None of the Notes published between April 18 and the date of each downgrade disclosed the pressure investment bankers had exerted on Grubman and Grubman's yielding to such pressure. These Notes were inconsistent with the views Grubman had expressed, as reflected in the emails above, concerning these stocks.

E. SSB and Grubman Published Fraudulent Research That Promoted Focal Communications and Metromedia Fiber, Two of SSB's Investment Banking Clients

53. SSB and Grubman published certain fraudulent research reports on Focal Communications and Metromedia Fiber, two investment banking clients of SSB. As described below, certain research reports on these companies were contrary to Grubman's private views and those of his team. Moreover, certain research reports on these two companies presented an optimistic picture that overlooked or minimized the risk of investing in these companies and predicted substantial growth in the companies' revenues and earnings without a reasonable basis.

1. SSB and Grubman Published Fraudulent Research Reports on Focal

54. Focal was a CLEC – a broadband telecommunications provider of limited reach. As of December 31, 1999 it operated in 16 locations nationwide and as of December 31, 2000 it operated in 20 locations nationwide. Focal was never profitable. Focal's net loss was approximately $500,000 in 1996, $3 million in 1997, $8 million in 1998, $22 million in 1999, and $105 million in 2000.

55. Focal was an investment-banking client for SSB. SSB underwrote Focal's initial public offering in July 1999. It also assisted the company in other investment banking transactions. In total, SSB earned approximately $11.8 million in investment banking fees from Focal.

56. Shortly after SSB underwrote Focal's initial public offering, it initiated coverage with a Buy (1) rating and maintained that rating until August 12, 2001. Grubman was responsible for SSB's Reports and Notes on the company.

57. SSB and Grubman published two Notes on Focal that were fraudulent – one issued on February 21, 2001 and one issued on April 30, 2001. The February 21 Note "reiterated" a Buy recommendation. It left the target price unchanged from $30 (approximately twice the stock price of $15.50). The Note reported overall results that were "in line" with expectations, and a revenue mix that "continues to improve." It also reported that Focal "continues to gain a stronger foothold in the large business market and continues to grow sales of existing customers with existing and new products and also into multiple markets." The February 21 Note reported EBITDA (earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization) that improved over the previous quarter and was in line with estimates; it advised investors that Focal expected to be EBITDA breakeven sometime in 2001. Finally, the Note thought the company could continue to perform well and grow and, if it did, the target price and estimates would be increased:

The quarter's results were in line with our expectations. The revenue and line mix is improving but the fact remains that FCOM still has exposure to recip comp and exposure to ISPs, which are areas of concern for investors. While FCOM is collecting recip comp and is good at reviewing its customer credit profiles with ISPs, which are areas of concern for investors, we believe it is prudent to see a few more quarters of good execution and growth before we change numbers. We continue to remain prudent and thus, we don't think we should raise our price target to above $30 when the stock is only trading at $15. But, as we stated in our 3 Q note, if [Focal] management continues to execute and also delivers on its data strategy, we believe this will be reflected in its stock price, and thus, we will be in a better position to raise numbers.

58. The same day as the February 21 Note, however, Grubman stated that he believed Focal should be rated an Underperform (4) rather than a Buy (1), that "every single smart buysider" believed its stock price was going to zero, and that the company was a "pig." Focal apparently complained about the February 21 Note. When Grubman heard of the complaint, he e-mailed two investment bankers:

I hear company complained about our note. I did too. I screamed at [the analyst] for saying "reiterate buy." If I so much as hear one more fucking peep out of them we will put the proper rating (ie 4 not even 3) on this stock which every single smart buysider feels is going to zero. We lose credibility on MCLD and XO because we support pigs like Focal.

59. Also on February 21, an institutional investor e-mailed a research analyst who worked for Grubman, "Meld [McLeod USA, Inc.] and Focal are pigs aren't they?" and asked whether Focal was "a short." The analyst responded to the e-mail: "Focal definitely"

60. Grubman continued to express his true view of Focal in a subsequent communication. As described in Section D above, he stated on April 18, 2001 that the company needed to be downgraded in the aftermath of the Winstar bankruptcy.

61. Contrary to these negative views of Grubman and his colleague, the April 30 Note on Focal again advised investors to buy Focal. By April 30, the stock price had fallen to $6.48. Although the April 30 Note lowered the target price to $15, calling the previous target price of $30 "stale," the new target price was still more than twice the stock price. The April 30 Note stated that the company had reported quarterly results in line with estimates, repeated that Focal's "revenue mix is improving towards telecom," and noted the "line mix" continued to improve.

62. Neither the February 21 Note nor the April 30 Note disclosed the actual views of Grubman and his colleague about Focal. Indeed, both Notes contradicted such views. Neither Note described the company as a "pig" or a "short," disclosed that "smart buysiders" were predicting that Focal's stock price was going to zero, or indicated that the proper rating for Focal was an Underperform (4). The February 21 Note and the April 30 Note did not provide any other reason the stock should be downgraded. To the contrary, both Notes advised investors to buy the stock, predicted that the company's stock price could at least double over the next 12 to 18 months, and indicated that the company's numbers were "in line" and in some respects improving. Accordingly, the Notes issued on February 21, 2001 and April 30, 2001 were fraudulent.

2. SSB and Grubman Issued Fraudulent Research Reports on Metromedia Fiber

63. Metromedia Fiber built and operated fiber optic systems nationally and in Europe. It intended to provide telecom services to CLECs and large telecom companies, cable companies, internet service providers, and Fortune 500 companies in large metropolitan areas. As of the end of 2000, Metromedia Fiber was increasingly unprofitable, spent substantial amounts of cash to construct its fiber optic systems and required even more capital to complete its planned network.

64. Metromedia Fiber was an investment-banking client for SSB. SSB underwrote Metromedia Fiber's IPO in 1997 and a secondary offering in November 1999. In addition, SSB engaged in other investment banking transactions for the company. In total, SSB earned approximately $49 million in investment banking fees in Metromedia Fiber deals. After Metromedia Fiber's IPO, SSB and Grubman initiated coverage of the company with a Buy (1) rating and maintained that rating until July 25, 2001.

65. In 2001, the company entered into an agreement with Citicorp USA, Inc. (an SSB affiliate) to provide it with a credit facility that it needed to fund its operations. The deadline for closing on the facility was extended twice and, in the end, the facility was completed for less than half its full amount. The Notes on Metromedia Fiber issued between April 2001 and July 2001 did not adequately disclose the red flags concerning the credit facility or Grubman's view that the company might not get the funding. Moreover, in June 2001, a research analyst working for Grubman told him that while the company had funds through the end of 2001, thereafter the company's fundamentals would deteriorate. This contradicted the ratings and price targets SSB and Grubman published on the stock in a Note dated June 28, 2001. For these reasons, the Notes dated April 30, 2001, June 6, 2001, and June 28, 2001 were fraudulent and misleading.

66. Metromedia Fiber announced on January 8, 2001 that it had "obtained a commitment for a fully underwritten credit facility for $350 million from Citicorp USA, Inc., which it expects will fully fund its current business plan of building 3.6 million fiber miles . . . by the end of 2004."

67. As of March 2001, Metromedia Fiber faced a risk of not obtaining financing for its operations, had sufficient funds for its operations through the end of 2001, and may not have had sources for additional capital to finance its operations after the end of 2001. In particular, the company stated at the time that it may not be able to close on the pending $350 million credit facility from Citicorp USA.

68. In an April 18, 2001 e-mail to a senior investment banker, Grubman indicated he was aware that Metromedia Fiber might not close the credit facility and would downgrade the company should it not obtain the additional funding: "If MFNX [Metromedia Fiber] does not get credit facility they too get downgraded [from a buy]."

69. Nevertheless, on April 30, 2001, SSB and Grubman issued a Note that reiterated a Buy (1) rating for Metromedia Fiber, stating: "We want to make it very clear that [Metromedia Fiber] remains one of our favorite names." Regarding funding for the company, the Note stated:

As noted in our previous note, MFN has obtained a commitment for a fully underwritten credit facility for $350 million from Citicorp USA, Inc., which it expects will fully fund its current business plan....

70. The April 30 Note failed to disclose that the company believed it might not consummate the credit facility and that Grubman had expressed doubt that the company might get funding.

71. Metromedia Fiber subsequently announced that the deadline for closing on the credit facility had been extended from May 15 to June 30, 2001.

72. In a June 6, 2001 Note, SSB and Grubman continued to state that the stock was "exceptionally inexpensive" and opined that the company had "good visibility in its core fiber business." Grubman began and ended the Note with: "We strongly reiterate our Buy . . . and we would be aggressive at current prices." Regarding the funding for the company, Grubman wrote:

We continue to believe the $350 million bank loan, which will bring MFNX to fully-funded status, will close by the end of June.

The lack of available capital for MFNX - lookalikes only strengthens MFNX's position. Most recently private companies, such as OnFiber and other metro builders, have failed in getting private financing and other companies in the metro space have an extremely difficult time.

MFNX has a business plan that is fully funded and many "would-be" competitors are never getting to the market.

73. The Note did not disclose that (a) the deadline for consummating the bank loan had been extended from May 15 to the end of June; or (b) after announcing the funding commitment, the company had determined that it may not be able to successfully consummate the senior credit facilities. The Note also did not reflect Grubman's opinion that Metromedia Fiber might not secure the financing. As described above, the Note emphasized and recognized the importance of Metromedia Fiber's fully-funded position.

74. In its June 28, 2001 Note, two days before the expiration of the funding commitment, SSB and Grubman disclosed that Metromedia Fiber had not consummated the bank loan and that the deadline had been extended from May 15 to June 30. SSB and Grubman minimized the funding problem by advising investors that the company had other options for financing, but added that they "can only guess on the nature or terms of the alternative financing [Metromedia Fiber] would agree to." Nevertheless, the Note analyzed the company's financing needs assuming the company could secure the $350 million in additional funds under the loan or by other means and therefore would be fully funded through 2003. The Note continued to project a positive EBITDA for 2003 and reiterated its Buy (1) rating.

75. The Notes published from April to July 2001 on Metromedia Fiber minimized the risks facing the company, assumed the company was going to be fully funded, and estimated that the company would enjoy explosive growth in revenues and earnings. The $25 price target issued on April 30, 2001 assumed that the company would have estimated revenue in 2010 of $10.6 billion and EBITDA of $4.4 billion. The June 6, 2001 target price of $15 assumed the company would have $8.7 billion in revenue nine years out and EBITDA of $3.2 billion. The June 28, 2001 target price of $10 maintained the estimate of future revenue and EBITDA.

76. These reports, and the ratings and price targets included in them, reflected SSB's and Grubman's publicly expressed opinion that the company's future was secure. This view was contrary to the actual views of SSB's analysts, which were expressed privately and not disclosed. On June 21, 2001, a research analyst who reported to Grubman discounted the prospects of the company, telling Grubman in an e-mail that while the company had funding through the end of 2001, its fundamentals would deteriorate thereafter:

I have received over 50 calls today on MFNX (its down $0.20 again to $1.51). . . . Most people have written off this stock saying that it will go bankrupt, even if they could get an equity infusion here it would be massively dilutive. At lease [sic] they have some cash through the end of the year but I doubt the fundamentals recover which is actually the important thing. I think downgrading right now is not advisable since everyone would say "gee thanks." I think we need an excuse [sic] from the company, we should have done it the day they lowered guidance but of course we were restricted.

77. SSB did not downgrade Metromedia Fiber until July 25, 2001 and even then only downgraded the stock to a Neutral (3) rating. By then, the company's stock price had sunk to 98 cents, more than a 33 percent drop from its price on June 21, 2001, when the analyst who reported to Grubman disparaged the company's future.

F. SSB Issued Misleading Research Reports on Level 3, Focal, RCN, Adelphia, WCG, and XO

78. Research reports must not contain misleading statements, analysts must have a reasonable basis for their recommendations, and reports must present a fair, balanced picture of the risks and benefits of investing in the covered companies and avoid exaggerated or unwarranted claims regarding the covered companies. As described below, certain research reports issued on Level 3, Focal, RCN, Adelphia, WCG, and XO violated these requirements.

1. SSB Issued Misleading Research on Focal

79. As stated above, on February 21, 2001 and April 30, 2001, SSB and Grubman published fraudulent research reports on Focal. In addition to those reports, SSB and Grubman published four misleading research reports on Focal, dated April 10, 2000, April 18, 2000, April 26, 2000, and July 31, 2000.

80. In April 2000, Focal selected SSB to be the joint book runner for a secondary offering of its stock. Focal also announced a major expansion of its business plan. At the time, the company had significant capital expenditures and required additional capital to complete its new business plan. It faced the risks that it could not raise such capital and could not complete its new plan, and that, because of its capital expenditures, it would potentially have substantial negative operating cash flow and substantial net operating losses for the foreseeable future, including through 2000 and 2001. Nevertheless, the Notes SSB and Grubman published on April 10, 2000, April 18, 2000, April 26, 2000, and July 31, 2000 either did not disclose these risks or did not fully address them. In addition, these Notes published a target price that did not have a reasonable basis.

81. On April 10, 2000 SSB and Grubman issued a Note that reiterated a Buy (1) recommendation on Focal and increased the target price for Focal from $60 to $110. The Note discussed Focal's planned expansion, describing it as "sexy" and "providing the sizzle in this story." Based on Focal's expanded business plan, SSB and Grubman predicted that the company's revenue within 10 years would increase to $6 billion and EBITDA would increase to $2.4 billion. The Note described Focal management as "stellar." The Note did not disclose the additional capital expenditures that would be necessary to fund Focal's expanded business plan or the risk the company may not be able to obtain such capital. It did not disclose the likelihood that the expanded business plan would increase the company's substantial negative operating cash flow and substantial net operating losses.

82. On April 18, 2000, SSB and Grubman issued a Note reiterating the $110 price target and Buy rating. The April 18 Note stated that "[Focal] is expanding its business plan to 24 markets and aggressively pursuing data opportunities . . . The name of the game in value creation is to drive geographic footprint & service capabilities. Focal is dramatically increasing the latter w/its data initiative while increasing its geographic footprint by 15-20% . . . We reiterate our Buy rating & $110 target & would be aggressive buyers." The April 18, 2000 Note did not disclose the additional capital expenditures that would be necessary to fund Focal's expanded business plan or the risk the company may not be able to obtain such capital. It did not disclose the likelihood that the expanded business plan would increase the substantial negative operating cash flow and substantial net operating losses the company faced in the foreseeable future.

83. On April 26, 2000, SSB and Grubman issued a Note that reiterated a Buy recommendation, the $110 target price, and Grubman's predictions of substantial growth in the company's revenues and EBITDA. By this time, Focal's share price had dropped to $34.00. The Note repeated Grubman's earlier comments that Focal's new data initiative "is the real sizzle in this story . . . we believe that [Focal's] recent geographic & data expansion will enable [Focal] to become one of the critical path points in what is the next evolution in the Internet." The Note stated:

From a liquidity standpoint, no matter what happens with the capital markets, between the money [Focal] has on hand and its bank facilities commitments, we believe that [Focal] will be fully funded through mid- to late-2001. During the first quarter, [Focal] completed a $275 million offering of 11 7/8% senior notes due 2010 through a private placement.

84. The Note concluded with another recommendation for investors to buy the stock: "We continue to be very bullish on [Focal] and believe the stock is undervalued at current levels." The Note did not disclose the additional capital expenditures that would be necessary to fund Focal's expanded business plan or the risk the company may not be able to obtain such capital. It did not disclose the likelihood that the expanded business plan would increase the substantial negative operating cash flow and substantial net operating losses the company faced in the foreseeable future.

85. The Note SSB and Grubman published on July 31, 2000 left the rating and target price unchanged. The Note extolled the virtues of Focal's management, stating that the reported strong earnings for second quarter 2000 "highlights the execution abilities of FCOM management . . ." It repeated earlier advice to investors that "the stock is undervalued at current levels." The July 31 Note stated:

From a liquidity standpoint, [Focal] received a commitment for $300 million of senior secured credit facilities during the quarter. Capital expenditures totaled $77 million this quarter and we still expect [Focal] to spend $300 million and $305 million in 2001. We estimate that with the cash on hand of $342 million and the available credit, [Focal] will be fully funded through 2001.

86. Missing from the July 31 Note, however, were sufficient risk disclosures adequate to warn investors of the funding needs facing Focal. The Note did not disclose the additional capital expenditures that would be necessary to fund Focal's expanded business plan or the risk that the company may not be able to obtain such capital. It did not disclose the likelihood that the expanded business plan would increase the substantial negative operating cash flow and substantial net operating losses the company faced in the foreseeable future.

87. By October 17, 2000, Focal's stock price had plummeted to $18. That day, SSB and Grubman issued a Report on Focal and other CLECs entitled "CLECs: Clean Up of Ratings, Price Targets & DCFs." In this Report, SSB and Grubman maintained a Buy (1) rating on Focal, but lowered Focal's target price from $110 to $30, noting that the previous target price was "a clearly stale number." Despite advising investors for months prior to October that Focal's new business strategy was "sexy" and "the sizzle to the story" and would raise Focal's stock price by $50, Grubman decreased Focal's price target in part by substantially reducing the revenue expected from the new business strategy.

2. Level 3, Focal, RCN, Adelphia, WCG and XO

88. As described above in Section D, in April 2001 Grubman expressed the need to downgrade Level 3, Focal, RCN, Adelphia, WCG, and XO in the aftermath of the Winstar bankruptcy. Investment bankers pressured Grubman not to change the Buy ratings on these stocks and he did not downgrade them until months later.

89. None of the following Notes for these companies issued between April 18, 2001 and the date the stocks were downgraded disclosed the pressure the investment bankers had exerted on Grubman or the fact that he had acceded to it; these Notes were inconsistent with the views Grubman had expressed, as reflected in the e-mails described in Section D. above, concerning these stocks:³

³ For the additional reasons set forth in Section E, the Note on Focal for April 30, 2001 was fraudulent.

- Level 3: Report issued on April 18, 2001.
- WCG: Reports issued on May 1, 2001, August 1, 2001, and September 21, 2001.
- XO: Reports issued on April 26, 2001, and July 25, 2001.
- Adelphia: Report issued on May 14, 2001.
- RCN: Report issued on May 3, 2001.

3. WCG

90. The May 1, 2001 Note on WCG lacked a reasonable basis because it did not disclose the contrary private views of Grubman and a member of his team. On May 1, 2001, SSB and Grubman issued a Note that failed adequately to disclose the views of Grubman and another analyst of the funding risks facing WCG. Before the issuance of that Note, Grubman and the analyst commented privately that the company "need[s] money." These funding concerns were so acute that the analyst warned an institutional investor to "be careful with WCG." Similarly, Grubman explained to a SSB retail broker who complained about Grubman's target price for WCG that WCG was a "tough one. They still need money. I think business is ok . . ."

91. The May 1 Note, however, reiterated a Buy recommendation on the stock. It noted that "visibility on funding better vs. 6 mos. ago." It reassured investors that WCG had adequate funds "into 2003." The Note stated that the company had reduced capital expenditures and "has made steps to improve its funding situation since the beginning of the year and have [sic] raised additional liquidity of more than $2 billion." While predicting that the company may need $1 billion to fund its operations in 2003, the Note stated "frankly, if the second tranche of the bank facility gets fully syndicated out, and WCG does perform as it expects . . . then our funding gap will be cut dramatically."

92. The May 1 Note failed to accurately describe the negative view of Grubman and the analyst who reported to him of the company's funding concerns. Rather than informing investors that WCG's business was merely "ok" or a "tough one," the May 2001 Note advised investors to "be more aggressive on [WCG]." The Note did not warn investors to "be careful" with WCG and did not fully reflect the analysts' views on the company's funding needs.

G. Undisclosed Conflicts of Interest Pervaded Grubman's Upgrade of AT&T in November 1999

1. AT&T Complained About Grubman's Views of the Company

93. From 1995 through November 1999, Grubman maintained a Neutral (3) rating on AT&T. Though at times he offered qualified approval of AT&T's strategy, he also repeatedly disparaged the company in his research and his public comments.

94. Beginning in July 1998 and continuing through the relevant period, Sanford Weill, then co- CEO and Chairman of Citigroup, was a member of the AT&T Board of Directors. Prior to November 1999, AT&T management complained to Weill and other SSB representatives about the tone of Grubman's comments. In particular, the AT&T CEO told Weill that Grubman's unprofessional tone and comments about AT&T made it difficult for AT&T to do business with SSB.

95. At an October 1998 industry trade show, Grubman failed to mention AT&T as one of the important telecommunications companies of the future. AT&T complained to Weill, and Weill relayed the complaint to senior SSB investment bankers. As a result, Grubman wrote a letter of apology dated October 9, 1998 to Weill and the heads of SSB's investment banking and equities departments. Before it was finalized, the letter was reviewed and approved by Weill and several members of senior management. Grubman's apology stated, in part:

It has come to my attention that a speech I made offended AT&T. I want to make it perfectly clear that the last thing I want to do is embarrass the firm or myself or for that matter have AT&T put in an awkward position in dealing with Salomon Smith Barney. To the extent I have done so, I apologize to you and to the firm. I will also find the appropriate time and place to apologize directly to AT&T.

Despite our current investment stance on AT&T, I view AT&T as one of the most significant companies in this industry, a company that I hope we can build a long and valued relationship with and one where I truly am open-minded about changes in investment views.

96. In his cover memo to the head of SSB investment banking, and the SSB investment banker covering AT&T, Grubman indicated that his letter was suitable to send to AT&T. On October 12, Weill and the investment banker covering AT&T traveled to AT&T's Basking Ridge, NJ headquarters and met with AT&T's CEO.

2. Weill Asked Grubman to "Take a Fresh Look" at AT&T

97. A few months later, in late 1998 or early 1999, Weill asked Grubman to "take a fresh look" at AT&T in the hope that Grubman might change his opinion of the company. Weill had a positive view of the CEO of AT&T whom Weill had known personally for years. AT&T's CEO was a member of Citigroup's Board of Directors during the relevant period and, prior to the merger of Citicorp and Travelers Corporation (SSB's corporate parent), had been a member of the Travelers' Board of Directors since 1993.

98. Thereafter, on April 5, 1999, Grubman sent AT&T a seven-page questionnaire seeking further information about its business. On June 11, 1999 Grubman sent Weill a memorandum noting that AT&T had not responded to his questionnaire. Weill apparently then spoke to AT&T's CEO about the questionnaire. AT&T asked Grubman to re-send the questionnaire, and Grubman wrote Weill: "Maybe this time we can actually make some progress in closing the deal with [AT&T's CEO]." On July 19, 1999, AT&T sent an eleven-page response to Grubman.

99. On August 5, 1999 Grubman and Weill traveled to AT&T's headquarters for a meeting with AT&T's CEO that Weill had arranged. On August 19, 1999, Grubman wrote to AT&T's CEO:

I am writing to follow up on our meeting with Sandy. . . . I thought it was important to write to you directly to lay-out what I think we agreed to in order to get this process going. . . . I need to get to a level of specificity well beyond what's on the street today and I will need your help getting to the right people. . . . Wall Street is lacking analysis that comes remotely close to answering the detailed economic, technical, and operational questions that investors are demanding answers to regarding the roll-out of the bundled service platform using the cable plant When my analysis is complete and if the results are in line with what you and I are both anticipating, once I'm on board there will be no better supporter than I. . . . As I indicated to you at our meeting, I would welcome the role of being a "kitchen cabinet" member to you.

100. Grubman sent a copy of his August 19, 1999 letter to Weill, SSB's head of investment banking, and the SSB investment banker covering AT&T.

3. Grubman Requested Weill's Assistance to Get His Children Accepted to the 92nd St. Y Preschool and AT&T Considered Issuing a Tracking Stock for Its Wireless Unit

101. In September 1999, Grubman began his efforts to get his children admitted to the prestigious and competitive preschool at the 92nd Street Y in New York City.

102. On October 20, 1999, the AT&T Board of Directors began discussing whether to issue a tracking stock for its wireless unit. That day, Weill attended an all-day meeting of the AT&T Board, at which AT&T's management presented a number of strategic alternatives, including issuing a tracking stock for AT&T's wireless business.

103. On October 29, 1999, Weill and Grubman had a 14 minute telephone conversation during which they discussed the status of Grubman's "fresh look" at AT&T. In that conversation or one shortly thereafter, they also discussed Grubman's desire to send his children to the 92nd Street Y preschool in New York City.

104. By November 2, AT&T had taken its first steps towards issuing a tracker stock for its wireless unit. That day, an investment banking firm advising AT&T on financial strategies met with AT&T's outside counsel to discuss a proxy statement for AT&T shareholder approval of the wireless tracker.

105. On November 5, 1999, Grubman sent a memo to Weill entitled "AT&T and 92nd Street Y." In it, Grubman updated Weill on his progress in "taking a fresh look" at AT&T and outlined the future steps he would take to reexamine the company. He referred to his earlier meeting with AT&T's CEO and to his scheduled meetings in Denver with the head of AT&T's cable operations and in Basking Ridge with AT&T's network operations personnel. Grubman also sought Weill's assistance in getting his children admitted to the 92nd Street Y preschool. Noting the difficulty in getting into the school, Grubman stated that "there are no bounds for what you do for your children. . . . it comes down to 'who you know.'" In the last paragraph of his memo, Grubman concluded: "Anyway, anything you could do Sandy would be greatly appreciated. As I mentioned, I will keep you posted on the progress with AT&T which I think is going well."

4. Grubman Kept Weill Apprised of His Reevaluation of AT&T in November 1999; AT&T Management Recommended That AT&T Issue a Tracking Stock

106. During November 1999, Grubman intensified his "fresh look" at AT&T. He met and spoke by telephone with AT&T's CEO and traveled to AT&T's Denver and New Jersey offices to meet with company officials and view AT&T's operations. Grubman reported on his efforts to Weill during an unprecedented number of telephone calls on November 3, 11, 17, 22, 24 and 30.

107. On the morning of November 17, Weill attended an AT&T board meeting at which senior AT&T management recommended that the board approve the issuance of a tracking stock for the wireless business. Grubman called Weill from Milan, Italy late that night and the two discussed the status of Grubman's "fresh look" at AT&T. During a call on November 22 or November 24, Grubman informed Weill that he soon would be issuing a report upgrading AT&T.

5. Grubman Upgraded AT&T and Subsequently Stated He Did So to Get His Children Into the 92nd St. Y Preschool

108. Grubman announced on November 29, 1999 that he was upgrading AT&T from a Neutral (3) to a Buy (1) rating. The same day, Grubman sent an e-mail to the SSB publications department, with a copy to Research Management, stating:

The AT&T Report must be edited and mailed out to the printers today so that it can be distributed in time to meet Sandy Weill's deadline (before the AT&T meeting.)

109. The next day, Grubman issued a 36-page Report setting forth his new rating and rationale. In his November 30 Report, Grubman wrote that his upgrade rested largely on two points: (1) the "real economics" of AT&T's cable strategy and (2) AT&T's ability to upgrade its cable technology to deliver a range of different services to consumers' homes. Grubman commented positively in his report about the widely-reported wireless tracking stock but denied upgrading because of the possible IPO.

110. After issuing the report, Grubman told an analyst who reported to him and an institutional investor, in separate conversations, that he upgraded AT&T to help get his children into the 92nd St. Y preschool.

111. Roughly a year after the upgrade, on January 13, 2001, in an e-mail to a friend, Grubman stated:

You know everyone thinks I upgraded T [AT&T] to get lead for AWE [AT&T Wireless tracker]. Nope. I used Sandy to get my kids into 92nd St Y pre-school (which is harder than Harvard) and Sandy needed [the AT&T's CEO's] vote on our board to nuke [John] Reed in showdown. Once coast was clear for both of us (ie Sandy clear victor and my kids confirmed) I went back to my normal negative self on T. [AT&T's CEO] never knew that we both (Sandy and I) played him like a fiddle.

112. The following day, Grubman e-mailed the same friend: "I always viewed T [AT&T] as a business deal between me and Sandy."

6. After the AT&T Upgrade, Weill Helped Facilitate the Admission of Grubman's Children to the 92nd St. Y Preschool

113. After Grubman issued his November 1999 report on AT&T, Weill helped gain admission for Grubman's children to the 92nd St. Y preschool. On or about December 17, 1999, Weill called a member of the 92nd St. Y board and told her he would be "very appreciative" if she would help Grubman, a "valued employee" at Citigroup. Weill did not explicitly offer a donation to the Y during this phone call. By indicating that he would be "very appreciative," he understood that he was implicitly offering such assistance.

114. In March 2000, Grubman's children were admitted to the Y preschool. Subsequently, the board member called Weill, suggested a donation be made to the Y, and may have suggested the amount. Weill agreed. Weill was one of three corporate officers who approved charitable donations from Citigroup or the Citigroup Foundation. During a subsequent conversation with the president of the Citigroup Foundation, Weill indicated that the Foundation should make a $1 million donation to the Y and instructed the Foundation president to work with the Y to develop a suitable program with the donation. The program that was subsequently developed consisted of a series of 10 events per year that had cultural, artistic, and educational aims. Weill, the president of the Foundation, and another Citigroup corporate officer approved the donation on July 24, 2000⁴ and the first installment of the donation ($200,000) was sent to the Y in September 2000. The president of the Foundation understood the donation was a "thank you" for the admission of the Grubman children to the preschool at the 92nd St. Y.

7. After Grubman's Upgrade of AT&T, AT&T Selected SSB as a Lead Underwriter in the AT&T Wireless IPO

115. Grubman's upgrade of AT&T assisted SSB in being selected as a lead underwriter and joint book-runner for the IPO of a tracking stock for AT&T's wireless subsidiary.

116. The AT&T Board approved the IPO during its December 5, 1999 Board meeting. AT&T announced its plans at a meeting with analysts the following day.

117. In January 2000, SSB competed to be named a lead underwriter and book-runner for the offering. In its pitch book, it highlighted the experience, prominence, and support for AT&T of Grubman and the SSB wireless analyst. Among other things, SSB's pitch book contained numerous statements about Grubman's views regarding the positive impact the wireless tracking stock would have on AT&T's shares, as well as promises about the role he would play in marketing the deal to investors.

118. In evaluating the various proposals from SSB and other investment banks, AT&T assigned significant weight (55%) to its views of each investment bank's wireline and wireless telecommunications analysts. Because Grubman was a highly rated and highly respected analyst, had a "strong buy" on AT&T stock, and was a "strong supporter" of the company, AT&T gave him the highest possible score in the internal matrix it used to rank the competing investment banks. In February 2000, based in large part on this positive evaluation of Grubman, AT&T named SSB as one of three joint book-runners for the AT&T Wireless IPO. The IPO occurred on April 27, 2000. It was the largest equity offering ever in the United States, and SSB earned $63 million in fees as lead underwriter for the offering.

8. Grubman Downgraded AT&T

119. On May 17, 2000, three weeks after the IPO, two months after his children were admitted to the 92nd St. Y preschool, and after AT&T announced disappointing earnings, Grubman issued a research report in which he compared AT&T with WorldCom. While Grubman did not change his Buy ratings on the two companies, he lowered his target price for AT&T from $75 to $65 per share and made a number of negative comments about AT&T.

120. Institutional investors viewed Grubman's report as a "virtual downgrade" because of his unfavorable comparisons of AT&T to WorldCom. An internal AT&T document also reported that Grubman was privately making comments to investors that were considerably more critical than those in his written reports.

121. Grubman subsequently downgraded AT&T twice in October 2000: on October 6 he downgraded the stock to an Outperform (2) and on October 25 he downgraded it to a Neutral (3), citing what he described as negative news from the company.

9. SSB's Policies Were Not Reasonably Designed To Prevent The Potential Misuse Of Material, Non-Public Information

122. During the relevant period, SSB had general policies in place requiring its employees to obtain approval before becoming a director of another company and to keep non-public information about that company confidential. SSB did not, however, have adequate policies and procedures in place to ensure that communications between a person associated with SSB who served as a director of another company and the SSB research analyst who covered that company would not result in the misuse of material, non-public information by the research analyst. For example, one such step SSB could have taken would have been to require that a company be placed on its watch list if a person associated with SSB served as a director of that company. Such a procedure would have helped SSB to monitor whether a research analyst, before publishing research on a company, had received material non-public information on it from a person associated with SSB who also served as one of the company's outside directors.

H. SSB Failed to Supervise Adequately the Activities of Its Research Analysts

1. SSB Failed to Respond Adequately to Red Flags Regarding Research

123. Members of research management received copies of research reports and call notes when they were issued and routinely reviewed research. Based on this review, complaints from SSB employees and customers, and otherwise, SSB was aware of problems with its research. Indeed, as described in Section B above, members of research management themselves expressed reservations about SSB's research. Nevertheless, SSB did not take steps to supervise the activities of research analysts adequately.

124. By early 2001, one of Grubman's supervisors believed that Grubman's ratings were inconsistent with the performance and prospects of the some of the companies he covered.

125. Moreover, on July 2, 2001, a Director who provided Research Management Support sent an e-mail to all research personnel, and others, warning that the models SSB analysts, including Grubman, used to predict future revenues and earnings and generate target prices "must make sense" (emphasis in original) and must be "smell tested." He criticized these models for using "aggressive inputs to arrive at a predetermined valuation/outcome." He concluded by noting that, "Clearly, projected long-term growth rates for many of our companies are too high and would benefit from a thoughtful reappraisal." (Emphasis in original.) At least one recipient of this e-mail thought he was referring to Grubman ("Amen! You should have cc'd this to Grubman just to make sure.") The author of the e-mail did not disabuse the recipient of this assumption: "No comment on that, at least not in writing."

126. The same person specifically criticized Grubman's research in a later e-mail to a senior member of research management, implying that the research had been compromised by investment banking concerns and acknowledging that SSB's lax supervision of Grubman was at least partly to blame. He focused in particular on Grubman's coverage of Metromedia Fiber and the June 6, 2001 Note (discussed above). He stated:

Explaining this isn't easy. My candid opinion is that, until quite recently, Jack Grubman's team had not yet come to terms with the debacle in this sector. While share prices plummeted, they remained convinced of the longer-term potential of their group and were unwilling to cut ratings and adopt a more cautious stance. When you add the heavy layer of banking involvement into the mix this very problematic situation gets easier to understand. (Emphasis added.)

127. He criticized Grubman's coverage of Metromedia Fiber in particular. He noted that Grubman's

[e]xcessive optimism led to unattainable target prices that should have been brought down much more quickly and earlier, than they had been. . . . [T]he target prices were cut again and again, but never enough to bring them into a more rational alignment with the share price. The 6/6/01 note talks about reducing projected 2010 revenue and EBITDA to $8.7BB and $3.2BB from $10.68BB and $4.4BB respectively. How anyone could think those levels could be attained I cannot explain. This only underscores the absurd assumptions pervading many [discounted cash flow] models. (Emphasis added.)

128. He concluded by acknowledging that SSB's supervision of Grubman had been inadequate:

What could have prevented this? . . . Even with all notes going through an SA [supervising analyst] and many being scrutinized by research legal as well, we clearly rely on senior analysts to do careful work, disclose all important data and denote all material risks. In the case of MFNX, and in other telecom situations that I could name, our approach was inadequate. There was a failure of analysis and, it pains me to confess, a failure of management. This is the only explanation I can offer. (Emphasis added.)

2. SSB Knew SSB Investment Bankers Pressured Research Analysts

129. SSB knew that its business practices, which intertwined research and investment banking, created a conflict of interest between investment banking and research, that investment banking pressured research analysts, and that investment banking concerns had the potential to affect, and, as described above with respect to Grubman, did affect, the decisions of research analysts on ratings and coverage. Nevertheless, SSB failed to take adequate steps to prevent such pressure or ensure that SSB's research was independent and objective.

130. SSB was aware that investment bankers pressured Grubman to maintain positive ratings or change negative ratings on companies. Moreover, on November 17, 2000, shortly after SSB was named in a private securities action relating to the AT&T Wireless IPO, Grubman e-mailed the head of Global Equity Research:

I think all legal stuff on ATT should be forwarded to Sandy [Weill] and [the head of SSB Investment Banking] as Exhibit A on why research needs to be left alone. These guys never understand the lingering consequences.

I. SSB Engaged in Improper Spinning and IPO Distribution Practices

131. SSB engaged in improper spinning practices whereby it provided preferential access to valuable IPO shares to the executives of corporations from which SSB sought or had obtained investment-banking business. During the years 1999 and 2000, SSB earned over $6.6 billion in investment banking revenue. Obtaining this investment banking business was critical to SSB's success. For example, investment-banking fees comprised over 21% of SSB's revenue in 1999, and over 22% in 2000.

132. SSB failed to appropriately administer numerous Issuer Directed Share Programs ("DSPs") it managed during this same period. Further, SSB engaged in significant "as of" trading in IPOs and failed to ensure that its distribution of IPO shares, both through DSPs and its branch offices, was timely and accurately reflected in its books and records.

1. SSB Established a Special Branch to Facilitate Its Spinning Practices

133. SSB employed two registered representatives ("RRs") whose primary function was to open and service accounts for high net worth individuals who were founders, officers or directors of current and potential banking clients ("Executive Accounts"). The two RRs had begun servicing these types of accounts at Salomon Brothers and continued to perform this function after Salomon merged with Travelers in 1997 to create SSB. SSB took steps and entered into written agreements to provide these two RRs with preferential, special, and unusual treatment including the following:

- SSB gave each of these two RRs special compensation, including a draw of $1 million for the first 6 months of their employment and a minimum of $500,000 for the second 6 months;
- SSB provided office space for one of the two RRs on SSB's equities trading floor in New York;
- SSB treated the business of the two RRs, designated "Private Wealth Management," as if it were a separate SSB branch office ("PWM Branch") for the purpose of determining IPO allocations, when it was actually only 2 brokers;⁵
- SSB provided the two RRs with unique access to hot IPO shares to distribute to the Executive Accounts that was far above and beyond that of any other broker or branch; and
- SSB provided the two RRs with access to IPO shares for distribution to the Executive accounts from (i) the SSB Branch retail allocation, with PWM being treated as a "branch office"; and (ii) the institutional pot. In some cases, the two RRs were able to obtain access to DSP shares from issuers for distribution to the Executive Accounts.

2. SSB Provided Preferential Treatment to Executive Accounts in the Allocation of Hot IPOs

134. SSB distributed its IPO shares by dividing the firm's allocation between its retail and institutional clients. Generally, SSB allocated to its retail clients, as a group, approximately 20-30% of the firm's allotment in any specific IPO, with a majority of the remaining shares designated for allocations to institutional clients. Those shares set aside for retail clients were designated as the "retail retention," and the remaining shares were designated as the "institutional pot."

135. The retail shares were distributed to specific accounts through SSB's branch managers. For every IPO, SSB gave each branch manager a specific number of shares, and the manager determined which retail brokers received shares and how many shares each retail broker received. The retail broker then determined the allocation of shares among his or her retail accounts, subject to the branch manager's final approval.

136. The PWM Branch and its clients, however, were treated differently. As noted, the two RRs' client base consisted primarily of high net worth individuals whose companies were potential investment banking clients or had provided investment banking business to SSB, and these two individual brokers were designated as a special branch with a separate profit and loss assessment. The PWM Branch received favorable treatment in the allocation of hot IPO shares. Although SSB's written procedures for the distribution of IPO shares specifically prohibited favoritism for the personal accounts of corporate executives, SSB in fact provided preferential treatment to Executive Accounts in connection with the distribution of hot IPO shares throughout the relevant period.

a. Special Access to Retail and Institutional Shares

137. While other SSB retail branches were ordinarily limited to receiving IPO shares for clients from the retail retention, in many instances the two RRs in the PWM Branch obtained shares from both the retail retention and the institutional pot. This arrangement enabled them to consistently provide the Executive Accounts with larger numbers of shares in lucrative hot IPOs than were allocated to other retail accounts.

138. For example, from June 1996 through August 2000, WorldCom's then-President and CEO received IPO allocations in 9 offerings from Salomon and 12 offerings from SSB. He made profits of $10,612,680 and $923,360 respectively, totaling $11,536,041 on these IPO allocations. From 1996 through 2000, WorldCom paid $75,955,000 in investment banking fees to SSB.

139. During 1999 and 2000, the two RRs in the PWM Branch received 35% of the total IPO shares allocated for distribution to SSB's ten largest branches and PWM combined. During this same period, these two brokers generated less than 3% of this combined group's commission revenue and had less than 5% of the group's assets under management. In 5.3% of the IPOs during this period, the two PWM brokers alone received a greater IPO allocation than the total shares distributed to SSB's ten largest branches.

b. PWM's Solicitation of Syndicate for Additional IPO Shares

140. In addition to the arrangement that provided the two PWM brokers with special access to large numbers of IPO shares for its client base, these two RRs aggressively solicited the Syndicate Department for additional shares in order to give preferential treatment to founders, officers, and directors of investment banking clients. PWM brokers regularly requested additional shares from Syndicate, while retail brokers did so rarely. This occurred as early as 1996 and continued throughout the relevant period. For example, in a June 7, 1996 facsimile to the Syndicate Department, one of the RRs requested shares in the McLeod USA IPO for "Salomon Brothers Investment Banking Relationships to receive preferential treatment."

⁵ The two RRs ended their partnership in 1999 after which each operated as a separate branch and the practices described herein continued. However, the two RRs are referred to as the "PWM Branch."

c. Special Access to DSP Shares

141. As well as obtaining hot IPO shares for Executive Accounts from the retail retention and institutional pot, a PWM broker sought access, on at least one occasion, to shares reserved for an Issuer's Directed Share Program for allocation to Executive Accounts.⁶

142. In a July 6, 1999 letter, one of the two PWM Branch RRs solicited the President and CEO of Focal for the inclusion of various favored Executive Accounts in Focal's DSP. Of the seventeen listed PWM clients who were Focal bondholders requesting equity shares, at least thirteen were telecom company executives. One of these seventeen PWM clients, the former CEO of McLeod USA, received 100,000 shares through Focal's DSP.

143. SSB also directly allocated issuers' DSP shares to the Executive Accounts. When trades through an Issuer's DSP program could not be confirmed, SSB used those shares for its own clients and distributed them to its favored accounts. For example, one of the PWM RRs was assigned by SSB to administer the KQIP DSP. KQIP began trading in the aftermarket on November 9, 1999. Several days later, the issuer's CFO contacted the PWM RR and stated that 20,000 shares of IPO stock were left over from the DSP, and asked if the RR would like to allocate the shares to one of his clients. The RR took the DSP shares and in turn gave them to another broker who had assisted him with the KQIP DSP for allocation to that broker's favored customers. On November 12, 1999, the second broker allocated 5,000 shares of KQIP IPO stock to a customer, who was able to purchase them at the IPO price. On November 16, 1999, the broker allocated the remaining 15,000 shares of KQIP IPO stock to the same customer at the IPO price. On December 24, 1999 the customer sold all 20,000 shares of KQIP for a profit of $832,540.

144. Additionally, several Executive Accounts serviced by the PWM brokers received IPO shares from a significant number of DSPs. For example, DSP shares were allocated in more than one-third of the SSB IPOs awarded to the former Executive Vice President of Qwest Communications International from May 1998 through September 2000. Likewise, DSP shares were allocated in half of the SSB IPOs awarded to the President of Qwest Communications International from June 1999 through September 2000.

3. Both SSB and Executives of the Firm's Investment Banking Clients Profited Significantly From SSB's Spinning Practices

145. The spinning practices engaged in by Salomon before the merger with Citigroup, and then by SSB after the merger through the PWM Branch proved very lucrative to both the firm and the executives of the firm's investment banking clients. Executives of five telecom companies made approximately $40 million in profits from approximately 3.4 million IPO shares allocated from 1996 – 2001, and SSB earned over $404 million in investment banking fees from those companies during the same period.

4. SSB Could Not Rely on Its Records to Determine if IPOs Were Fully Distributed

146. SSB's record keeping and its system of assessing whether the IPO distribution was completed were totally inadequate. The records failed to timely and accurately record the firm's distribution of IPO shares to its clients. As a result, the firm could not rely on these records to ensure that the distribution was complete. This faulty record keeping was particularly evident in the areas of "as of" trades and the distribution of DSP shares. These "as of" trades frequently provided immediate profits to the recipients.

a. "As Of" Trades

147. In the Metromedia Fiber offering, SSB booked approximately 68% of all allocations on an "as of" basis two days or more after the IPO date and well after secondary market trading had begun in each stock. In the Juniper Networks offering, over 80% of all allocations booked by SSB were booked on an "as of" basis two days or more after the IPO date. In at least 10 offerings, over 10% of the offering was booked on an "as of" basis two or more days after the IPO date.

148. SSB placed a number of these "as of" IPO trades in Executive Accounts. In addition, SSB's inadequate record keeping led to the appearance that certain IPO allocations were sold short in violation of industry regulations. For example, Juniper Networks ("JNPR") IPO stock went public on Thursday, June 24, 1999 at $34 per share. Trade tickets for the purchase of 5000 shares by WorldCom's former President and CEO were marked on the day after the IPO, Friday, June 25 at 3:12 p.m., and the shares were not booked into the account until the following Tuesday, June 29. SSB recorded this transaction on an "as of" basis. Though the shares had not yet been booked into the client's account and the tickets for the IPO trades were not yet written and time stamped, the CEO sold 4,000 JNPR shares on June 25 at 12:03 p.m., at prices of $100 and $100.31 per share, for a profit of $264,125. The CEO sold the remaining 1,000 shares of JNPR on April 4, 2000 at $210 per share, following a 3:1 stock split, for a total profit of $860,125.

149. Similarly, the former Chairman of Qwest Communications also received several "as of" IPO allocations that traded at a substantial profit in the aftermarket. For example, SSB booked 5000 JNPR IPO shares into the account of the Qwest Chairman on June 29, 1999, even though the IPO trade tickets were time stamped at 3:12 p.m. on June 25, one day after the IPO date. At 11:59 a.m. on June 25, the Qwest Chairman sold 2000 shares of JNPR for a profit of $132,063, even though the tickets for the IPO trades had not yet been written and time stamped, once again giving the appearance that the IPO shares were sold short. In addition, on June 5, 2000, SSB booked 10,000 shares of ONI Systems Corp. ("ONIS") IPO stock into this same client's account at the IPO price, even though ONIS had begun trading in the aftermarket on June 1, 2000. The Qwest Chairman ultimately sold the ONIS IPO stock for a profit of more than $562,000.

b. Directed Share Programs

150. In many instances in which SSB was retained to administer the issuer's DSP, a large number of allocations were booked into customers' accounts after the stock began trading in the secondary market, resulting in a substantial number of "as of" trades. Some of these instances resulted directly from SSB's failure to ensure that orders for DSP shares were confirmed prior to the start of secondary market trading. In fact, one of the PWM brokers acknowledged that, if he could not confirm a DSP allocation with a program participant, he would continue to attempt to contact participants even after secondary market trading had begun in the stock. SSB's inadequate record keeping left the firm unable to ensure that the distribution of DSP shares had been completed before the stock began trading in the secondary market.

151. Moreover, SSB did not appropriately administer DSPs. For example, SSB relied upon branch offices and their staff to manage these labor-intensive programs without adequate central supervision and coordination. Further, despite managing numerous DSPs, SSB had no written procedures or supervisory system in effect to ensure the appropriate administration of these programs and the complete and timely distribution of DSP shares.

5. SSB Failed to Supervise Reasonably the Activities of the PWM Branch and Others to Prevent Spinning

152. SSB failed to have supervisory procedures and systems in place to (i) prevent spinning; (ii) create records it could reasonably rely upon to assess whether or not the distribution of IPO shares was completed in compliance with applicable law; and (iii) ensure that issuers' DSP programs were managed in conformance with all applicable industry rules and regulations.

153. By establishing the PWM Branch and providing the two RRs with several special considerations, including the ability to obtain significantly larger hot IPO allocations than other brokers, SSB ensured favorable treatment for the Executive Accounts. Moreover, SSB management failed to adequately supervise the allocation process and specifically failed to take steps to ensure that the PWM Branch complied with SSB's policy prohibiting favoritism for the personal accounts of corporate executives. SSB also failed to accurately and timely record its distribution of IPO shares and failed to have a system to ensure that IPO distributions were completed, and recorded as completed, prior to the initiation of aftermarket trading. Finally, SSB failed to adopt written supervisory procedures and a supervisory system sufficient to ensure that the firm appropriately administered DSPs.

II.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The State Corporation Commission has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia.

2. SSB Published Fraudulent Research on Focal and Metromedia Fiber

As described in the Findings of Fact above, SSB publicly issued the following fraudulent reports on Focal Communications and Metromedia Fiber that contained misstatements and omissions of material facts about the companies covered, contained recommendations that were contrary to the actual views of its analysts, overlooked or minimized the risk of investing in these companies and predicted substantial growth in the companies' revenues and earnings without a reasonable basis:

- Focal: Reports issued on February 21, 2001 and April 30, 2001; and
- Metromedia Fiber: Reports issued on April 30, 2001, June 6, 2001, and June 28, 2001.

As a result, SSB violated Securities Rule ("Rule") 21 VAC 5-20-280 A 18.

3. SSB Published Exaggerated, Unbalanced or Unwarranted Statements and Made Recommendations Without a Reasonable Basis

As described in the Findings of Fact above, SSB issued certain research reports for Focal, RCN Communications, Level 3 Communications, XO Communications, Adelpia Business Solutions, and Williams Communications Group that did not disclose the pressure exerted by investment banking on Grubman not to downgrade those stocks, did not disclose other relevant facts, and did not provide a sound basis for evaluating facts regarding these companies business prospects. In addition, certain of the reports for Williams and Focal contained exaggerated or unwarranted statements or claims about these companies, and opinions for which there was no reasonable basis. The treatment of risks and potential benefits in the reports also was not adequately balanced. As a result, SSB violated Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280 A 18 in publishing the following misleading reports, as described in paragraphs 78 - 92:

- Focal: Reports issued on April 10, 2000, April 18, 2000, April 26, 2000, and July 31, 2000.
- Level 3: Report issued on April 18, 2001.

- WCG: Reports issued on May 1, 2001, August 1, 2001, and September 21, 2001.
- XO: Reports issued on April 26, 2001, and July 25, 2001.
- Adelpia: Report issued on May 14, 2001.
- RCN: Report issued on May 3, 2001.

4. SSB Published a Misleading Recommendation on AT&T

As described in the Findings of Fact above, SSB did not, in the November 1999 research report upgrading AT&T, disclose that Grubman's objectivity had been compromised by the facts described above in paragraphs 93 - 122. This would have been material to investors. As a result, such report was misleading and SSB violated Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280 A 18.

5. SSB's Business Practices Created Conflicts of Interest

As described in the Findings of Fact above, SSB's business practices allowed investment bankers to wield inappropriate influence over research analysts. SSB failed to manage, in an adequate or appropriate manner, the conflicts of interest these practices generated. Accordingly, SSB violated Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12.

6. SSB's Policies Were Not Reasonably Designed To Prevent The Potential Misuse Of Material, Non-Public Information

As described in the Findings of Fact above, during the relevant period SSB did not maintain written policies and procedures reasonably designed to prevent the sharing and misuse of material, non-public information between an affiliated person of SSB who served as a director of another company and an SSB research analyst covering that company. By reason of the foregoing, SSB violated Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12.

7. SB Engaged in Spinning

As described in the Findings of Fact above, SSB provided favorable and profitable allocations of hot IPO shares to officers of existing or potential investment banking clients who were in a position to direct their companies' investment banking business to SSB. The officers sold the shares provided to them for substantial profit. Subsequently, the companies for which the officers worked provided SSB with investment banking business. As a result of these actions, SSB violated Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12.

8. SSB Maintained Inaccurate Books and Records in Connection with its Spinning Activities and IPO Distribution Practices

As described in the Findings of Fact above, SSB allowed its employees to engage in "as of" trading and otherwise failed to maintain accurate books and records with respect to spinning. SSB also failed to maintain adequate books and records to ensure that its distributions of IPO shares were completed prior to the initiation of secondary market trading. As a result, SSB violated Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280 E 12.

9. SSB Failed to Supervise

As described in the Findings of Fact above, SSB failed to establish and maintain adequate procedures to protect research analysts from conflicts of interest from its investment banking operation. Moreover, SSB failed adequately to supervise the activities of its research analysts: it failed to respond to indications that SSB research was misleading and failed to have a system to provide reasonable assurances that its research reports complied with Rule 21 VAC 5-20-260. SSB also failed adequately to supervise the employees engaged in spinning. Finally, SSB failed to establish and maintain adequate procedures to ensure the proper administration of Issuer Directed Share Programs. As a result, SSB violated Rule 21 VAC 5-20-260.

10. The Commission finds the following sanctions appropriate and in the public interest.

III.

Upon execution of this Order, Citigroup Global shall pay the sum of $3,272,446 of this amount to the Commission as a civil monetary penalty pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Act. The total amount to be paid by Citigroup Global to state securities regulators pursuant to the state settlement offer may be reduced due to the decision of any state securities regulator not to accept the state settlement offer. In the event another state securities regulator determines not to accept Respondent Citigroup Global's state settlement offer, the total amount of the Virginia payment shall not be affected, and shall remain at $3,272,446;

Citigroup Global understands and acknowledges that these provisions are not intended to imply that the Commission would agree that any other amounts Citigroup Global shall pay pursuant to the SEC Final Judgment may be reimbursed or indemnified (whether pursuant to an insurance policy or otherwise) under applicable law or may be the basis for any tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax.

No portion of the payments for independent research or investor education shall be considered disgorgement or restitution, and/or used for compensatory purposes.

4. If payment is not made by Citigroup Global or if Citigroup Global defaults in any of its obligations set forth in this Order, the Commission may vacate this Order, at its sole discretion, upon 10 days notice to Respondent Citigroup Global and without opportunity for administrative hearing and Respondent Citigroup Global agrees that any statute of limitations applicable to the subject of the Investigation and any claims arising from or relating thereto are tolled from and after the date of this Order.

7. It is further ordered that this Order is not intended to prohibit Citigroup Global from acting as an underwriter, broker, dealer, investment adviser, municipal securities dealer, transfer agent, or entity or person required to be registered under the Commodity Exchange Act, or as an affiliated person of any investment company, bank, insurance company, or entity or person required to be registered under the commodity Exchange Act, or from engaging in or continuing any conduct or practice in connection with such activity or in connection with the purchase or sale of any security.

8. The SEC Final Judgment, the NYSE Stipulation and Consent, the NASD Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent, this Order and the order of any other State in related proceedings against Citigroup Global (collectively, the "Orders") shall not disqualify any Covered Person from any business that they otherwise are qualified, licensed or permitted to perform under the applicable law of the Commonwealth of Virginia and any disqualifications from relying upon this state's registration exemptions or safe harbor provisions that arise from the Orders are hereby waived.

9. For any person or entity not a party to this Order, this Order does not prohibit, limit or create: (1) any private rights or remedies against Citigroup Global; (2) liability of Citigroup Global; or (3) defenses of Citigroup Global to any claims. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the use of any e-mails or other documents of Citigroup Global or of others.

10. Nothing herein shall preclude the Commonwealth of Virginia, its departments, agencies, boards, commissions, authorities, political subdivisions and corporations, other than the Commission and only to the extent set forth in paragraph 1 above, (collectively, "State Entities") and the officers, agents or employees of State Entities from asserting any claims, causes of action, or applications for compensatory, nominal and/or punitive damages, administrative, civil, criminal, or injunctive relief against Citigroup Global arising from or relating to the subject of the Investigation.

12. Citigroup Global agrees not to take any action or to make or permit to be made any public statement denying, directly or indirectly, any finding in this Order or creating the impression that this Order is without factual basis. Nothing in this Paragraph affects Citigroup Global's: (i) testimonial obligations, or (ii) right to take legal or factual positions in defense of litigation or in defense of other legal proceedings in which the Commission is not a party.

13. Citigroup Global, through its execution of this Consent Order, voluntarily waives their right to a hearing on this matter and to judicial review of this Consent Order under the Act.

14. Citigroup Global enters into this Consent Order voluntarily and represents that no threats, offers, promises, or inducements of any kind have been made by the Commission or any member, officer, employee, agent, or representative of the Commission to induce Citigroup Global to enter into this Consent Order.

15. This Order shall be binding upon Citigroup Global and its successors and assigns. Further, with respect to all conduct subject to Paragraph 2 above and all future obligations, responsibilities, undertakings, commitments, limitations, restrictions, events, and conditions, the terms "Citigroup Global" and "Citigroup Global's" as used herein shall include Citigroup Global's successors and assigns (which, for these purposes, shall include a successor or assign to Citigroup Global's investment banking and research operations, and in the case of an affiliate of Citigroup Global, a successor or assign to Citigroup Global's investment banking or research operations).

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA, ex rel.

v.
UBS WARBURG LLC,
UBS PAINWEBBER INC.,
Defendants

CONSENT ORDER

UBS PaineWebber Inc. ("UBS PaineWebber") is a broker-dealer registered in the Commonwealth of Virginia since September 21, 1965; and

UBS Warburg LLC ("UBS Warburg") is a broker-dealer registered in the Commonwealth of Virginia since August 8, 1991; and

For purposes of this Order, PaineWebber, UBS PaineWebber and UBS Warburg will be collectively referred to as UBS or the Firm, except in circumstances where PaineWebber, UBS PaineWebber or UBS Warburg are specifically referenced.

Coordinated investigations into the Firm's activities in connection with certain of its equity research practices during the period of approximately 1999 through 2001 have been conducted by a multi-state task force and a joint task force of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), the New York Stock Exchange ("Exchange"), and the National Association of Securities Dealers ("NASD") (collectively, the "regulators"); and

The Firm has advised regulators of its agreement to resolve the issues raised in the investigations relating to its research practices; and

The Firm agrees to implement certain changes with respect to its research practices to achieve compliance with all regulations and any undertakings set forth or incorporated herein governing research analysts, and to make certain payments; and

The Firm elects to permanently waive any right to a hearing and appeal under § 12.1-39 of the Code of Virginia with respect to this Consent Order (the "Order");

NOW, THEREFORE, the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), as administrator of the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia hereby enters this Order:

I.

The Firm admits the jurisdiction of the Commission, neither admits nor denies the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law contained in this Order, and consents to the entry of this Order by the Commission.

FINDINGS OF FACT

A. Background and Jurisdiction

- 1) UBS Warburg became a member organization of the Exchange on September 6, 1985. It is principally owned by UBS AG (UBS AG was formed through the June 1998 merger of Union Bank of Switzerland with Swiss Bank Corporation) and is engaged in the business of global investment banking and securities. UBS Warburg also provides services on a worldwide basis, including investment banking, securities trading and principal investments, and asset management. The principal office of UBS Warburg is located at 677 Washington Boulevard, in Stamford, Connecticut.
- 2) PaineWebber Inc. ("PaineWebber"), founded in 1879, was a full-service securities firm located in New York, and became a member of the Exchange on November 17, 1982. The services provided by PaineWebber, on a global basis, included investment banking, research, trading, investing on a principal basis, and asset management.
- 3) On November 3, 2000, UBS AG purchased PaineWebber and PaineWebber became known as UBS PaineWebber. UBS PaineWebber is indirectly owned by UBS AG. As part of the merger, PaineWebber banking and research activities were shifted to UBS Warburg LLC, and some investment bankers and research analysts previously employed by PaineWebber became employees of UBS Warburg LLC. Since the merger, UBS PaineWebber is principally engaged in the business of servicing retail investors and no longer employs equity investment bankers or research analysts. UBS PaineWebber's principal office is located at 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York.

- 4) UBS AG has offices in over 50 countries, employing approximately 69,500 people, 35,000 of whom work for UBS PaineWebber or UBS Warburg. UBS Warburg has 90 stock exchange memberships in 30 countries and the firm's 500 equity research analysts cover about 3,300 companies world-wide.
- 5) UBS Warburg and UBS PaineWebber are registered with the Exchange, SEC, NASD and with all 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

B. Overview

- 1) This action concerns the research and investment banking activities at UBS Warburg during the period July 1, 1999 through June 30, 2001 as well as the research and investment banking activities at PaineWebber from July 1, 1999 until its merger with UBS AG on November 3, 2000 (the "relevant periods").
- 2) During the relevant period, as set forth below, the Firm sought and did investment banking business with many companies covered by the Firm's Research Department. Research analysts were encouraged to participate in investment banking activities and that was a factor considered in the analysts' compensation. In addition, the decision to initiate and maintain research coverage of certain companies was in some cases coordinated with the Investment Banking Department and influenced by investment banking interests.
- 3) As a result of the foregoing, as set forth below, certain research analysts at the Firm were subject to investment banking influences and conflicts of interest between supporting the investment banking business at the Firm and publishing objective research.
- 4) As set forth below, the Firm had knowledge of these investment banking influences and conflicts of interest, yet failed to establish and maintain adequate policies, systems and procedures with respect to research analysts that were reasonably designed to detect and prevent those influences or manage those conflicts.

C. The Role of the Research Analyst

- 1) Research analysts were responsible for providing analyses of the financial outlook of particular companies in the context of the business sectors in which those companies operate and the securities markets as a whole.
- 2) The Firm published research on publicly traded companies based upon analysts' examining, among other things, financial information contained in public filings, questioning company management, investigating customer and supplier relationships, evaluating companies' business plans and the products or services offered, building financial models, and analyzing competitive trends.
- 3) After synthesizing and analyzing this information, analysts produced research in the form of full reports and more abbreviated formats that typically contained a rating, a price target, and a summary and analysis of the factors that generated the rating and/or price target. The Firm then distributed its analysts' research reports to the Firm's institutional clients, to the Firm's sales force and to retail clients upon request. Research reports were also made available to third party vendors, such as Bloomberg and First Call, who then made the reports available to subscribers to those vendors. In addition, the rating, but not the analysis contained in the research report, was published on Internet websites such as Multex, for viewing by the investing public. Similarly, UBS Warburg posted on its website (and provided in hard copy if requested), monthly summaries concerning the companies covered by its research analysts, the ratings issued, and any ratings changes from the previous month. These summaries did not include any of the analyses contained in the actual research reports.
- 4) Analysts were required according to UBS Warburg policy to submit any proposed rating upgrades or downgrades and initiations of coverage to an Investment Review Committee ("IRC") that consisted of compliance, institutional sales, equity capital markets and research department personnel. The IRC reviewed analysts' reports and approved rating and target changes as well as initiations of coverage.
- 5) Nevertheless, analysts were sometimes able to upgrade or downgrade ratings by requesting and receiving approval of one of several designated members of Research Management, who were also members of the IRC, rather than the full IRC, whenever that change in rating was based upon breaking news. Because Firm analysts sometimes changed their ratings based upon breaking news, upgrades or downgrades were authorized without the approval of the full IRC in nearly one-third of the instances in which ratings were changed during the Relevant Period.
- 6) Analysts also made themselves available to the Firm's institutional and retail sales force to answer questions about the sector and the covered companies. In addition, analysts provided periodic research updates to the Firm's sales force through "morning calls" or "morning notes," which are daily pre-market opening discussions of the market sectors and specific covered companies. Analysts also provided research updates through "blast" e-mails and voice messages, which typically provide a rating and a more abbreviated analysis than what is contained in a research report.
- 7) During the Relevant Period, analysts were expected to make independent determinations regarding coverage, stock price targets and ratings whether to buy, sell or hold certain stocks, without consideration of their research reports' potential impact upon Firm investment banking business or the business of Firm investment banking clients.
- 8) In the 1990's, the importance of research issued by analysts increased as a result of the dramatic growth in the number of individual investors and the availability of online trading. Research coverage became a marketing tool, and issuers sometimes chose an investment bank based upon the expectation that a certain analyst would cover the company's stock favorably.
- 9) As the performance and coverage of research analysts became increasingly integral to the awarding of investment banking business, the Firm encouraged its research analysts to become more involved in investment banking activities, including marketing securities issued by investment banking clients (primarily to the Firm's institutional clients) and soliciting investment banking business.

D. Research Analyst Participation in Investment Banking Activities

- 1) The Investment Banking Division at the Firm advised corporate clients and helped them execute various financial transactions, including the issuance of stock and other securities. The Firm frequently served as one of the underwriters in initial public offerings ("IPOs") - the first public issuance of stock of a company that has not previously been traded - and follow-on offerings of securities.
- 2) During the relevant period, investment banking was an important source of revenues and profits for UBS Warburg. UBS Warburg's investment banking department reported global revenues of $1.369 billion in 1999, $1.602 billion in 2000, and $1.369 billion in 2001, representing nearly 15% of UBS Warburg's global revenues during that time period.
- 3) In addition to performing research functions, some of the Firm's research analysts identified companies as prospects for investment banking services, participated in "pitches" of the Firm's investment banking services to companies, and participated in "roadshows" and other activities in connection with the marketing of underwriting transactions. At times, Firm research analysts were involved in meetings between companies, prior to their IPO's, and some of the Firm's institutional customers who had expressed an interest in purchasing shares in those IPOs. These meetings would take place in various cities all over the country in order to accommodate the institutional customers and were commonly known in the industry as "analyst roadshows."
- 4) During these roadshows, the analyst would discuss the issuer with the institutional customers and would frequently arrange "one-on-one" meetings between company executives and managers of institutional clients who had expressed interest in investing. These roadshows were considered to be a service provided by the Firm to both its institutional clients as well as its investment banking clients.
- 5) Research analysts also participated in commitment committee and due diligence activities in connection with underwriting activities and assisted the Investment Banking Department in providing merger and acquisition and other advisory services to companies.
- 6) The interactions between investment bankers and certain research analysts during the Relevant Period, at times impacted the independence of those analysts' as they became increasingly involved in the Firm's efforts to secure investment banking business. As a result, an environment was created that may have led certain analysts to believe that they were expected to initiate and maintain positive research about Firm clients.

E. Participation in Investment Banking Activities was a Factor in Evaluating and Compensating Research Analysts

- 1) The compensation system at the Firm provided an incentive for research analysts to participate in investment activities and to assist in generating investment banking business for the Firm.
- 2) The performance of research analysts was evaluated by Research Management through an annual review process and analysts' bonuses were determined through this process, unless an analyst had a guaranteed bonus set by contract in advance. The guaranteed bonuses for the Firm's top analysts were frequently in the millions of dollars while the base salary was typically in the $125,000 to $150,000 range.
- 3) In addition to these guaranteed bonuses, six PaineWebber analysts were explicitly guaranteed "investment banking bonuses", meaning that those analysts were entitled to some portion of certain investment banking fees earned by PaineWebber.
- 4) For example, two PaineWebber analysts were promised compensation equal to 15% of the underwriting management fees earned in their respective sectors. In addition to the bonuses paid to those analysts pursuant to PaineWebber's annual review process, those two analysts received an additional $125,000 and $135,000, respectively, for the year 2000, because of the investment banking fees earned by PaineWebber in their respective sectors.
- 5) When UBS Warburg acquired the research and investment banking operations of PaineWebber in November 2000, the Firm removed the direct link between investment banking revenues and analyst compensation.
- 6) The UBS annual evaluation process included an evaluation of each analyst's contribution to the Firm's investment banking business as a factor in determining bonus compensation.
- 7) Each year, prior to bonuses being paid, UBS conducted a comprehensive evaluation process that rated each analyst's performance and assigned analysts rankings in one of four quartiles. As part of that process, analysts submitted self-evaluations, and other UBS employees with whom the analyst had had significant contact were also asked to submit evaluations, including investment bankers.
- 8) In describing the analysts' performance, the UBS bankers frequently included comments relating to the analyst's abilities to attract and/or maintain investment banking clients.
- 9) For example, an investment banker at UBS Warburg evaluated one analyst as "the best business builder in research I have ever known."
- 10) Similarly, Research Management considered investment banking contributions as a component of analysts' performance evaluations. The Head of UBS Warburg's Research Division evaluated that same analyst as the "most prolific analyst at the firm when it comes to generating investment banking revenues" and that he "manages the tightest coordination between research and [the Corporate Finance Division] of any sector." This evaluation was included in the section of the performance review entitled "Accomplishment/Strengths."
- 11) Furthermore, the Head of UBS Warburg's Research Division, who was ultimately responsible for evaluating analysts and determining the exact amount of their bonus compensation, referenced analysts' contributions to investment banking business as one factor in the evaluation of their performance.
- 12) The Firm also specifically requested that analysts, in writing their own self-evaluations, include, among other criteria, an assessment of their contribution to the Firm's Investment Banking Department. This led to a perception among analysts that contribution to investment banking was a factor in compensation.

- 13) In response to this request, one analyst described his own performance for the Firm by highlighting his involvement with several investment banking deals done by the Firm during the previous year. The analyst then boasted that he was responsible for generating $15 million in investment banking revenue for the Firm during that time.

F. Investment Banking Interests Influenced the Firm's Decisions to Initiate and Maintain Research Coverage

- 1) In general, the Firm determined whether to initiate and maintain research coverage based upon investor interest in a company or based upon investment banking considerations, such as attracting companies to generate investment banking business or maintaining a positive relationship with existing investment banking clients.
- 2) As a matter of practice, the Firm initiated coverage on companies that engaged the Firm in an investment banking transaction and maintained coverage for a period of time beyond the transaction.
- 3) Research analysts were aware that, in certain circumstances, their positive and continued coverage of particular companies was an important factor for the generation of investment banking business. Thus, some research analysts and investment bankers coordinated the initiation and maintenance of research coverage based upon, among other things, investment banking considerations.
- 4) For example, analysts were required to seek authorization from Research Management prior to dropping coverage of a company, unless the reason for dropping coverage was due the departure of the covering analyst. However, when the company involved was an investment banking client, the analyst was also expected to consult with the investment banking personnel responsible to that client.
- 5) Additionally, according to an e-mail by UBS Warburg Head of Global Technology Investment Banking, it was an implicit condition in the UBS Warburg investment banking agreements that UBS Warburg would continue to provide research coverage of its clients for a period of time following a transaction. Such implied promises to investment banking clients impacted the Research Department's authority to make its own independent determinations concerning the continuation of coverage.
- 6) When a UBS Warburg analyst informed the Head of the Research Department that he intended to drop coverage of a particular company, he was asked whether there was any "banking relationship" and was told to "check with" the banker who worked with that company.
- 7) Although coverage of the company was dropped in that instance, the lead banker of the technology group at UBS Warburg reminded the research analyst and Research Management of the implicit promise made during pitch meetings that coverage would be maintained for a significant period of time: "The problem is that many companies . . . in asking for credentials for a pitch will ask directly if we are meeting our research obligations to the companies we bank. They generally expect an IPO fee to justify coverage for three years . . ."
- 8) In another instance, when a UBS Warburg research analyst informed his banking counterpart that he intended to drop coverage of four biotechnology companies, the banker forwarded that message to a member of Investment Banking Management who sent an e-mail to the analyst stating that he wished "to have the opportunity to discuss future potential revenue opportunities from these clients" before coverage was dropped.
- 9) The Investment Banking Department also sometimes had an impact upon determinations made by analysts regarding the initiation of coverage. When investment bankers became aware of opportunities to cultivate investment banking business, they sometimes suggested to the analyst in that sector that coverage should be initiated.
- 10) For example, a Firm investment banker sent an e-mail to a Firm research analyst indicating that a company with whom he had discussed investment banking business had asked "if there was an interest by UBS Warburg to cover them from a research stand point." The banker went on to say that he believed that "the timing is good" for initiation of research coverage of the company and offered to set up a meeting between the company and the analyst.
- 11) Similarly, a Firm analyst informed his banking counterparts that they should wait to call a company to discuss a potential investment banking deal until "after I pick up coverage."

G. The Firm's Pitch Materials Contained Discussions of Research Coverage

- 1) During the relevant period, research coverage was an important factor considered by companies in selecting a firm for an investment banking transaction.
- 2) Certain analysts understood that the issuance of positive research about an issuer was a pre-condition to the Firm's obtaining the issuer's banking business.
- 3) In competing for investment banking business from prospective issuers, the Firm typically sent investment bankers to meet with company management in order to persuade the company to select the Firm as one of the underwriters in a contemplated transaction. Research analysts often accompanied bankers on these "pitch" meetings. At these meetings, Firm investment bankers would present their level of expertise in the company's sector and discuss their previous experience with other companies, as well as their view of the company's merits and likelihood of success.
- 4) In some instances, the research analyst's coverage and impact on the market place concerning companies under coverage was a component of the pitch presented by the Firm. As a result of these presentations, certain issuers selected an investment bank because of the reputation of the analyst that would cover the company's stock and the issuer's belief that the coverage would be positive.
- 5) Furthermore, certain research analysts who covered the company's sector often worked with investment bankers to prepare the Firm's pitch presentation and attended the pitch meeting.
- 6) In preparation for each presentation, the investment bankers, sometimes with an analyst's input, prepared a "pitch book" that was distributed at the meeting and contained a summary of the Firm's presentation.

- 7) Some pitch books contained information relating to the company, its competition, the sector in which it operated and the nature of the services the Firm could provide to the company and its shareholders after the completion of a potential offering. Additionally, Firm pitch books sometimes contained implicit representations that the Firm would continue to provide service to the issuer after the offering by providing research coverage about the company.
- 8) Some pitch books contained information indicating that a specific analyst would cover the company and included data demonstrating how that analyst's positive comments about other companies in the sector had had a direct positive impact upon the stock prices of those companies.
- 9) For example, the pitch book presented to JDS Uniphase by PaineWebber, discussed the impact that PaineWebber research had on covered stocks by including a graphic depicting the performance of stocks on the Firm's "Buy List" as opposed to stocks on the Firm's "Attractive List" and "Neutral List." At the top of the graphic, PaineWebber quoted a report from Reuters which stated, "Shares of semiconductor companies specializing in chips for the communications market rose on Thursday after PaineWebber published a report citing the sector's growth prospects."
- 10) Similarly, in a pitch book presented to Avant Immunotherapeutics, Inc., PaineWebber presented a slide entitled "Demonstrated Strength in Equity Trading and Research." One of the sub-topics on the slide stated, "Buy and attractive recommendations have outperformed the S&P 500 by 84 percentage points for the period 1/90 through 12/99" while "Sell and unattractive ratings have underperformed the S&P 500 by 361 percentage points for the period 1/90 through 12/99."
- 11) Because analysts often participated in the Firm's efforts to win investment banking business, analysts were sometimes subjected to competing pressures after a stock became publicly traded. The type of information contained in the pitch books, such as the examples above, implied to issuers that the Firm would provide positive research coverage if selected for an investment banking transaction, and that such coverage could result in rising stock prices for those companies.

H. Research Analysts Rarely Issued Neutral or Negative Ratings

- 1) During the relevant period, PaineWebber's rating system allowed research analysts to assign one of four ratings to a stock: "Buy", defined as total return expected to exceed that of the S&P 500 by 20 percentage points or more over the next 12 months; "Attractive", 12 month total return potential that is 10-20 percentage points greater than the market's; "Neutral", 12 month total return potential within 10 percentage points of the market's; "Unattractive", expected to underperform the market by more than 10 percentage points on a total return basis over the next 12 months.
- 2) During the relevant period, UBS Warburg's rating system differed slightly from PaineWebber's and allowed research analysts to assign one of five ratings to a stock: "Strong Buy", defined as greater than 20% excess return potential; "Buy", positive excess return potential; "Hold", low excess return potential; "Reduce", negative excess return potential; "Sell", greater than 20% negative excess return potential. All of these ratings related to a 12 month time horizon.
- 3) During the relevant period, the level of the price target and the strength of the recommendation placed on a stock by covering analysts sometimes had a significant impact on the stock price. Investment bankers and issuers, being fully aware of the potential impact of analysts' recommendations, were motivated to seek research coverage containing positive recommendations.
- 4) In fact, certain analysts considered the investment banking implications for the Firm when contemplating issuing even a neutral rating about an investment banking client. For example, a member of Equity Sales Management, sent an e-mail to one of UBS Warburg's telecom analysts stating "The salesforce is extremely frustrated with your research, price targets, ratings . . . They feel that you're being somewhat flippant and not taking responsibility for your recommendations and for having lost hundreds of millions of dollars for people." The analyst responded that he would never utilize a Hold rating on a stock unless one of two conditions occurred: "1) if I believe the company is about to go bankrupt; 2) if there is no investment banking business to be had there."
- 5) Notwithstanding that PaineWebber had four available ratings and UBS Warburg had five, the Firm's research analysts rarely issued ratings other than "Strong Buy" and "Buy" on the stocks of investment banking clients. Out of several thousand companies covered by UBS Warburg during the relevant period, UBS Warburg issued only seven "Hold" ratings and two "Sell" ratings on companies with which it had an investment banking relationship.
- 6) Similarly, from July 1, 1999, until the time of the merger, PaineWebber issued only sixteen "Neutral" ratings and five "Unattractive" ratings on companies with which it had an investment banking relationship.

I. In Certain Instances, the Firm Published Exaggerated or Unwarranted Research

- 1) On several occasions, the conflicts of interest discussed above resulted in analysts publishing ratings and/or recommendations that were exaggerated or unwarranted, and/or contained opinions for which there was no reasonable basis. The following are examples of how these conflicts affected the research:
- 2) In April of 1998, UBS Warburg served as the lead manager on an IPO for Triangle Pharmaceuticals ("Triangle") and received $1.8 million in investment banking fees.
- 3) Notwithstanding a market capitalization value of approximately $352,000,000, in November of 1999, Triangle had yet to earn any revenue. Rather, investor optimism for the stock was based upon the anticipated approval by the Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") of several new drugs, including its "lead HIV drug", Coactinon.
- 4) In a research report issued on October 8, 1999, the UBS Warburg research analyst who covered Triangle issued a research report that maintained a "Buy" rating while relaying news to investors that a study of the drug Coactinon had proved "inconclusive." The analyst also wrote that the form of testing used by Triangle to gain approval from the FDA had been used before but "had been in less favor recently," and that accordingly it "is unclear what the FDA's requirements will now be" for testing the drug.

- 5) On December 10, 1999, the FDA informed the company that it would require an additional round of testing, which would cause at least a substantial delay, and perhaps ultimately a cancellation, of the release and sale of the drug. As a result the stock price fell more than $3 -- or 23% -- from $15.63 to $12.00 on the date of the announcement.
- 6) On that same day, the analyst published a new research report in which she relayed the news to investors but maintained her "Buy" rating, based in part, according to the report, upon the analyst's belief that a different drug in development by Triangle was the company's "most important near-term opportunity."
- 7) The analyst spoke to the UBS Warburg sales force before the market opened following Triangle's announcement of the FDA's decision and made a statement in form or in substance that the FDA's action had been an anticipated possibility notwithstanding the analyst's "Buy" rating on the stock.
- 8) Following that call, a member of UBS Warburg's Equity Trading Management contacted the analyst by e-mail and expressed disappointment that the analyst anticipated that the FDA might take this action but had failed to adequately emphasize that possibility to the sales force.
- 9) The analyst responded that her failure to emphasize negative information regarding Triangle was, at least partially, a result of the analyst's allegiance to the investment banking client: "Triangle is a very important client of [the firm]. We could not go out with a big research call trashing their lead product, although we had a feeling the FDA might balk. Had we been right or wrong, it would have been a disaster. I just wanted the salesforce to know we were not surprised, and that where appropriate we had had some conversations with the buy-side. Sorry this was not conveyed."
- 10) Similarly, in September 1999, UBS Warburg acted as a co-lead underwriter of Interspeed's IPO and received approximately $700,000 in investment banking fees as a result.
- 11) In October 1999, the analyst initiated coverage on Interspeed with a "Buy" rating and a $15 price target and maintained that position for several months. On January 3, 2000, the Firm's analyst received an e-mail from a junior analyst who asked what to do if Interspeed's annual report reflects inventory and a sales breakout which "differ materially from what we have in the model." The junior analyst also remarked that Interspeed should "get new auditors, their cash flow statement doesn't add up."
- 12) That same day, the analyst issued a research report stating the Interspeed had fallen "dramatically short on the top line" in the prior quarter "due to various consumer financing and delivery issues." Additionally, the analyst issued the "Buy" rating in spite of the fact that the stock price had risen above the analyst's price target.
- 13) Two days later, on January 5, 2000, the analyst instructed a member of the Firm's sales force, "Don't put people into Interspeed -- very risky." Nevertheless, the analyst maintained his Buy rating on the stock.
- 14) Approximately 15 minutes later, the recipient of that e-mail replied, asking "so why is ispd [stock symbol for Interspeed] a short?" The analyst replied, "Just lumpy revenue, some stuffing of channel, creative accounting."
- 15) The analyst's reference to "customer financing and delivery issues" in his January 3rd report should have more fully described his concern that Interspeed was suffering from lumpy revenue or channel stuffing.
- 16) A week after that, on January 11, 2000, the analyst received a question from an institutional sales force member asking about Interspeed. He responded, "BE CAREFUL about being long Interspeed. They will report a great number for the December quarter, at least on the surface of things, but the quality of that number is not necessarily self-evident." (emphasis in the original).
- 17) On February 4, 2000, the UBS Warburg analyst issued another research report following Interspeed's announcement of its fourth quarter results, which exceeded the analyst's expectations. In that report, the analyst reiterated his "Buy" rating and raising his price target from $15 to $28.
- 18) On March 20, 2000, while the analyst still maintained his "Buy" rating and $28 price target and with the stock price exceeding that target, the analyst sent an e-mail to UBS Warburg's sales force informing them that another company had developed a product to compete with Interspeed. One of the members of the sales force responded, "This sounds like a short . . . correct? (Off the record, of course)." The analyst responded, "YES." However, the analyst still maintained the "Buy" rating.
- 19) On May 31, 2000, the analyst sent an e-mail to two institutional customers saying that "The two shorts of the group I would suggest are (1) [another issuer] and (2) Interspeed. I'd be wary of shorting any of the others." Nevertheless, the analyst still maintained his "Buy" rating on Interspeed.
- 20) On July 21, 2000, the analyst dropped the rating on Interspeed from a "Buy" to a "Hold".

J. UBS Warburg Received and Made Payments for Research

- 1) UBS Warburg received payments from the lead manager of offerings in which UBS Warburg did not participate for the issuance of research during the relevant time period.
- 2) During the relevant period, UBS Warburg received a payment of $100,000 from an outside firm in connection with the offering of Flextronics International, Ltd. The cover letter enclosing the check indicated that the check was a "special research check." However, UBS Warburg failed to disclose in its research reports concerning Flextronics that it had received the payment, nor did it disclose the source or amount of the payment.
- 3) During the relevant period, UBS Warburg also received a payment from an outside firm in the amount of approximately $113,000 in connection with the offering of Atmel, Inc. The cover letter enclosing the check stated that the check represented "guaranteed economics for research." However, UBS Warburg failed to disclose in its research reports concerning Atmel that it had received the payment, nor did it disclose the source or amount of the payment.

- 4) During the relevant period, UBS Warburg also paid a "research fee" of $150,000 at the direction of the issuer, to two broker-dealers in conjunction with the underwriting transaction of Netopia, Inc. in which UBS Warburg was the lead-manager. However, UBS Warburg did not take steps to ensure that this broker-dealer disclosed in its research reports that it had been paid to issue research. Further UBS Warburg did not disclose or cause to be disclosed the details of these payments.
- 5) During the relevant period, UBS Warburg also made several payments totaling approximately $283,000, at the direction of the issuer, for "research" to broker-dealers in conjunction with an underwriting transaction of Espeed, Inc., in which UBS Warburg was the lead manager. However, UBS Warburg did not take steps to ensure that this broker-dealer disclosed in its research reports that it had been paid to issue research. Further UBS Warburg did not disclose or cause to be disclosed the details of these payments.

K. The Firm Failed To Adequately Supervise Its Research and Investment Banking Departments

- 1) While one of the roles of research analysts was to produce objective research, the Firm also encouraged them to participate in investment banking activities. As a result of the foregoing, these analysts were subject to investment banking influences and conflicts of interest between supporting the Firm's investment banking business and publishing objective research.
- 2) The Firm had knowledge of these investment banking influences and conflicts of interest yet failed to manage them adequately to protect the objectivity of its published research.
- 3) The Firm failed to establish and maintain adequate policies, systems and procedures reasonably designed to ensure the objectivity of its published research. Although the Firm had some policies governing research analyst activities during the relevant period, these policies were not adequate to fully address the conflicts of interest that existed.

II.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

- 1) The Commission has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to §13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia.
- 2) The Commission finds that the Firm violated Securities Rule ("Rule") 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12) by:
 - i) engaging in the acts and practices that created or maintained inappropriate influence by the Investment Banking Department over research analysts, therefore imposing conflicts of interest on its research analysts, and failing to manage these conflicts in an adequate or appropriate manner;
 - ii) issuing research reports that were affected by the conflicts of interest imposed on its research analysts as described above;
 - iii) making payments for research to other broker-dealers not involved in underwriting transactions when the Firm knew that these payments were made, at least in part, for research coverage, and by failing to disclose or cause to be disclosed in offering documents or elsewhere the fact of such payments; and
 - iv) receiving payments in conjunction with underwriting transactions from outside entities for research issued without disclosing receipt of those payments to the public as required by Section 17(b) of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.
- 3) The Firm violated Rule 21 VAC 5-20-260 by failing to establish and maintain adequate policies, systems and procedures for supervision and control of the Research and Investment Banking Departments reasonably designed to detect and prevent the foregoing investment banking influences and manage the conflicts of interest to assure compliance with applicable securities laws and regulations.
- 4) The Commission finds the following relief appropriate and in the public interest.

III.

USBPJ agrees to implement certain changes with respect to its equity research and investment banking practices, and to make certain payments;
and

USBPJ voluntarily elects to permanently waive any right to a hearing on this matter and judicial review of this Consent Order (the "Order") under § 12.1-39 of the Code of Virginia;

NOW, THEREFORE, the State Corporation Commission, as administrator of the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia, hereby enters this Order:

I.

FINDINGS OF FACT

A. Background and Jurisdiction

1. USBPJ is a broker-dealer with its principal place of business in Minneapolis, Minnesota. The firm engages in a full-service securities business, including retail and institutional sales, investment banking services, trading, and research.
2. USBPJ is currently registered with the Commission as a broker-dealer, and has been so registered since April 4, 1981.
3. This action concerns the years 1999, 2000, and 2001 (the "relevant period"). During that time, USBPJ engaged in both research and investment banking ("IB") activities.
4. At various times during the relevant period, USBPJ placed undue emphasis on using its research analysts to maximize opportunities to obtain investment-banking revenues from companies in the technology, telecommunications, and biotechnology industry sectors. Such emphasis on obtaining investment-banking revenue created conflicts of interest for the research analysts that resulted in the issuance of research reports that violated the Act. USBPJ failed adequately to monitor and supervise the conflicts of interest inherent in seeking investment-banking opportunities from companies covered by USBPJ research analysts. USBPJ's violative conduct, described herein, was caused by a flawed organizational structure, combined with inadequate supervision of the conflicts of interest.
5. USBPJ grouped its research analysts by industry sector and those analysts worked as a team with the firm's investment bankers, who focused on the same industry sector. The majority of research analysts' compensation was paid in the form of bonuses, which for some analysts was directly tied to revenues from investment banking transactions of companies in their industry sector. In other cases, the analyst's contribution to investment banking revenue, and investment banker input into analysts' evaluations played a significant part in determining the analysts' bonuses. In certain cases, investment bankers commented in reviews that research analysts needed to become lead analysts, a reference to using their professional opinions and reports to assist the firm in obtaining the top role in investment banking transactions. As a result of these influences, certain USBPJ research analysts indirectly were motivated to obtain, retain and increase investment-banking revenue.
6. In certain instances, USBPJ also provided draft research reports to potential investment banking clients during sales pitches, and this implicit promise of favorable research was an important aspect of USBPJ's attempts to gain the companies' investment banking business. In other instances, after determining to issue research, USBPJ provided company executives with draft reports, including the proposed rating and target price, and solicited comments on the report from those company executives.
7. USBPJ failed to disclose that it received compensation from the proceeds of underwriting for, among other services, providing research. It also paid proceeds of certain underwritings to other broker-dealer firms to issue research on companies whose offerings it underwrote and did not ensure that such payments were disclosed.
8. Finally, USBPJ engaged in improper behavior by threatening to drop research coverage on a company if USBPJ did not receive a certain role in the company's offering of securities.

B. USBPJ's Structure and Procedures Encouraged Research Analysts to Contribute to Investment Banking Revenue, Thus Creating Conflicts of Interest

(1). Overview of USBPJ and the Financial Contribution of its Equity Capital Markets Division

9. USBPJ was founded in 1895.¹ The firm is headquartered in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and has approximately 3,100 employees, including approximately 875 financial advisers, more than 80 investment bankers, and approximately 70 research analysts. USBPJ has operations in 124 offices in 25 states throughout the country.
10. During the relevant period, USBPJ's business included retail brokerage, known as Private Advisory Services; fixed income underwriting, sales and trading (known as Fixed Income Capital Markets); and equities investment banking, syndicate, research, and institutional sales and trading (known as Equity Capital Markets or "ECM"). Thus, equity research and investment banking were in the same business line and, ultimately, reported to the same individual.
11. In 1998, USBPJ generated equity investment banking revenue of approximately $79,500,000. That increased by 100 percent to approximately $159,000,000 in 1999. In 2000, revenue from equity investment banking grew to approximately $269,200,000, a 69 percent increase over 1999. In 2001, USBPJ's revenue from equity investment banking was approximately $153,000,000. From 1999 through 2001, revenue from equity investment banking represented a significant portion of the firm's revenue, accounting for between 19 – 26 percent of the firm's total revenue.

(2). USBPJ Aligned Research Analysts With the Firm's Investment Bankers

(a). USBPJ Developed and Implemented Specific Plans To Have Research Analysts Work With Investment Bankers in an Effort to Obtain Investment Banking Business

12. During the relevant period, many companies, particularly those in the technology area, issued stock through public offerings, and there was intense competition among investment banking firms to obtain this business. In order to maximize its chances to participate in these offerings, USBPJ made a concerted effort to include its research analysts in its solicitation of this business. This effort included developing and implementing specific marketing plans, which provided for research analyst involvement in the investment banking process.

(i). Move to the Left Strategy

13. In May 2000, USBPJ's ECM Operating Committee amended its procedures and strategies in a specific effort to gain lead manager status in more offerings. The Lead Manager is the firm typically listed on the left side of the offering prospectus. Thus, USBPJ implemented a plan referred to as the "Move to the Left Strategy." The ECM Operating Committee noted its strong commitment to a "multi-pronged strategy" to obtain lead-manager status on offerings. In instructions to ECM employees, the ECM Operating Committee stated that the firm "must begin to wage a war in earnest for lead-manager status." That plan instituted a "line in the sand" policy: The firm would not accept a syndicate position in any deal unless the firm was placed in the major bracket for the underwriting.
14. The Research Department played an important role in the firm's Move to the Left Strategy. Specifically, to develop a "lead manager mentality," the firm developed a "lead manager Red Zone training program." That program called for the senior bankers, senior research analysts, and Capital Markets personnel to "go through this special training seminar [focused] on pitching for the lead on public equity transactions."

(ii). Lead Manager Protocol

15. In August 2000, the head of ECM's syndicate department prepared another specific effort to gain additional lead managed offerings. In setting out his new "Lead Manager Protocol" to all ECM employees, the head of the syndicate department stressed that the "formal protocol of responsibilities ... will allow all of us—Investment Banking, Research, Sales, Trading and Capital Markets—to share responsibility for the success of each and every lead-managed offering."
16. The Lead Manager Protocol, issued in August 2000, called for:
 - the lead banker and lead research analyst to make a presentation to the firm's Pre-Commitment Committee before any company would be considered for an underwriting;
 - the research analyst to participate in a "get-to-know-you" session with prospective investment banking clients as part of a "Day at Piper" session;
 - the lead banker and senior analyst to represent the prospective company client to the Commitment Committee. The lead banker and "senior analyst must demonstrate continued due diligence effort and must provide renewed commitment to the transaction";
 - research and sales to "set up a roadshow schedule to ensure a targeted and efficient roadshow.... [and] focus on ascertaining the right accounts to see and why these are the right accounts;"
 - senior analysts to "provide aggressive pre-meeting preparation and post-meeting follow-up to each 1-on-1 appointment;"

- senior analysts to be "available during critical parts of roadshow and pricing"; and
 - the senior analyst to "coordinate with Capital Markets to sort out the aftermarket intentions of each account."
17. The Lead Manager Protocol described a primary function of a research analyst in communicating regarding the progress of the transaction once the firm had obtained a lead management role in an IPO when it stated: "Senior analyst will coordinate with Capital Markets to communicate a consistent message regarding the progress of the transaction, acting as a supporter of Capital Markets' message and not as an independent filter The goal of the [s]enior analyst is to reinforce reasonable and exceedable expectations."

(b). Research Analysts "Pitched" for Investment Banking Deals and Advocated for the Issuer at Roadshows

18. USBPJ's procedures allowed for the close alignment of research analysts with investment bankers in the same industry sector. ECM marketed to potential clients its research coverage, market making and institutional sales as part of the firm's efforts to obtain investment banking business. USBPJ used the slogan, "One Team, One Business" in its marketing materials with prospective investment banking clients. Internally, the company had "transaction teams" that included investment bankers and research analysts.
19. The emphasis on securing investment banking business through pitches and then selling the securities through roadshows gave rise to conflicts of interest for the research analysts. In some instances, the research analyst became a prime contact person for the company with respect to soliciting investment-banking business. For example, on May 10, 1999, a research analyst wrote to an officer of E-Machines, a potential investment-banking client: "This is my final appeal to be a part of the underwriting team. This is your deal and you control the strings. All we are looking for is ten percent of the economics to participate in the underwriting. This itself should be indicative of my sincere interest in your story ... In the final analysis, it is less important to have bulge bracket firm as a hood ornament than it is to have a quality analyst who will provide you with the support and coverage your company needs."

(c). Research Analysts' Participation in Pitch Meetings Was Important in Obtaining Investment Banking Mandates

20. Before USBPJ made its "pitches" to an issuer for investment banking business, the investment banker, teamed with a research analyst for the appropriate sector, would make a presentation to USBPJ's Pre-Commitment Committee. This presentation included a recommendation and analysis detailing why the firm should pursue an investment banking relationship with the issuer. After USBPJ determined to compete for a company's investment banking business, particularly in the case of an initial public offering ("IPO"), the research analyst's role was influential in obtaining that business.
21. One aspect of a research analyst's function was to play a key role in the process to "pitch" USBPJ to the prospective client. In certain instances, a research analyst's role at a pitch meeting with an issuer was to assist investment banking personnel in convincing the issuer that USBPJ should be chosen as the lead managing underwriter for the offering. A research analyst's presence suggested that the Research Department would work hand-in-hand with the investment bankers to provide service and support for the issuer. Research analysts routinely appeared with investment bankers at pitch meetings designed to help sell USBPJ to the potential client and provided information relating to their research in pitchbooks given to prospective client companies.

(d). In Certain Instances, Pitchbooks Provided to Potential Investment Banking Clients Contained Mock Research Reports Impliedly Promising Favorable Research

22. When investment bankers and research analysts presented "pitches" to prospective investment banking clients, USBPJ typically gave the prospective client a pitchbook explaining the proposed services to be provided by the firm. These pitchbooks detailed, in a most favorable manner, why USBPJ should be selected to underwrite the offering. In addition to providing information about how USBPJ would conduct the underwriting, the pitchbooks routinely included a roadmap of the amount and type of research coverage that USBPJ would provide to support the company if it obtained the investment banking business. In certain instances, USBPJ included a "mock" research report for the companies, containing a valuation analysis and "mock" rating such as "buy," impliedly promising to the issuer that the research analyst would issue a favorable research report if it selected USBPJ for the investment banking business. In some instances, USBPJ's mock research reports also included a favorable "mock" target price for the issuer's stock.
23. For example, in August 2000, USBPJ made a pitch to be the lead underwriter for an offering by TheraSense, a medical technology issuer. In preparing for the pitch, a research analyst prepared a mock research report about the issuer and presented that mock report at the pitch meeting. The mock research report noted in several places a proposed rating of "Strong Buy." The mock report contained very positive news about the company, claiming that its initial sales of the product were "nothing short of breathtaking." In part, as a result of that pitch, the company awarded USBPJ the role of lead managing underwriter, which generated underwriting fees of $3,785,512 for the firm when the offering went effective in October 2001. USBPJ initiated coverage of the issuer with a "Strong Buy" recommendation shortly after the offering went effective.
24. Finally, after USBPJ was awarded an investment-banking mandate, another key function for a research analyst was to provide meaningful support to the firm's institutional investor clients to ensure that an underwriting was successful. Investment bankers, research analysts and company representatives generally traveled to the offices of institutional investor clients, to meet with them and describe the offering and determine their interest in purchasing the stock. At times, research analysts attended and provided significant assistance at these "roadshow" meetings.

(3). USBPJ Tied Research Analysts' Compensation to Investment Banking Revenue

25. During the relevant period, USBPJ compensated research analysts, in part, based on the amount of investment banking revenue generated within their respective industry sector. This practice created a conflict of interest for research analysts, since analysts were compensated, in part, on issuing objective research and on the firm's success in obtaining investment-banking business.

26. Specifically, USBPJ paid certain analysts a percentage of investment banking revenue and institutional commissions generated by companies in their industry sector. The firm entered into written agreements with at least 16 research analysts to pay them a defined percentage of the revenue generated by the companies they covered. This included revenue from net underwriting profits, institutional sales commissions, trading commissions, equity and debt management fees, mergers and acquisition advisory fees, equity and debt private placement fees, research checks, and syndicate trading profits. The defined percentage set forth in these written agreements ranged from a guaranteed 7 to 15 percent of the revenues generated by the companies in their industry sector.
27. Compensation for other research analysts was comprised of base salary plus a bonus. Investment banking revenue was a significant factor in determining the bonus. The bonus was based, in part, on investment banking revenue received from companies in the specific industry sector that each analyst covered, and the level of contribution the research analyst made in the effort to obtain the investment banking business. The bonus usually formed the majority of a research analyst's total compensation. In 1999 and 2000, for example, more than 85 percent of a typical research analysts' compensation came from the bonus, while in 2001 approximately 77 percent of a typical research analyst's compensation was in the form of a bonus. During that time, research analysts' salaries generally ranged from $60,000 to $250,000, while the discretionary bonuses ranged from $75,000 to $4,000,000.
28. In determining the amount of discretionary bonuses, supervisors in the research department considered, among other things, a research analyst's contributions to the firm's success in obtaining investment banking revenues. Performance evaluations of the research analysts demonstrate this consideration. Research analysts received periodic reports detailing the year-to-date revenues generated by their covered companies. At times, senior investment bankers provided these reports to the research analysts, as well as to investment banking employees, and listed the projected investment banking revenue goals for the covered companies. One supervisor noted in a performance evaluation that a certain analyst should work on becoming a "lead managing analyst." That expression was a reference to the lead managing underwriter position that USBPJ sought in offerings because it resulted in the greatest amount of control and revenue. Thus, the supervisor's expression acknowledged the role that an analyst could play at USBPJ in obtaining investment banking business. For example, one senior analyst received a salary of $160,000 and a bonus of over $3.8 million. In another example, an analyst received a salary of $130,000 and a bonus of over $3 million. In both of these instances, the bonus determination included consideration of investment banking and trading revenues for companies in the industry sector covered by the analyst.
29. The fact that research analysts contributed to the firm's efforts to obtain investment banking revenue is also evident from the personal goals set by certain research analysts. Some analysts, in setting forth their goals, stated specific investment banking revenue goals and listed the ongoing support of investment banking and sales as important to their continued success.

(4). Investment Bankers Evaluated Research Analysts' Performance and Influenced Their Bonus Compensation

30. In 2000 and 2001, investment bankers who worked on investment banking business with research analysts participated in the annual performance evaluations of those research analysts. Specifically, in certain instances, investment bankers completed and provided to the Director of Research a "Banker Peer Review" on certain research analysts. Investment bankers evaluated research analysts using specific criteria, including:
 - "proactively generates and shares valuable M&A/strategic ideas;"
 - "prepares for pitches and contributes to preparation of pitchbook;"
 - "effective in pitches; [and] takes the aftermarket commitment seriously."
31. Thus, investment bankers provided significant input in the performance evaluation of research analysts which, in turn, influenced the bonus compensation of those research analysts. For example, an investment banker noted in his banker peer review that a particular analyst: "needs to be proactive in pursuing fee-generating companies for his coverage list. He is very focused on big cap names that do not pay."
32. This review process indicated to research analysts that, in part, their role was to assist the investment bankers and the firm's investment banking clients.

(5). USBPJ Lacked Procedures and Did Not Adequately Monitor Research Analysts' Sharing of Draft Research Reports With Issuers

33. In certain cases, prior to the dissemination of research reports, USBPJ research analysts provided copies of their draft reports to an issuer's executives, and solicited comments and suggestions for such reports. Providing draft research reports to an issuer's executives could potentially compromise a research analysts' independence in that the investment banking clients may pressure the analyst to make inappropriate changes to the draft report.
34. Certain draft research reports provided to an issuer included not only the factual portions of a draft report, but also the analyst's valuation, rating and suggested target price. In some cases, company executives were given electronic copies of the research report, and returned to the firm a "red-lined" version of the report with their comments and edits. For example, on September 27, 2001, a USBPJ research analyst sent a representative of Genta, Inc. an e-mail containing a draft report with a rating. This e-mail stated, "Hope you are doing better. Here is a draft of our initiation note. Please review it and send me any comments you may have. Thanks..." On October 2, 2001, Genta responded to the e-mail with extensive comments on the note.
35. In other instances, USBPJ investment bankers suggested to issuer clients that research reports initiating coverage would be subject to approval by the issuer. For example, on January 11, 2001, an investment banker wrote to numerous executives at Metromedia Fiber Network, Inc. ("Metromedia") thanking them for their meeting with a USBPJ senior research analyst. The banker wrote, "[The analyst] has decided to initiate coverage with a Strong Buy, our firm's highest recommendation...his research associate...will be calling you later today to request help in finalizing the report. Nothing will be published without your prior approval." (Emphasis added). On January 26, 2001, USBPJ initiated coverage of Metromedia with a "strong buy" and a $27 price target.

36. On November 22, 2000, a USBPJ senior investment banker wrote to executives of Qwest thanking them for an in-person meeting. The banker wrote: "We expect to initiate research coverage within the next few weeks and will submit a draft of such report for your review and approval prior to publication."
37. Notwithstanding the potential that research analysts could be subjected to pressure by issuers, USBPJ failed to have adequate procedures or controls to monitor such communications.

(6). USBPJ Lacked Procedures And Controls Sufficient To Monitor The Influence of Investment Banking on Research Analysts

38. In view of the interaction between research analysts and investment banking described above, USBPJ lacked adequate systems or procedures to supervise the influence that investment banking opportunities had on research personnel. For example, on January 17, 2001, a USBPJ senior research analyst wrote an e-mail to a junior analyst seeking input as to whether he should maintain a "buy" rating on Natural Microsystems, Inc. ("NMSS"). USBPJ had downgraded NMSS from "strong buy" in December 2000 based on the company's announcement that it would likely miss its earnings projections for the year. Upon the company's announcement in January 2001 that it had, in fact, not met its projections for 2000, the senior analyst again evaluated the company's rating. In response to the senior analyst's request for input, the junior analyst responded that, in his opinion, the company should stay a "buy" "taking into consideration banking relationship," but that absent such considerations he would rate the stock a neutral.
39. On January 18, 2001, USBPJ issued a research report that maintained the previously lowered "buy" rating.² The report included a lower price target than that published previously, cautionary statements about NMSS's short-term prospects and a predicted "struggle" for the company's shares during the first half of 2001. In the same research report, USBPJ lowered its revenue estimates by almost one half and reduced the earnings per share to show a loss in fiscal year 2001. At that time, USBPJ defined a "buy" rating as: "Expect positive price appreciation over next 12 months; Solid long term company fundamentals; attractive long-term valuation, though shares may be extended based on near-term parameters." USBPJ subsequently lowered its rating to "neutral" on April 12, 2001.
40. Moreover, USBPJ rarely issued a sell rating. During most of the review period, USBPJ had a four point rating scale: strong buy, buy, neutral, and sell. More than 80 percent of the research reports issued contained either "buy" or "strong buy" recommendations, with less than 20 percent of the companies, on average, rated as a "neutral." Throughout the review period, USBPJ gave less than one percent of companies a "sell" recommendation. In certain cases, the firm would discontinue coverage, usually without explanation, rather than drop a company to a sell rating. In those cases, therefore, USBPJ had only a three point rating system.

C. USBPJ Issued Research on Two Companies That Lacked a Reasonable Basis Or Was Imbalanced

41. As to two companies, Esperion Therapeutics, Inc. and Triton Network Systems, USBPJ issued research reports that lacked a reasonable basis or were imbalanced.

(1). Esperion Therapeutics, Inc.

42. In August 2000, USBPJ served as co-manager for the IPO of Esperion Therapeutics, Inc. ("Esperion") and consequently initiated research coverage of Esperion on September 5, 2000 with a "buy" rating. On January 9, 2002, a USBPJ senior research analyst stated in an e-mail to a senior investment banker: "ESPR delayed a pipeline product and completely dropped development of a second pipeline product, giving a reason that was nothing short of hokey. So it was bad news all around....Esperion has not met a single milestone that they have laid out since they went public. Everything has slipped. [Esperion's CEO] is a good scientist, an awful CEO."
43. Notwithstanding these statements, USBPJ's January 2002 industry report "Investing in Biotechnology" and research report on January 24, 2002, both reiterated the existing buy rating (now termed outperform).

(2). Triton Network Systems

44. In July 2000, USBPJ served as co-manager for Triton Network Systems' ("Triton") IPO. On August 7, 2000, a USBPJ senior research analyst initiated research coverage of Triton with a "buy" rating and a $45 price target. Soon after the IPO, shares of Triton reached a high of $47.75, but the value of the stock quickly declined. USBPJ maintained a "buy" rating while the stock price declined to $1 13/16 over the next eight months.
45. On March 30, 2001, the analyst issued a "blast" e-mail to institutional clients with cautionary statements about Triton due to the likely loss of a key customer, Advanced Radio Telecom, which was considering a Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing. Other than the "blast" e-mail, USBPJ did not issue a new research report directly on that information at that time. Notwithstanding this negative news, USBPJ maintained a "buy" rating. Another month passed before USBPJ disclosed in a broadly disseminated research report Triton's problems with this customer while downgrading Triton to a neutral on May 1, 2001. After two more months, when Triton was trading below $1, the research analyst told the head of USBPJ's equity research department, that since the company was in bankruptcy proceedings, "we can drop now if banking says ok." USBPJ discontinued coverage of Triton with a last published rating of neutral.

D. USBPJ Threatened to Drop Research Coverage of Emisphere Technologies, Inc., if it Did Not Award USBPJ the Lead Manager Role in an Offering

46. In September 1999, USBPJ attempted to compel Emisphere Technologies, Inc. to select it for investment banking business by informing company executives that it would drop research coverage of the company if it were not selected as the lead manager for an offering of Emisphere's securities. USBPJ's threatening conduct undermined competition for investment banking services.

² USBPJ widely distributed its research through public services such as Thompson Financial's First Call and on its website www.gotoanalyst.com.

E. USBPJ Failed to Disclose That it Received Payments From Proceeds of Certain Underwritings, In Part, To Publish Research Regarding The Issuer

47. From 1999 through 2001, USBPJ received payments out of the proceeds of certain underwritings to compensate the firm for services that included publishing research on the issuer. These payments were made in the form of "research guarantees" or "research checks." During this period, USBPJ accepted more than $1.8 million in exchange for, among other services, issuing research reports. Despite having an obligation to do so, the firm failed to disclose in research reports or elsewhere that it received the payments, in part, as compensation for issuing the reports. For example:
48. In June 1999, USBPJ received a $400,000 research check in connection with a $200 million high yield debt offering in April 1999 for Just for Feet. USBPJ was not a manager on the offering and did not disclose this payment in its ongoing research or elsewhere.
49. In July 1999, USBPJ received a $150,000 check in connection with an offering of common stock by JDS Uniphase Corp. Although USBPJ was not an underwriter in the offering, the firm received the payment, in part, for continued research coverage of the company.
50. In March 2001, USBPJ received a $120,000 research check in connection with an underwriting that went effective in May 2001 for Converse Technology Inc. USBPJ failed to disclose in research it published on the company that it had received this compensation, in part, for issuing research regarding the subject company.

F. USBPJ Failed to Ensure Public Disclosure of Payments It Made from the Proceeds of Underwritings to Brokerage Firms To Issue Research Coverage Regarding Its Investment Banking Clients

51. From 1999 through 2001, at the direction of certain issuer clients, USBPJ paid portions of certain underwriting proceeds to other brokerage firms to initiate or continue research coverage on issuers for which Piper served as lead or co-manager. It knew that these payments were, in part, for research. USBPJ did not take steps to ensure that the brokerage firms paid to initiate or continue coverage of its investment banking clients disclosed that they had been paid to issue such research. Further, USBPJ did not disclose or cause to be disclosed the fact of such payments.
52. or example, in 2000, USBPJ paid underwriting proceeds of $100,000 to another underwriter in conjunction with USBPJ's lead manager position on Onyx Pharmaceuticals' ("Onyx") stock offering. While this underwriter was not invited to participate in Onyx's offering, the payment was made in response to a letter dated September 22, 2000 from the underwriter asking for $300,000 in "underwriting participation" for continued research and market making. A representative of the underwriter wrote, "From August 31, 1999 until August 15, 2000, we were the only firm in print on Onyx Pharmaceuticals and we remain a Strong Buy rating." USBPJ did not ensure that this payment was disclosed to the public in its published research on Onyx.
53. In April 2000, USBPJ, acting as lead manager for an offering for Buca, Inc. directed the payment of an aggregate of $105,000 to three brokerage firms for the issuance of research. In February 2001, while assisting in another investment banking transaction for Buca, Inc., USBPJ distributed $225,000 to other firms for their research coverage. USBPJ did not ensure that these payments were disclosed to the public.

G. USBPJ Failed to Adequately Supervise Its Research Analysts and Investment Banking Professionals

54. During the relevant period, USBPJ's management failed adequately to monitor the activities of the firm's research and investment banking professionals to ensure compliance with state securities laws and regulations. Among other things, this failure to supervise gave rise to and perpetuated the above-described violative conduct.

II.CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The Commission has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to the Virginia Securities Act ("Act"), § 13.1-501 et seq. of the Code of Virginia.
2. The Commission finds that Defendant USBPJ engaged in acts and practices that created and/or maintained inappropriate influence by investment banking over research analysts and therefore imposed conflicts of interest on research analysts. USBPJ failed to manage these conflicts in an adequate and appropriate manner in violation of Securities Rule ("Rule") 21 VAC 5-20-260.
3. The Commission finds that Defendant USBPJ has committed dishonest and unethical practices under Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12), as described in the Findings of Fact above, by issuing research that contained opinions for which there was no reasonable basis and/or exaggerated or unwarranted claims.
4. The Commission finds that Defendant USBPJ inappropriately threatened executives of a potential investment-banking client by stating that they would drop research coverage of the company if the firm was not selected as the lead manager in an investment banking transaction in violation of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12).
5. The Commission finds that Defendant USBPJ received compensation directly or indirectly, from an issuer, underwriter or dealer, in part, for issuing research reports, without fully disclosing the receipt or the amount of the compensation in violation of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12).
6. The Commission finds that Defendant USBPJ, as described in the Findings of Fact above, made payments for research to other broker-dealers not involved in an underwriting transaction, when the firm knew that these payments were made, at least in part, for research coverage, and failed to disclose or cause to be disclosed in offering documents or elsewhere the fact of such payments in violation of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12).

7. The Commission finds that Defendant USBPJ failed to establish and enforce written supervisory procedures reasonably designed to ensure that analysts were not unduly influenced by investment banking concerns. Despite knowledge of research analysts' complex responsibilities and conflicts of interest, Defendant USBPJ failed to implement a system to detect and insulate its research analysts from improper influence and pressure by investment banking personnel. To the contrary, Defendant USBPJ's business practices motivated research analysts to issue research that would attract and retain investment-banking business in violation of Rule 21 VAC 5-20-260.
8. The Commission finds the following relief appropriate and in the public interest.

III.

1. This Order concludes the investigation by the Commission's Division of Securities and Retail Franchising ("Division") and any other action that the Division could commence under the Act on behalf of the Commonwealth of Virginia as it relates to Defendant USBPJ, relating to certain research or banking practices at Defendant USBPJ.

2. Pursuant to § 12.1-15 of the Code of Virginia, Defendant USBPJ will refrain from violating 21 VAC 5-20-280(E)(12) and 21 VAC 5-20-260 in connection with the research practices referenced in this Order and will comply with the Act and Regulations in connection with the research practices referenced in this Order and will comply with the undertakings of Addendum A, incorporated herein by reference.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that:

3. As a result of the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law contained in this Order, Defendant USBPJ shall pay a total amount of $32,500,000.00. This total amount shall be paid as specified in the SEC Final Judgment as follows:

a) $12,500,000 to the states (50 states, plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico) (Defendant USBPJ's offer to the state securities regulators hereinafter shall be called the "state settlement offer"). Upon execution of this Order, Defendant USBPJ shall pay the sum of $272,704 of this amount to the Treasurer, Commonwealth of Virginia as a civil monetary penalty pursuant to § 13.1-521 of the Act. The total amount to be paid by Defendant USBPJ to state securities regulators pursuant to the state settlement offer may be reduced due to the decision of any state securities regulator not to accept the state settlement offer. In the event another state securities regulator determines not to accept Defendant USBPJ's state settlement offer, the total amount of the Virginia payment shall not be affected, and shall remain at $272,704;

b) $12,500,000 as disgorgement of commissions, fees and other monies as specified in the SEC Final Judgment;

c) $7,500,000, to be used for the procurement of independent research, as described in the SEC Final Judgment;

d) Defendant USBPJ agrees that it shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification, including, but not limited to payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to all penalty amounts that Defendant USBPJ shall pay pursuant to this Order or Section II of the SEC Final Judgment, regardless of whether such penalty amounts or any part thereof are added to the Distribution Fund Account referred to in the SEC Final Judgment or otherwise used for the benefit of investors. Defendant USBPJ further agrees that it shall not claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax for any penalty amounts that Defendant USBPJ shall pay pursuant to this Order or Section II of the SEC Final Judgment, regardless of whether such penalty amounts or any part thereof are added to the Distribution Fund Account referred to in the SEC Final Judgment or otherwise used for the benefit of investors. Defendant USBPJ understands and acknowledges that these provisions are not intended to imply that the Commission would agree that any other amounts Defendant USBPJ shall pay pursuant to the SEC Final Judgment may be reimbursed or indemnified (whether pursuant to an insurance policy or otherwise) under applicable law or may be the basis for any tax deduction or tax credit with regard to any state, federal or local tax.

4. If payment is not made by Defendant USBPJ or if Defendant USBPJ defaults in any of its obligations set forth in this Order, the Commission may vacate this Order, at its sole discretion, upon 10 days notice to Defendant USBPJ and without opportunity for hearing.

5. This Order is not intended by the Commission to subject any Covered Person to any disqualifications under the laws of any state, the District of Columbia or Puerto Rico (collectively, "State"), including, without limitation, any disqualifications from relying upon the State registration exemptions or State safe harbor provisions. "Covered Person" means Defendant USBPJ, or any of its officers, directors, affiliates, current or former employees, or other persons that would otherwise be disqualified as a result of the Orders (as defined below).

6. It is further ordered that this Order constitutes and includes a waiver by the Commission of any and all limitations and disqualifications that may ensue from the entry of this Order or the SEC Orders that would otherwise affect, restrict or limit the business of USBPJ and its predecessors, subsidiaries and affiliates or their ability to participate in offerings or avail themselves of exemptions, including, without limitation, the Uniform Limited Offering Exemption, as and to the extent now or hereafter adopted by the Commission.

7. It is further ordered that this Order is not intended to prohibit USBPJ from acting as an underwriter, broker, dealer, investment adviser, municipal securities dealer, transfer agent, or entity or person required to be registered under the Commodity Exchange Act, or as an affiliated person of any investment company, bank, insurance company, or entity or person required to be registered under the Commodity Exchange Act, or from engaging in or continuing any conduct or practice in connection with any such activity or in connection with the purchase or sale of any security.

8. The SEC Final Judgment, the NYSE Stipulation and Consent, the NASD Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent, this Order and the order of any other State in related proceedings against Defendant USBPJ (collectively, the "Orders") shall not disqualify any Covered Person from any business that they otherwise are qualified, licensed or permitted to perform under the applicable law of the Commonwealth of Virginia and any disqualifications from relying upon this state's registration exemptions or safe harbor provisions that arise from the Orders are hereby waived.

9. For any person or entity not a party to this Order, this Order does not limit or create any private rights or remedies against Defendant USBPJ including, without limitation, the use of any e-mails or other documents of Defendant USBPJ or of others regarding research practices, limit or create liability of Defendant USBPJ or limit or create defenses of Defendant USBPJ to any claims.

10. Nothing herein shall preclude the Commonwealth of Virginia, its departments, agencies, boards, commissions, authorities, political subdivisions and corporations, other than the Commission and only to the extent set forth in paragraph 1 above, (collectively, "State Entities") and the officers, agents or employees of State Entities from asserting any claims, causes of action, or applications for compensatory, nominal and/or punitive damages, administrative, civil, criminal, or injunctive relief against Defendant USBPJ in connection with certain research and/or banking practices at Defendant USBPJ.

11. This Order and any dispute related thereto shall be construed and enforced in accordance with, and governed by, the laws of the Commonwealth of Virginia without regard to any choice of law principles.

12. Defendant USBPJ agrees not to take any action or to make or permit to be made any public statement denying, directly or indirectly, any finding in this Order or creating the impression that this Order is without factual basis. Nothing in this Paragraph affects Defendant USBPJ's: (i) testimonial obligations, or (ii) right to take legal or factual positions in defense of litigation or in defense of other legal proceedings in which the Commission is not a party.

13. Defendant USBPJ, through its execution of this Consent Order, voluntarily waives their right to a hearing on this matter and to judicial review of this Consent Order under § 12.1-39 of the Code of Virginia.

14. Defendant USBPJ enters into this Consent Order voluntarily and represents that no threats, offers, promises, or inducements of any kind have been made by the Commission or any member, officer, employee, agent, or representative of the Commission to induce Defendant USBPJ to enter into this Consent Order.

15. The parties represent, warrant and agree that they have received independent legal advice from their attorneys with respect to the advisability of executing this Consent Order.

16. This Consent Order shall become final upon entry.

Activities include reviewing investor-owned electric, natural gas, and water/sewer utilities' cost of service studies; reviewing allocation methods, depreciation rates and rate design philosophies; and providing expert testimony in that regard.

The Division provides expert testimony in certificate cases for service areas and major facility construction of public utilities and independent power producers. After such certificates are granted, the Division is responsible for maintaining the official certificates and associated maps.

The Division has monitoring responsibilities relative to: the collection of gas costs by gas utilities, the incurrence of wholesale purchased power expenses by electric cooperatives, and the recovery of fuel expenses and the construction and operation of major facilities by the investor-owned utilities. It also reviews extraordinary costs and policies related to nuclear power, including decommissioning of nuclear power plants and the storage of spent nuclear fuel.

DIVISION OF INSURANCE REGULATION ACTIVITIES FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 2003

The regulation of insurance was transferred to the State Corporation Commission from the Auditor of Public Accounts in 1906. The Bureau of Insurance (Bureau) has licensed and examined the affairs of insurance companies since that time. Regulation of insurance has been left almost exclusively to state governments since 1869, and here in the Commonwealth of Virginia the functions of the Bureau have increased with the complexity and importance of insurance in our daily lives.

The Bureau of Insurance is divided into the following four divisions: The Financial Regulation Division licenses, analyzes, and examines insurance companies and, if necessary, takes steps to resolve financial problems before a company becomes unable to meet its obligations; the Life and Health Market Regulation Division regulates the activities of life, and accident and sickness insurers, health maintenance organizations, and agents; the Property and Casualty Market Regulation Division regulates the activities of property and casualty insurers (auto, homeowner's liability and property); and the Administrative Services Division collects various special taxes and assessments on insurance companies as well as working as an auxiliary role to support the Bureau's other divisions.

The regulatory functions of the Bureau of Insurance include: (1) Agents Investigation monitors the activities of insurance agents and agencies to ensure their actions comply with state law; (2) Consumer Services answers questions and assists consumers with problems concerning insurance companies or agents by investigating consumer complaints; (3) Market Conduct conducts on-site field examinations of insurance company practices in Virginia to ensure that they comply with state law by verifying whether a company pays claims in a timely manner, ensures that underwriting decisions are not unfairly discriminatory, and evaluates marketing materials to ensure that they are not misleading; (4) Office of the Managed Care Ombudsman promotes and protects the interests of covered persons under Managed Care Health Insurance Plans (MCHIP), and assists consumers in understanding and exercising their rights of appeal of adverse decisions made by MCHIPs; and (5) Policy Forms and Rates evaluates insurance policies and rates to ensure that they comply with state law, are understandable, are of high quality, and that the premiums charged are reasonable and fair.
